Men On English Buses

Corporal Douglas Wilson, of the Ontario Provincial Police, Cobourg, has been assigned as pilot motor-cyclist of the buses across Ontario to London and back. He led them into Peterborough last night.

First to mount the stairs to the upper deck of one of the buses this morning at the City Hall was Mayor Waddell and members of the city council. Later, citizens lined up in front of the Tem agency to see through the display bus and receive booklets of aluring British travel.

As to the girls of the party, doing clerical and distribution work, they seemed to personify a few lines from a song in the musical comedy "Havana," probably by Lionel Monckton . . .

"They were a lovely lot of girls,
Those girls from Lonodon town,
Each one was dressed just like the rest,
"In dainty gingham gown."

They were included as guests with the other members of the party at today's luncheon of the Rotary Club."

U.S. Comes Up With Grand Slam At Helsinki Meet

By JACK SULLIVAN

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Helsinki (CP)—The United States came up with a grand slam today in the shot put at the Olympic Games.

Parry O'Brien was the winner with a new Olympic mark of 17.41 metres (.57 feet, 1.43 inches). Darrow Hooper was second and Jim Fuchs third.

The old record was 17.12 metres (56 feet, 2.03 inches) set by Wilbur Thompson of the U.S. at London in 1948. Hooper also bettered the record with a toss of 57 feet, .65 inches.

FIFTH RECORD

It was the fifth record of the games to fall, with the second day of competition still not finished.

Roy Pella of Sudbury, whose specialty is the discus, had been entered in the shot event but did not compete.

Meredith Gourdine of the United States led the first half of the field in the broad jump qualification. His leap was 7.41 metres, against the qualification mark of 7.20.

Another Vancouver girl, Luella Law, missed qualifying by placing third in another heat—the same fate that eliminated Rosella Thorne of Montreal.

Marjorie Jackson of Australia was winner of the heat in which Luella Law placed third. The Australian girl won in 11.6, with Yvette Monginou of France placing second in 12.3 and qualifying. Miss Law's time was 12.4.

B.C. Conservation Project Aims To Protect Watersheds

EDMONTON (CP)—A conservation program of importance to all Canada is being carried out on the eastern slopes of the Rocky Mountains.

The program, under the management of the Dominion-Provincial Eastern Rockies Forest Conservation Board, is aimed at protecting the watersheds of the great rivers that flow eastward across the prairies.

The conservation board, set up four years ago, has made long strides toward assuring that the 9,000-square-mile area under its jurisdiction will stay "green."

A network of 16 look-out towers equipped with short-wave radio equipment has been built for protection against forest fires. This has been augmented by an ambitious road program to make heavily-wooded regions readily accessible.

The board also maintains close supervision of lumbering and cattle grazing in the area. To combat erosion there must be sufficient ground cover left to guarantee a continuous yield of trees.

Experts make continuing surveys of insect infestation and implement control measures to combat serious outbreaks. At present the forests on the eastern slopes are considered much healthier than those in other parts of the country.

H. G. Jensen, Alberta deputy minister of lands and forests and a member of the conservation board, said the objective of the program is to restore the watershed to its condition 100 years ago, at the same time utilizing its resources to the best possible advantage.

Suffer 9 Bombing Raids During Mock-War Tests

ST. HUBERT, Que. (CP)—Eastern Canada suffered nine bombing raids in the first 24 hours of the mock-war involving more than 800 R.C.A.F. and United States Air Force planes, headquarters of the R.C.A.F. Air Defence Command announced yesterday.

The week-long operations, called Exercise Signpost, are designed to test the vulnerability of Eastern Canada and the United States to long-range bombing attacks.

There was no information as to the strength of the raids, the points attacked, where the aircraft came from, or how successful they were in penetrating the defence network of fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns.

It is believed the raids were made by R.C.A.F. Mitchells from the Trenton training command and Lancasters from the Maritime group, as well as by aircraft of the United States Strategic Command with headquarters in Omaha, Neb.

Wonder Weed Killer Is Deadly To Poison Ivy

By HENRY PREF (NEA)

Poison ivy is a pernicious weed widely distributed in much of the United States. Few folks are immune to its poison but this fact should not prevent one from fighting it on and near one's property. The method of eratication has been made easier since the introduction of the wonder weed killer 2, 4-D.

Poison ivy is easily identified by its leaves, each of which consists of three pointed leaflets; hence the old warning, "Leaflets three—let it be." The centre leaflet has a long stem, the two outside ones, short ones. Virginia Creeper or Woodbine, which is often mistaken for poison ivy, has five leaflets instead of three.

The small, greenish white flowers appear ni loose clusters from late May until July, then greenish white berries about the size of small currants form. They are smooth and waxy and dangle in bunches on the stem until late winter.

Each berry contains one hard seed. Crows and other birds eat the fruit, apparently without harm, and scatter the seeds along fences and highways.

Some people can come in contact with poison ivy at times without injury. However, it is said that very few people have total immunity at all times. For that reason it is well to wear gloves, and have the arms covered whenever working near poison ivy.

Unless one is immune to poison ivy and can grub the vines out by hand the only safe means of eradication is to use 2, 4-D.

Then on a clear morning when the new leaves are fully grown, dust or spray them—following the directions for mixing on the container. Within a few days the leaves will blacken, then turn brown and die, at least so we hope.

Safest way to rid your property of poison ivy is the use of 2, 4-D, wonder weed killer.

It frequently happens that a second application will be necessary if the stems and roots are not killed and enough life remains to [illegible] new leaf growth. These chemical compounds will not damage the soil, but because other vegetation touched by the chemical will be damaged or killed, the gardener must confine his spraying to the ivy vines.

Until recently the dermatologists had no remedy which hastens the healing of ivy poisoning. Fortunately, even the severest cases were cured by Mother Nature in three weeks or less.

About all that any of the so-called cures did was to reduce the degree of itching and make one more comfortable. However, a new ointment made of zirconium, a relatively rare metal, has been found effective in clearing up infection, and hastening a cure.

Experiments by two research scientists at the Syracuse University Student Health Service have shown that zirconium salt attacks and neutralizes the powerful irritant known as "urushiol" carried in the leaves, bark, berries and roots of poison ivy, oak and sumac.

When the ointment was given in clinical treatment to 88 persons, 85 per cent were released with their case histories marked "treatment was effective." As measured by the painstaking doctors who carried out the work, this means that the itching stopped, the rash stopped spreading, then began to scale off and disappear.

Since all of the patients weren't cured, the doctors warn that zirconium ointment is not a completely foolproof treatment. They feel certain, however, that it is "as good as or probably better than any other treatment now available."

Nevertheless, this should not be a signal to relax your vigilance against shrub poisoning when you are in the fields or vacationing in strange territory. Since this kind of poisoning can be serious enough to require hospitalization, the wise thing is to keep your defences high. Learn to recognize all of the poison shrubs.

Gardening Questions

Q.—Should sweet corn be fertilized at any time during the growing season?

A.—The old gardener recommends an application of fertilizer strong in nitrogen, or a little nitrate of soda, at tasseling time. Cultivate and water well into the soil.

Q.—Does it pay to stake tomatoes in the small home garden?

A.—Among the benefits of staking tomatoes are earlier fruiting, cleaner and larger fruits and ease of picking. Among the disadvantages are the extra work of pruning and tying, the tendency of fruits to sunscald and crack, and the possibilities of blossom-end rot.

Roland E. McFadden, 336 Braidwood Ave., and James Ray, of Bancroft, were each sentenced to seven days in jail on the drunk driving charges.

Phillip Livingstone, 28, 251 Lake St., was fined $50 and $2.50 costs for driving while impaired.

On Sunday, Livingstone was found simped over the wheel of the car he was driving after it had narrowly missed a taxi, mounted the curb and came back on the street again, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said.

After Mr. Bradshaw gave the summary of the evidence, Livingstone did not ask any questions, or offer any explanation.

A second charge of illegal possession of liquor not obtained on his own permit, against James Ray was adjourned until July 30.

O.P.P. Constable Bert Howson, of Apsley, testified that Ray was driving a truck north on Highway 28, north of Apsley, Sunday morning, when he sideswiped a car he was meeting.

The car, which was travelling south, was driven by Bernard Lloyd, of Toronto, and received about $200 damage. About $100 damage resulted to Ray's truck.

Evidence on the drunk driving charge against Bernard McFadden was heard July 16 and enlarged until today to give defence counsel Robert Carley an opportunity to obtain a defence witness who was ill. However, the witness was still in bed today, so Mr. Carley closed the defence and told Magistrate W. R. Philp, "the defence does not attempt to maintai nhis ability was not impaired, as the evidence would indicate it was to some extent."

However, Mr. Carley argued that although McFadden admitted having seven glasses of beer during the afternoon of July 1, before he was involved in an accident with two other cars on Aylmer St., there was not a sufficient degree of intoxication to warrant a drunk driving conviction.

Constable Reg McMillan testified that McFadden was so intoxicated he had to be assisted into the police cruiser and that he had difficulty with his speech. Both McFadden and another defence witness denied that Constable McMillan had to assist McFadden into the cruiser.

2 Prairie Provinces Join T.T.S. Wire

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Press now is transmitting its news day and night to the daily newspapers of Manitoba and Saskatchewan by teletypesetter operation.

Teletypesetter is an automatic type-setting device. Through code punched in a tape, an operator at a central point operates typesetting machines in distant newspaper offices. If they wish, newspapers can continue to set type manually; copy is delivered as well as tape.

With last night's opening of the Manitoba-Saskaechewan teletypesetter circuit, the number of Canadian dailies served by this method reached 38. Conversion of the 25-paper Ontario wire from teletype to teletypesetter was completed July 2.

Rescuer Clings To Breakwater Saves Woman

TORONTO. — A 39-year-old Toronto woman was rescued from drowning in Lake Ontario Saturday evening after she had fallen off the breakwater not far from the National Yacht Club near the foot of Bathurst St., Alfred Harder of Oxford St., sunbathing nearby, was able to hold Mrs. Jean Markham above water until two seamen from HMCS York completed the rescue from a rowboat.

Mrs. Markham, who lives on Fenning St., was treated for shock at the scene by lifesavers and later taken to Toronto Western Hospital for examination.

When Harder's attention was attracted by cries for help, Mrs. Markham was being carried away from shore by a strong undertow. When he reached her, he managed to keep himself and the rescued woman afloat by clinging with one hand to the breakwater off the yacht club.

Another youth who had witnessed the rescue sprinted to HMCS York. PO. Edwin Ablett and Able Seaman Peter Buchan rowed a skiff 200 yards and took Mrs. Markham and her rescuer to shore.

Citizens Happy Romaine St. Job To Be Suspended

Romaine St. ratepayers are grateful to Mayor Waddell for the indefinite suspension of the "grandiose $43,000 paving project" past their doors.

In a letter which their committee received, His Worship included this sentence: "The road maintenance will avoid paving for the time being." It is that last phrase which has caught the attention of the people living north of Outboard Marine.

They are hoping to have an opportunity of attending the committee meeting at the City Hall on Monday night for a hearing of their views of the problem and the solution.

The members of the committee are: John Pirie, Peter Dominik, Roy Heard, Mrs. J. Conlin and George Bryant.

Ninety per cent of the residents are occupant owners of Romaine St. houses. Some depend on fixed income.

Mr. Bryant remarked to the Examiner: "We want to be reasonable, but we also feel that we have a right to present our objections to the council. That has been done and it has been done in an agreeable manner. We have not taken the attitude that we don't wish to pay anything for street maintenance, but we did object to what our neighborhood regarded as a too costly type of road."

Sentiment along the street wishes to avoid recurring arguments with the council, and submission of objections to the Ontario Municipal Board who are leaving the street's appeal in abeyance.

For the present Romaine St. is getting a gravel and oil top that is paid for out of the treasury.

1,000 Ex-Pupils Pay Teacher Visit

APPIN (CP)—Loyalty to a little red schoolhouse and to a man who taught in its classrooms for more than 44 years drew close to 1,000 former pupils of school section 13, Ekfrid township, back to the scenes of their childhood here Saturday.

They came with their families and friends from points up to 200 miles away in southern Ontario and Michigan for a reunion in honor of Lewis Pay veteran school-master who retired in June after 50 years in the profession.

The former pupils didn't find the old schoolhouse when they returned. The two-room red frame building burned down about two years ago. In its place stands a modern, yellow brick school.

Cherry Crop Lighter, Aids Growers

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Kennedy said Saturday that this year's lighter cherry crop has eased the marketing situation for Ontario growers.

Mr. Kennedy said following a meeting of growers with the Ontario Cherry Marketing Board it appeared the market could absorb this year's crop, estimated at only 52 per cent of last year's bumper harvest.

Earlier growers had feared canners would hold off buying the present crop because part of the 1951 crop still remained unsold. The government turned down a proposal for financial assistance to meet the cost of freezing the unsold portion of the 1952 crop.

The 1952 crop is selling at seven cents a pound compared to 9¾ cents last year.

8 Canadian-Born Japanese Join Forces In Far East

By BILL BOSS

KURE, Japan (CP)—Eight smart soldiers; one of the smallest classes of recruits in Canadian Army history, have been graduated here.

They were the first group trained since the army's ranks were opened recently to Canadians of Japanese descent living abroad.

All eight were born in British Columbia. Three more, enlisted in June, are still to take their basic training.

The first class paraded before Brig. M.P. Bogert, commander of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade who gave each a certificate of proficiency.

The 11 Japanese Canadians came to Japan from Canada in 1946. Because they were dependents then, they had no voice in their parents' choice of residence.

There is a constant flow of applications for enlistment from other youths similarly situated. The screening through which they must pass before acceptance is rigid. Most rejections have been on physical grounds. Tuberculosis is a major cause.

The applicants' general background and political reliability also are investigated.

The men on this first parade spoke well for the results of the policy so far.

At the Commonwealth Division's battle school in nearby Haramura—all Canadian infantry reinforcements pass through it before assignment to battalions—the Japanese recruits have earned admiration of instructors and fellow trainees.

Sgt. C.W. Kelly of Brockville, Ont., who gave them their training, said: "They're good fellows. They're above average for the normal recruit and they work hard. They get full marks for enthusiasm and interest."

FIRST RECRUIT

First to enlist was 24-year-old Pte. Hiyoshi Kawanami. His elder brother, Cpl. Masao Kawanami of Hamilton, came overseas with the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and was decorated for bravery in rescuing civilian Koreans from a minefield last year.

"Most of us worked for the Occupation as interpreters," said Kawanami. "We had all been trying to join the Canadian Army ever since the first troops arrived in 1950. I wanted to be with my big brother, Masao, and like the others was willing to work, even as a civilian, if I could be with Canadians. But now I'm a Canadian soldier. It's wonderful."

So far the men have been assigned to the R.C.A.S.C., the R.C.O.C., and the R.C.E.

Said Lt.-Col. Ed. McNaughton, officer commanding the 1st regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, who watched them parade before Bogert:

"I'd like to see us recruit infantrymen and gunners like these fellows. They're good chaps."

Italy Prepares To Smash Re-born Fascist Group

By JOHN MYERS

ROME (Reuters)— Italy, after the strong showing made by the re-born Italian Fascists in the recent elections Italy is setting out to smash the "black shirts" before they again have opportunity to get a stronghold on the country.

A law passed by Parliament June 18 provides up to 12 years imprisonment for anyone convicted of attempting to revive the Fascist party and lesser terms for exalting its ideals.

Parliament gave the government power to dissolve any group found by a court of law to be a "reincarnation" of the Fascist party.

ADDS POWER

It added authority for the government to dissolve any such group by decree-law, without prior reference to Parliament or court, "in extraordinary cases of necessity and urgency."

The law is to be used chiefly against the extreme right-wing Italian Social Movement M.S.I. which has five parliamentary deputies and claims a membership of 600,000, many of them youths below voting age.

The Communists claim a membership of 2,500,000 and the Christian Democrats 2,000,000.

The M.S.I. and the Nationalist party P.N.M., who are in alliance, represent the third biggest bloc of votes in Italy.

Augusto de Marsanich, secretary of the M.S.I. and a junior minister under Mussolini, has stated publicly that if the movement is dissolved, it will be reborn under another name in 48 hours.

BANNED CONGRESSES

The government has banned the last two annual congresses called by the M.S.I. and has already struck at some of the "marked men," including ex-Marshal Rodolfo Graziano, 68, one-time viceroy of Abyssinia and Mussolini's last war minister.

Graziano will face charges of "vindication of fascism" for staging with black-shirt ceremony the funeral of Mussolini's sister, Edwige, who died on May 20.

Prince Valerio Borghese, 45-year-old Fascist navy hero who is president of the M.S.I., was forbidden to address rallies in Rome and Palermo on the eve of local elections last May. Since then, the "Black Prince," has kept very quiet.

The leader of the P.N.M. is multi-millionaire ship - owner, Achille Lauro, one of the chief architects of alliance with the M.S.I. Both the right-wing parties base their appeal on calls for national unity.

ONE-PARTY UNITY

The P.N.M., under its present leadership, condones the type of one-party unity existing under Mussolini and the monarchy. For the M.S.I., the period of Fascism was an integral and honorable part of the national history.

The M.S.I.-P.N.M. alliance has gained votes representing a trebling of right-wing extremist support since the general elections in 1948. With roughly 50 per cent of the electorate now supporting the centre parties, 35 per cent the Communists and 15 per cent the right-wing groups, the balance is fairly firm in favor of the western Democrats, but a swing of 10 per cent more votes to the right next year could upset the balance in favor of the Communists.

Worst Audition Wins Star's Role For Celeste Holm

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—Celeste Holm is an ebullient blonde actress with such elan that one of her worst auditions won her two of her most glamorous theatre roles—and one of her best resulted in a starring role in a Pulitzer Prize winner.

Miss Holm now is giving in her clear, soprano voice a spirited and saucy interpretation of the role of Anna Leonowens in the starring role of "The King and I" at the St. James theatre. She is pinch-hitting for Gertrude Lawrence in the role of English governess to the 14 children of the King of Siam in the Richard Rodgers-Oscar Hammerstein musical based upon Margaret Landon's novel, "Anna and the King of Siam."

NAME CHANGE

In her dressing room the other afternoon Miss Holm said that she thought she should get her name changed to Celeste Ann Holm.

"I was Ado Annie in 'Oklahoma,' Ann Detry in the film, 'Gentlemen's Agreement,' then Anna Christie in Eugene O'Neill's play last season at the New York City theatre. And now I'm Anna Leonowens."

Miss Holm has revealed an extraordinary talent for variety —from her role of a nun in the film of "Come to the Stable," to the Pennsylvania Dutch Emma in the stage play, "Papa is All" to a modern Washington, D.C., woman in "Affairs of State."

"When Rodgers and Hammerstein were casting the role of Ado Annie in 'Oklahoma' I came on the stage of the St. James theatre to give them an audition," she recalls. "Walking on stage, I stumbled on the steps and fell flat on my face."

TOO GOOD

"Recovering slightly, I got up and sang a few arias. I had been taking lessons from a concert teacher and really was very good. That was the trouble. Rodgers said I sang too good, and that Ado Annie had to sing like a simple country maiden, not like someone knocking on the door of the Metropolitan Opera. He asked couldn't I sing something badly?

"I thought of a French song I had learned when I was going to school in Paris. I hadn't learned the song too well. So I sang it in very bad French. I was so busy watching my French diction that I couldn't pay much attention to the music so it sounded awful but that terrible singing is how I won the role of Ado Annie in 'Oklahoma'!"

Fleet Shrinking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' active cargo and passenger fleet has shrunk from 1,520 ships last Jan. 1 to 1,098 on July 1 a drop of 28 per cent, the National Federation of American Shipping reported yesterday. "The present threat of another world war points up the acute shortage of commercial passenger - carrying ships," the federation said.

Canada Sells More Goods To Fiji Than Red Lands

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Figures sometimes have more eloquence than words. Certainly the story of the impact and injury of the cold war was never told more eloquently than in a few dry-as-dust trade figures published by the Canadian government recently.

They showed that Canada sold more goods to the Fiji Islands last year than to all the Iron Curtain countries combined—Russia, Red China, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Romania, and the others.

The tiny South American country of Ecuador bought four times as much Canadian goods as the combined Iron Curtain countries. The British Honduras bought nearly as much as the communist countries did together.

MANY OTHER PARALLELS

There were lots of other parallels to illustrate the paralysis that has overtaken trade between the two great areas of the world, East and West.

Out of the same figures emerged, too, another haunting thought—to what record heights would Canada's exports roll if mankind could dissolve its differences and throw that vast area now under Red domination open, to the traders of the world?

For Canada sold nearly $4,000,000,000 worth of goods abroad last year and the Iron Curtain countries with all their millions of people, bought only $643,000 worth—far less than one per cent.

Gibraltar bought just a little bit more from Canada. The Fiji Islands bought $802,000 worth. Ecuador bought $2,713,000 worth as part of the ever-swelling volume of trade Canada is doing with South and Central America. The tiny French islands of St. Pierre—miquelon, off Newfoundland, nearly doubled the Red total themselves.

The figures came out in a government blue book, a review of foreign trade for the calendar year 1951. The statistics on trade with the Russian-dominated countries were buried deep because not one of them qualified among the first 40 of Canada's best markets.

PURCHASES 'NEGLIGIBLE'

Only brief reference to this situation was made in the publication. It said:

"Canadian controls on strategic exports and the purchasing policies of Communist governments have reduced exports to most Communist countries to a negligible level. While Canada does not discriminate against imports from these countries nevertheless their sales in Canada are small."

Actually Canadian imports from countries under Russian control or influence were about 10 times larger than the value of her exports to them—a total of $6,764,000.

Czechoslovakia made up about two-thirds of the total. And, significantly, Czechoslovakia's total was down markedly from 1951.

West Germany Riding Crest Of Greatest Economic Boom

By BRACK CURRY

BONN, Germany, (AP)—West Germany is riding the crest of the greatest boom in its peacetime history—and the outlook is for a big expansion of economic activity this year.

Deep in the economic doghouse just four years ago, the country now appears headed toward economic activity this year.

American officials say West Germany is probably the only western country that can increase its defence contribution and at the same time enjoy increases in its living standard.

MODERN MIRACLE

This economic comeback from the broken remains of defeat is a modern miracle, unmatched anywhere since the Second World war.

In 1948, the West German economic machine was barely turning over. The wear and tear of six years of war production and wartime bombing and the impact of post-war inflation had snapped the country's economic structure.

The Germans of 1948 preferred to work for food or clothing rather than money.

Then came the currency reform of June 28, 1948 and the United States Marshall plan.

Exports in September 1948 totalled 206,000,000 marks ($49,028,000); September 1950, 697,000,000 marks ($165,000,000); September 1951 1,368,000,000 marks ($325,584,000) and May 1952, 1,407,000,000 marks ($334,866,000).

New jobs have been found for 1,400,000 people in these four years.

West Germany money now is worth nearly as much as Europe's strongest currency—the Swiss franc. After the old, inflated reichsmarks were wiped out in the 1948 currency reform, 100 of the new west marks would bring only 29 Swiss francs on the free money market.

Now 100 marks will buy 94 Swiss francs at the free rate.

PRODUCTION ZOOMS

Industrial production has zoomed. Using 1938 as 100, overall industrial production has climbed from 63 in June, 1948 to 139 at the present time. American officials predict a further increase of seven points this year.

Steel production in the Ruhr has hit 15,400,000 tons a year. In 1951, it was 13,500,000 tons.

Germans mined 120,000 tons of coal last year. Production is expected to rise by 7,000,000 tons this year.

With these tremendous strides toward rebuilding their economy, the daily life of the West Germans has changed for the better. Industrial wages are 81 per cent higher than in 1948.

A public opinion poll just released shows that nearly twice as many West Germans say they are better off economically this year than last.

Industries of most other European countries this year are strained to the limit under the twin burdens of export drives and rearmament. But West Germany has both unused industrial capacity and surplus labor for further spectacular economic gains.

Food stocks are better than in previous years and will require fewer dollar expenditures.

The government has almost stabilized prices, reducing the danger of inflation.

HARRIMAN IN CHICAGO—With the fever generated by the Republican national convention barely cooled off, Chicago is already building up another—this time for the Democrats. Here, campaign signs are once again in evidence as candidate W. Averill Harriman (arrow) is greeted on his arrival in the Windy City.

Federal Election May Conflict With Provinces

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal election in 1953 could conflict with two provincial election campaigns.

Nova Scotia and Manitoba, with governments elected in 1949, may decide to go to the polls at or about the same time as the federal government.

The federal government has until Aug. 25, 1954, to fix the date for the next election. However, there has been speculation that the election will be held next year, probably in the fall. In unofficial circles, Monday, Oct. 5, 1953, is mentioned as a possible date.

No precedent will be set if Nova Scotia and Manitoba decide to hold elections about the same time. In 1949, three provinces—British Columbia, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia—held elections within a few weeks of the federal election.

FIVE '52 ELECTIONS

Forthcoming elections in New Brunswick and Alberta will bring to five the number of provincial legislatures elected this year. Three were elected in 1951.

Saskatchewan voted June 11; British Columbia June 12 and Quebec July 16. Alberta has an election set for Aug. 5 and New Brunswick for Sept. 22. Ontario, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland elected new legislatures last year.

The situation in British Columbia is such that a new election may be called at any time. In the recent election, Social Credit elected 19 members, the C.C.F. 18, Liberals 6, Progressive Conservatives 4 and Labor 1.

The minority Social Credit government could be defeated in the legislature unless given continuous support of some Opposition members.

In other provinces, the governments are solidly entrenched.

Chinese Reds One Per Cent Of Country's Population

By STANLEY RICH

HONG KONG (CP)—The Chinese Communist party, numbering a mere 5,800,000 persons, speaks and acts for 475,000,000 persons, one-fourth of the world's population.

The party is ruthless. It has sucked new life and seemingly surer control from the blood of hundreds of thousands of victims purged in the last two years.

The party is fanatical. It demands "voluntary discipline binding on all its members."

Nowhere in the new Chinese constitution is there any provision for change without Communist party consent.

LEADERSHIP PARTY

The party in fact is so cocksure that it ripped the covers off the myth that the new government represents all groups and classes. Tung Pi-wu, sixth-ranking Communist and Politburo member, performed the operation on Sept. 23, 1951.

Since the birth of the "people's Government of China, on Oct. 1, 1949," he said, "there has not been a single document which had not been prepared or at least considered first by the party. . .This procedure has been followed in the decision on all important issues by the Central People's government.

"The Chinese Communist party . . . has become the leadership party for the machineries of the administrative authority of the state."

He said nothing about that indepent, all-party government that sits in Peiping, and guarantees "equal rights and duties" for all nationalities and all peoples in China.

The Chinese Communist party was formed in 1921 in remote Yenan of North China. It grew under the adverse climate of Chinese Nationalist opposition and the Japanese occupation. Finally, after the war, it burst the dikes. By late 1949 the Communist tide had engulfed all of mainland China.

Only then did the Chinese Communist party set up a government, the brainchild of the Communist party alone. Without the party's approval, it never could have existed.

PULL STRINGS

The control point is the Communist party central committee and the Politburo. Through this machinery the Communist masters pull the strings on their 5,800,000 party members and the other 99 per cent of China's vast population.

The central committee in turn elects the Politburo—from among its own members. The makeup of the Politburo is somewhat obscured but the signs are unmistakable that eight and possibly nine men—all Communist party veterans since 1921—form the inner circle.

These men are supreme. They make the law, interpret it and in fact are the law. They run the government, the army and the militia. Their power is so far-reaching that death is virtually the only escape.

Warn Traitors Must Beware Of Queen's Champion In 1953

By DON MACDONAGH

LONDON (Reuters)—Traitors next year must beware of John Lindley Marmion Dymoke.

Dymoke is the Queen's Champion, pledged to defend her right to the throne against all challengers.

Dymoke's ancestors have been Champions of England for 600 years. Originally, their duty—and privilege—was to ride into Westminster Hall during the coronation anquet and challenge to fight in single combat anyone who dared question the accession of the sovereign.

Recent sovereigns have not held a coronation banquet. But should the Queen decide to revive the custom, Dymoke will again have the right to ride into the hall on horseback dressed in full armor.

The origin of the ceremony itself is lost in antiquity. But during the last 900 years many of Britain's oldest families have acquired the right to offer the sovereign some service at the coronation.

RIGHT LAPSED

The Lord of the Isle of Man, for instance, had the right to present two falcons to the sovereign but there was no claimant to the right before the coronation of King George V in 1911, and the right lapsed.

The earliest record of a Court of Claims—which decides who does what at a coronation—dates from the coronation of Richard II, in 1377.

In modern times, the Court of Claims is a sub-committee of the coronation committee of the Privy Council a body of distinguished statesmen appointed by the sovereign to advise on matters of state.

Most claims to offer service at the coronation are based on "grand serjeanty" which goes back to feudal times when the sovereign granted lands to one of his subjects on condition that some service was performed.

The Dymokes acquired the manor of Scrivelsby, in Lincolnshire, on condition that they acted as the King's champions.

When the champion rode into the Banqueting hall, he threw down his gauntlet which was left lying on the floor long enough for anyone who wished to do so to pick it up. No one ever seems to have done so.

The King then drank his health out of a gold cup and as a fee for his service, the champion kept horse, armor and the cup.

The last time a champion rode into Westminster Hall was in 1821, at the coronation of George IV.

DISTRIBUTED ALMS

The lords of the manor of Bedford acquired their land on condition that they performed the service of "almoner" at the coronation. The grand almoner distributed alms on a silver dish. He kept the dish and the linen napkin which covered it and also received a keg of good wine for his trouble.

Now he just looks after the blue cloth which is laid from Westminster Hall to Westminster Abbey. For this, he gets a silver dish.

Of the few hereditary offices, the most important is that of earl marshal. With the passing of certain families who were in line for this honor, Charles II granted it to Lord Howard, later first Duke of Norfolk, in 1672.

Originally, the earl marshal performed small personal duties for the sovereign at the coronation.

In modern times, the earl marshal is responsible for organizing all the major royal ceremonies.

The present Duke, 44, is considered a first-rate organizer.

U.S. Worshippers Walk Out On Dean

CANTERBURY, England (Reuters)—A number of Americans worshipping in Canterbury Cathedral walked out last night during a sermon by Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the "red" dean of Canterbury.

The dean repeated charges that the United States has used germ warfare against Communist China.

A small, elderly woman tried to bar the dean from entering his pulpit before the sermon.

"I defy you to go into the pulpit," the unidentified woman told Johnson as he strode forward to preach at the 1,000-year-old main seat of the Church of England.

But the dean brushed the woman aside and two vergers led her away.

Dash By 'Angel In White' Upsets Olympic Officials

HELSINKI (AP)—The blonde "angel in white," whose unscheduled 200-metre dash electrified the opening ceremony of the Olympic Games, was returned to West Germany yesterday—her message of peace still not given to the world.

Dressed in black and carrying her Grecian white robe in a brown paper bag, the shapely, 23-year-old miss was escorted to the airport by Finnish police and given a one-way ticket home.

Police were relieved. So were Olympic officials, chagrined at the bizarre touch handed their solemn inaugural program Saturday when the graceful girl leaped onto the track and trotted to the speakers' stand where she sought to make a speech to the 70,000 spectators.

Police identified her as Barbara Rotraut-Pleyer, a resident of Berlin and law student at the University of Tuebingen, near Stuttgart.

They called her a "fanatic peace idealist who insisted her sole motive was to get all the nations united."

A 'MIXED-UP GIRL'

A police psychiatrist said:

"She is just a mixed-up girl, a little ill in the mind. She is a religious as well as peace fanatic. She insisted her exhortation was not political."

Police refused interviews but released these additional details from their talks with her:

She had planned the visit to the Olympics for weeks. She had worked her schedule and program to the minutest detail, from the time she should arrive in Helsinki by way of Stockholm to the exact moment she should make her appearance in the vast stadium.

Scientists Seek To Solve Weather Air Conditioning

By ROBERT E. GEIGER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nature has a giant air-conditioning system that would keep North America cool all summer—if scientists only knew how to control it. It might keep us warm in winter, too, with little or no fuel bill.

Almost every time a searing heat wave hits North American cities, a mass of polar air a comparatively short distance away is trying to come to your relief. And the ingredients usually are close at hand, in the upper atmosphere, to break up troublesome and disastrous drought, flood and blizzards.

The trouble is that when you want coolness nature is likely to send a puff of sweltering heat. When you want a warm, chinook breeze in mid-winter nature looses a blizzard.

LONG WAY FROM CONTROL

The United States Weather Bureau is a long way from being able to do anything about violent weather changes except to issue forecasts and warnings.

But weather scientists gradually are understanding more about how the changes occur.

Think of an orange sliced exactly in two equal parts. The northern hemisphere resembles one half, with its rounded side turned upward. At the top is the north pole.

Now think of a plastic cap that fits exactly over the upturned, curved surface. This thin plastic cap has a pattern imbedded in it like a jig-saw puzzle, with areas of odd shapes and sizes scattered through it. These correspond with the elements that make up the weather pattern over the top half of the earth, of which the U.S and Canada are a part.

Some portions of this weather pattern are fairly stable. For instance, the air over the North Pole, is nearly always cold. At high altitude it also generally is under lower pressure than air at the equator.

PATTERN SHIFTS

If one part of the pattern shifts, the whole thing is likely to shift. This is what changes weather on earth.

The air that is under high pressure forms huge bubbles. These come close together at times. At other times they are far apart.

When one bubble starts moving northward and begins approaching another a narrow path is formed between the two. This path is used by the winds, which in the northern hemisphere generally move west to east.

When the path narrows the winds speed up as fast as 50 miles an hour. If this occurs at the boundary line between the winds of the north and the winds of the south, a high-speed, high-altitude wind called a jet stream often is created.

Southeast Alaska seems to be a cradle for U.S. weather.

If the pressure is high in the cradle it may push polar air down. If the pressure is low it may allow hot air to come northward from the Caribbean Sea.

In 1951 there was a comparatively high pressure area off the north west coast of Canada which pushed down a lot of cold air. Another pressure area over Mexico pushed northward.

Hot winds, laden with moisture, struck the polar air across the mid-United States, particularly through Kansas.

There was a heat wave in the southeast, a cold spell up north. In the middle the violent change in temperature as the cold and hot air met caused the hot air to drop its moisture. Everyone knows how the rain came.

This June the pressure in the weather cradle was comparatively low. This allowed the high pressure of the hot Mexican border country to move far northward. A jet stream was created along the Canadian-U.S. border instead of in mid-United States. This caused most areas to go hot.

On a weather map it doesn't appear that nature had to move its elements very far to achieve this complete change from one year to the next. But it changed the courses of a couple of "rivers" of cold and hot air in the upper atmosphere. This sounds easy. But will scientists ever be able to do it?

Quake Damage Said Millions

TEHACHAPI, Calif. (AP)—With 11 persons dead and more than 25 injured, Southern California today began counting the cost of the second strongest earthquake in the state's recorded history. Focal point of the death and ruin was this farming community of 2,000 on the edge of the Mojave Desert, which caught the full fury of the bucking, rumbling upheaval that struck before dawn Monday. But here, as in other stricken areas, officials said it was too early to put a dollar sign on the damage, which appears certain to mount into the millions. Ten persons, nine of them children, died in this town as the walls came tumbling down. The 11th was crushed in the collapse of a guest-house roof at a nearby ranch. Twenty-five persons required hospital treatment.

The quake was felt from San Francisco to the Mexican border.

BUILDINGS DAMAGED

Every large business building here was damaged. The main street was deep in rubble. The Red Cross reported 31 business houses suffered major damage, with 25 per cent a total loss.

Fifteen homes were destroyed, 53 severely damaged and nearly 100 incurred minor damage.

At the nearby women's state prison, 417 inmates spent the night in tents after officials declared the six major buildings unsafe.

At Arvin, a community of 8,000 18 miles west, damage in the business section was almost as severe. The city's main street was a mass of wreckage. Fronts were knocked out of almost all buildings. Water, power and gas services were temporarily cut off.

Roads leading in the Tehachapi area were buckled and blocked by landslides, but by nightfall all but one main highway had been cleared.

TUNNELS BLOCKED

Cave-ins blocked four Southern Pacific Railroad tunnels.

In scores of other communities from the coast to the Nevada border, windows cracked, chandeliers fell, cornices toppled and high-tension lines parted.

In Los Angeles many areas were without power during the morning.

There was a fire in a refinery at Bakersfield and an explosion in a refinery at Long Beach.

Dr. Beno Gutenberg, director of the seismological laboratory at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, said after-shocks of the quake will continue for two or three years.

He said only the disastrous San Francisco earthquake of 1906 exceeded Monday's in power.

Qavam Fired From Post Mossadegh Premier Again

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters)—Former Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today rode back toward power on a wave of popular support as the Majlis House of Representatives voted in favor of his resuming office.

The appointment has yet to be approved by Shah Reza Pahlevi, who saw Ahmed Qavam, his recent designate for the post, swept from the premiership yesterday by a surge of bloody rioting.

The Shah accepted Mossadegh's resignation last week after refusing the aging premier's demands for wider powers. But Mossadegh holds the trump card: there is no alternative nominee for the premiership.

61 FAVOR MOSSADEGH

Sixty-three deputies attended today's Majlis session which nominated Mossadegh. Sixty-one voted in his favor.

News of the vote spread quickly through Tehran, now returning to normal after yesterday's paralyzing strikes and street fighting. Flags fluttered in thousands from shops and houses—but all had black ribbons attached to commemorate the score or more who died in the riots.

Yesterday's wild outbreak brought a swift end to the four-day regime of Qavam, who had pledged himself to settle his country's oil dispute with Britain.

Faced with a complete breakdown of public order, the Shah demanded and received his resignation. It was hailed as a triumph by supporters of Mossadegh, whose first act when he became Prime Minister 15 months ago was to oust the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company from its holdings in Iran.

Rumblings of unrest continued in the capital last night as troops and police clashed with Communists who staged anti-Shah demonstrations. Today the city was quiet.

Chinese Retake Hill From U.N.

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Chinese infantrymen today recaptured the crest of Old Baldy in the fifth day of a seesaw battle that has cost the Communists more than 1,000 casualties.

United Nations infantrymen still held the southeast slope of the bitterly-contested hill west of Cnorwon on the Korean western front. Baldy overlooks both the U.N. and Communist main lines of defence.

Associated Press Correspondent George McArthur said about 200 Chinese pushed through heavy U.N. tank and artillery fire and retook the shell-scarred height.

U.N. troops reached the top at 2:30 a.m. (1:30 p.m. EDT Monday) but were forced to pull back down at 9:30 a.m. in the face of counter-attacking Chinese and heavy artillery fire.

Once the Chinese had regained the top of Old Baldy, McArthur reported, United States Fifth Air Force planes plastered the area with flaming gasoline. U.N. tanks and artillery shelled the area with a tremendous barrage.

Chinese artillery knocked out three tanks in the morning fighting.

U.N. fighter-bombers again hit a railroad repair centre and cement factory between Samdung and Pyongyang, the North Korean capital. The Fifth Air Force said about 50 Thunderjets destroyed three buildings, damaged a tunnel and made six direct hits on a locomotive repair shed.

Urges Chinese Turn To U.N.

HONG KONG (AP)—The former high chief of the Chinese Communists has called on his countrymen to throw off Russian influence and turn to the United Nations for support.

This appeal to the Chinese to rid "yourselves of the Peiping tyrants who are exploiting and making fools of you" comes from Chang Kuo-tao, who headed the Chinese Communist party until 1938 when he was ousted by the present leader, Mao Tze-tung.

Writing in the July issue of the non-Communist liberal magazine "China Voice" Chang says "the tensions in the world today largely are the result of the Chinese Communists accepting the erroneous leadership of R sia."

Chang calls pr ent-day Communism "Czarist Imperialism," and says that now is the time for the Chinese people, including the Communists, to choose "between war and peace, vassalage and independence, peaceful labor and destruction."

Toronto Man Held In Simcoe Stabbing

DELHI (CP)—Stenn Pakulsky of Toronto today was arrested in connection with the stabbing of Bud Barber, 33-year-old Simcoe district resident.

Eliminate Saturday Sessions On Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—The management committee of the Toronto stock exchange today voted to eliminate Saturday half-sessions and to extend week-day trading by half an hour during the fall and winter. The changes become effective Monday, Sept. 29.

The decision means the exchange will be open until 3 p.m EDT during the summer and until 3.30 p.m. EST for the rest of the year. Previous policy had been to suspend Saturday trading only during the summer.

The committee's move places the Toronto market in line with exchanges in New York and Montreal, which announced similar changes last week.

Say Population In Canada Increases 421,000 In Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's population increased an estimated 421,000 in the year ended June 1, bringing the total to 14,430,000.

If the rate of increase could be maintained—indications are that it won't be — Canada's population would hit the 15,000,000-mark by late 1953.

The estimate of the increase in population was made yesterday by the Bureau of Statistics. It took the population total of 14,009,426 recorded June 1, 1951, in the decennial census. It added births and immigration and subtracted deaths and an estimate of emigration.

The increase of 421,000 compared with a gain of 297,000 in the previous 12 months, of 265,000 between June 1, 1949, and June 1, 1950, and of 279,000 between June 1, 1948 and 1949. The 1949 figure did not include the 345,000 population gained by Newfoundland's entry into confederation.

The bureau said the increase this year was due to a high level of births and to the arrival of 216,000 immigrants between June 1, 1951, and the corresponding date this year.

ALL PROVINCES GAIN

All provinces shared in the population increase. Largest increase was 168,000 for Ontario followed by 118,000 for Quebec, 33,000 for British Columbia, 31,000 for Alberta 22,000 for Manitoba, 13,000 for Newfoundland and 111 for Saskatchewan.

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick each gained 10,000 and Prince Edward Island 5,000.

A decrease in the number of immigrants this year is expected to slow the rate of increase. Immigration Minister Harris has said that immigration will be limited to employment opportunities.

Germany Nips Canada In Repechage Heat

HELSINKI (CP)—Germany defeated Canada in a repechage heat for eight-oared shells in the Olympics today.

The Canadians, deadlocked in a race with Sweden yesterday, were given another chance to qualify today.

The Canadian representatives, made up of Toronto Argonauts, took five minutes more than their German competitors to complete the 2,000 metre course.

The Canadians' shell was borrowed from the Swedes after equipment shipped from Canada was damaged on shipboard during a

U.S. Radar Picks Up Saucers Now

Eight Images Appear On Air Force Screen, Pilots See Them Too

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Air Force today investigated reports that several "flying saucers" had been spotted by radar virtually in its own back yard on the outskirts of the country's capital.

Not only were unidentified objects seen on radar—indicating actual substance instead of mere light—but two airline pilots and a reporter saw eerie lights fitting the general description of flying saucers the same night.

Officials could not immediately agree on whether this was the first time radar has picked up flying saucers. All agreed it was unusual.

DIFFERENT DESCRIPTION

The objects also were different from the average reported saucer in that they travelled at a relatively slow speed, as well as later disclosing the customary burst that far outspeeds normal planes.

One thing was certain: A thorough investigation is being made by the air technical intelligence centre, Wright-Patterson air force base, Dayton, Ohio, which has been set up to look into flying-saucer reports.

The saucers over the capital were reported late Monday, about 36 hours after the incident actually occurred.

This is the story as pieced together from air force reports, persons involved, and other sources:

SPOTS IMAGES

An operator at Washington National Airport spotted eight unidentified images on one of his radars. The images were going probably 100 to 130 miles an hour. That was around midnight.

Capt. S. C. Pierman of Detroit, piloting Capital Airlines flight 807, soon reported seeing seven objects between Washington and Martinsburg, W.Va. He said they changed pace, sometimes moving at tremendous speed, at other times hanging almost motionless.

Another airliner, Capital-National Airlines flight 610, also reported seeing a light following it from Herndon, Va., to within four miles of Washington.

Saul Pett, an Associated Press reporter, said he saw a "flying saucer" that same night near River Edge, N.J., outside of New York. It was orange-colored, round, moved swiftly and soundlessly, and he did not think it could have been a plane, balloon, or meteor.

Border Patrol Seizes 8 Aliens

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The United States border patrol today seized eight aliens from Canada. Six were Canadians, one a German and one a native of The Netherlands, authorities said.

U.S. Immigration and Naturalization service officers said the names of the men would be disclosed later this week when Arthur J. Karnuth, district director of the service, returns to this city.

It was reported one of them swam the Niagara River from Ontario to Lewiston, N.Y. The others, officials said, entered the U.S. illegally via Niagara River bridges.

Two were captured near Batavia, the other six were taken into custody along the Niagara frontier.

Chief of investigations Richard Haberstroh said that deportation proceedings were under way against all eight men.

Rumor Of Split In Red Camp

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said last night the Chinese Communists are tired of having their men killed and want to compromise for a Korean truce, but the North Koreans "appear unwilling."

Rhee said in an interview he understands there is "more evidence now of a split as the Chinese appear ready to yield on points of the prisoner-exchange question."

"This is opposed by the North Korean Communists, as I understand," Rhee told Irving R. Levine of the National Broadcasting Company.

Dies From Burns

MONTREAL (CP)—Alfred Peters, secretary to the manager of Jasper Lodge at Jasper, Alta., died early today in hospital in Edmonton from burns suffered last week when fire destroyed the lodge, Canadian National Railways officials said.

Three-Way Split Develops On Civil Rights

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

CHICAGO (AP)—A three-way split over civil rights—instead of the usual north-south division—developed among Democratic platform drafters today.

The 19 delegates assigned to rough out the party's Presidential campaign principles began a marathon session to finish their task by tomorrow.

Senator Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, who usually votes with the northern wing of the party, told this reporter he could not support a Senate anti-filibuster plank.

"I think it's dishonest to say we are going to do something that we know we cannot do," he said.

WOULD CHANGE RULES

Senator Herbert H. Lehman of New York, also on the drafting group, has predicted adoption not only of a stronger racial-relations section but also a plank calling for a change in Senate rules on filibusters.

The filibuster is a vote-stalling device used by southern representatives to block legislation aimed at improving the lot of the Negro. Some northern groups would curtail its efficacy as a debating tactic.

Lehman and his supporters contend that until the Senate rewrites its rules there will be no chance of getting Congress to enact civil-rights legislation.

At five days of public hearings before the platform group southern Democrats, who bolted the convention four years ago on this issue, remained strangely silent.

Senator John Sparkman of Alabama said he believes Lehman and other northern senators may be pushing the anti-filibuster issue in an effort to promote the Presidential bid of Averell Harriman, who has backed their stand vigorously.

Turns On Fan Has Hectic Ride

COBALT (CP)—It was hot in the empty bus so Irvine Smith, 27-year-old miner, decided to turn on the electric fan while he waited for the driver to reappear.

The fan started but so did the engine and the bus went careening down a hill. Smith was thrown from the driver's seat but was able to keep his grasp on the steering wheel.

The vehicle swerved through streets, rammed a parked auto, sideswiped a potato chip wagon, forced another car into the ditch and finally smashed to a halt on a mining company's six-inch air line.

No charge has been laid against Smith by police.

More Workers Get Compensation

TORONTO (CP)—Several thousand Ontario workmen, never before entitled to compensation and medical aid for accidents suffered at work, will gain protection under new regulations announced today by the Workmen's Compensation board.

E.E. Sparrow, chairman of the board, said firms employing one or more full or part-time workers may obtain immediate coverage for their employees. Previously in certain industries a firm had to employ a minimum number, four or six, before its workers could obtain benefits of the province's compensation plan.

Such protection must be obtained by employers by Jan. 1, 1952, Mr. Sparrow said.

Among types of work covered by the new regulations are blacksmithing; butchering; a variety of bush operations; prospecting and development work; building maintenance; picture framing; laundry or dry cleaning shops; restaurants; upholstering; window cleaning; the operation of taxis, buses and for-hire farm equipment; and the manufacture of stationery items and cheese.

Mr. Sparrow urged employers to get coverage for their employees quickly and thereby protect themselves against liability for on-the-job accidents suffered by their workmen.

Britain Loses Appeal At The Hague

Report Vote 9 to 5 As Authorities Rule 'Not Competent'

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (CP)—The International Court ruled today that it is not competent to deal with the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

The vote was 9 to 5.

Britain contended the court had power to settle the dispute between the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and the Iranian government which had nationalized the company's $1,000,000,000 Iranian holdings.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh who pushed through the nationalization law personally appeared before the court to argue that it had no competence to judge the dispute.

Nationalization of the oil industry he contended, was entirely an internal matter.

Only 2 Prisoners In Demonstration

TORONTO (CP)—Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said yesterday only two prisoners were involved in a demonstration Sunday night in Kent county jail at Chatham.

Reports that 14 of the 25 prisoners took part were untrue, he said.

One source said the disturbance was caused by two men who protested against their food and that six men in the ward at the time also took part in the outbreak.

Mr. Basher said one of the ringleaders, "a United States man named Columbus," is waiting to go to Kingston penitentiary. He is appealing against his sentence.

"The other man is Lyle Wallace, who has been sentenced to six months definite and six months indefinite."

The disturbance was "over in two or three minutes," he said.

"To the best of my knowledge the food is the best and well served."

Court Convicts Two Soldiers

KURE, Japan (CP)—Two Canadian soldiers have been convicted by court martial on charges of stealing army property.

Pte. Edward Patrick Thomas of Ottawa was sentenced to five years imprisonment and Pte. D. C. Brophy of Halifax to three years. Both belong to the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

Evidence was that they were arrested one night in an army depot moving bales of army clothing toward an open window.

Thomas was convicted of stealing and shopbreaking. He pleaded guilty to being absent without leave. Brophy was convicted of breaking and entering and theft. He also pleaded guilty to being absent without leave.

Plane Explosion Kills 3 Airmen, Children Hurt

MARIANNA, Fla. (AP)—An airplane exploded over Marianna today, killing three airmen, sending two children to hospital with severe burns and destroying a house. A third child is missing.

Officials at MacDill field in Tampa said the plane apparently was a B-47 from there.

Airplane fragments were scattered over a wide section of the city.

Believe Democrats Ready To Draft Stevenson Now

CHICAGO (CP)—The verbal war between the states kept delegates to the national Democratic convention in session until after two o'clock this morning. They were no nearer selecting a candidate for the presidency than before the convention opened, but it seemed certain they would succeed in drafting Governor Aldai Stevenson of Illinois to be their standard bearer. Meanwhile, in spite of the hopes and efforts of those who wanted to keep the party from airing party differences, the old question of states rights boiled over to submerge and put into the background the oratory and eloquence of the keynoter and others.

The late debate was precipitated by Senator Blair Moody of Michigan, the young Washington newspaper correspondent picked by Governor Mennen Williams of Michigan to complete the senatorial term of the late Senator Arthur Vandenberg. Moody is up for re-election in November.

FIGHTING REVOLT

Moody, apparently trying to head off a revolt such as split the party in 1948, presented a motion which would bind all delegates to get behind whatever candidates for President and vice-President the convention agreed upon.

His motion was finally adopted without a roll call at 2:06 a.m.CDT in an atmosphere which the chairman, Governor Paul A. Dever of Massachussetts, said was so confused few knew what was happening.

VEEP BOWS OUT

Meanwhile a popular candidate had removed himself from the running. Vice-President Alben Barkley, apparently smarting under lack of support from President Truman who earlier said "the "Veep" at 74 was too old, bowed out.

Barkley said publicly that his withdrawal was due to labor opposition to his candidacy. Also it was on the grounds of age.

Barkley's withdrawal statement reflected anger against "self-annointed political labor leaders" who had termed him too old.

Barkley, as a "favorite son" candidate, had Kentucky's 26 first-ballot votes. Mrs. Susan Pollard, committeewoman from Lawrenceburg, Ky., said "there is a strong possibility we will vote for Stevenson on the first ballot."

STATES RIGHTS ISSUE

Today the convention resumes for routine oratory which may be interrupted at any time by the argument within the party on states rights and the seating of delegations from Texas and Mississippi with differing views on that subject.

The Democrats nominated and elected Harry Truman in 1948 with

Cost-of-Living Index Up 3 Points In U.K.

LONDON (CP)—The cost-of-living index in Britain jumped three points to 138 last month, it is disclosed in latest statistics released by the Ministry of Labor. The figure, representing a 13-point boost in the last 12 months, is based on an index yardstick of 100 in June 1947.

The rise, foreshadowed by R.A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his March budget speech, following drastic cuts in imports, was mainly attributed to higher food prices, particularly fresh meat, processed meats and tea.

Ministry officials expect the index to go up another point or two when additional imports cuts are applied this autumn. This, however, will coincide with increases in pensions and family allowances already announced by the government.

2 Youths Killed In Train Crash Near Markham

MARKHAM (CP)—Cecil W. Watt 18, of Toronto, and Graham Carberry, 21, of Markham, were killed early today when their car was struck by a train a few hours after they started out on a holiday fishing trip.

The accident occurred at Locust Hill crossing near this community, about 15 miles northeast of Toronto.

Long skid marks on the highway indicated a desperate attempt to stop the car after the Toronto to Ottawa train was sighted. Holiday clothing and fishing gear was strewn along the track. Their late model car was dragged 120 feet by the train.

Engineer J. Logan skidded the wheels of his locomotive in a futile attempt to stop. The passenger train was delayed 90 minutes.

LOUD CRASH

"There was a loud crash," said Mrs. Frank Wade, wife of the proprietor of the general store, closest building to the scene. "I thought at first the children might have left a wagon on the tracks.

"I looked out and all I could see was a cloud of steam from the train."

Villagers said the driver must have been blinded by the rising sun. A witness told police the wigwag signal was operating at the crossing.

Carberry was driving the car, owned by his father. Young Wat was his brother-in-law.

Young Carberry had just returned with other members of his family from a week-end at Sault Ste. Marie.

Air Defence Tests Continue

ST. HUBERT, Que. (CP)—Operation Signpost, the first joint United States-Canada air defence exercise in history, swung back into high gear today after a 24-hour pause yesterday.

"Enemy" bombers from both countries resumed their attempts to penetrate Canada's air defence system of radar, anti-aircraft guns and fighter planes, but R.C.A.F. officials here declined to indicate just where the planes were attacking or how many were in each raid.

Air Vice-Marshal A. L. James, officer commanding the Canadian side of the show, ordered a breather yesterday after 61 weekend raids had been completed.

FURTHER STRENGTHENED

Officials at St. Hubert station, headquarters of the Canadian defending forces, said the big Bagotville station was further strengthened last week-end with the arrival of Squadron 430 from North Bay. It will assist in guarding the vital northern Quebec aluminum industry.

To give an idea of the size of the operations, officials said 156 sorties were made Sunday when 163 unknown aircraft ventured into the Eastern Canada defence set-up. These were later identified as pleasure aircraft.

Army-manned anti-aircraft guns surround Montreal and district and are working with the air force.

50 Proposals of Marriage

Woman 74 Rebuilds Blitzed Home Alone

LONDON (CP)—More than 50 proposals of marriage and a stream of congratulatory messages have poured in on 74-year-old Mrs. Edith Binge, of London's working-class district of Poplar.

It all started when word got around she had single-handedly and without a government permit, completed the re-building of her blitzed home—a 12-year task.

The house, reconstructed from a pile of rubble, was one of many destroyed by a bomb dropped in 1940. Mrs. Binge, a widow whose only son was serving in the army, was in a nearby shelter when the bomb struck.

When she emerged she found only one room of her home habitable. The next day she put up a waterproof roof and set about rebuilding. It took her a year to clear the debris and sort it out. Then she cleaned the retrieved bricks, bought sacks of cement and sand, reshaped the timber and did the plumbing and electrical work by herself.

Mrs. Binge insisted the job could have been completed much sooner but for the fact she had to confine her operations to what was left of her meagre old age pension.

A member of the Poplar housing committee, Councillor E. H. Smith, said Mrs. Binge had established something of a precedent in getting her home together without once filling out a form or seeking permission from the authorities. Normally, a minimum of five permits is needed to start building.

As for the proposals of marriage, Mrs. Binge put them away.

"For the rest of my days I think I shall prefer my own home," she said.

Federal Gov't Takes Hand In Rail Talks

MONTREAL (CP)—The federal government took a hand today in resumed negotiations between Canadian railways and the 17 unions representing 125,000 non-operating workers.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Arthur MacNamara, deputy Minister of Labor, assisted by M. M. Maclean, chief conciliation officer for the Department of Labor.

Mr. MacNamara and Mr. Maclean were appointed July 14 when the railways and the unions asked for a conciliator when their negotiations for a new agreement to start Sept. 1 reached a stalemate.

The unions, made up of workers not engaged in the actual running of trains, are asking for a wage increase of 45 cents an hour and an automatic cost-of-living bonus that would give workers an extra one cent an hour for every one-per-cent increase in the official cost-of-living index.

They are also seeking a union shop and compulsory check-off of union dues.

CLAIM COST HIGH

The railways maintain a 45-cent increase would be equivalent to a 35-per-cent pay raise, and the two principal companies, Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway, say it would cost them from $150,000,000 to $167,000,000 a year.

The existing agreement, due to expire Aug. 31, gave the unions a seven-cents-an-hour increase and cut the work week to 40 hours. It resulted from an arbitration award in 1950 by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada following the ending of a nine-day railway strike by special legislation of Parliament.

Stock Market Prices Make Little Headway

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market prices made little headway today in slow early afternoon dealings.

Activity dwindled from a dull opening. Volume for the first three hours was 817,000 shares.

Manufacturing companies, agricultures, foods and liquors drew moderate industrial support but papers, banks and miscellaneous issues slipped. Simpsons A and B dropped sharply but preferred shares strengthened.

Western oils were mixed. Devon-Leduc, Dome Explorations, Gas Explorations, Gridoil and Western Homestead strengthened while Central Leduc, Federated Petroleum and North Canadian weakened.

Base metal leaders were firm but lower-priced issues dipped. Hudson Bay, International Nickel, and United Keno Hill added fractions while Golden Manitou, Mindamar and United Asbestos slipped.

Senior golds sagged as Kerr Addison, Lake Shore, Lamaque and Malartic turned downward. Secondary issues eased. East Malartic dipped.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indices showed industrials up .39 at 319.98, golds down .95 at 93.52, base metals up .30 at 191.82 and western oils down .23 at 137.07.

Accident Victims Still Critical

Two recent victims of accidents in the Peterborough district are still on the critical list at Civic Hospital.

They are: Wendy Buchanan, 1½, of Toronto and Mrs. Mary Buck, 78, of Asphodel township.

The Buchanan child received a fractured skull Sunday evening. The rear wheels of a car driven by Miss Elfreida Jenkins are believed to have run over her neck. The accident occurred as Miss Jenkins was backing the car out of the driveway of Mr. and Mrs. George Rigby Jr., three miles south west of Havelock.

Mrs. Buck was injured a week ago today when she was struck by a car as she was crossing Highway 7, near her home, a half mile west of Norwood.

She was knocked to the pavement so heavily, that her both legs were broken, her left arm mangled, one hip was punctured and a shoulder was dislocated. After being admitted to Civic Hospital, her right leg was amputated above the knee.

Three other weekend accident victims who were seriously injured are reported to be making favorable progress.

Four-year-old Kenneth Killingbeck, 348 Grady Ave., who received a fractured skull when he fell into the basement of his parents' home Sunday; Frank Gooley, 35 Stewart St., and Harold Wiggins, 77 Avondale Ave., Lansing, both injured in separate car accidents Friday are all in good condents Friday are all in good consaid today.

TorontoManGets Credit For Rescue

Johnny Jacobs, 32-year-old Curve Lake guide, today gave a Toronto man top credit for helping rescue Russell (Rusty) Elliott from Buckhorn Lake on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Elliott managed to swim to a drifting punt, at the same time carrying 22-month-old Peter Cullen whom he had grabbed when leaping from his burning outboard motor boat. By the time he reached the punt he was exhausted. He had enough strength to hand the baby over to other children in the punt, but was unable to climb in.

At this point a boat owned by Allan B. Collis of Gilchrist Street arrived on the scene. A passenger, Morton L. Atkins of Toronto, dived into the water and held Mr. Elliott up.

A couple of minutes later Johnny Jacobs who was guiding a Pennsylvania fishing party came up. Johnny grasped Mr. Elliott under the arms and Mr. Atkins heaved. Together they got the exhausted man into the boat.

"I tried artificial respiration to get some of the water out of him," said Johnny.

Mr. Elliott received blistered hands, but the rest of the party, consisting of five children, were not harmed.

Durdle was arrested early yesterday and Philips last night. Police charged the offence occurred in a car in Westminster township between 10 and 11 p.m. Sunday.

Careless Driver Pleads Guilty, Fined

Thanks For Road Say Residents Of Romaine St.

"Thanks very much for the way we have been treated," was Roy Heard's parting expression of appreciation to the board of works Monday night as a Romaine St. deputation of which he was a member, took off for home from the City Hall.

"We thought we were only getting an oiled street," Mr. Heard had said previously in a passing discussion of the type of road City Engineer Chalmers began remaking last week.

Mr. Chalmers had explained that the top is to be an average five-inch 'mix of asphalt and gravel. He said he could not guarantee its life time, but the surface might stand up five years under traffic.

Furthermore, the Romaine Street job entails no charge on the fronting properties. The cost comes out of the city's general funds, specifically, out of the Board of Works estimates for this year.

Net result of the case recently built up and presented by the Romaine Street people was a motion by the Board of Works recommending that the Ontario Municipal Board return the street paving by-law, from which Romaine Street is to be deleted.

To Mr. Chalmers' description of the type of road that is being laid on Romaine Street, John Pirie said: "That is the first definite information we have had of the kind of road we will get."

At that stage of the discussion it seemed to be the feeling of the deputation that they were getting more than they were expecting, and that discretion advised a grateful retreat. George Bryant had intimated that the Romaine Streeters were concerned about a reference in Mayor Waddell's recent letter to them that the road maintenance plan that is now being carried out would avoid a paving program for the time being.

That phrase "for the time being" had given them pause. "We want it fixed once and for all," Mr. Bryant said. "We are willing to pay what the residents feel they can pay, but they think the road should not cost $43,000."

That was a reference to the ideal of a permanent road, but Mr. Chalmers said there was hardly such a thing as permanent road. As to the Romaine Street job, he said his men had just begun by scarifying the old surface. "We haven't started road making there yet. The wet weather this week held us up."

Mr. Chalmers mentioned that Park Street South was a similar type of road. It was laid in 1933, "but it has a lot of holes in it now." That was nearly 20 years ago.

"I think the Romaine Street residents should be happy about it if they get 10 years out of the new road," Ald. T. D. Miller said.

"We are not asking for a handout," said Peter Dominik.

Discussion gradually turned to the parking of cars, particularly toward the west end of Romaine Street. Mr. Bryant said Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. had laid out a parking area, but some of the employees were in such a hurry to get away home that they would not take a few extra minutes to park on the company's lots, one of them on the former Mervin property on the west side of Monaghan Road. The company could not make them park there, but the council could put a two-hour parking limit on one side of Romaine Street.

"In the old days of horses and buggies the public did not have to provide stable accommodation for them," Mr. Bryant said. Trucks taking a shot cut to Monaghan Road by Romaine Street, and four out-of-town buses parking around 5 p.m. on Romaine Street, were other nuisances to the neighborhood that could be avoided.

"Why don't those buses park in front of the plant?" Mr. Bryant suggested. He said the Romaine Street people wished to be reasonable in their proposals to the council.

After the deputation had gone, it was decided to refer the parking question to the special traffic committee.

Officials Fear Fireworks As Red Cross Parley Opens

TORONTO (CP)—Officials preparing for the opening of the 18th International Red Cross conference tomorrow have expressed fear that the North Korean Communist delegation may use the meeting as a sounding board for renewed attacks on alleged United Nations use of germ warfare in Korea.

With some 68 countries represented at the conference, the North Koreans, backed by the 15-member Russian and 19-member Communist Chinese delegations, will have an excellent opportunity to press these charges as "humanitarian matters."

Count Bonabes de Rouge, Secretary-General of the League of Red Cross societies, said yesterday that all Communist delegates will be seated as accredited delegates, and added there might be dispute on the conference floor if either the Communist or Nationalist Chinese delegations should demand that the other not be seated.

One Red Cross officer last night admitted "the conference could be dynamite" but added, "It's our job to see that it goes right ahead and makes progress in bettering the humanitarian laws in the world."

Speculation on the intention of the North Korean delegation to introduce the question of germ warfare increased when it was learned that one member of the delegation is a skin specialist who has figured conspicuously in the charges. It also appeared likely that the North Koreans would bring the prisoner-of-war riots on Koje Island into the discussions.

A spokesman in the External Affairs Department said in Ottawa yesterday there will be no curtailment on travel within Canada by the Communist delegations. He said they will require no special travel passes.

The conference, attended by some 500 delegates and 500 more volunteer workers, will continue for almost three weeks.

Plan Water-Ski Ballet As Daily CN.E. Show

TORONTO (CP)—A ballet on water skis will be offered daily to spectators at the Canadian National Exhibition this year.

George Duthie, sports director of the C.N.E., says costumes for the girls in the ballet will be made of waterproof nylon of several "eye-appealing" colors.

The presentation will feature Canadian champions Carol Ann Duthie of Toronto and Charles Blackwell, Jr., of Owen Sound. World champions will include Mary Lois Thornhill, Cypress Gardens, Fla., and Emilio Zamudio, Cuernavaca, Mexico.

The ballet chorus will include Mrs. Marilyn Hill Smith and Tom Smith, Guelph, Doug Matheson, Southampton, and Hawley Staight of Owen Sound.

The hour-long presentations will be staged daily on the water front and will be free.

Congress filibustered every effort to enact a federal fair employment practices law and can continue to do so unless rules are changed.

THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE in the manner of 1860 is the theme of "East Lynne," which the Summer Theatre plays this week. The points of the triangle, seen above, are W. G. Needles as the good and honorable Archibald Carlyle, Brenda Davies as the erring Lady Isabel, and Gerry Sarracini as the betrayer, Sir Francis Levison. Although it is forty years since it was last played in Peterborough, "East Lynne" is remembered with affection by many local playgoers.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Pope Urges New Deal For World's Poor

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (Reuters)—The Pope today urged a new deal for the poor, advocating a "fair share of responsibility" for workers in running national economies and ownership of property by the low paid.

He deplored the "intolerable growth of luxury spending, of superfluous and unreasonable expenditure which violently contrasts with the poverty of a great number of people."

His pronouncements, made in a letter to a Roman Catholic conference on social problems which opened today in Dijon, France, were released at his summer home here.

In appealing for a more just distribution of the world's wealth he outlined the teachings of the Roman Catholic Church and commended the Dijon Congress for choosing as its theme "wealth and poverty."

The Pope admitted the necessity for governmental powers to coordinate economic policy but insisted that they do so "without substituting their oppressive omnipotence for the legitimate autonomy of private initiative."

Sudbury Man Qualifies In Discus Final

HELSINKI (CP)—Roy Pella of Sudbury, Ont., qualified today for the final in the Olympic discus throw.

Pella competed in the second half of the qualification round and in that division was tied for fifth place with Jorgen Plum of Denmark. Each had a heave of 152 feet, 9.89 inches.

The qualification mark was 150 feet, 11.06 inches.

Adolfo Consolini of Italy, Olympic champion, led the first half of the qualifying field with a toss of 170 feet, 2.95 inches. In Pella's division, Nicolas Syllas of Greece led with 156 feet, 11.5 inches.

The Canadian team had formally entered Bob Adams of Saskatoon, Canada's decathlon man, but he did not compete. He will confine his eforts to the decathlon event alone—in which he is expected to make a good showing in the discus throw, one phase of the decathlon.

"COOL CONTROL"

OVERHEAD BAIT CASTING

1 Control is all-important. Index finger of right hand grips trigger of rod firmly. Thumb rests lightly on spool. Other fingers press handle of rod into palm. Thumb should be relaxed, rest of grip firm but not rigid.

2 Control comes with experience. Practise moving rod back for cast, applying thumb pressure to allow weight of bait to carry tip of rod back, for extra casting power. Relax thumb pressure when rod begins forward movement; apply again just before bait hits water.

3 Keep arm close to body. Movement comes from wrist and forearm. Fingers on handle open as rod moves back, close as rod comes forward. Concentrate on wrist movement for accuracy. Aim; come back fast; forward twice as fast. Remember — only experience gives perfect control.

Yes, it's control that counts, in fishing as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Transfer Ruest For Hanging

QUEBEC (CP)—Genereux Ruest, 54-year-old cripple, has been transferred to Montreal's Bordeaux jail to be hanged Friday for his part in the time-bombing of an airliner in 1949, authorities announced today.

Ruest, convicted of manufacturing the time-bomb that blew up the airliner and killed 23 persons, was transferred from Quebec jail July 16, a few days after his removal from hospital where he underwent treatment for a liver condition. He also is suffering from tuberculosis of the bones and is unable to walk by himself. His counsel has asked Justice Minister Garson to order a new trial or commute his death sentence to life imprisonment.

Ruest's appeal to the Quebec Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of Canada was rejected.

His sister, Mrs. Arthur Pitre, 43, found guilty of placing the bomb aboard the passenger plane, plans to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. She is under sentence to be hanged Oct. 17.

J. Albert Guay, Quebec jeweller, was hanged Jan. 12, 1951, for masterminding the plot to kill his wife, Rita, one of the passengers on the plane when it exploded over nearby Sault au Cochon.

Moist Eyes At Old East Lynne Triumph Of Sentiment

A lady in the audience said to her neighbor the last time she had seen "East Lynne" was 45 years ago. That was in Peterborough, at the old Grand Opera House. There was another who had seen it four times—going back nearly sixty years (and she said also that last night's Lady Isobel in the Summer Theatre production was the best she had seen). A grey-haired gentleman in the lobby at intermission talked of the play with a quiver in his voice and with moist eyes.

The play goes back farther than anyone in the audience, back almost as far as 1861 when the novel on which the play is based, "East Lynne," by Mrs. Henry Wood, was first published. Yet it is not a play only for doting septuagerarians. Opening night's full house at the Queen Mary auditorium was mostly younger couples who had probably never seen the play or read the book, or seen even the movie. They, too, were enthralled.

"East Lynne" seems immortal. For nearly a century it has drawn large audiences and won hearts; and it has passed into folk-lore. Not even the authorship of the play is known. It is cliche-ridden—but some of the cliches were created in "East Lynne." "May your future be peaceful, for happy it can never be," says the dignified Lord Mount Severen (Michael Sadler himself took the portly part) to his fallen ward, the Lady Isobel, in her Haunt of Guilty Splendour in Paris. (What a scarlet haunt it is; this set is wonderfully contrived and painted.)

SENSE AND SENSIBILITY

The play lives on because it has sense and sensibility. It makes dramatic sense; that is, a good sinewy plot, a story with plenty of interweaving and good plain blacks and whites. And there is sentiment galore—the sensibility of Victorian delicacy of emotional perception.

In the Summer Theatre production the drama is played as a period piece, straight and big, in the 1860 manner—big enough for a touch of burlesque should the modern audience want to take it. But their hissing of the villain last night was not entirely a conscious act. And at the end of Act II and the final curtain on Act III, pathetic sentiment was palpitating, pendant, a pearl of great price—like the virtue of the Lady Isobel. The audience swallowed their cud.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

Brenda Davies (Isobel) and Jerry Sarracini (the villainous rake Sir Francis Levison), were the stars of the show. They were exceptionally good; Mrs. Davies very beautiful, very repentant, played with great tenderness and poignancy; Mr. Sarracini was monstrous and leering in his seduction, poised in his villainy and grand in his aristocratic pilfering of gentle virtue—the paragon of villains (except for some chalk on his tail in his last big passages).

Barbara Hamilton, from whose voice we have come to expect great things, played Miss Cornelia, hard-surfaced, kind-hearted sister of the noble Archibald Carlyle. She gave a well-paced version, nicely balanced comedy and melodrama. Bill Needles played Archibald; his transparent nobility and some broadness of acting salted scenes which might otherwise have sunk into a slough of unbearable pathos.

In the minor parts, the acting of Patricia Moore as senior maid Wilson was outstanding. Beryl Braitwaite, as junior maid Joyce, is an actress of promise. A senior member of the company, Kate Reid, took the part of Little Willie, Isobel's ailing son, in the tradition of having a young woman in a boy's part. Her comic sense could with advantage to the role be restrained.

Betty Leighton (Barbara Hare, the seductress who was not), beautifully voiced and gowned, set the quality of the play in her opening lines. Jerry Campbell as her fugitive-from-the-gallows brother, Richard Hare, played with full dramatic flavour. Ron Bailey played two old men's parts with his accustomed ability, and there was a corner cameo (the policeman), the holograph of a Robertson Davies production.

The production is notable for its care of detail, right down to the notice of the play in the lobby. For instance, the gas-light footlights, Mr., Miss and Mrs. on the program, the miming of song at the harp, the choice of music (Professor Doktor Katsengebbis and his candles were vintage), the scrim (the fore-curtain), the synchronized gestures, the deliberateness in phrasing, particularly Jerry Sarracini's recitation of "Ostler Joe" and Ron Bailey's music-hall turn, in which the audience took part.

"East Lynne" is a major production of the Summer Theatre season and a difficult play to produce, especially on a small stage. Pathos never descended to bathos. The play is delectable entertainment for itself, the production a nostalgic recollection of days when sentiment was in flower with Baife and Mrs. Henry Wood. It is directed by Robertson Davies.—T. J. A.

Last Of Wooden Hydro Poles Removed At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—The last of a number of wooden hydro poles was removed from Campbellford's main street on Monday. The pole, located on the southeast corner of Front and Bridge Sts., was taken out by workmen of the P.U.C.

The poles have been in the ground about 25 years and at one time stretched the length of Front St. They carried the main feeder line from the town power house nearly two miles away. A number of years ago many of the poles were removed from Front St. north when the Utilities built a new main feeder line to serve the town, and located it on the bank of the canal, stretching from the power house to the southerly limits of the town.

Front St. south had to put up with the unsightly wooden poles until last week, however, because while the poles were no longer needed for the feeder line, they served as a support for the street lights. Now, these have been replaced with new metal light standards and the appearance of the main street of the town has been much improved.

The old poles, especially the one on the corner of Front and Bridge streets became a central spot for posting all kinds of notices. Proclamations, notices of auction sales, election posters, dance hall advertising, lost and found notices, as well as signs and arrows showing the way to various summer resorts and restaurants have all appeared on the one particular pole at one time or another. At times a four or five foot portion of the pole a few feet above the ground could not be seen, due to many notices overlapping one another around its three-foot circumference.

Workmen on Monday said their job would have been easier if the pole had been lighter. Close examination showed a stretch of several feet on the pole, where a finger could not be placed between tacks. The use of the pole as a notice board for a quarter century had increased its weight by many pounds from the accumulation of thousands of tacks left in it.

Despite the 50 foot height of the pole, workmen removed it with ease, without even having to stop traffic.

Labor Disputes In B.C. Making Many Jobless

VANCOUVER (CP)—About one British Columbian in every 24 is not working today because of labor-management disputes.

Strikes, union ordered work stoppages and employer-closed operations have put about 50,000 of the province's estimated population of 1,198,000 out of work.

Announcements last night painted this multi-million dollar picture.

Six thousand coast fishermen received orders not to fish and a recommendation not to strike.

One hundred packinghouse workers in Chilliwack voted to strike today.

One hundred electrical winding shop employees voted to strike if employers do not accept a conciliation board recommendation.

A meeting, called by the Labor Relations Board, between the contractors and striking carpenters is scheduled for Thursday.

Three thousand carpenters have been on strike for 41 days and 5,000 members are unemployed because of it.

A spokesman for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) said because only 51 per cent of the fishermen voted to reject an employer price offer for pink and chub salmon, fishermen had been recommended not to strike.

He added that the no fishing order which followed the vote Sunday still stands until the results of this new vote are known.

Spanish Like Franco Priest Tells Rotary

CAMPBELLFORD —(ENS) — The Rev. J. C. Moloney of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Campbellford, was guest speaker at the Monday noon luncheon meeting of the Campbellford Rotary club here. He had just returned from an ecclesiastical conference in Barcelona, Spain.

Rotarian Bill Holmes introduced Father Moloney.

The speaker gave his address in the form of a travellogue on Spain generally and on Barcelona particularly.

Spain's second largest city, Barcelona has a population of more than 2,000,000 persons. The masses of the people appear to like their leader, Franco, and this loyalty probably goes deeper than the peoples of the democratic western world think. The democratic western peoples are prone to think that the people of Spain, living under a dictatorship, are not happy with their lot, and while this may be true in some instances, the general feeling in Spain is that they are perfectly content with the Franco regime.

Rotarian George Free thanked the speaker.

On Monday next, the club will be visited by Stan Everson, the district governor of Oshawa.

Newspapers Report Accidents

It is not the fault of newspapers that every Monday their front pages are full of stories of accidents. It is the business of a newspaper to report the news, and sudden death or searing injury is news, although, if the incidence of accidents continues to rise, these will be commonplace and therefore no longer news. We hope that the time never comes when accidents are not news; it would be a sorry day for the population if it did; if so many people were killed or injured daily and the ones who were not became so hardened to the fact of accident and sudden death, that readers were bored by reports of the toll and wanted to see on their front page only stories of fish being caught and roses blooming.

* * *

Our front page yesterday was a usual Monday one: child strangles, man drowns, youth falls forty feet, seven injured, man survives 44,000 volts. Inside pages carried the ordinary week-end round-up of motor accidents, and summer drownings in places somewhat removed from this territory. It is appalling to have to print such a record every Monday of carelessness, recklessness, and sheer accident which might seem to be nobody's fault. It is small consolation to say that Monday's paper must carry a double dose, the record of two days' accidents. The fact is that more accidents happen every day than should, and that week-end crowds on beaches and byways, streets and highways, seem themselves to engender accidents. The waste of life and limb and property week by week, week-end on week-end is a rueful fact of these times which condemns our ways and the means we take along them.

Oshawa And Us

Oshawa is now bigger than Peterborough. According to the 1951 census, Peterborough's population was 38,272, Oshawa's 41,545. In the matter of mere size we give the palm to Oshawa, parenthetically explaining that just before the census Oshawa swallowed so much of its suburban area that it doubled its area over night. In other matters we are disinclined to give pride of place to Oshawa. Undoubtedly it is a very fine place, but as we see it, speeding by on Number 2 highway, it lacks a character to lift it off Number 2—and from second grade status as a city.

In the old days a proper city had a cathedral, around which the city had its life; if there were no cathedral, the place could not be a city; it was only a town, no matter how large. Oshawa has its modern cathedral, a chief force in its being; that is, the huge General Motors plant. Without it, what entity would Oshawa have? May be the nature of this cathedral of industry detracts from Oshawa's character as a city; nevertheless, it is the big plant which has created Oshawa a city. That industry alone is not sufficient reason to explain Oshawa's insufficiencies. Peterborough has a big factory, too, the Canadian General Electric; but Peterborough manages not to be stamped by it. (Admittedly, Peterborough has a variety of industries which mitigate the force of her giant.) Oshawa is known because of General Motors; Peterborough is known for herself.

We venture to suggest that Oshawa's misfortune—if a lack-lustre character may be so-called—is not her chief industry but her location. The lake is cold; the topography uninteresting. These are unhelpful influences. But what is primarily wrong with Oshawa's situation is, first, that Oshawa is too near Toronto; and, secondly, it is the byway to Toronto, from other places more important than Oshawa: Kingston, Montreal and even Peterborough.

Oshawa is an outskirt of Toronto—the dime-store fringe of the metropolis. When Oshawa people want to do anything really important—like eating a good meal, buying new clothes, hearing a concert or seeing a play—we suspect that they go to Toronto. Now, Peterborough is not an outskirt of anything. She is herself an entity. When Peterborough people want to have things of importance, they make or do them themselves, or bring in the artists, professional men and plays. Oshawa beats a path to Toronto; Peterborough makes others beat a path to her. So Peterborough has a natural advantage; she is sufficiently isolated in her own valley among beautiful lakes and hills and substantial smoke stacks, to create for herself and to carve her own destiny.

Oshawa's other main disadvantage as a city is that all roads go through it. The mainline trains pound by (with sometimes a five-minute stop). The aeroplanes fly over. The cars whizz through. But roads and rails into Peterborough come to Peterborough. Passengers and motorists do not go through Peterborough. They arrive. When a person takes the back line C.P.R. out of Montreal or Toronto through Peterborough he does it because he is going to this comparatively isolated (compared with Oshawa) entity of Peterborough. A motorist on Highway 28 is coming to Peterborough, not just seeing it as a 30 m.p.h. obstacle on his high road to Toronto.

We do not claim that Peterborough is a paragon of municipal beauty, intelligence, virtue and character. Nor do we wish to be unkind to Oshawa. It is, as we have already said, undoubtedly a very nice place of its kind. We merely wish to point out that a little isolation such as Peterborough enjoys is good for the soul and sinews of a city; it allows it to increase in stature and assume a personality of its own. Is it not significant that one refers to Oshawa as "it," and to Peterborough as "she"? An "it" is a neutral thing. But a "she" has a face, a heart, a fertility and, of course, a will of her own.

London Buses

They seemed strange, the gleaming red two-deckers standing within the shadow of Peterborough's town clock and on Peterborough's ordinary main street. Yet they were familiar, and after the first blink at them, one felt as if, by a magic twinkling of geography, they were part of one's environment, and not just on display. It was the juxtaposition of two separate familiarities — the commonplace of this Ontario city's main street, and light and summer heat, and the commonplace of London streets, the two-decker bus — which warmed the hearts and brought smiles to faces. Nostalgia alone did not account for gaiety of thousands of people who saw the visiting English buses; it was a buoyant affection, and a feeling of friendly reality of two worlds in one.

Perhaps one could have mounted the bus on George Street and in fifteen minutes have been at Oxford Circus or Ludgate Hill. Or perhaps the bus left its stand beside St. Martin's-in-the-Field in Trafalgar Square only a half-hour ago. The buses provided a delightful and touching intimacy between London and Peterborough. It was a happy notion to make an ordinary London bus the agent of good-will and travel publicity; at the level of a bus (a high level from the upper deck!) hands reach across the sea more warmly and immediately than they do through the words of a visiting lecturer or the display of a museum piece.

As publicity for London and England the buses were wonderful. But they did more than rouse in children's and adults' hearts a desire to go and visit the streets where the buses belong. They gave to the hundreds of Londoners and other Old Country people in this district and throughout Canada and the United States where they have toured, a direct and homely link, a refreshment almost as good as dropping into the kitchen "over home" for a half-hour's sentimental wallow. Surely, the British people amongst us must have gone back up George Street and into their Canadian homes with a feeling of gladness and contentment. They cannot be as far-flung as mere mileage shows them to be here, when the bus which used to go by their door-step, yesterday went by their porch in Peterborough.

Traders Will Be Traders

Business is business, politics is politics, and the twain do not meet unless there is profit in it. Germany is back in business again.

Remember the days when Japan and Germany were the chief threats to our way of life—that is, principally to our trade and industry? Well, both German and Japanese goods are on the markets again, and both countries are looking for new markets. One of the largest awaiting exploitation is China.

A number of West German firms have set up, under the name of Ostag, an organization to promote trade with the Communist East. They have just concluded an agreement with the Chinese Foreign Trade Organization for the exchange of goods. It is intended to exchange goods to the value of 150 million Deutsche marks (about $35,000,000). The Germans have offered to export machinery, rolling mill products, electrical equipment and pharmaceutical goods. The Chinese have promised soya beans, groundnuts, maize, tea, eggs, furs and bristles.

German traders maintain that they will strictly observe the Western ban on the export of strategic goods to Iron Curtain countries; they hope to get the necessary export permits from the German Ministry of Economics.

Who is being short-sighted: the Germans who expect to trade with China or the Canadians who do not, do not recognize China's government, and are at this very minute exchanging bullets with Chinese soldiers in Korea? Where is the profit?

We read that the C.B.C. television people are buying up old violins, for TV comedians to break over one another's heads. Onward and upward with the arts!

Athlete-Statesman At Olympics

By JOHN PULLAN

MR. PHILIP NOEL-BAKER, Commandant of Britain's team at this year's Olympic Games has voiced his confidence in the men and women he leads at Helsinki in these words.

"The team is the strongest that Britain has ever had. Not only in athletics, but also in rowing, swimming and other sports. In the last fifty years the Olympic movement has so raised the standard of performance that no nation can expect to win very many medals, but we are confident that our men and women will worthily uphold our traditions."

✧ ✧ ✧

A RARE combination of the scholar-statesman-athlete, Mr. Noel-Baker has, over the last thirty years, led many a delegation from Britain to international conferences. In his present role he returns to one of his early loves, the world of athletics. In 1910-1912 he earned an international reputation as a middle-distance runner. He won the half-mile for Cambridge against Oxford University in three successive years. In two of those years he also won the mile event. He was at that time one of the few British undergraduates who had experience of an American university, having studied at Haverford College, Pennsylvania.

✧ ✧ ✧

HE WAS ELECTED President of the Cambridge University Athletic Club in 1910 and served for three years. In those days professional coaches were beginning to receive wider recognition in British sport, and it was largely because of Mr. Noel-Baker's keen collaboration with a famous Cambridge coach, Alec Nelson, but probably also because of his American experience, that the foundation was laid for the many notable successes of the Cambridge athletic team during his years as president.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE OLYMPIC GAMES held at Stockholm in 1912 marked his own greatest athletic achievement. Among the contenders for the 1,500-metres title were four United States' runners who had all just previously got inside the world's record for the distance. They included the famed Norman Tabor, who afterwards came to Oxford University and broke the world's mile record. Another entrant was Arnold Jackson, of Oxford University. Mr. Noel-Baker sacrificing any chance he might have had of winning the event himself, raced the Americans off their feet in the early stages of the race. In a glorious finish he made an opening for his almost unconsidered fellow-countryman Jackson to flash through and win the race, to the stupefaction of all spectators.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS EARLY demonstration of his great belief in team work was multiplied a thousand times in the years which followed. Today his belief and his hope rests in an international team working for peace. "Every year", he says, "the ideas of the Olympic movement gain a stronger hold in Britain. Like all other nations, we long for a stable peace. We believe that friendly competition in sport can form a hopeful link between the youth of all countries in all continents. The Oylmpic Torch carried by runners from the sacred grove, where the Games were founded three thousand years ago, is a symbol which in this dark, troubled world gives us confidence and hope."

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS FITTING that the Commandant of Britain's Olympics team should be a man with an international reputation as a statesman as well as a great athlete. As a young man, Mr. Noel-Baker achieved the unusual distinction of being President of the Cambridge University Debating Society as well as President of the Athletic Club. In the 1914-1918 war he was awarded the Italian Silver Medal for Military Valour. After the war he was a member of the League of Nations section of the British Delegation during the 1922 Peace Conference. From 1924-29 he was the holder of the Sir Ernest Cassel Professorship of International Relations in the University of London. He has also held a lectureship at Yale University.

✧ ✧ ✧

A PASSIONATE interest in international affairs has been the keynote in Mr. Noel-Baker's political career. This youthful-looking grandfather, son of a Member of Parliament, has for many years sat in Britain's House of Commons. He was appointed in 1945 to the Privy Council which advises the reigning Sovereign, having given outstanding service as Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of War Transport. In 1950, at the ago of 61, he attained Cabinet rank on his appointment as Minister of Fuel and Power.

✧ ✧ ✧

HE IS DELIGHTED at the opportunity now given him to revisit Finland. "For many of the British team", he says, "coming to Finland again will mean reliving happy experiences and a renewal of many friendships. In Britain we have always deeply admired the splendid part which Finland has taken in the Games, and we know that in organization, in material conditions for the athletes, and in the true Olympic spirit, Finland will show a magnificent example to the world."

Quebec's Saviour

(Ottawa Citizen)

Viewing the outcome of Quebec's election, The Montreal Gazette is well satisfied. It seems to think that the province was menaced by programs that in the name of "social justice" would have transformed an upstanding populace into pensioners of the state. It rejoices that Mr. Dulpessis has saved the people from commitments to pay for the struggle to reach the moon. It is glad that capital will continue to flow in for the development of resources, thanks to the willingness of the Union Nationale to guarantee "stability and co-operation".

But some other provinces have gone further moonward without ill effect. Two of them have compulsory hospital insurance, and seem to appreciate it. Some have more comprehensive social services and allowances, better labour legislation. Though natural resources are heavily taxed, Alberta is getting plenty of capital. No other province has needed a Padlock Law to deal with subversive activity. It may be that Quebec would survive if labour were better paid, and if capital, catching the co-operative spirit, were willing to contribute more to social welfare.

The Way The Money Goes

(BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

THE Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is often hard up, and Parliament is frequently asked to lend a financial helping hand, what time the paying public (or that part of it naive and foolish enough to let itself get on the list in the first place) goes on paying an annual licence fee to the tune of $2.50 per.

All we can say, after a current experience, is that if all the rest of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is run as thoroughly, efficiently and economically (?) as its Press and Information Service, it's a wonder the government-controlled establishment isn't completely on the rocks.

To show what we mean: this week this newspaper and doubtless all its contemporaries, as well as various other concerns supposedly interested, received a copy of the CBC annual report. An attached memo says, "This copy of the CBC Annual Report is sent to you with the compliments of the CBC Press and Information Service. You may find it useful as reference material or general background information on CBC operations."

The report is well designed. In fact it is a 48-page, wide-margined, slick-paper issue, copiously illustrated with half-tone engravings. There is also a nice glossy cover (back blank). The contents run from a foreword, to articles on "The Crown," "The Royal Tour", "CBC Wednesday Night", "News", "Music", Talks Programs", etc., not forgetting television, international broadcasting service, and financial. The centre spread is a map showing the CBC networks.

This, you will agree, is most attractive and highly edifying, and it was kind indeed of the CBC Press and Information Service to be so thoughful as to send a copy.

But wait a minute! Did was say copy? It should be "copies", without doubt. This one newspaper, for instance, has received, so far, one copy each (five cents postage on every envelope) for

The Editor
The News Editor
The Library Editor
The Church Editor
The Music Editor

That, as we figure it, runs to 130 sheets of heavy coated stock paper, five envelopes and 25 cents postage where 26 sheets, one envelope and a nickel stamp would have sufficed.

Also, of course, the City Editor, the District Editor, the Sports Editor, and the office boy are feeling quite slighted because they didn't get copies too.

Seriously, multiply this prodigality by just the newspapers of Canada, let alone other recipients, and it can be guessed that bill for paper and printing, to say nothing of postage, is a good many times higher, for this one item, than it should be.

Anyway, it all goes to show what can be done on a $2.50 licence fee, plus a handout or so from the good old Treasury.

'Snayfoo' In Commons

(NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE)

Although the British did not understand Mr. Acheson's use of "snafu" in describing the failure of Anglo-American liaison on the Yalu raids and Mr. Churchill pronounced the word as "snayfoo", the Labour party's handling of the debate on the raids was a pretty fair illustration of "situation normal, all fouled up."

In the first place, Labour criticism of the attacks on the Yalu power plants had virtually no military or political reality. The plants themselves were unquestionably legitimate targets, and although the Chinese Communists howled a bit about the bombings they have certainly not broken off truce negotiations. On the contrary, the tempo of discussion seems to have accelerated.

In the second place, the Labour party tied itself very thoroughly into knots over the question. The Left wing was as anxious to belabour the Right as it was to annoy Churchill and the Americans: a considerable segment abstained from the intra-party squabble, which would suggest that Labour has acquired a third grouping, a Center at odds with both wings.

Finally, Mr. Churchill was at his magnificent best in the argument. Not only did he make shrewd and telling debating points against the Opposition, but the sweep and courage of his support for the American position in respect to Korea provided an example of the genuine statesmanship of Britain's Great Commoner. He met Labour sneers against his alleged subservience to the United States with a characteristically frank and understanding assertion of the difficulties confronting America in Korea and applause for American patience. His appreciation of the complexities of allied operations is one that American Congressmen (no less than British Labour spokesmen) might well emulate.

It is to be hoped that a closer association between Britain and America at the front in Korea will prevent any future "snayfoos" over major military strokes there, however happy the outcome of this particular muddle.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed: and Jesus seeing their faith said unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee. And, behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth.

And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? For whether it is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up they bed, and go unto thine house. And he arose, and departed to his house.

But when the multitudes saw it, they marvelled, and glorified God, which had given such power unto men. (Matt. 9:2-8.)

For God speaketh once, yea twice, yet man perceiveth it not . . . Yea, his soul draweth near unto the grave, and his life to the destroyers.

If there be a messenger with him, an interpreter, one among a thousand, to shew unto him his uprightness: then he is gracious unto him, and saith, Deliver him from going down to the pit, I have found a ransom.

His flesh shall be fresher than a child's: he shall return to the days of his youth: he shall pray unto God, and he will be favourable unto him: and he shall see his face with joy: for he will render unto man his righteousness. (Job 33:14, 22-26.)

Letter To The Editor

WHY RENT CONTROL?

Sir: Why do we still have rent controls? All other controls have long since been removed, but real estate is singled out for discrimination. I am not a landlord but I cannot see the justice in the present rent controls.

Rents are pegged while taxes, costs of repairs, and every other item of cost continues to rise far in excess of any paltry increases allowed in rents.

Is this another example of crooked politics: there are fewer property owners than tenant voters?

Yours truly,
TEMBO MAZAY

Grand Cleaning

(Brantford Expositor)

The chairman of the Waterloo Township Board of Health says he is going to keep insisting that the provincial health authorities have the Grand River cleaned up. A lot of people have been so insisting for quite a long time. One of these days a real job will be done. Meanwhile, however, some municipalities have made considerable effort along this line and Brantford has at least the beginnings of a fund for the building of a sewage disposal plant.

CONGRATULATIONS says Don Kingdon, assistant manager of the Chamber of Commerce, as he presents Francis D. Lehtinen, Fairport, Ohio, with the Order of the Kawartha Muskie. Mr. Lehtinen caught the 45 inch 24¾-pound muskie, held by John Harding (LEFT), while casting in Stony lake. He was a guest at Trail's End, a summer resort on Stony lake operated by Mr. Harding's father and mother.—(Parks Studio Photo).

Union Leaders Help Oust Alben Barkley

CHICAGO (AP)—Labor union union leaders helped shove 74-year-old Vice-President Alben Barkley out of the running for the Democratic presidential nomination, but they weren't too proud about it today.

Barkley, the reliable party wheelhorse acclaimed by union leaders as a friend of organized labor, nevertheless lost the support of many of them for the top job at the party's convention.

It can be said that the union leaders were genuinely sorry to see Barkley lose a promising chance for the nomination Yet, a number of top union leaders had virtually kicked Barkley out of the running. They said he was too old for the task. They were afraid, they said, that the "Veep" might team with party conservatives to give anti-"fair deal" forces control of the party.

BLAMES LEADERS

Barkley, in his dramatic statement pulling himself out of contention for the nomination, blamed his troubles on "certain self-appointed political labor leaders."

But there were other reasons why Barkley pulled out.

It was reliably reported that Barkley felt he had been led to believe he was President Truman's choice for the nomination. He felt Truman's support was going elsewhere—to Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois—and so Barkley decided to bow out.

The union frown on Barkley came from C.I.O.-member delegates to the convention and from George Harrison, an A.F.L. vice-president friendly to Truman.

Hope In 3 Years To Have New Polio Vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP)—A leading authority says dramatic new discoveries indicate that means of preventing polio's crippling effects may be developed within the next three years.

Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said there is an outside chance a vaccine may be developed for use next year.

But, he added in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News and World Report, a weekly news magazine, it is extremely unlikely to come in time to halt what he said may be a record onslaught of the disease this year.

He said the incidence of polio is running about 50 per cent ahead of a year ago.

Van Riper said much depends on current experiments with a blood extract known as Gamma Globulin. Success in this field might, he said, lead to a vaccine for universal use.

British Newspapers Ignore US Convention

LONDON (Reuters)—British evening newspapers today showed little interest in the Democratic nominating convention in Chicago, giving it scant space compared with local stories, the Olympic Games and the governmental crisis in Iran.

The Evening Standard ran a column from its correspondent on page one in which he refers to the inexplicable "apathy" of the convention compared with the Republican meeting, and likened it to "a tea party on the village green."

The Evening News carried a brief item on Vice-President Alben Barkley's withdrawal from the nomination contest, while the Star reported a boom for Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

Manitoba Legislature Studies Power Deal

WINNIPEG (CP)—The controversial power question comes up for discussion today when the Manitoba Legislature convenes for a special session which is expected to last into next week.

A government move to prevent the predicted shortage by taking over control of the province's power industry and assuming responsibility for its power needs was discarded by Winnipeg residents April 16.

Business Atmosphere Healthy Growing Consumer Demand

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's business environment is taking on a "somewhat firmer" tone, the monthly business review of the Bank of Nova Scotia said today.

Evidence of growing consumer demand and decreasing inventories of many consumer goods gives reason to believe there is a healthier business atmosphere, the review said.

It noted that to a large extent the pick-up in demand for such things as appliances has been stimulated by removal of consumer credit restrictions and of the additional excise taxes imposed in the 1951 budget.

"But it should also be emphasized that behind this improvement are the considerable rise in total incomes and a substantial repayment of consumer debt," it said.

SEES NO INFLATION

"The pick-up in consumer demand in this country and in the United States is, of course, a welcome development. But it should not be taken to mean that inflationary forces are on the verge of taking over again.

"Unless there is a marked increase in international tension, the likelihood of another such wave of buying is rather remote. . ."

The review observed that during the last 10 months Canada and the United States have experienced a substantial readjustment in a number of consumer goods industries without any major decline in general economic activity.

"While such consumer goods industries as those making household appliances and textiles were sharply curtailing their output in the fact of reduced consumer demand and excessive inventories, other sectors of the economy were continuing to expand."

Capital investment, though smaller in some programs such as housing, has increased over 1951 and development outlays for power, oil, iron and other minerals have been particularly heavy.

EXPORTS A PROBLEM

The bank's statement pointed to developing problems in export markets as working against a renewed outburst of inflation. Canadian exports have been affected by recent declines in pulp, lumber, lead and zinc prices, and, the review said, there is some question about the market for wheat because of good crops in prospect here and in Europe and the large carryover of low-grade wheat.

Tonga Drivers Begin Fast

NEW DELHI, India (Reuters)—Tonga drivers and the ponies that pull their two-wheel cabs around this city started an indefinite fast today as a counter-move to a strike yesterday by 2,000 rickshaw men.

Traffic was disrupted and many a white-collar worker walked to his office.

The trouble started when the rickshaw men demanded alteration of municipal by-laws to allow them to carry two adults per trip instead of one adult and one child.

The 10,000 tonga men said that if Rickshaws can take two adults, tongas can take six instead of the four the law allows.

When the rickshaw men struck to make their demand stick the tonga men quit eating—and saw that their ponies did likewise.

U.S. Off To Fast Start At Olympic Games

By JACK SULLIVAN

HELSINKI (CP)—Canada's little band of Olympic competitors are almost lost in the shuffle in these 1952 Games but they have a ringside seat for the titanic sports battle between their neighbors to the south and Russia's athletes.

Yesterday they saw the United States pick up its fifth first-place gold medal of eight final events completed in two days. That is the best U.S. performance since the 1904 games in St. Louis, Mo.

The U.S. picked up four firsts yesterday, giving it a brief lead over the Russians.

RUSSIA TOPS STANDING

But Russia regained its over-all lead last night by picking up five firsts, four seconds and a flock of lesser places in the gymnastics finals. The unofficial point standings read 133½ for Russia against 72 for the U.S.

In combined totals, Switzerland was third with 47, followed by Japan 24½ and Czechoslovakia 16½.

By last night the American total had reached its mark of 72 on wins in track and field events—central sport of the games. The Russians at that time had only 40 points for second place.

Points are computed on the basis of 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the first six places in any final.

Sweden was sixth with 16, Britain had 14, Finland 12½, Italy 11, Hungary 9, Germany 7½, Brazil 7, Jamaica 5, France 5, Poland 4½, New Zealand 4, Austria 3, Romania 2 and Australia 1.

The four firsts won by the United States yesterday were gathered in by Parry O'Brien, Lindy Remingo, Charlie Moore and Jerry Biffle.

ITALY WINS MEDAL

The fifth final went to Italy. Guiseppe Dordoni won the 50-kilometre walk in world and Olympic record time of four hours, 28 minutes, 7.8 seconds. Dordoni celebrated by going for a pleasure stroll last night.

O'Brien, a big Californian, broke the Olympic record in the shot put with a toss of 57 feet, 1.43 inches —17.41 metres. Two teammates took second and third to give the United States a triple in the event.

Reminigo, a New Yorker, got the nod of the judges—and the cameras—in a thrilling finish of the 100-metre dash. The blanket finish was so close that the first four men timed in 10.4 seconds.

Herb McKenley of Jamaica, thought by many to have flashed first over the line, was placed second. Britain's Emmanuel McDonald Smith was third and Dean Smith of the United States fourth.

BEATS OWN RECORD

Charlie Moore, Cornell University man, won the 400-metre hurdles in 50.8 seconds, equalling the Olympic mark he set in a preliminary heat the day before. He shook off a final challenge by Jurii Lituev of Russia.

Biffle, from Denver, took first in the broad jump, coming through while George Brown, the United States champion, fouled three straight times.

The women's 100-metre sprint went through two rounds yesterday and an Australian girl, Marjorie Jackson, was established the favorite. Fanny Blankers-Koen, 34-year-old housewife from Holland who won four Olympic medals in 1948, ran second in a heat to qualify for today's semi-final. The final was scheduled two hours later.

Three Canadian girls were eliminated in the sprint. Rosella Thorne of Montreal and Luella Law of Vancouver went out in the preliminary heat. Eleanor McKenzie survived that but was eliminated in the second heat.

There was a top-notch field for today's 800-metre final. It included Mal Whitfield of Columbus, Ohio, winner in 1948; Arthur Wint of Jamaica and Reggie Pearman of New York.

Two Canadians were eliminated in yesterday's semi-final. Bill Parnell of North Vancouver could place only sixth. Jack Hutchins of Vancouver made a great recovery after being bumped and elbowed by a Polish runner. He was left last in the field of six but got up in the last 200 metres to finish fourth, just missing the last qualifying berth.

MILLER FAILS

Ron Miller of Toronto failed to get past the qualification round in the pole vault. The final went on today.

Armand Bernard of Montreal was the only Canadian wrestler still winning. He won his second successive featherweight match yesterday.

Canada's eight-oared crew—Toronto Argonauts—finished in a dead heat with Sweden's crew in the repechage heat—a second-chance heat. The re-row, ordered by the judges after scanning photographs, was scheduled for today.

Hamilton Leanders, in the fours, and Bob Williams and Derek Riley, the Winnipeg double sculls entry, were eliminated.

Britain's Leander crew and the United States navy crew from Annapolis, Md., have already qualified for the final in the eights.

RUSSIA BEATS KELLY

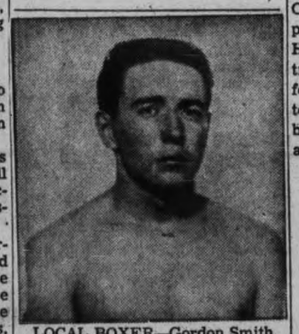
Mervyn Wood of Australia, Olympic single sculls champion, was beaten yesterday by Tony Fox of Britain. Turij Tjukalov of Russia defeated Philadelphia's Jack Kelly, Jr. Both Wood and Kelly went into the second-chance repechage.

After two days of yacht racing, Norway's Pan was leading in the dragon class and Elizabeth X, also of Norway, was ahead in the six-metre "R" class. Italy's Merope led in the star class.

The Toronto yacht Trickson was fifth in point standing in the six-metre class. The Montreal yacht Whirlaway was in 13th place in the star class, and Jet of Hamilton was in 11th place in the six-metre class.

In gymnastics, Russia won the combined team event with Switzerland second, Finland third, Germany fourth, Japan fifth and Hungary sixth. The United States was eighth. Canada has no gymnastics entry.

LIGHTS OLYMPIC FIRE: Paavo Nurmi, the "Flying Finn" of Olympic fame, stands alongside the flaming stand in Helsinki's Olympic Stadium recently after lighting the traditional fire to inaugurate the 15th Olympiad. About 70,000 spectators were on hand for the ceremonies.



LOCAL BOXER—Gordon Smith, 22-year-old Peterborough boxer, has seen considerable ring action in and out of Toronto within the past year. Fighting as an amateur welterweight, he has performed in Maple Leaf Gardens and in Western Ontario. Smith began boxing lessons here in the Ashburnham Hall, moving to Toronto early last winter.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Len Taylor has been writing sports for 25 years. The Kitchener columnist comments: "In that period, newspaper coverage of sports events has altered considerably. Small city sportswriters 25 years or so ago were wordy types. Their customers expected a couple of columns on the local hockey or ball game. The scribes served it up that way with large side dishes of comments in sports columns. Much of it was repetitious and today the sports enthusiast wouldn't last halfway through the mess. Coverage then ran to quantity rather than quality. Now he builds his story around a key point with a few lesser highlights to produce a more readable, lively and much briefer account."

* * * * * *

It is a fact. The managing editor today doesn't want long sports stories or repetition in accounts. If you have a lacrosse summary, why repeat in the body of your story who scored from whom at what time. It's there in the summary. Same with a box score in baseball. Except where an unusual goal is produced or a batting rally results in a change of pitchers, or something along that line. You can summarize briefly on leading hitters or scorers in your account, but stories must be cut down so that more items may be run in the daily paper for your readers. When we first broke in, the major sports events were overplayed and many others missed entirely. Not so today.

* * * * * *

One Needs Their Help

Which is as it should be, though co-operation from various officials of clubs or leagues is required in many cases if accounts are to appear. One or two scribes can't personally cover half a dozen games in one evening. Despite shorter accounts by the writer his remarkable working hours remain the same. He covers contests in the afternoon or evening, writes 'em up late that night, and is on the job fairly early next a.m. to do pickup stuff, edit incoming copy from the district, clip interesting items and write up his daily sports column. After the deadline he relaxes in gobs for a spell till he has to start digging for next day's output.

* * * * * *

Working conditions in office and the various press boxes have improved over the years, and the pay is better now. Fewer fan riots in foreign parks or arenas today, and a scribe seldom has to run for his life. We can well recall some anxious times in the early 30s. But everything improves. One gets the odd night off the grind in a busy season, one isn't called on so often to waste 12 hours on a two-hour story in, say, St. Catharines, when a scribe there can wire it and leave you free to cover something at home. On the other hand, the sports seasons overlap now whereas one used to have a noticeable break on game coverage in the spring and autumn. All in all, it's an interesting job covering sports.

A four-run drive in the sixth did it as Mac McMartin was bingled freely then after pitching nice ball. Jerry Frizzelle finished for the locals. Carl Lenahan hurled a two-hitter for the Ports and had okay backing. Thexton and Bongard led 'em at bat with two for four each, including extra-base blows. Foley and Jensen got the home hits. Londry twisted an ankle in the fourth and had to retire. The Young Petes are away for their next two numbers, in Cobourg tomorrow and in Whitby this coming Saturday. Schedule ends Aug. 1.

Port Hope Gains Victory Over Young Petes In Lakeshore Loop Fray

A four-run outburst by Port Hope in the sixth inning here last night gave the intermediate Ontarios a 6-2 victory over the local juniors in a Lakeshore Baseball League encounter. The Young Petes had beaten the O's in Port Hope in their last league start and were leading them 2-1 at Riverside on Monday when the Ports' bats boomed for six hits and the four markers to pretty well clinch it. They had a run in the fourth and added one in the seventh, while the Menzies' men got their two counters in the first frame.

Carl Lenahan pitched two-hit ball over the seven-inning route for the visitors, and he gave the homesters two runs on a wild pitch in the first. He walked Kearns and a wild pitch advanced him. Jansen scratched a single and stole, both scoring on another wild heave by the hurler. They got but two players as far as second the rest of the game and none to third as Lenahan fanned 11 and walked just two. He had nearly perfect support.

HIT IN SIXTH

Mac McMartin pitched nifty ball for five frames for the losers but was hit hard in the sixth. He allowed 10 hits all through and three walks, whiffing three, and was charged with the loss. Jerry Frizelle finished up, allowing one run after a walk, out and two miscues, Downey tallying. The locals booted four. The Ports' first run was by Keelery on a hit, advance on a walk and single by Bongard. They got four in the sixth on singles by Downey, Lenahan, Ashby and Douglas, with Bongard banging a double, and Thexton a triple. He and Bongard batted in two runs each.

Thexton led the Hopers at bat with a triple and single in three, Bongard being almost as good for bases with a double and single in three times up. For the Young Petes, Foley and Jensen got the lone bingles. Londry Jensen and Foley pilfered a base each, and the locals reeled off a double-play, Ferguson to Kearns to Cupoli. Fielding features were a one-hand jumping catch by Downey of Port Hope and a pickup at first by Bongard. Teams:

Port Hope—Thexton, 3b; Ashby, lf; Douglas, ss; Baxter, c; Keeler, rf; Downey, 2b; White, cf; Bongard, 1b; Lenahan, p.

Young Petes—Foley, rf; Kearns, 2b; Bigford, c; Jensen, cf; Londry, lf; McGillen, lf; Frizzelle, p; Cupoli, 1b; Ferguson, ss; McCarthy, 3b; McMartin, p, lf.

Peewee Tourney At Lindsay July 26

LINDSAY — One hundred of Ontario's best young baseball enthusiasts will vie for honors in the second annual pee-wee tournament at Lindsay Stadium July 26.

Entries are expected from Oshawa, Peterborough, Bowmanville, Newmarket, Aurora and Lindsay for the all-day tourney sponsored by the Lindsay Minor Baseball Association and the Lindsay Recreation Committee. Action will start at 9 a.m. and 12 hours later winners will be presented with the championship Walkwood Trophy and the runners-up Trent Valley Bread cup plus crests.

The 13-year-olds will be treated in "major league" style with OBA umpires, public address introductions and radio broadcasts of some games. Between games in the lengthy "lose and you're out" tournament, the kids will be supplied box lupches and free tickets for dips in Lindsay's Rotary swimming pool.

Here And There In Sports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Marlene Stewart, who holds the Canadian women's Close and Open golf championships, will be in Edmonton Aug. 7-16 to defend her laurels over the 6,655-yard Mayfair Country Club layout.

Tournament officials announced yesterday that the 18-year-old Fonthill sensation, who upset two top United States amateurs in last year's tournament, has filed her entry for the 1952 competition.

Miss Stewart, named Canada's outstanding woman athlete of 1951, took both titles last year, ousting Mae Murray, U.S. national runner-up in 1951, in the semi-finals of the open and the 1947-48 titleholder, Grace Lenczyk, in the finals.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

A very brilliant and imaginative sports writer, Grantland Rice, once wrote a poem, each verse of which ended up with the statement: "The Records Wait." With the Olympic Games just around the corner, you realize that there's a great significance to this phrase. The records wait. And in track-field, they don't wait too long.

Oldsters claim that athletes of this era aren't as good as the men of yore, but you can't prove it by track-field performances. Indeed, the way running and jumping records tumble these days it almost is not worth the effort to go out and set them. It has gotten so that a man no longer can run a 10.2 100-meters and expect his mark to last very long. Jesse Owens, rated the fastest human of all time, back in the '30's, found that out when he set his World's Record in 1936. Since then five other sprinters have equaled his figures; Harold Davis of the United States (1941), Lloyd LaBeach of Panama and Barney Ewell, United States (1948), MacDonald Bailey, Trinidad (1951), and Herbert Thompson, United States (1939).

The oldest individual record on the books, except some walking records (and that form of sport has just about gone by the boards) and a few of the longer metric distance events, is Glenn Hardin's 400-meter hurdles clocking of 50.6s. It was set in 1934, and has for 18 years, at the time these lines were written, withstood assaults upon it. Most of the other existing World Records were set in the late '40's or early '50's.

There was a time within memory when an even 10 seconds was considered brilliant time for the 100 yards dash. Then it was cut by a fifth of a second, then by two-fifths, when Arthur F. Duffey sped over the cinders in 9 3-5, around the turn of the century. But today, that time would hardly qualify in a heat. Mel Patton cut the time to 9 3-10, which may not sound to the uninitiated like a gigantic reduction. But at that speed a difference of three-tenths of a second means almost three yards.

The 100-metres dash at the first Olympic revival in 1896 was 12 seconds. Tommy Burke of the United States won it. At the last Olympics, a slim Negro, Harrison Dilliard, won in 10.3, a difference of 15 yards. It's hardly believable.

The boys haven't hit the 4-minute mile yet, but they will, any time now. It took some time to carve the record down to Gunder Haegg's 4.01.4. The amateur record 4.19.8 set by W. C. George of England in 1881, stood for 22 years, when America's John Paul Jones lopped it to 4.15.4. Then everybody got at it. Norman Taber, Paavo Nurmi the inscrutable Finn, Ladoumegue of France, Cunningham of the U. S.; Stanley Wooderson of England, all carved new marks. Then came Haegg, to eclipse all previous performances. That was seven years ago. The time is ripe for a new record, at the classic distance.

So it goes. Are men growing faster, stronger, or is it the superior coaching, the more systematic and scientific training? Perhaps it's the latter. We imagine so. Whatever it is, track-field records indicate that moderns do most things better than did their hardy forbears.

Nfld. Walker Fails In 50-Km. Event

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—Ferd Hayward, Newfoundland's marathon walker, practically had to finish the Olympic 50-kilometre walk on one leg but he's fixing to go into the 10-kilometre event just to show he has the stuff.

The 41-year-old brewery engineer from St. John's carried Canada's hopes into the long event yesterday but had tough luck most of the way. But despite a spell of sickness and a knotted muscle he shuffled across the finish line in 25th place.

When reporters went looking for him after the race they found he had taken a bit of a busman's holiday—he had gone for a stroll just to limber up his left leg.

Hayward indicated he may change the decision he made a few days ago and enter the shorter event because "I would like to vindicate myself."

WARNED BY OFFICIAL

At the five-mile mark in yesterday's race, won by Italy's Giuseppe Dordoni, the Newfoundlander was warned by an official and changed his style of walking in fear of being disqualified.

Then with 18 miles to go and in 13th place, he stopped at a competitors' refreshment booth for a glass of water. There was plenty of dextrose in the water and Hayward became violently ill.

He weathered the stomach pains and went on until he developed a knotted muscle behind the knee in his left leg and couldn't straighten the limb. But with one good leg he made it to the finish line in Olympic Stadium.

Hayward wore specially made shoes he ordered in Helsinki and had no trouble with his feet. Despite his hard luck he said: "I felt fine throughout the race and I still feel fine although the left leg is bothering me a bit."

The 48,263 spectators who watched New York Yankees defeat Brooklyn Dodgers 5-3 in an exhibition at Yankee Stadium last night may have been seeing a preview of the 1952 World Series. The Yanks headed west today with a comfortable 4½-game first-place margin in the American League. The Dodgers arrived home with a commanding 7½-game bulge over the defending National League champions, New York Giants.

Of the two, the Yankees appear to have the rougher task ahead. Starting with a twi-night doubleheader in Cleveland tonight, the world champions will pack 21 games into the next 17 days.

Brooklyn and the Giants open up 14-game home stands tonight. The Dodgers start with Cincinnati and the Giants take on St. Louis Cardinals. The Brooks are riding the crest of an eight-game winning streak.

BETTER GET STARTED

The impression is that if the Giants are going to pull another 1951 miracle finish, they'd better start right away instead of waiting until Aug. 11, as they did last year. The Dodgers appear unstoppable right now.

The Dodgers are confident of winning but nobody wants to talk about it. All remember too well last year's slump and the story-book Giant finish that saw a 13½-game Dodger lead evaporate in six weeks.

Said Brooklyn manager Charlie Dressen: "I'm not going to take any chances this time. I'm not going to ease up until we've got a 20-game lead with 19 left to go."

Dressen didn't appear disturbed over the loss of Roy Campanella, his All-Star catcher, expected to be on the sidelines for the next 10 days because of a fractured index finger.

MANY GIANTS OUT

If Dressen is quiet, Leo Durocher is a sphynx. The usually voluble Giant manager is keeping a tight lip as he regards his long injury list. Ace pitcher Sal Maglie had X-rays taken of his lame back and is expected to be out at least a week. Catcher Wes Westrum is nursing a sore right hand. George Spencer has a swollen ankle, Sal Yvars a scraped left thigh and Alvin Dark a fungus infection on his left foot.

The only bit of encouraging news from the Giant camp was the announcement that Monte Irvin, last year's runs-batted-in king, was placed on the active list. The slugging outfielder, who broke his ankle last spring, cannot run and won't be able to play regularly for at least another two weeks. He will be confined to pinch hitting duties.

Yorks Subdue Hamilton 13-9

HAMILTON (CP)—Toronto West Yorks vaulted into second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior A standings last night when they downed Hamilton Tigers 13-9 in overtime. The Toronto team banged in four unanswered goals in the extra session.

The Tigers took a 3-1 first-period lead, but Toronto led 6-3 at the finish of the second session and held a 7-6 margin by the end of the third. The score was tied 9-9 at the end of regulation time.

Jim McNulty and Ken Croft led the Toronto scorers with three goals each. Merv McKenzie and Doug Davidson each garnered a pair for the Tigers.

CAMPANELLA OUT

Catcher Roy Campanella has a fractured index finger on his right hand and will be lost to the National League Dodgers for at least 10 days. Campanella suffered the injury July 10 in Chicago.

Cobourg Blanks Port Hope 5-0

COBOURG—Cobourg Legionaires wound up the baseball season series with Port Hope Ontarios, winning 5-0 to take the intertown title, 3-1 in games.

The teams will not meet in the playoffs since Cobourg, now in third place in the Lakeshore loop, goes into the "A" division playoffs, and Port Hope, currently resting on the bottom of the ladder, will enter the "B" eliminations.

For the Legionaires, Jim Ingamells fanned 12 and held the Ports to four hits. Biggest blow for the losers was a double by Jim Hart.

Sir Malcolm Campbell skimmed over Pendine sands, Wales, at 150.76 miles an hour 27 years ago today to beat his 1924 mark of 146.16 m.p.h. on the same course. He didn't rest on his laurels, however, and became the first man to travel more than 300 m.p.h. on land, reaching an average speed of 301.1292 over the Utah Salt beds Sept. 3, 1935.

Royals Edge Toronto 4-3 At Last Minute

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Condrick, Rochester Red Wings pitcher, probably could make the grade on his hitting power alone.

Condrick not only held Springfield Cubs to seven hits last night, but struck the big blow as his team recorded a 3-1 victory to stay within 2½ games of Montreal Royals in the International League.

He came up with the bases loaded in the sixth inning with the score 0-0 and clouted a single scoring two runs, enough for the victory. Wes Carr was the victim.

Royals, meanwhile, edged Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3, coming up with three runs in the ninth inning. Al Fabbro, third of four Montreal hurlers, got credit for the victory while starter Hal Hudson of the Leafs was charged with the defeat.

Syracuse Chiefs whipped Ottawa Athletics 5-4 despite home runs by Lou Limmer and Stan Jok for the losers. Ottawa scored all its runs in the last two innings, but Bob Keegan managed to survive for the win.

The Baltimore-Buffalo game was postponed because of rain and wet grounds.

Fleetwood Breezes In To Take Yacht Race

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP) The Fleetwood, a 34-foot yawl, breezed to victory on corrected times yesterday in the 333-mile Chicago-to-Mackinac yacht race.

Aided by a 13¾-hour handicap, the little speedster owned by [illegible] Geib of Chicago scored the best time not only in its division of class C and D craft but in the first division as well.

The Fleetwood finished the grind in 48 hours, 56 minutes, 19 seconds for a corrected time of 36:42.20.

That gave her a corrected time more than nine hours ahead of the first boat actually to cross the finish line—the big 10-metre sloop Freebooter. This latter craft, owned by the Pohn brothers of Chicago, finished in 46:27:41, with a corrected time of 45:09:42.

Croft, Joe McNulty Joining West Yorks

ST. CATHARINES — The St. Catharines Athletic Lacrosse Club announced Monday that two of their veteran players had been released over the weekend to Toronto West Yorks, tied with Peterborough Timbermen in second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series.

Ken Croft, now in his eighth year of senior lacrosse, and Joe McNulty, a member of the senior Athletics for four years, both have joined the Toronto team. McNulty is a brother of Jim McNulty, already with the Yorks and one of the leading goal scorers in the senior league.

Gliding Team Back From Spain Well Satisfied

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's four-man gliding team returned yesterday from international competition in Spain to report that "we did much better than we expected." The team came 34th. It had expected to come last. There were 40 teams entered.

Capt. Albie Pow of Montreal, leading the four men who went to Spain at their own expense, said Shorty Boudreault of Ottawa gained Canada some recognition as the only pilot to make a flight long enough to be considered officially.

In two-seater glider competition, Barry Jeffry of Ottawa and Lloyd L'Aventure of Arvida, Que., placed fourth.

The team, unable to afford the expense of shipping their own gliders to Spain, used Spanish-constructed craft which, while the best available, were not of a type to which the Canadians were accustomed.

Declare State Of Emergency Across Egypt

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (CP)—Premier Naguib Hilaly Pasha today names his new government—Egypt's fifth in six months—and promptly proclaimed a state of emergency throughout the country.

Most of his new cabinet had served in Hilaly's government which resigned July 2 after four troubled months in office. Dynamic Ahmed Mortada Maraghy was back in the key post of minister of interior.

Hilaly Pasha, an independent, took over the premiership again yesterday at the request of King Farouk. He succeeded Hussein Sirry Pasha, another independent. No reason for the latter's resignation has been announced.

TO RESUME SUDAN TALKS

Sirry Pasha had assumed the top post when Hilaly Pasha's Cabinet toppled 20 days ago after failing to force Britain out of the Suez Canal Zone and the neighboring Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Hilaly is expected to pick up where he left off. This would mean resumption of talks with representatives of the Sudan about Egypt's claims to sovereignty over the Sudan.

Talks with British representatives about settlement of their dispute over the Sudan and British troops in the Suez Canal zone would also be taken up again.

These last two points sparked the Anglo-Egyptian dispute and led to this, the fifth Cabinet Egypt has had in six months.

Abandonment of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty by the Egyptian administration under Nahas Pasha last year ended in January's "black Saturday" riots and Farouk firing Nahas for bungling.

Kingston Plant Gets 15-Cent Hike

KINGSTON (CP)—An agreement bringing a 15-cent-an-hour package settlement to 1,300 workers at the Aluminum Company of Canada plant here was signed yesterday between management and United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) officials.

The agreement includes an improvement in the vacation plan and an increase in the night-shift premium from five to seven cents an hour.

The union earlier had rejected a 10-cent across-the-board offer. It was accepted by 300 workers of the Machinists' Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.). The new agreement is retroactive to May 24 when a previous agreement terminated.

Douks Find South America Not Their Promised Land

KRESTOVA, B.C. (CP)—A promised land for Canada's unwanted Doukhobors doesn't exist in South America.

After a five-month tour of South American countries, bearded Steffan Sorokin, 40-year-old spiritual leader of the Sons of Freedom, told his followers yesterday it would be unwise for them to flee Canada for South America.

All he found were people who were "amazed" that any group should want to leave Canada.

'Canada is best, Canada is best," he told newspaper men during a press conference at the Sons of Freedom headquarters in this ramshackle village in the Kootenays.

He had met Mennonites, Russians and other European colonists during his tour. All wanted to come to Canada.

British Columbia has some 10,000 Doukhobors. The Sons of Freedom of which Sorokin is leader number about 2,500. They, the radicals of the strange religious sect, are blamed for 50 years of terrorism in the Kootenays.

It was reported when Sorokin left here he had a fund of $49,000 to finance his tour.

He now believes that relocation of his followers within Canada offers the only peaceful solution.

It has been estimated it will cost $1,000,000 to relocate them in B.C. on suitable farmlands. Several sites have been proposed. Each time protests came from residents in the districts.

Now, Sorokin has advised his followers: "You must improve your reputations so that you will be more acceptable as neighbors."

Sorokin came to Canada from Germany about a year ago as a displaced person. He claimed he had escaped from a Siberian labor camp.

Russian-born, Sorokin, who came to the Kootenays as a travelling evangelist, was accepted by the Doukhobors as a "messenger of peace, sent by the Lord."

New Company Being Formed By Canada-Wide Concern

TORONTO (CP)—A development unique in Canadian merchandising was announced yesterday in the formation of a new company to buy the mail order office business of Simpsons, Limited, on Jan. 7, 1953.

The new company, to be called Simpsons-Sears, Limited, will bring into the Canadian retail field for the first time the giant United States mail order house of Sears, Roebuck and Company of Chicago.

Simpson-Sears, to be owned 50 per cent by Simpsons, Limited, and 50 per cent by Sears, Roebuck, will expand the present mail order business and also operate a chain of retail stores across Canada. Locations of the new stores were not announced.

Five department stores owned by Simpsons, Limited, at Toronto, Montreal, London, Regina and Halifax are not affected in the deal, which will be submitted to the company's shareholders as soon as documents are drawn up.

Simpsons, Limited, is a holding company of which the Robert Simpson Co., Ltd., is a wholly-owned subsidiary. The latter operated the department stores, a mail order business in Toronto, Halifax and Vancouver and order offices and agencies in nearly 300 Canadian centres.

The combined Canadian companies are shown in the annual report for the year ending Jan. 2, 1952, to have total assets of $102,306,014, including $47,602,358 in land, buildings and equipment; $22,637,620 in merchandise and $22,163,560 in accounts receivable.

Sears, Roebuck, the biggest mail order house in the U.S., operates 681 stores in 47 states, Hawaii and four foreign countries. Last year the company earned an estimated net profit of $114,000,000.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CV. No. 18 — TUESDAY, JULY 22, 1952

MAIN STREET TOPICS

NO ABSENTEES

Board of Works and Finance Committees held forth in the City Hall Monday night from 7:30 to 11 o'clock. All members were present with the humidity.

DROWNING VICTIM

The funeral for Richard C. (Ricky) Dwelly, 24, of Salem Ave., Toronto, who was drowned Saturday afternoon in the Trent Canal is being held at 2 p.m. today in Toronto. Burial is in Park Lawn cemetery.

NO FIRES MONDAY

Firemen extinguished a rubbish fire at the home of Charles McNicholl, 268 Aberdeen Avenue, Monday afternoon. They explained that no fires may be lit outside without permission and no permission is given for rubbish fires on Monday. That is the day most housewives do their washing.

EIGHT PANELS

Eight billboards known as poster panels, will enclose the new Miller auto-wrecking yard on Aylmer Street north of the C.P.R. They are substituted for the fence that is required by the council. Board of Works approved last night the application of T. Proudfoot of the E. L. Ruddy Co. for permission to build the panels.

FINDS OLD COIN

Melville Wood of Bailieboro found a "half-dime" a silver coin dated 1837, while he was sitting in front of the W. L. Plews store in Bailieboro Saturday. Mr. Wood said the coin which was about the size of the small silver nickels which are no longer minted, had been used only a little. The printing on it was quite clear.

COUNTY REPRESENTATIVES

Warden R. R. Stewart and Reeves Gifford of Ennismore, Gordon Fitzgerald of Smith, Stewart Clysdale of Dummer, and Roland Tedford of Douro, joined in the greeting to the London travel promoters Monday. For the rest of the day Warden Stewart and Mr. Gifford had pressing engagements in their wheat fields and the sun.

A BLOWOUT caused this on Highway 7, near Fowler's Corners. The panel truck driven by Angus McIntosh, 27, Sherbrooke St. W., blew a tire, clipped off three guard rail posts and hit a tree. Bernard Geraghty, 26, sitting in the right hand seat, was thrown forward against the windshield and his 25-year-old wife, Claire, was thrown against the dashboard. Both were knocked out and, along with McIntosh, were taken to hospital. The shattered windshield is visible, just above the passenger's seat.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

City Ponders Should Drop Rent Control

Defeats Motion Endorsing Stand To Keep Controls

On a question of exemption from rent controls, finance committee defeated Monday night a motion by Ald. William Beggs, seconded by Ald. A. B. Burrows, "that we endorse our former position regarding rent control, and ask for maintenance of rent control in Peterborough."

Voting for it were Aldermen H. N. Young, S. J. Black, Burrows and Beggs. All members of the council were present, with Ald. T. D. Miller presiding.

Ald. Burrows' comment was: "We want to keep the status quo."

Even if it had been passed, the motion would not have changed the council's position but would have cut short discussion on the matter.

In disposing of the question before the committee, support appeared to be unanimous for a later motion by Mayor Waddell, seconded by Ald. Burrows, that the letter (from the select committee from the Ontario Legislature) be referred to the property commtitee for further study and report. Ald. H. S. Longhurst is property chairman.

GET BOTH SIDES

Actually there is no change of present action, and the Burrows "status quo" remanis, but the assignment to the Longhurst committee possibly affords an opportunity of getting both sides of the rent control question.

Text of the letter from the select committee of the legislature on control of rents and leaseholds was recently published in the Examiner. Referring to it in his presentment to the council, M. J. Reynolds wrote that after installing automatic heating equipment in a housing property his application for an increase over the current rent of $38 a month was rejected by control authority in Toronto. He said he had spent $2,000 on the new heating system. His apartments had cost him $14,000, but since 1949 he was not allowed to apply any increase to occupants.

The provincial select committee has been asking municipalities for their wishes on the proposed exemption from control. It was said that certain areas have already applied for it. Peterborough council was asked for its "views" on this subject. Any municipality favoring the lifting of control on rents would have six months, from September to March, in which it could change its position, if so decided.

WANTED NO CHANGE

Mayor Hugh Waddell recalled that the council "had advised them we did not want to change" from the present control system.

"Since then," Ald. J. A. Dewart remarked, "taxes have increased, but landlords have no way of getting any increases."

Ald. Miller said he had heard of exceptional cases such as one in which a tenant was getting more for part of a house than the landlord's rent for the whole house.

Ald. Beggs said there were not sufficient houses in Peterborough for the needs of the people. He recalled the position taken by the council for the vacating of the houses in the Hatton area. If that went through, and there was no control of rents, some people would take advantage of the condition of a shortage of houses and many tenants would suffer.

Ald. J. E. Gillespie said before making any decision on this question the council might be prepared to invite representatives of "both sides" (landlords and tenants) as a means of getting exact information.

Ald. Dewart said the Dominion government had turned controls over to the provinces, "and now it is their responsibility to maintain or abandon controls in Ontario."

Ald. Dewart raised the point [illegible] really [illegible] members had not supported it because of lack of opportunity of knowing and discussing the facts.

Tri-Township Union School Wins 3rd Prize For Most Improvements To Schoolgrounds

A Peterborough county rural school has been awarded third prize in the Ontario competition for the greatest improvement in the appearance of school and grounds during the year ending June 30.

The T. Eaton Co. award goes to Union School Sections 9, 10, 14 of the townships of Burleigh, Harvey and Smith. This is the comparatively new school just north of Burleigh Falls where the road divides into the Oregon Trail to Buckhorn and Highway 28.

Its trustees, appointed by the Ontario Department of Education, are Mrs. G. K. Fraser, R. F. Downey, and Gerald Wood.

Most of the pupils of the school are Indian boys and girls of the rural neighborhood. The teacher is Miss Edith McLaren.

First prize school was No. 8, Crowland Township in Welland County, and second was No. 7 Minto Township, in Wellington County. There were 247 entries from across the province, although only six schools participated in the finals.

No Buying Spree But Sales Show Increases In City

City merchants cast a cautious eye today on Bureau of Statistics figures that have been interpreted as meaning a small buying spree is underway in Canada. Sales had increased over last year, but many businessmen feel that "normal business increases would explain the situation better. They seemed doubtful that a buying boom existed.

Across Canada in May, retail trade was up 13.1 per cent over May, 1951, and April was up 7.1 per cent. May's business was greater even than that of last December.

DEPARTMENT STORES UP

Estimates from the Bureau of Statistics were that June sales in department stores were 10.7 per cent higher than in June of 1951. Leaders in the sales increases were furniture, autos, home appliances, and radios. In 1951, all showed decreased sales from 1950.

Merchants were willing enough to admit that the lifting of credit restrictions undoubtedly had an effect on the sales of once-restricted articles. But they felt that wasn't the whole story.

A dealer in electrical appliances said: "Any increase our sales show over last year should be put down to the work we've done. Increases aren't that big that you'd say there was a boom on."

Said a drugstore manager: "I wouldn't say it looked like a boom now. You'd have to wait until fall to tell for certain."

HURT BY STRIKE

A new car dealer whose firm also handles used autos, said more people were willing to buy cars, and had the money to do it. The U.S. steel strike had "scuppered" car dealers. Deliveries were slow and not always certain.

Another auto dealer said much the same thing. He could sell more cars if he had them, but he can't get them. As for a boom, "wait and see."

A third new car dealer saw the picture in the auto field as a discouraging one. The plant which made his product was closed because of the steel strike, and workers had been given holiday pay and told not to return until they were called.

Statistics and reports from the United States indicate a buying boom under way there which might be reflected in Canada by the end of summer.

But in Peterborough, at least, merchants agreed that caution was the keynote for the buyer. One furniture dealer said: "People just don't jump to buy the first thing they see. They pick and choose."

Mrs. Stevenson Civic Worker Dies In Winnipeg

One of Peterborough's most prominent workers in civic and welfare work for many years, Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, 86, died suddenly in Winnipeg Sunday while visiting her sister, Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun.

A member of one of the city's old families, Mrs. Stevenson, the former Georgina Maude b'Eresby Beck, was born in Peterborough, daughter of the Rev. Canon J. W. R. Beck and Margaret Brown, and lived here all her life. Canon Beck was the rector of St. John's Anglican Church for 33 years, 1856-1889.

Mrs. Stevenson was one of the originators of projects and improvements in the city that are still in existence. Much of this work was done through the Local Council of Women of which she was a charter member and president from 1924 to 1926.

BEGAN BABY CLINICS

She was one of the originators of the Well Baby Clinics which are now under the supervision of the Department of Health, and also the city playgrounds for children now operated by the Recreation Commission.

She was also one of the original instigators of Home and School organizations in the city.

She was one of a group instrumental in the appointment of a policewoman for the city and which also supported the election of a woman to the Board of Education. Before a policewoman was appointed, Mrs. Stevenson attended court several times when cases involved women.

PAY TRIBUTE

Tribute to Mrs. Stevenson and the group of women associated with her in the Local Council of Women during her active years of service was paid today by present members of the council. They spoke highly of Mrs. Stevenson and her group's efforts and said that the fruits of their work are being seen today.

She was a charter member of the 57th Regiment Chapter of the

Mother Rescues Son From Well

BONAR LAW (ENS)—A Bonar Law mother rescued her three-year-old son from an 18-foot well Sunday. The boy had fallen in in spite of a trap door covering the mouth of the well.

Early McFaul, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McFaul, was playing with other children in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen B. McComb, Sydney township, where his parents were visiting.

Mrs. McFaul and Mrs. McComb looked out at the children and saw Patsy Thompson standing near the well. Mrs. McComb warned her to keep away from it.

Then Mrs. McFaul asked: "Where's Earl?"

"[illegible] in there," said Patsy, the boy until a ladder was lowered and she was able to get out, carrying him.

Earl was unhurt, except for slight scratches on his back.

Tire Blows Truck Hits Posts, Tree

Three People Hurt After Crash On Highway 7

Three occupants of a panel truck were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital early today when the vehicle blew a tire, clipped off three guard rail posts, and crashed into a tree. The accident occurred on Highway 7, two miles east of Fowler's Corners.

In hospital, the full extent of their injuries still undetermined, are:

Angus McIntosh, 27, of R.R. 3 Peterborough, a fractured wrist and bruises.

Bernard G. Geraghty, 26, of 213 Simcoe St., a possible fracture of the right side of his jaw, facial cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Claire Geraghty, 25, wife of Mr. Geraghty, injuries to her right side, bruises and shock.

The trio were riding in a panel truck, owned and driven by McIntosh. They were travelling toward Lindsay at about 1:30 a.m. when the right front tire blew causing the truck to swerve onto the north shoulder of the highway.

CLIP OFF POSTS

After clipping off three guard rail posts the truck ran through the north ditch and crashed into a tree, a distance of 125 feet from where it left the paved surface.

McIntosh's wrist was broken but he was able to get out of the driver's seat unaided. Mrs. Geraghty was thrown against the dashboard and her husband against the windshield. Both were knocked unconscious.

They were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Nisbett's ambulance and were treated by Dr. W. S. Fitzgerald.

The right front corner of the car is crushed in and the windshield shattered. Damage is estimated at $800.

O.P.P. Constables John Cawood and Harold Armstrong investigated.

Car Balks At Crossing Collides With Truck

NORWOOD —(ENS)—A small truck and a car collided at Spring and Bridge Sts. in Norwood Monday evening, causing total damage of $450 to the two vehicles. Nobody was hurt.

The accident occurred when Archie Miles of Ridge St. tried to make a left turn off the highway to go south on Spring St. The car started up balkily and did not get across the highway before it was in collision with the eastbound truck of P. Vandenburgh of Centre Dummer.

Miles' car received $250 damage, mostly to the right rear; and Vandenburgh's truck received $200 damage, mostly to the front end.

Provincial police from Peterborough assisted Chief Constable Herb Bradley in the investigation.

CowKicksMother Premature Birth Baby Doing Fine

BANCROFT (ENS).—In an incubator in the Red Cross Hospital here is a two-weeks'-old boy, who weighs only a little more than three pounds.

He was born three months early, hours after his mother was kicked by a cow. Obstetricians say that while such cases are "not remarkable," they are still not common.

The baby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Vardy of Bancroft. Mrs. Vardy, 20, has been married since June, 1950, and has one other son, Wayne, 1.

Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft says he is as positive as he can be that the boy is a six-months child. In spite of its size and prematurity, it has an excellent chance for survival.

The couple's other son, Wayne, was born two months prematurely, and Dr. Anderson said he was not sure whether the cow's kick precipitated labor, or whether the woman is one who would tend to have premature births.

A Peterborough obstetrician remarked that children born three months prematurely have not a very good chance of survival if they weigh less than three pounds. (The Vardy baby weighed three pounds, two ounces).

If they weigh more than three pounds, he said, the odds favoring survival are slightly in their favor.

Hospital officials report that Mrs. Vardy has recovered quickly from the effects of both the cow's kick and childbirth. She spent last weekend in Stirling, visiting relatives.

Council Defers Idea To Curb Board Of Education Costs

City council's expressed respect for the Board of Education Monday night inspired postponement of decision on a resolution from London, Ont., suggesting that legislation be sought giving municipal councils authority to refer school budgets to the Ontario Municipal Board.

The London council is circularizing other municipalities for support of their resolution that the Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of Municipal Affairs, be asked to introduce the proposed legislative amendment.

"Should we be a party to it?" Ald. J. A. Dewart enquired. "We have always had good relations with the Board of Education. There has never been a time when municipal councils had any jurisdiction over school affairs. It might be interpreted as dissatisfaction of this council with the Board of Education."

Ald J. E. Gillespie said the council was required to submit certain expenditures to the Ontario Municipal Board.

NO COMPLAINTS

Ald. A. B. Burrows: " We have never had any reason that I know of to complain about the Board of Education."

Ald. H. N. Young said school trustees were elected bodies, and were just as conscientious as municipal councils.

Ald. Burrows said this question required considerable thought. He suggested it might be let go to the association of mayors and reeves for their reaction.

Ald. Gillespie said that if there was an increase of four or five

Mayor Waddell commented that while there were good relations between the two elective bodies in Peterborough, "in some other places there is almost open warfare."

"I think there are some cases of that nature now before the Municipal Board," His Worship said. "It appears to be a question of a saw-off. It is a touchy subject in some other municipalities, but we are free of it."

A motion by Aldermen Gillespie and Longhurst was adopted deferring further discussion to the next meeting of the finance committee. Ald. T. D. Miller presided.

Council Approves Building $100,000 School

Approval of the Board of Education's proposed Public School at Cameron and St. Catherines Sts. at an estimated cost of $100,000 was recommended to the council by its finance committee Monday night.

The board expects to begin construction early in the fall, G. W. Craw informed the committee. Presenting a glimpse of the continuing school problem, Mr. Craw said the public schools would graduate 230 children and register 675 this year. A considerable part of the growth is in the south and western areas.

Supporting a letter to the council from K. S. Wightman, Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Craw said the four-room building would be for the younger pupils, and it was expected that the board would have to build another school on the Stenson property north of Lansdowne St. and would amo[illegible]

"With four additional rooms the board hopes that the whole problem south of Lansdowne will be solved, at least for a little while," Mr. Craw said. "That part of the south end is pretty well filled up. Hardly any vacant lots are left, so as a residential section it may be regarded complete. It was felt by the board that four rooms for the younger children of that section would relieve them from having to walk longer distances and cross two busy streets."

Mr. Craw said King Edward School was filled to the doors, and at Prince of Wales a room was being opened that was not intended as a classroom.

School requirements were not static in Peterborough, Mr. Craw remarked. There are the new Ashburnham School, the project at St. Catharines St., prospect of another school north of Lansdowne St., Queen Elizabeth School on the north side of the city is crowded, and housing expansion is now active in that direction.

The board's request was for approval of financing the four-room school by issuing debentures.

McMahon-Sanders Park St. Wedding

Park St. Baptist Church was decorated with white lilies and ferns for the wedding at one thirty o'clock Saturday afternoon of Doris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sanders, to Mr. William Thomas McMahon, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. McMahon, all of Peterborough.

The Rev. E. J. Whan performed the ceremony and Mr. Adam Hawley played the wedding music. Mr. Robert Lamblen, a cousin of the bride, sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride's gown was of white nylon net with bodice of lace finished with a high collar and long sleeves with deep ruffles at the wrists. She wore a fingertip veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of red roses and orange blossoms.

She was given in marriage by her father and attended by Miss Eva Moffatt and her sister Miss Annabelle Sanders.

DOROTHY DIX

Quarrelsome Parents Bring Life Of Discord To Family

DEAR MISS DIX: If parents knew what separation does to their children I don't think there would be so many divorces. I should think people would straigten out their difficulties just for the sake of their children.

I am a teen-ager of 17 and a victim of circumstances. My parents were divorced when I was small and each has remarried. I live with my mother, and now, after eight years, it looks like another crisis brewing. She and my stepfather are always arguing and quarreling. She is suspicious of every move he makes for fear there is another woman involved. Sometimes when he is late for dinner she says, in front of me and my little sister, that she wishes something would happen to him. This life of discord is awful. I envy those who can honestly say they live in a happy home.

DAWN M.

ANSWER: It is, indeed, a wonderful blessing to have a happy home. The unfortunate part of it is, though, that few children realize how fortunate they are to live in a household free from discord.

While it is true that many divorces would be averted if parents stopped to realize the effect of the action upon their youngsters, it is also true that some people simply cannot create a harmonious atmosphere around them. Such a one, apparently, is your mother. Since she could not make a success of her first marriage, and is certainly not being too cooperative in this one, it would seem to be her nature, rather than the fact of the divorce, that is keeping your home life so unhappy.

HAS OWN TROUBLES

Probably she in turn, however, is beset by worries of which you know nothing, so don't judge her actions too hastily. Perhaps she is so wrapped up in her own troubles that she is completely unaware of the bad effect her disposition has on you children. If you have a friend or relative in whom you can confide, try to bring the seriousness of the situation to your mother, through a third person.

By being cheerful about the house yourself, you may help change her attitude toward life.

Whatever you do, Dawn, don't leave home at your tender age, or jump to the conclusion that marriage may be an escape for you. Living under present conditions, and doing your best to improve them, is a job you must do. Don't shirk the responsibility and, with God's help, you may be able to create harmony from the present discord.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I have one problem which we cannot agree on. That is the upbringing of our two-year-old son. My husband is a strict disciplinarian and punishes the child for everything—climbing on chairs, taking too long to eat, singing or talking to himself when he's put to bed, etc. He says he wants to be proud of the boy and that this is the only way to train him correctly. I feel that so much spanking will make him dull and slow.

A. F.

ANSWER: Your conclusion is much more correct than that of your husband. A boy whose spirit has been completely broken by constant, unnecessary punishment will be the dull child who will be a credit to no one. The natural curiosity of a youngster should be encouraged—not quelled. Your husband is already depriving himself of one of the pleasures of parenthood. By not letting the baby do the cute things typical of babyhood, Daddy will never be able to relate the anecdotes that are most parents' chief delight.

Since you are unable to convince your husband of his error, why not tell your doctor of the circumstances and let him advise dad?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 19, soon to be graduated from high school. The man I love is 26. Is that too great a difference? Also, do you think I should continue my education in college where I will meet boys my own age?

R. R.

ANSWER: The age difference is not too great, provided background and tastes are similar. As to your education, the faculty advisor, student counselor, or principal of your high school should be consulted. Don't go to college just to meet boys, however. It's rather an expensive way to get acquainted.

Kates-Renouf Rites At Park Alliance

The new Missionary Alliance Church, Park St. North, was the setting Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Georgina May Renouf, daughter of Mrs. W. V. Vesterfelt of Peterborough and the late Rev. C. G. Renouf, to Mr. Donald Sidney Kates, son of Mrs. Sidney Kates of Glasgow, Scotland, and the late Mr. Kates.

The Rev. Ralph Hobson of Ottawa performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Pte. Gerald Vesterfelt of Valcartier, Que., and her attendant was Miss Patricia Sturn of Windsor. The Groomsman was Mr. William Wyeth and the ushers were the bride's cousins, William Lowell Sr. and William Lowell Jr., all of Peterborough.

The church was decorated with gladioli and hydrangea banked with ferns. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Ben Smith.

A white linen suit with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses was the bride's attire. The bridesmaid wore an aqua linen suit, also with navy accessories, and her corsage was of white roses. The bride's mother chose a navy and white silk suit and a white hat and wore a corsage of white carnations.

Following a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lowell, 592 Douglas Ave., the bridal couple left by motor for the Laurentians. On return they will live at 243 McDonnel St.

Telegrams from the groom's friends in Scotland were received during the reception.

Society Searches For Glamor At Lower Cost

LONDON (CP)—Glamor without bankruptcy is the aim of the newly-formed Society of Guinea Pigs.

A night out in London's West End has become a possibility for some 300 charter members of this organization which met at the Cafe de Paris, formulated a membership pattern and listened to Noel Coward sing.

Night life in London is so expensive that many young bloods are eliminated. So a group of under 24s made a deal with the Cafe de Paris.

Each guinea pig received a folder on how to dress (evening wear) and how much to tip—five shillings. While adults pay two guineas cover charge, the youngsters pay only one guinea. For this they must be at their tables before 9 p.m. A fruit cup is thrown in for good luck. After that they order what they like and keep their fingers crossed. It is not included in the guinea fee.

The scheme was devised by Lady Hardwicke, wife of actor Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Wife's Life In The Yukon Leaves Much To Be Desired

By V. K. (via M. M.)

Count your blessings, ladies. If you can't think of any offhand, read V. K.'s letter from Whitehorse, Yukon, and you will think of quite a few before you are finished.

"WHITEHORSE, YUKON. — Dear Mary Moore: . . . enjoy your column . . . never written before . . . interested in your trip . . . we are stationed in the Yukon at Whitehorse but get the hometown paper a couple of weeks late, but it still gets read, every inch of it, as we have only a weekly paper here which carries only local news . . . the scenery is magnificent and weather not too bad although we have had a late spring (they tell me) I have only been here since January . . . but the thing that is hard to take up here, Mary, is the price of food and everything else for that matter although (mail order companies) are old reliables if you don't mind waiting.

Fresh milk we get but once a week on Saturdays, and it is 50c a quart. A 15-oz. loaf unsliced bread 20c, lb. margarine 51c, lettuce 45c lb., tomatoes 35c and 60c a tube, depending on whether they came by boat or plane. Jelly powders 12c each, large cornflakes 35c, graferuit 16c each, shortening 42c, side bacon 90c, tinned milk 22c tin . . . I hate to even mention meat prices — hamburg is $1.10 lb., same for stewing beef . . . pork is down to 75c although none of the meat is trimmed of bone and fat as I've been used to.

" . . . until we get an A.F. house we rent one downtown for $40 furnished (don't laugh )with a bed, spring and mattress (which we replaced) and small chest of drawers in bedroom. The L.R. has oil heater, 2 odd tables (old A. F. writing desks) and 1 couch. The kitchen has a camp stove, table and 5 chairs. There is no running water and we store ours in 45-gal. drum . . . the hydro for lights, toaster and iron runs $6 monthly. We pay the scavenger $1 per visit twice a week . . . we have what is loosely referred to as a chemical toilet . . .

"I burn about ½ cord wood a month for cooking and this costs another $10 . . . In Feb. and March we paid out almost $100 each month to keep the living room warm . . . ice would still form in the kitchen during the night when the stove was out . . . luckily we are granted $125 additional allowance up here . . . spend every penny of it . . .

"Things have brightened considerably . . . we are moving to a house with running water, and most precious, a flush toilet, shortly. By winter we hope to be in a proper A. F. house. There gives us a fully furnished modern house, complete even to bed we pay $75 a month rent which linen . . . everything else to be had in a well-run modern house . . . we are not allowed to bring anything but personal belongings . . . while we are living skimpily at present we are together as a family and that means everything.

"There is no earth in Whitehorse, and hence no gardens, although climate will allow things to grow . . . I have managed to obtain some soil . . . in a coal scuttle I have 5 tomato plants, a good supply of lettuce and radishes . . . "I've been gabbing a long time and haven't asked you what I intended . . . have you a recipe for macaroni and cheese similar to that which —— puts up . . . it is 35c a 15-oz. tin up here . . . I have a boy 6, a girl 5 and a boy 2 and they really eat . . . have you recipe for cakes that could be cooked on top of stove or in pressure cooker . . .

"On re-reading, do hope you didn't think, I was complaining . . . I really like it despite all the gripes . . . V. K."

Reading that letter was like reading a story. Doesn't V. K. give you a clear picture. Aren't you glad our food prices are lower?

I am mailing V. K. the recipe for macaroni and cheese which I put in this column last Tuesday. Only fruit cakes can be "baked" sucessfully in the pressure cooker so far, so I am giving a

DATE PUDDING

Sift together 2 cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt. Add ½ cup chopped nuts, 1 cup chopped dates and grated rind ½ orange. Stir in 1 beaten egg combined with 2/3 cup milk (in V. K's case diluted evaporated milk or dehydrated skim milk powder) and 1 cup ground suet. Pour into buttered moulds 2/3 full. Cover securely with four thicknesses wax paper. Place on rack in cooker, exhaust, cook 20 minutes at 15 lbs. pressure. Do not open until indicator returns to zero.

Strange Lights Near Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP)—A control tower operator said today "golden lights" have been sighted over Cleveland, and on one occasion he sent an airliner to look for something that appeared on a radar screen.

George Beers, senior operator on the midnight shift of the control tower at Cleveland Hopkins airport, said "one night six of us watched from the darkened tower room while a light hovered north of the field. We don't know what it was but all six of us saw it.

"Another time I personally saw a light making a circular pattern over or nearby Elyria. I picked it up on the radar screen and watched it.

"I sent an incoming airliner over to take a look and the thing disappeared from the screen."

On another occasion a tower operator and an incoming pilot both reported seeing a "light" that "climbed and travelled in an easterly direction much faster than the normal operational speed of any aircraft known to be in this vicinity," said Beers.

Pulpwood Backbone Of Canadian Industry

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada adds $100 to her income every time a cord of pulpwood is converted into a ton of pulp and paper, James A. Vance, president of the Canadian Forestry Association, said in a statement released today.

"Until we place a high tangible value on the living forest as the chief paymaster of the nation, we cannot properly gauge the enormity of the forest fire scourge," Mr. Vance said in a fire prevention message.

An average woodland acre was worth $2,500 to Canada through conversion of its wood into newsprint and pulp. The annual loss of 438,000 acres by fire was a "chain of tragedies."

2 Planes Machine-Gun Japanese Island

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japanese police on tiny Yakara Island, off the southern tip of Japan, reported that two big planes machine-gunned the island today, making five or six passes.

Police said there were no casualties.

Islanders on nearby Gaja Island recently reported that an unidentified plane machine-gunned a village there July 18.

Youth Not Guilty Of Negligence In Car Fatality

In continuing to drive his dilapadated car on the River Road after his three passengers had climbed out and were hanging on the outside, Ronald Killingbeck, 16, of Princess St., was not guilty of a sufficient degree of negligence to warrant a conviction for dangerous driving.

Magistrate R. B. Baxter gave this decision in police court today in granting defence counsel W. J. Arthur Fair's motion for dismissal of the charge after crown attorney John A. Bradshaw completed the crown's case.

The stunting cost the life of 16-year-old Donald Grant, R.R. 11, Peterborough, who was fatally injured when he slipped off the front of the car and fell onto the gravel shoulder of the road. The accident occurred the evening of June 12 and Grant died at Civic Hospital shortly after midnight.

"If Killingbeck did anything wrong, it was his failure to do something," the Magistrate said after Grant, Donald Weese and Ronald Harrison got out of the car. "In view of the age of Killingbeck and the fact that the car was driven at such a speed that Weese was able to get out and walk behind the car and get back into the trunk, under these circumstances, I cannot find there was sufficient degree of negligence."

INQUEST VERDICT

Coroner's jury had already brought in a verdict that attached no blame to Killingbeck.

Mr. Bradshaw said the crown's case boiled down to Killingbeck's failure to stop when "seeing his passengers crawling out. He not only continued to drive but knowing the three were clinging like flies to the car, he speeded up to 15 or 20 miles an hour."

"If that is not dangerous driving I don't know what is," the crown attorney asserted.

In dismissing the charge, Magistrate Baxter said he was stating his judgment in such a way that Mr. Bradshaw could appeal it if he wished to do so, and also as a warning to others that "they are taking dangerous chances in conducting themselves in this manner whether they are Killingbeck's age or not."

Magistrate Baxter termed it "unfortunate that the oldest one of the group (20-year-old Ronald Harrison) was the one who gave the others the idea."

CLIMBED INTO TRUNK

It was Harrison who first climbed through the rear window of the car, and clambered over the rear fender into the trunk. There was no lid on the trunk and as Harrison was climbing back into the car, Weese said he got out of the car, walked back beside the slow moving car and climbed into the trunk.

Grant, he said, got out of the right front window ahead of him and was on the hood of the car when he last saw him.

The magistrate said that a warning which Harrison said Killingbeck gave to Grant "to get off the car because he was obstructing his view," did not exonerate the accused. "No person can absolve themselves of responsibility by a warning when a person is in the position Grant was."

However, the magistrate added that at the rate Killingbeck was travelling, he could not find that Killingbeck could have foreseen that Grant might have been seriously injured or killed, if he fell off.

As to punishment, Magistrate Baxter said, "I would suggest that the punishment he had received in the taking of the life of a boy his own age is sufficient warning and has hit him sufficiently hard that it will not soon be forgotten and will likely remain with him the rest of his life."

Washington Society Goes To Japanese Gov't Party

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—It's really official now.

And new Japanese Ambassador Eikichi Araki is one of the most relieved men in town, although he had a couple of nervous hours the other afternoon.

Japan is back in the old international fold.

As is generally recognized in this world capital, the Senate can ratify a dozen treaties and the diplomats can scratch their signatures on two leagues of good bond paper. But unless Washington society rules that a country's liquor is fittin' for drinkin' the other formalities don't count.

That's what had Ambassador Araki so worried when he sent out invitations for the first party in the Japanese embassy since some time before what is now known as Pearl Harbor Day.

The Japanese embassy was in the news last when a smart photographer caught the staff burning some papers outside of it on Dec. 7, 1941. The Swiss took care of the luxurious building overlooking picturesque Rock Creek Park during the war. And the Far East Commission has had it since then.

COLLEGE IN U.S.

The new ambassador, who went to college in the U.S. before the war and who is an important banker in his own country, had to sweat out the whole affair practically by himself.

He is a widower, and his daughter, Tomiko, who is only 21, is considered too young by Japanese standards to have any part in such parties. The wife of one of the staff members acts as his official hostess.

Had Araki been briefed on the standard Washington cocktail party routine, his pre-party ordeal wouldn't have been so trying. As it was, some time about an hour after the shindig was to have gotten under way, the first guests arrived. That's actually normal.

Even the arrival of the first batch of thirsty guests didn't allay all of his fears. Very first to arrive were Mr. and Mrs. John Steelman. He is the Assistant President and more or less has to go to such affairs. Following him was the official State Department cocktail party battalion who have to go, with no more or less about it.

Then, however, things started to look up. The dean of the diplomatic corps, Ambassador Munthe de Morgenstierne of Norway arrived. After that Araki knew he was a social shoo-in. The generals, admirals, Supreme Court justices, cabinet members, dowagers and just plain crashers showed up.

With high good humor at the way things were suddenly going, Araki wandered among the festive guests, explaining that the reason native Japanese dishes weren't being served was because of the weather. Too perishable in the heat.

HOT SAKI

He invited everybody there to another party, late in the Fall, for which he promises the real thing, including hot saki and at least seven different kinds of raw fish.

During the long gay evening no person was tactless enough to bring up the recent armed misunderstanding which temporarily put Japan out of the social club. No Russian representatives showed up, but then nobody seemed to miss them, either.

On the whole, the party was a tremendous success. The last guest staggered out some time around midnight, which is the real test here for a party that is supposed to be over at seven.

It was the consensus of the guests that the liquor, food and hospitality all measured up to Washington standards and that any time Araki wants to try it again, they're willing to do their part.

And bygones are officially bygones.

AMBASSADOR ARAKI and daughter: In the Fall, hot saki.

Remand Davies In Passport Case

OTTAWA (CP)—Raymond Arthur Davies, writer and former executive officer of the Communist party in Canada, today was remanded to Sept. 17 without plea on a charge of passport fraud.

Davies, born Rudolf Shohan of Polish parents, was charged with making false or misleading statements when he applied for a passport in 1936.

Davies was arrested earlier this month in Whitby, and brought here. The charge said Davies stated in a passport application that he had no other name than Raymond Arthur Davies, that he was born in Montreal March 15, 1908 and that his nationality was British.

Maximum penalty for conviction is two years in penitentiary.

Davies is a former newspaperman, a former leader of the Young Communist League, the Communist Party's youth organization. Later he was on the executive of the Labor-Progressive party, the Communist party's political arm.

"Plus the fact," said Ald. Gillespie, "that we consider this is a provincial responsibility."

Ald. Young remarked that "there is no motion here to take off controls."

Mayor Waddell said: "I think it would be a good idea to enquire into this question. Controls are now being handled through Toronto. Applications for rent changes are sent there."

One of the members remarked: "They send a man down here to enquire and that's the last you hear of it."

Mayor Waddell's motion referring the select committee's letter to the property committee was seconded by Ald. Burrows.

Ald. Burrows: "If Peterborough is asked do we want to control our own rents, are we prepared to go into it ourselves. And who would take on that responsibility?"

Presumbably that is one of the aspects of the problem laid on Ald. Longhurst's doorstep.

British Craftsmen Say Glass Equals That Of Middle Ages

By STUART SAYERS

LONDON (Reuters)—Now that they know how to duplicate the "imperfections" that made the stained-glass windows of the Middle Ages so beautiful, Britain's modern-day stained-glass artists claim they can equal the best that the ancient artists produced.

In one of Britain's stained-glass studios, in the North London suburb of St. John's Wood, skilled artists patiently piece together a jig-saw of thousands of bits of glass to create modern masterpieces.

H. Pale, a partner in the firm, estimates the number of craftsmen employed throughout Britain making stained glass windows is only "a few hundred." There are about 70 recognized stained-glass artists, the key men of the craft who design the windows.

MUST KNOW BIBLE

The designer must not only be a skilled artist but must also have a knowledge of heraldry, costume, history, church architecture and the Bible. He must make sure that his window fits it surroundings in theme and period.

The secret of the old windows of the middle ages, lies, according to experts, in the fact that the glass was hand-made and "imperfect." It was full of bubbles and streaks and graduations of color which gave the light passing through it a quality that later missed.

The Victorians used colored sheet glass for their early windows but it was realized by the 1860s that this was too "perfect."

After years of experiment, the fine "antique" glass of today was evolved. All the imperfections of the ancient hand-made glass were deliberately reproduced, and with them came the glorious colors.

ALL BY HAND

The making of a stained-glass window is a long, painstaking process. Even the electric kiln in which the glass is fired is regulated, not by thermometer, but according to the expert judgment of the craftsman who tends it.

The artist's scale design of the window is worked up by other artists into a full-size drawing. The cutter uses the drawing as guide to cut the odd, jig-saw pieces from glass sheets.

From the cutting room the glass goes to the painters who trace the outline of the design, assemble the whole panel and cover it with a wash of pigment. The painter then etches off the highlights and passes the glass on for firing.

The last process is the glazing, when each piece is fixed by hand into its place in the leads.

YOUNG COLLECTOR William Drobak, 11, works over his collection of more than 8,000 seals and labels. He gets 'em free from assorted household items, which is big reason the labels have replaced stamps as the number one hobby of youngsters.

Stamp Collecting Declines As Most Popular Hobby

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The decline and fall of stamp collecting from the top spot among children's hobbies had psychologists worried. What was the reason for the spectacular drop?

The answer, according to the American Hobby Federation, is pure economics. Juvenile economics, but economics nonetheless. It seems you can't be a practising philatelist if you're phlat broke. And the high cost of living has resulted in many youngsters struggling along on a reduced allowance.

They can't afford to buy stamps—not with the rising cost of ice such—so they've had to switch to a cheaper hobby. Which is one cream sodas and comic books and reason why the favorite pastime of America's youngsters today is collecting seals and labels.

That's the result of a two-year survey of 8,414 children's hobby clubs, which the AHF just completed. The seals and labels category, not even in the top ten in the last survey, is the children's champ. And the top hobby in 1950, stamp collecting, is now only sixth on the list.

A seal and label collection consists of hundreds of such items obtained from household objects like food, cosmetics, clothing, confectionery, letters and packages. They cost nothing. The hobbyists divide them into two categories—seals are usually embossed metallic foil, while labels are made of paper with a gummed or a plain back.

BECOME VALUABLE

While they are originally free, some seals and labels have matured into obects of value. One collector somehow came in possession of an old label from a Lydia Pinkham bottle. He's since turned down offers of up to $100 from avid fans. Fans of the hobby, that is, not Miss Pinkham.

After seals and labels on the national list come: collecting autographs, model plane making, woodcraft, collecting insects stamps, painting, collecting dolls, photography, model railroading, collecting match box covers, collecting miniatures, and collecting postcards. Nine of these top 13 are collective hobbies; only model planes, woodcraft, painting and photography are creative hobbies.

The Federation has some interesting theories about why some of these hobbies are listed in the first place, and why they're going up or down in popularity.

Autographs, like the leading seals and labels, is an inexpensive hobby. For the price of a little ink and some scrap paper a youngster is a bona fide autograph collector. Which is all right if he wants bona fide autographs.

AIR AGE

Model plane making is a tribute to the air age. Insect collecting is an old favorite, and a great way to trample the zinnia bed. The Federation says painting, which has made tremendous strides in two years, has been pushed by school teachers and community centre instructors.

Doll collecting is, of course, a favorite of little girls. Most little boys wait until they're big before they go in for it. Model railroading, for some reason, is more popular in smaller cities than in larger ones, possibly because homes in smaller cities generally have more room. It's tough to have a decent model railroad installation in a 1½-room apartment.

The American Hobby Federation is emphatic about one thing. A sport, they claim, isn't a hobby. So playing or watching baseball doesn't count. Neither does throwing rocks at trains, which would have been first except for that technicality.

Test Big Guns, Shells On Range By St. Lawrence

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA (CP)—In a tranquil, marshy widening of the St. Lawrence River, Canada is building a 13-mile firing range to test the big guns and shells she is making for herself and her allies.

By September, officials of the inspection services of the Department of National Defence say they will be in full-scale operation with shells flying out into a marked-off section of what is called Lake St. Peter but which is actually a broadened St. Lawrence.

TEST GUNS, SHELLS

Already, after several months work, some testing of guns and shells is going on at the embryo range, within two miles of the quiet village of Nicolet and 35 to 40 miles from Sorel where a variety of big guns are made.

Parliament has already appropriated $1,800,000 for the range but the final expenditure is expected to be considerably beyond that.

There Canada will proof—the official term—the three-inch .50 calibre guns adopted by the Canadian, American and British navies, the 105 and 155 millimetre howitzers being adopted by the Canadian Army as well as other artillery pieces and rockets being built at Sorel, Longueuil, Que., and elsewhere.

Every gun and every shell that comes off the production lines has to go through a personality test so that its exact characteristics can be gauged and listed. Elaborate gear for checking the various reactions in the weapon and of the missile in flight will be mounted at observation posts along the marshy shore.

None of the guns or shells goes to the services until the inspection services have given their approval.

WATER, LAND CHECKS

The land chosen for the range is a mixture of farm and scrub land. It lies on three stretches of land at the northeastern end of Lake St. Peter, known locally as Isle le Domaine, Isle de la Ferme, and Isle Bougainville. The range will be mainly in the lake itself but possession is being taken of the shoreline to a depth of about one mile because each weapon and missile must be tested both on water and land.

The range will be known as the Lake St. Peter artillery proof establishment of the inspection services, the organization which checks equipment before the forces take it over.

The inspectors have been using a range at Valcartier, Que., and will continue to do so. But the new big guns have outgrown it.

Hollywood Plans Another Whirl At Shakespeare

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—William Shakespeare is being given another whirl in Hollywood. It is hoped the old boy won't be whirling in his grave after this try.

The bard has never fared too well at the hands of the Hollywood filmmakers. But this time M.G.M. is exercising the utmost care to make sure Shakespearians as well as movie fans are satisfied with its version of "Julius Caesar." Witness the facts:

1. John Gielgud, ace Shakespearian actor of England, is being imported to play Cassius.

1. Greer Garson and Deborah Kerr are playing virtual walk-ons.

3. Marlon (Mumbles) Brando will talk plainly as Marc Antony.

HAPPY CAST

Producer John Houseman, who produced Shakespeare with Orson Welles on Broadway, reported that it was easy to persuade Gielgud to play his first United States movie. Miss Kerr volunteered for her tiny part, and Miss Garson easily acceded. "While the roles of Portia (Kerr) and Calpurnia (Garson) are only about three pages, the scenes are important," Houseman explained.

Completing the cast are James Mason as Brutus and Louis Calhern as Julius Caesar.

PAST ERRORS

The producer said he encountered some opposition to a Shakespearian project, largely due to past mishaps. He explained their errors:

"'Romeo and Juliet' (1936) suffered, I believe, because it was largely created by movie people, instead of those connected with the stage. Also, Norma Shearer and Leslie Howard had no Shakespearian experience.

"Orson Welles' 'MacBeth' (1948) had three strikes against it: A limited budget; the Scotch accent; and Orson was too busy to concentrate on his performance."

But Houseman added that Laurence Olivier's "Henry V" and "Hamlet" blazed the trail for Shakespeare on film.

NAMED IN 1649

Christian Island in Georgian Bay was so named in 1649 when Jesuit missionaries led Huron converts to safety there.

Bethany Woman Gives Sunday School Bible

BETHANY (ENS)—At the Sunday morning Sunday school service in the United Church, Miss Elsie Richardson presented a large Bible to the school in memory of her parents, the late Thomas Richardson and Sarah Staples, both of whom during their lifetime had been active workers in the old Methodist Church.

In accepting the Bible on behalf of the school, A. H. Monk, superintendent, paid tribute to the Richardson family, telling of Mr. Richardson's activities in the church and his term of 20 years as class leader in the Sunday school. His family, of which Miss Elsie Richardson is the last surviving member, were all interested in the work of the church and Sunday school and members of the choir.

Miss Richardson lives alone in the village and although advanced in years maintains her active interest in church and Sunday school and looks after her own large garden. A singer and elocutionist, she gives unsparingly of her talents and no community event is complete without a reading from Miss Richardson.

Too Much Pressure Bad For Fishing, Man's Health

"If you're too busy to go fishing —you're too busy," said Pete McGillen, outdoor editor of the Toronto Telegram, in a speech at the Rotary luncheon metting Monday which ranged from a detailed outline of the life of the maskinonge to the moral, that a man's got to go fishing to keep healthy.

Humor and seriousness intermingled in Mr. McGillen's support of conseravtion of Canada's fish with special reference to muskies, bass and trout.

"The muskie is the most valuable single asset the Ontario tourist industry has," the speaker said.

He explained that realization of the importance of the conservation of this fish has resulted in the provincial government - built hatchery at Deer Lake near Havelock.

IMPROVED ON MAN

"The one instance where man seems to have improved on nature's program is in the propagation of muskies," Mr. McGillen said.

He gave the following outline of the steps taken at this hatchery:

The muskies are netted in the spring after going through a series of nets, the fish find themselves in a holding or pond net. The operators milk the female for its eggs and strip males for the sperm to fertilize the eggs.

The fertile spawn is taken taken to the Deer Lake hatchery for hatching and early upbringing.

Eighty per cent of the fry is returned to the lakes where the spawn was obtained and deposited as new stock. The remaining 20 per cent is placed in ponds to be raised to fingerling size. Into these ponds are poured thousands of soft sucker minnows and soft carp minnows. Limbs of trees with heavy foliage are placed to hide the little muskies from each other.

10 PER CENT SURVIVE

Even with all this food and the tree branches, only one fingerling in 10 survives. The others have been eaten by their brothers and sisters. The fingerlings are deposited in the lakes as new stock and placed in the heaviest weed cover where they will have the best chance of survival.

Mr. McGillen named human greed and selfishness as one of the main reasons that such fish as muskies and trout are not too numerous today. He berated the present condition of former good trout streams which he said are not only going to be useless for trout production, but are also going to be open sewers of pollution. He blamed these conditions on the removal of the forest cover.

From here the speaker drew a parallel picture in human health. "Conservation of health is paramount if a man is to have happiness and contentment," he said. "The deterioration of a trout stream is just what is happening to many of our bodies — pressure, work, hurry and push are all parts of modern day living. These are the factors that lead to coronary thrombosis, hypertension, gastric ulcers and nervous breakdowns."

Mr. McGillen had a prescription for conseravtion of health — fishing.

Ask Investigation Of Cancellation

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Trade Minister Howe was requested yesterday to institute a "public meeting" to inquire into the cancellation last Thursday of a Ford of Canada contract for the manufacture of wings for jet aircraft.

Jack Taylor, president of Local 200, United Auto Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), made the request by telegram in connection with the cancellation by Canadair Limited, Montreal, of a contract awarded last December to the Ford company. The contract called for the production of wings for 576 T-33A Shooting Star trainer aircraft.

Mr. Taylor said a Canadair statement of the recognition of "certain difficulties and obstacles that could effect a satisfactory performance of the contract" constituted a "smearing inference" against the United Auto Workers.

Husband, Wife Silent For 2-Year Period

MANCHESTER, England (CP)—When Thomas B. Moxon, 53, was granted a divorce from his wife, Millicent, 49, it was disclosed in court here that neither had spoken a word to each other for more than two years.

During that time, however, they carried on a form of conversation through their affectionate, tail-wagging dog which divided its allegiance between its masters.

Judge Alan Walmsley described himself as "startled" by this unusual relationship.

"It appears that the dog was used, not as a means of passing on communications," he said, "but merely as an object to which remarks intended to be heard by either spouse, could be addressed."

26 Ships Could Have Been Used Out Of Port Churchill In 1951

By E. S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—At least 26 ships and 10,000,000 bushels of grain could have been handled through proper allocation of tonnage on the Hudson Bay route out of Port Churchill during the abbreviated 2½-month navigation season in 1951.

This was the opinion of Sir Clement Jones, chairman of the Commonwealth Shipping Committee, based on the "considered opinion of responsible men on the spot."

21 SHIPS SAILED

The statement was made in connection with the 11th annual report on Hudson Bay marine insurance rates, released yesterday by the committee.

The report said 21 ships carrying 7,278,000 bushels of grain moved out of Port Churchill during the 1951 season. Both the number of sailings and the cargo volume were records, established without mishap.

Sir Clement, who visited the port last October, said he believes an improved performance can be attained within the approved insurance coverage dates.

Last year's season extended from July 26 to Oct. 10.

This year, however, insurance rates remain the same, except that vessels equipped with a gyro compass will receive a reduction of 25 per cent. For extension of sailing between Oct. 10-15 rates will be increased 25 per cent.

GOOD WEATHER

In an appendix to the general report Sir Clement said the last ship sailed out of Churchill Oct. 4. Yet five days later the sky was clear, the temperature around 56 degrees and rising, with a moderate southwest breeze—perfect weather.

"I took off my jacket and was photographed in my shirt sleeves to show my family and my underwriting friends at Lloyds what the sub-Arctic climate can be on Oct. 9," he wrote. "Yet alas, no ships were loading."

Alberta Election Entries Now Become Official

EDMONTON (CP)—The entries in Alberta's election race make it official today. Nominations for the Aug. 5 election close at 2 p.m. MST.

Returning officers are expected to receive papers from 182 aspirants for the 61 seats in the Legislature, each accompanied by a $100 deposit.

The Social Credit Party, in power since 1935 and seeking its fifth straight election victory, is fielding a full slate of 61 candidates. The Liberals are expected to have 54, the C.C.F. 41 and the Progressive Conservaives 12, with another dozen running under assorted labels.

FOUR SEATS CREATED

The standing at dissolution: Social Credit, 49; Liberals, 3; C.C.F. 2; Independent Social Credit, 3. The Legislature dissolved June 28 had 57 members; the new House will have four more. A redistribution bill has given Edmonton two additional members and Calgary one, and a new rural riding—Bonnyville—has been put on the electoral map.

Among the opponents of the government headed by 43-year-old Premier Ernest Manning are five Independent Social Crediters, all but one of them former government supporters in the Legislature. They are Earl Ansley, former Minister of Education, running in Leduc; A. V. Bourcier, Lac Ste. Anne; Arthur Wray, Banff-Cochrane; H. E. Debolt, Spirit River, and A. D. Olson Wetaskiwin. Mr. Debolt is one of six regular Social Credit members of the last House who failed to win renomination. The others are not standing for re-election.

Indications are that there will be no acclamations. No candidate has been named to oppose Dr. W.W. Cross, Minister of Health, in Hand Hills, but the Liberals said they expect to have a candidate officially nominated by the time entries close.

LEADERS IN CAPITAL

All four party leaders are expected to file nomination papers in the seven-member Edmonton riding. Besides Premier Manning, the leaders are J. Harper Prowse, Liberal, the official Opposition leader in the dissolved House; Elmer E. Roper, C.C.F., and M. E. Manning, no relation of the Premier, Progressive Conservative.

The Progressive Conservative candidates are all in Edmonton and Calgary.

Two Ministers, both veterans of Social Credit's 1935 march to power under the late William Aberhart, are not seeking re-election. Nathan E. Tanner, Minister of Mines and Minerals and the architect of Alberta's oil policy, is entering private business and giving up his Cardston seat. Poor health prompted Works Minister D. B. MacMillan to forgo renomination in Lacombe.

Mayor Of City Three Years, William G. Ovens Dies On Northern Holiday

William George Ovens, a former mayor of Peterborough, died suddenly of a heart attack Tuesday while on a vacation at Little Osler Lake, near Huntsville. Mr. Ovens was on the second week of his holidays in the Lake of Bays country, and was staying at Ronneville summer resort. Mr. and Mrs. Ovens were accompanied from Peterborough by Hon. Harold R. Scott and Mrs. Scott, Dr. D. J. Graham and Mrs. Graham. The three men of the party had arranged to go fishing Tuesday morning about 9 o'clock on Little Osler Lake.

They were all set to take off from shore when Mr. Oven was stricken with coronary thrombosis, and died almost immediately.

A man of vigor and vitality, Mr. Ovens had remarked after his first week of vacation at Ronneville: "I never felt better in my life." Tuesday morning a blood clot, it was believed, reached his heart. Death came in that instant.

When the news reached Peterborough Tuesday afternoon, citizens could hardly credit the report. An unusual number of calls came to the Examiner for verification, one of the immediate reactions up to 10 p.m. Tuesday night and later of the extent and quality of his friendships and also of the esteem in which he was held.

Mr. Ovens was born in Peterborough in 1906, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Arthur Ovens of Cobourg. He was educated in Cobourg, entered the Bank of Toronto, and was transferred to the Peterborough branch as teller in 1927. He resigned from the bank in 1929 to become manager of Campbell's Dairy, at Park and Sherbrooke Sts.

Although he was wrapped up in that business, Mr. Ovens soon became identified with the community life of Peterborough. In the 1930's he was elected an alderman of the city council, but pressure of his management of the dairy forced him to retire from municipal affairs at the end of his first two-year term.

ALDERMAN 6 YEARS

Mr. Ovens was altogether six years alderman prior to his election as mayor in 1946. His first return to council was in 1940. R. S. Cotton headed the polls in that year followed by the late Fred Roy, Walter Stocker, George N. Gordon, and Mr. Ovens in fifth place, with Fred

43 Prisoners Free Hostages

BOSTON (AP)—Forty-three prisoners, led by two life-term killers, released two hostages unharmed and surrendered early today about 15 hours after rioting at Massachussetts state prison in Charlestown and barricading themselves in a shop.

Correction Commissioner Maxwell B. Grossman said no promises were given to the prisoners and added, "They'll get the maximum penalty."

The two hostages, Cornelius Horgan, 41, and John Kerrivan, prison employees, said they were swept into the three-storey building to the top floor where the prisoners set up a barricade.

They were not harmed, bound or gagged by the prisoners but were allowed to move around in the room. But they spent a weary night and always felt in danger.

The riot broke out about 1 p.m. CDT Tuesday and ended about 4:15 a.m. today.

Grossman gave special credit to Rev. Edward T. Hartigan, prison Roman Catholic Chaplain, and Warden John J. O'Brien and Deputy Warden John Blaney for "saving our officers. . .our prison industry and millions of dollars involved."

'Quake Shocks Still Continue

TEHACHAPI, Calif. (AP)—Earthquake shocks today continued for the third day in southern California. A fairly strong one came at 11:53 p.m. PST (3:53 EDT) today and lasted for about 20 seconds in this devastated community.

Town officials said this one was the strongest shock since the big one Monday morning that left 11 dead in Tehachapi and damage estimated at $2,500,000.

In the Los Angeles area this last tremor lasted about 15 seconds and was widely felt through the area. At Bakersfield the shock rattled windows but no further damage was reported.

Inspectors are making a building-by-building check of shattered Tehachapi. They are expected to condemn most of the downtown businesses and many homes as well.

Report Eva Peron Growing Weaker

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—A medical bulletin issued late last night said the condition of Eva Peron, wife of President Juan Peron, continued to weaken despite an improvement Saturday.

The complaint from which she suffers is as yet unspecified.

The first bulletin on her health was issued early this month after she had been ill for the best part of a year. She underwent an operation last November.

Four Bodies Found In Bomber

Jet, Heavy Aircraft Collide In 'Raid'; Seek Rest of Crew

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP)—R.C.A.F. ground rescue teams today reached the wreckage of a crashed Lancaster bomber and found the bodies of four of the six crew members known to have been aboard.

The team reported by radio that none of the bodies, found in the fuselage, could be identified, and it immediately struck out for the tail section, known to have crashed about a half-mile away.

HALIFAX -- (CP) — Air force authorities today released the names of the other two crew members. They were F.O. James E. Macara, whose mother lives in Toronto, and Cpl. Robert C. Smith, whose father, Ernest Smith, lives at R.R. 4, Maberly, Ont.

Reports that the two parachutes were seen to float down from the sky yesterday after the Lancaster collided 10,000 feet up with a Vampire jet fighter gave slim hope that the other two of the six crew men may have survived.

SPOT WRECKAGE OF JET

A second ground party reported by Verey signal that it had located the wreckage of the jet plane about four miles away.

It was not known immediately whether its pilot had survived, but R.C.A.F. spokesmen said yesterday that they doubted that he had.

The R.C.A.F. identified the vampire pilot today as Flt. Lt. Charles Stewart Buchanan of Oshawa, and Dorval, Que. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Buchanan, live in Oshawa. His wife is on a visit to Scotland.

U.S. Helicopter Captures Mig

EAST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A big American helicopter captured a Russian-built jet fighter plane behind enemy lines in Korea and brought it back for study like a pelican carrying a fish, it was reported yesterday.

How the MIG-15 was snatched from the ground is told in the United Aircraft Corporation's house magazine, the Bee Hive.

More than 50 fighter planes served as a cover for the helicopter The date was not disclosed.

Reconnaissance disclosed that a MIG was down deep in enemy territory to the north.

Capt. Joseph Cooper, a helicopter pilot, with Capt. Russell Winnegar as co-pilot, took off with six Korean soldiers and an Office of Strategic Information officer in the cargo space.

While the fighter plane cover hovered above, Cooper landed beside the MIG on a hillside. Then a hitch developed. The crew was unable to dismantle the MIG with the tools at hand.

The O.S.I. officer, unidentified, solved this by breaking the plane in strategic places with hand grenades. Every last piece of the MIG was loaded into the cargo space.

Find Battle Casualties Heavy In Struggle For Old Baldy

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (AP) A tragic stream of wounded Allied soldiers down a shadowed, shell-blasted valley indicates the price in the continuing battle for a strategic hill—Old Baldy.

Torn uniforms, broken equipment, bullet-punctured helmets and blood mark the muddy road.

"If they'd just get those mortars out of there, we'd be all right," said one wounded infantryman. "We lost more men this morning than we did last night taking the hill."

Old Baldy, west of Chorwon on one of the historic invasion routes to Seoul, was taken by units of the United States 45th division last month. The Chinese Reds last Thursday night began determined attacks to regain it.

In the see-saw battle that followed, the crest traded hands several times, the Chinese storming to the top Tuesday only seven hours after Allied troops captured it behind a massive artillery barrage.

ALLEY OF DEATH

The valley leading to the southeast slope of the hill is the last stop for ammunition and supplies and the first stop for the wounded. Communist shells burst throughout the length of the valley, a target second only to Old Baldy itself.

Often the Communist shellfire is so heavy the stream of wounded is halted for hours.

When the firing lets up, litter jeeps and armored personnel carriers bounce and careen along the narrow road. To go slow is to court death.

A front-line officer said estimates of Chinese casualties now total 1,300 but the Reds keep coming in disregard for human life.

"They want it," said one officer. "They want it bad."

EARTHQUAKE WRECKS CALIFORNIA TOWN—A policeman walks past a wrecked auto and crumbled stores on the main street of Tehachapi, Calif., after the town was hit by one of the severest earthquakes in California history. At least 11 persons were reported killed by the quake and tremors have been classified as the strongest since 1933.

Seize Cairo In Military Coup

CAIRO (CP)—Egyptian Gen. Mohammed Naguib took control of Cairo in a military coup today and Premier Ahmed Naguib Hilaly Pasha resigned. Gen. Naguib broadcast that the army was "in full control of the situation" in Cairo, 9½ hours after the coup. He proclaimed himself army commander-in-chief and pledged a drive against political corruption. At Neguib's orders, officers arrested 12 generals known to be followers of Gen. Mohammed Haidar Pasha, from whom Naguib wrested the army control. At Alexandria the chief of the royal Cabinet, Afifi Pasha, told reporters King Farouk accepted Hilaly's resignation and asked Aly Maher Pasha to form a new Cabinet.

Troops with machine-guns moved into the heart of Cairo. Tanks and business buildings, government structures and the Abdin royal palace as Naguid, whose appointment as war minister was vetoed by Farouk last week, announced he was taking command of the army.

A member of Naguib's staff said: "All army officers who declared themselves partisans of the old regime (Haidar's) have been arrested; those who pledged loyalty to Naguib were given positions of action."

The informant said only Maj. Gen. Hussein Parid Pasha, Haidar's chief of staff, resisted arrest.

Qavam Seized By Police On Orders Of Mossadegh

TEHRAN (Reuters)—Security officers today pounced on Ahmed Qavam, arresting the former Premier whose four-day regime ended in bloody street fighting Monday. On orders of Mohammed Mossadegh who returned in triumph Tuesday to head Iran's government, Qavam was taken into custody at the home of a friend at Gom, 50 miles south of Tehran.

Instructions to "get Qavam" went out soon after Mossadegh had been reappointed by Shah Reza Pahlevi.

Qavam, who tried unsuccessfully to take over the Premiership Mossadegh had held for 15 months, is believed to have fled from Tehran Monday night when a threatening crowd tried to set fire to his residence here.

Mossadegh's National-Front supporters blame Qavam for Monday's bloodshed, when at least 30 persons were killed in demonstrations clamoring for Mossadegh's return.

Tuesday 30 National Front members of the Majlis—House of Representatives—signed a bill asking for confiscation of the wealthy Qavam's property to relieve distress among families of Monday's riot victims.

Tehran remained in festive mood, the victory of pro-Mossadegh forces enhanced by Tuesday's decision of the International Court at The Hague that it lacked competence to deal with Iran's oil dispute with Britain.

Have Acute Shortage Of Wheat For Shipping

MONTREAL (CP)—Shipping sources said today an acute shortage of grain—particularly wheat—exists here for shipping.

More than 80 ships lined the docks, with at least 25 waiting arrival here of grain from Western Canada.

"There just isn't any wheat here," one official said.

The shortage was blamed on the fact that most ships arriving from Great Lakes grain-loading centres are carrying barley instead of wheat. Also to blame, they said, was the almost obsolete equipment used to unload grain from railway cars.

Police Foil Robbery One Shot, 2 Wounded

QUEBEC (CP)—One man was shot and two others were captured early today in a gun-fight with police at nearby St. Catherine de Portneuf during an attempted robbery of a store safe. A fourth man escaped by automobile.

Provincial Police identified the wounded man as Aime Caron, 26. He was taken to hospital. The two others were Yvon Roy, 28, and Xavier Landry, 24.

Police said Caron was in critical condition.

Indicating they had been tipped off in advance of the robbery, police spent nightly vigils at the store since last week-end.

Machine-Gun French Diners

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuters)—A raiding party of Communist rebels sneaked into the dining room of a French army rest centre at Cape St. Jacques Monday and sprayed their tommy guns over the women, children and soldiers at tables, the French army announced today.

The raiders killed 21 and wounded 23.

As the panic-stricken diners stampeded for the exits the raiders disappeared as swiftly as they came.

Among the dead were seven children. Four of them belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Jean Perin, who were vacationing at the resort. Perin is vice-president of Air Viet Nam Airline.

Gen. Raoul Salan, French commander in Indo-China, and Gen. Paul Bondis, French commander of south Viet Nam forces, flew today to Cape St. Jacques—40 miles southeast of here—to investigate.

Seventeen Frenchmen and four Viet Namese were killed. French victims included three officers, five non-commissioned officers, the seven children and two women.

Orange Moose Not Bad Dream

TORONTO (CP)—If you should see a red, blue, green, purple or even an orange moose in Northern Ontario, don't worry.

It's part of an attempt by the Lands and Forests Department to trace the roving habits of moose. Observers place small cans of paint with a tip attachment along known trails and spray the moose as they pass by. From then on, the sprayed moose are marked animals and can be recognized in their movements from one territory to another.

When the animal sheds his hair in the fall, part of its colorful character will be lost. In the meantime, the woods are full of moose with multi-colored posteriors.

Sees Flying Saucers Over Lake Ontario

WATERTOWN, N. Y. (AP)—A Civil Aeronautics Administration operations specialist said he saw "flying saucers" last night over eastern Lake Ontario.

Howard A. Scott said the objects were travelling fairly low at about 100 to 150 miles an hour. He said they were luminous and resembled stars. Scott is stationed at Watertown municipal airport.

Rags, Metal Waste Found In Engines As Plane Crippled

HALIFAX (CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police continued their investigation today into the attempted sabotage of nine Lancaster bombers used for long-range search and rescue work at Greenwood, N.S., air base. Air force officials announced Tuesday night that rags and metal waste were found in the engines of the aircraft last week, after a Lancaster was forced to return to base with one engine dead. Mechanics found eight other bombers similarly fouled. Some were slated to participate in "Operation Signpost," a large-scale exercise with Canadian and United States bombers and fighters.

It was the first case of sabotage in the R.C.A.F. since the war. There have been several cases of suspected sabotage in the Royal Canadian Navy, most notable of which was the 1951 incident aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent when brass filings and sand were found in the warship's engines. Results of an investigation were not announced.

NO INFORMATION

R.C.M.P. declined to give any information on the incident, claiming publicity would hinder progress at this time. An official R.C.A.F. statement made no mention of sabotage.

But unofficial sources said it appeared to be nothing less than a deliberate attempt to put the aircraft out of commission while airborne.

The rags and metal placed in the air intake would have been sucked into the carburetors, crippling both inboard motors of the four-engine plane. It would also have made useless the auxiliary equipment which powers the landing gear.

THOROUGH INVESTIGATION

Following is the official R.C.A.F. statement:

"Maritime group headquarters in Halifax today announced a Lancaster encountered engine trouble in the air and reports it was forced to return to its Annapolis Valley base shortly after taking off on a routine flight July 18.

"A check into the cause of the engine failure led to the finding of pieces of metal and rags in the engine. An immediate check of all aircraft at Greenwood unearthed pieces of rag and metal in engine air intakes of eight more Lancasters. R.C.M.P. officials are conducting a thorough investigation into the cause of the incident."

Fear 7 Men Lost In North

WINNIPEG (CP)—Manitoba's treacherous northland may have claimed the lives of seven men, missing since noon Monday on a provincial government aircraft.

Wreckage of a float-equipped Norseman plane found Tuesday in isolated swampland near Norway House, 275 miles northeast of Winnipeg, was identified by Manitoba Air Services officials as the missing aircraft.

Observers in Air Service search planes probing dense fog and rain reported no sign of life. Torn shreds of the single-engined plane were strewn over more than a mile.

The Norseman was flying to Norway House from its base at Lac du Bonnet 55 miles northeast of Winnipeg. It was last heard from when the pilot, 34-year-old Russel C. Percy of Lac du Bonnet, radioed the base.

Passengers, all provincial civil servants, were identified as John G. Horseburgh, Arthur G. Hanson, Robert H. Frederickson, M.T. Madden, Allan W. McLellan and Frank East. All were from Winnipeg.

Ottawa Plans To Offer Korean Veterans More

OTTAWA (CP) — The Cabinet may act shortly to try to make it more financially attractive for Korean veterans to remain in the army.

Thousands of them now are on 60-day leaves and presumably deciding whether to join the regular force or not.

Cabinet is expected to authorize immediate payment of veterans' gratuities to the men back from Korea whether they remain in the army or take their discharge.

As it is now, the gratuity goes only to those taking a discharge. It consists of a basic award of 50 cents a day for each paid day's service in the war theatre plus a supplement of one week's pay and allowance for each six months service.

A corporal with a year's service in Korea would get roughly $280.

Largest U.S. Shell Factory Shut Down By Steel Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—A shutdown of the United States army's largest shell-making factory emphasized today the developing crisis in defence production resulting from the steel strike, now in its eighth week.

Army Secretary Frank Pace announced Tuesday that a shortage of steel has forced the closing of the Chevrolet plant in St. Louis, which makes about one-half the army's 105-millimetre artillery shell casings.

Pace said the shutdown will "seriously affect the production of finished shells by next month. It will continue to affect the production for several months thereafter."

The plant, employing 2,600 workers, is operated by the Chevrolet division of General Motors.

Already, the strike over wage boosts and a compulsory union shop demanded by the 650,000 members of the United Steelworkers' Union (C.I.O.) had curtailed production of aircraft and automotive parts vital to the defence program.

The trade magazine Iron Age estimated total unemployment resulting from the steel strike at nearly 2,000,000 and total loss to the U.S. economy at $4,000,000,000. It said steel production losses will total 17,000,000 tons by the end of this week.

With no end to the dispute in sight, Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman continued telephone conversations with union and industry spokesmen.

Meanwhile, a government-named committee of five steel executives proposed a formula for getting industrial production under way when the strike ends. Priority will be given defence orders.

Ontario Hears Good News, Will Be Cooler

TORONTO (CP)—Good news for southern Ontario residents weltering in a two-week heat wave—it's going to be cooler.

The weather man revised a prediction which gave Toronto a 95-degree high and Windsor 98. Southern Ontario temperatures today will be about 10 degrees cooler than forecast because of cold air sweeping across the Great Lakes.

This will edge into southwestern Ontario this afternoon, breaking the heat spell.

"By midnight tonight," said the prediction, "all forecast regions should be enjoying this cool, fresh air."

Toronto had a 15-minute shower this morning.

The weather bureau said the cooler temperatures will hold throughout the province until at least Thursday midnight. Thursday generally will be sunny and cooler.

SWEPT OFF PIER

At Leamington one youth was drowned another seriously injured and thousands of dollars in property damage was the toll of a storm that lashed the South Essex shoreline of Lake Erie last night.

Dead is William Fox, 18, who was drowned after he was swept from the government pier at Leamington by a giant wave. In hospital with undetermined internal injuries is Charles Banyai, battered against wooden piling by the same wave that swept Fox to his death.

The freak storm in which waves five to 10 feet high lashed the shoreline around Leamington materialized last night in a matter of minutes and was confined to this area.

The dock tragedy resulted from an efort to salvage an automobile left stranded at the end of the pier. Fox and Banyai were trying to fasten a cable to a bumper.

Leonard Howard of Detroit who was assisting Fox and Banyai was knocked down by the wave but managed to hold onto a dock piling until a rope was thrown to him. He scrambled back along the dock.

Wooden breakwaters along a four mile front were battered by the waves. Dozens of summer cottages suffered water damage.

Quell Mutiny On Red Vessel

NAPLES (AP)—The Italian news agency Informazione said yesterday a mutiny aboard a Russian freighter was quelled when the Red skipper ordered the rioters cut down with machine-gun fire.

The agency said the mutiny—aboard the Soverg Flot—occurred while the ship was en route from Piraeus to Naples. It said the captain ordered the mutineers gunned and their bodies thrown overboard. It did not say how many were slain.

The ship did not dock at Naples. The report said it now is en route to Genoa.

McLaughlin Donating Library For Oshawa

OSHAWA (CP)—The city of Oshawa, which rejected a proposal three years ago to borrow money for a new library, learned yesterday it will receive one as a gift from Col. R. S. McLaughlin, retired industrialist.

The new building, to cost some $400,000, will be located opposite Oshawa's new city hall.

"I feel sure the bylaw was defeated, not because the need was not recognized, but rather because of the simultaneous pressures for many civic improvements," Col. McLaughlin said in announcing the gift.

Have To Curtail Trip To Arctic

OTTAWA (CP)—Dogged by hard luck, the Canadian steamship C. D. Howe likely will curtail her annual trip to Canada's far northern outposts.

The vessel, put into service two years ago, set out from Montreal June 27 with a cargo of mail, government officials and supplies ranging from drugs to oil and lumber. Her patrol is the main link between the eastern Arctic and civilization.

But she's back in Montreal, a victim of pack ice and a labor strike.

Transport Department officials don't know when the C.D. Howe will get under way again. Until they do, they aren't saying which of the 26 scheduled stops will be dropped.

Only the briefest stop-overs had been planned for many of the ports of call on the proposed 12,000-mile route, and the Howe already is nearly a month late.

One Transport Department spokesman said this means "considerable hardship" for an undetermined number of settlements.

The vessel ran into trouble early this month while steaming through pack ice off Labrador. A forepeak plate was found to be leaking and she turned back to Quebec.

RUBBLE FILLS the sidewalks and spreads into the streets at this main intersection in Tehachapi, California, after a recent severe earthquake which killed 11 people and injured a score or more. A farming community on the edge of the Mojave Desert, Tehachapi caught the full fury of the bucking, rumbling upheaval. Nearly every building in the three-block business section was badly damaged.

F-M Ban Likely End August 19

REGINA (CP)—Canada may be declared free of foot-and-mouth disease Aug. 19, Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced in a statement released here yesterday.

He said animals now may be brought onto individual quarantined premises for the purpose of re-stocking under permit. The animals would be kept under observations by federal veterinarians until Aug. 19.

Then, "in the absence of any indication of disease either among such animals or elsewhere in the controlled areas, all controls and restrictions, including the operation of disinfection stations on highways leading from controlled areas, will be discontinued and Canada will be declared free of foot-and-mouth disease."

Industrials And Oils Show Cautious Gains

TORONTO (CP)—Industrials and western oils joined today in early afternoon stock market dealings as cautious buying boosted selected issues. Golds, however, remained weak while base metals drifted.

Sporadic bursts of trading produced few market features. Volume for the first three hours was 878,000 shares.

Banks and miscellaneous issues led industrials' advance with a scattered list of fractional gains. Papers, constructions, refining oils and miscellaneous issues also drew firm support but agricultures slipped.

Western oil gains ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Britalta, Calvan Consolidated, Jupiter, Pacific Petroleum, Sweet Grass and Western Homestead pushed upward.

Base metals were mixed. Cassier Labrador, Noranda and United Keno Hill strengthened while International Nickel, Sherritt-Gordon and Steep Rock weakened.

Senior golds sagged as Dome, Giant Yellowknife, McIntyre and Wright-Hargreaves slipped. Secondary issues were mixed.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indices showed industrials up .93 at 320.51 golds down .58 at 93.17, base metals up .22 at 192.27 and western oils up .93 at 138.30.

Sure Stevenson Nominated

CHICAGO (CP)—Democrats today approached their moment of decision—a decision that seemed certain to bring forth the reluctant Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois as candidate for the presidency in the November election. The time has been approached through tortuous oratory and backstage fighting between the North and South over the touchy racial problem. Southern delegates argued far into this morning before the credentials and rules committees over the resolution—adopted by voice vote 24 hours earlier on the convention floor—binding all delegates to support whatever candidate the convention selects.

They labored to insert a provision which would permit them to sign the pledge without binding themselves.

THROWN FOR LOSS

Northerners were thrown for a loss Tuesday night in a compromise—reportedly affected through White House influence—under which Dixie delegations unwilling to sign their loyalty could still participate fully on the convention.

They lost more ground when credentials committee voted 36 to 13 to seat a Texas delegation and 33 to 17 to seat a Mississippi group which carried anti-Truman labels.

The Northern coalition lost the ball on downs when convention platform drafters came up with a compromise version of a civil-rights plank—not yet spelled out publicly.

They could regain the initiative only by a floor fight today which looked unpromising.

GAME OF BLUFF

Upshot of the back-stage manoeuvering seemed to indicate hard-headed party wheelhorses had won a gigantic game of bluff, involving an effort by a Northern coalition of the party's bright and mostly young men to force through an all-out "Fair-Deal" candidate and platform. They included Senators Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Blair Moody of Michigan and Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, W. Averell Harriman and Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr, of New York and Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan.

They bluffed that they were willing to have Southern delegations take a walk to get what they call a "Liberal" candidate and platform.

But the only way the Democrats can win is to keep the South.

If party veterans have their way, the ticket might read:

Stevenson for president; Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia for vice-president.

But if Russell proves reluctant, to become a second-place runner, either Senator John Sparkman of Alabama or Senator William Fulbright of Arkansas might be substituted for him.

POSSIBLE SUBSTITUTE

Strangely enough, the victory seemed to have been accomplished through the indirect intervention of President Truman—who has been calling for allout endorsement of his "Fair-Deal" program and a strong civil-rights plank.

Moody told a reporter that as a result of a telephone call from Charles Murphy, the president's legal counsel, he had agreed to add a proviso to the loyalty rule adopted Tuesday. This rule provided delegation chairmen must certify that their members would work toward getting convention nominees on the November ballots in their states.

To this Moody added the provision that no delegate would be forced to sign the pledge if it ran against his state's laws or party organization rules.

National Chairman Frank McKinney told a reporter he thinks the compromise will avoid a floor fight.

Evidence built up that Truman had decided to favor Vice-President Alben Barkley, who withdrew from the race after Labor leaders told him he was too old at 74.

Barkley, who lashed out at these same leaders, gets a chance to tell the convention Tuesday night how it ought to set about winning the November election.

President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers blasted his fellow Labor leaders for forcing Barkley out of the race, accusing them of engaging in "small-time political intrigue."

Latest Associated Press tabulation of delegates showed:

Kefauver 262; Russell 164½; Stevenson 148; Harriman 104; Others 261½; Uncommitted 290.

Needed to nominate: 615½.

Delegates gave their biggest ovation Tuesday night to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who quoted an undelivered address of her late husband in an appeal for the party to work for peace.

The address was prepared for a dinner in Washington April 13, 1945, but President Roosevelt died before it was delivered.

"Peace, like freedom, is elusive—hard to come by, harder to keep," his widow said.

The Lancaster came from the R.C.A.F. base at Greenwood, N.S., where rags and metal waste were found last week in the engines of nine other Lancasters. However, there was no indication that suspected sabotage might have been involved in yesterday's crash.

R.C.A.F. spokesmen gave this version from eye-witnesses of the mid-air collision:

A flight of Lancasters was "bombing" a mythical target in the Bagotville area as part of joint Canada-United States defence exercises. A flight of Vampires was defending the area, "shooting" the bombers with camera guns to record the effectiveness of their defence.

The Vampire had just completed a pass at one of the bombers and was pulling away when it sliced into the Lancaster and sheared off its tail section.

The R.C.A.F. air base here said radio communications from the crash scene were poor.

Three rescue teams now were in the vicinity—one which went in from a nearby highway, another which landed on a nearby lake in a Norseman aircraft and a third which was parachuted into the area.

The ground searchers, numbering 17, were operating in rough, hilly and heavily-wooded country.

The R.C.A.F. sent up aerial searchers this morning to see if they could spot any survivors.

Food, flares and other supplies were dropped by air last evening to the ground parties.

SLICED OFF WING

The tail section of the Lancaster was sheared off in the collision, which also sliced off one wing of the Vampire. This indicated the two collided wing to tail. Both aircraft were seen to spiral eastward into clouds at 10,000 feet after the crash.

Reports from air crews over the crash areas indicate the Lancaster tail section was intact a short distance from the main fuselage, which was approximately one mile northeast of Lac Marchand, about 30 miles south of here.

The wreckage of the Vampire was about three miles south of the lake.

The air force said it was trying to confirm the report of a game warden that he had seen two parachutes come down shortly after the crash.

Para-rescue nurse FO. M.I. Thomson, North Bay, and para-rescue Sgt. T.W.L. Dawson, Ottawa parachuted into the hilly bush country equipped with radio.

Identified were:

Captain—FO. Robert Alexander Gray, London, Ont., whose wife lives at Greenwood, N.S.

Co-pilot—FO. Alfred Marrier, whose father lives at St. Leonard D'Aston, Que.

Navigator—FO. Edward C. Hutt, whose mother lives at Bangor, Me.

Radio operator—FO. Richard H.D. Noble, Gravenhurst, Ont., whose wife lives at Middleton, N.S.

Before Naguib started the coup at 2 a.m., he received assurances from both the British and United States embassies that "there would be no interference from their side," the staff man said.

Mustafa Bey Sadek, paternal uncle of Queen Narriman, flew to the summer capital of Alexandria in a military plane to give King Farouk a complete report. He returned to Cairo later to confer with Naguib.

Hilaly's resignation followed reports that Naguib had imposed demands for reforms on the government leader.

DEMANDED PURGE

No details of the ultimatum were disclosed but Naguib had called earlier for a shakeup of the army command and a purge of corrupt elements in government.

Machine-gun posts were set up at street corners and steel-helmeted troops occupied broadcasting stations and key public buildings.

Passengers arriving at Bairut, Lebanon, reported there had been some clashes between Naguib's men and troops loyal to Farouk.

In a broadcast Naguib told the country the army has no designs of its own, but will work in the interests of Egypt. He said the army and police will be responsible for law and order.

He demanded a shake-up in the army high command and a purge in the political life of the country, which has had five governments in as many months.

The latest of these, headed by an emergency cabinet meeting today in the summer capital of Alexandria, 130 miles from Cairo. It was understood Farouk was in residence there.

Naguib, a bitter critic of corruption in high places, held office as war minister in the short-lived regime of Sirry Pasha, which preceded that of Hilaly. Farouk is known to have opposed his appointment.

Restiveness in the army has grown since a scandal involving the supply of defective arms during the Egyptian campaign in Palestine. Some top military and political officials were involved.

Naguib in his broadcast warned the people against violence and assured foreigners of their safety.

Mayor Of City

T. Tuggey in the sixth position, but outside the elected group.

In 1945 he was chairman of the board of works. On the retirement of James Hamilton from the mayor's position, Aldermen Ovens and Herb Bradburn accepted nominations in a spirited and exceedingly close contest.

Nine votes separated their totals when the ballots were officially counted on the night of the election. The result of the polling was: Ovens 3176 and Bradburn 3167. That was for 1946. Acclamations retained Mr. Ovens in office as presiding officer of the council in 1947 and 1948. He then voluntarily vacated the chair and retired from municipal life, succeded by Maxwell J. Swanston who had also been alderman under the long tutelage of Mayor Hamilton. Mr. Ovens entertained the council of 1949 at his home one afternoon in a gracious parting from his associates of the elective civic administration.

Some of the candidates who were elected to the council during Mr. Ovens' aldermanic experience were the late Fred L. Roy, Walter Stocker, George N. Gordon. Others were John E. Sullivan, Floyd Curtis, Robert S. Cotton.

ON MILK BOARD

As a member of the city council Mr. Ovens was one of the first governors of Peterborough Civic Hospital. He expanded his interests and enlarged his responsibilities here and elsewhere. Mr. Ovens was for some years a member of the Ontario Milk Board, and more recently president and director of the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association. He was recognized as an authority on milk production costs, and was highly placed in dairy industry affairs in the province. He was a past president of the Kiwanis Club, and in the congregational affairs of Trinity United Church he was a member of its official board and chairman of the music committee. He was also on the committee in charge of building the new Sunday School, and besides taught Sunday School for several years.

Mr. Ovens was prominent in the councils of the Conservative Association of Peterborough constituency, latterly as its president, and was a member of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

When local causes sought support and promotion, Mr. Ovens usually responded to solicitation of his aid. When the Peterborough Baseball Club required executive background this season, he became associated with Max Swanston, Cy Whatley, Dr. Ralph Clark, Claire Collins and Dr. E. E. McKee.

Three recent wins in a row was one of their rewards, and public interest in the prospects of the team for the rest of the season has been stimulated by the understanding between the team and the committee and their hearty co-operation.

That engagement was typical of the readiness of Mr. Ovens to lend an energetic hand to Peterborough activities, especially when the going wasn't easy. He was a member of Corinthian Lodge A.F. & A.M.

Mr. Ovens leaves his wife, the former Elizabeth Alda Bartlett, two daughters, Jane and Catherine, his parents, in Cobourg; also four sisters, Mrs. J. T. Priest, of Stratford; Mrs. Hubert Cooey, Mrs. W. Houston and Mrs. E. Abraham, of Cobourg; and one brother, Thomas John Ovens, also of Cobourg. A second brother, Stewart, died three years ago.

The funeral will take place Friday from the Comstock funeral home to Trinity United Church at 2.30 p.m., where the service will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Bruce Gordon, assisted by the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan, of Murray St. Baptist Church. Burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Mr. Ovens' life in Peterborough was a notable success. Measured in its friendships he will be long remembered by a great many citizens who had seen his sincerity of purpose and genuineness of sentiment. He was widely known in provincial dairy circles up to the Cabinet of the Ontario government whose recognition of his experience and ability was attested in his appointment to the onerous post as a member of the Milk Control Board.

He brought good judgment, energy and diligence to his various undertakings, and above all a fine sense of humor and goodwill. His sympathies were broadly inclusive, and he had an open mind often manifested in civic and community decisions he supported.

WORKED HARD

James Hamilton, former mayor, said today: "In all probability the death of Mr. Ovens could be traced to the efforts he put forth in the welfare of Peterborough as additional to his work in promoting the business of which he was general manager. Perhaps he expended too much of his strength. I found him conscientious in his civic positions, and in my opinion he performed without fear or favor the duties he undertook. In his public work he was greatly concerned about the progress of Peterborough, right up to the end. It is not so long ago that he was talking to me about city affairs with the enthusiasm he showed in the council. His death is a great loss to the city, and we all extend our sympathy to his family."

"I don't know when I was so shocked as last night at the radio news of Bill Ovens' death," Max Swanston commented to the Examiner. "My impression some time ago was that he had visibly aged somewhat during his three years as Mayor. His friends knew that he was at that time engaged in various responsibilities, including the Milk Control Board. All that detail and worry is bound to take their toll. Peterborough owes his memory a great deal for his constructive efforts and his friendly disposition.

"We shall greatly miss him, and we can imagine the loss his family suffers by his untimely death. Bill Ovens should have had many other years of active life, and there is no saying how much further he would have gone."

Eddie Butler of Ashburnham, president of the Peterborough Milk Producers' Association, said: "I feel sure that all our members and farmers generally will greatly regret the death of Mr. Ovens. Mr. Vivian Milburn and myself had many interviews with Mr. Ovens as manager of Campbell's Dairy.

"My tribute is that our relations with him were always friendly in our dealings through a long span of years. Of course, we had our arguments about the dairy business in this area, but we also had a friendly and harmonious relationship. Our members, and especially our shippers to Campbell's Dairy, would like me, I know, to offer our condolence as an association to Mrs. Ovens and family."

Break Down '52 Tax Estimates

COBOURG (ENS)—Breakdown of the 1952 estimates on which the 12½ mill Northumberland and Durham Counties tax rate is based, which is one mill higher than last year, is as follows:

General government, executive and legislative, $11,000; administrative, $40,910; law enforcement, jail, family court, etc., $45,250; roads, $160,000; public welfare, $145,048; grants, registry offices, provision for two years' deficit, $37,150.

The finance committee approved payment of the following accounts incurred between sessions — administration of justice, $4,813.22; hospitalization, $15,487.20; county roads, $92,515.61; Trenton suburban, $3,286.35; child welfare, $12,523.87; registry offices, $893.79; jail, $6,572.71; municipal government, $35,070.15; counties home, $12,451.15.

In connection with the complaint that the Durham High School Area Board was levying on the new business assessment instead of the old assessment of Newcastle, the equalization committee recommended that the Newcastle council, counties assessor and school board meet to see what can be done to make a more equitable levy, the feeling being that until the two counties had their reassessment completed, it was not fair to levy on the new assessment in any individual municipality.

The matter of taxation of church parsonages was referred to the legislative and bylaw committee by the equalization committee. This is to see if such properties can be made exempt.

The agriculture committee endorsed a resolution that steps be taken to clean up tent caterpillar infestation and Black Knot. Weed inspectors are to interview farmers to learn if they are agreeable to pay 25 per cent of the cost of eradication of barberry and buckthorn by the Department of Agriculture.

The finance committee approved the following hospital grants: Bowmanville (building grant), $3,000; Campbellford, (building grant), $3,000; Port Perry (building grant), $2,000; maintenance grants, Bowmanville, $1,900; Trenton Memorial, $1,500; Port Hope, $1,674; Cobourg, $1,674, and recommended that 50 cents a day be deducted by the hospital off each hospital account of persons in Peterborough Civic Hospital from the United Counties, as of July 18. The counties pay a portion of the per diem cost of counties patients in Peterborough Civic Hospital.

Strange Treadmill

CONVENTION ROUGH STUFF—Police restrain unidentified fighters at a caucus of Kefauver-pledged delegates from California in Chicago's Palmer House Hotel. The Holdridge supporters said they came to protest the seating of the Kefauver delegation at the Democratic convention.

Tractor-Trailer Moves Couple To New Home

COBOURG (ENS).—An English farm tractor, hauling a modern trailer, left Cobourg Monday afternoon en route to Muskoka. Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Pocock are the travellers in this rather unusual combination.

Mr. Pocock sits up front on the tractor and his wife rides in the trailer. They dont travel rapidly and when it is very hot, as in the past few days, it is not very cool perched on the seat of the exposed tractor. When it rains, it is the opposite extreme.

However, there is method in their apparent madness. The couple, who are in their early fifties, sold their farm in England in order to break new sod in new land and on arriving from the Old Country headed westward in their farm tractor and trailer which came over by boat. When they get to Muskoka theyll use the tractor to till the soil and live in the trailer until they build their permanent home.

Blind Gardeners

Mayor Doubts Value Of Pier Hydro Plugs

COBOURG— (ENS)— Suggestion that installation of electrical outlets at the T-pier would be convenient for powercraft which tie up at the harbor during storms or at nightfall, was investigated by Mayor Jack Burnet.

"I looked into the suggestion because if we can make more pleasant the stay of any power boat owner in Cobourg, we would be glad to do it. However I was in conversation with a number aboard the various craft which visited our port over the weekend and they felt that very few craft would be able to use 110 volt outlets," said the Mayor.

Deadlocked Delegates Meet For 7 Minutes

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Deadlocked armistice negotiators today debated the prisoner-exchange issue in secret for only seven minutes. A Communist broadcast presented a gloomy picture of chances for early settlement.

Another closed-door session is scheduled for tomorrow.

Red China's Peiping radio said "provocations by the American side outside the Panmunjom conference tent have thrown an ominous shadow over world policy."

The Communist broadcast said the "adventurist policy" of military pressure by American generals shows they have no sincere desire for an early peace in Korea.

Failed To Pay U.I.C., Fined $58

Derek J. House, 351 Gilmour St., was convicted in police court today of failing to pay $58.48 to the Unemployment Insurance Commission which he had deducted from employees' wages between June and December 1951.

He was fined $25 and $21.75 costs or three months and ordered to also pay the $58.48 to the commission, by Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

He was given a week to pay the entire amount.

A plea of guilty was taken, when House explained he had not paid the amount within three days of February 2, 1952 as demanded by the commission.

House said he went bankrupt last fall and was unable to pay the entire amount but had agreed to pay it in $10 instalments.

This was unacceptable to the commission because it would have "been compounding the felony," to permit this practice, said W. B. Gordon who prosecuted for the commission.

Magistrate Baxter told House he should appreciate that the money in question belonged to employees as they had earned it in wages. It was he said deducted as required by the Unemployment Insurance Commission and was in the nature of trust money to be paid to the commission.

Drug Rumor Untrue, Investigations Show

COBOURG (ENS) — A rumor which went around the town yesterday that two Grafton girls had been found under the influence of heroin, and that an R.C.M.P. narcotic squad from Toronto was investigating, was discovered to be without any foundation.

Enquiry at Toronto revealed that no R.C.M.P. narcotic investigators were in this area. Provincial police knew nothing of it. Possible source of the wild story may lie in the fact that provincial police of the C.I.B. Toronto, have been investigating the case of an alleged concealed birth near Grafton, which may have provided the locale of the rumor.

On Saturday night a young woman fainted in the park and she was taken to the hospital where it was found that she had suffered a re-action from a penicillin shot, nothing to do with heroin.

Kitchener Gets Polio Centre

KITCHENER (CP)—The Kitchener-Waterloo hospital commission yesterday accepted a proposal of the Ontario Department of Health which will likely result in establishment of a polio treatment centre here.

The centre, expected to be in operation by the summer of 1952, will serve a large area of western Ontario. Other centres in this region are located at Hamilton, and London, Ont.

The plan as advanced by the department, calls for suitable isolation facilities at the Kitchener-Waterloo hospital and the setting up of a polio committee from the hospital's medical staff to direct treatment of cases.

Can Sorokin Reform The Doukhobors?

It is sometimes said that the Doukhobors have been a problem in this country ever since they came here, but this is neither true nor just. It is true to say that an extreme group of Doukhobors have been a nuisance from time to time. It has been suggested that they should move elsewhere, but we disagree with this solution to the problem they create; Canada accepted the Doukhobors, and if we cannot solve their relatively simple problems, we are not much of a democracy. However, the extreme Doukhobors, called The Sons of Freedom, have recently acquired a new leader, Stefan Sorokin, who has been exploring the possibility of moving his people to South America; but in South America he finds a widespread surprise that anybody should wish to leave Canada, and so he has returned to tell his people that they must mend their ways, and make themselves acceptable to their fellow-citizens. He intends to see that they do so.

* * *

We hope he can do it, and we think he can. Sorokin is not himself a member of the colony by birth; he appears, so far as we can discover, to be an intelligent and clever adventurer who has persuaded the Sons of Freedom to accept him as a God-appointed leader. He has shown a willingness in that capacity to discuss Doukhobor problems intelligently with British Columbia officials; in talking to them he adopts a tone very different from the paternal manner in which he addresses his own people. He seems prepared to lead the Doukhobors in return for the usual perquisites of such a leader—a reasonable supply of money, comfort and honour.

* * *

Sorokin may be the answer to the Doukhobor problem. The Sons of Freedom are a fanatical and ignorant group, but they are ready to do what Sorokin tells them. He, a shrewd and apparently urbane man, is ready to tell them to mend their ways. He knows how to talk to both Doukhobors and British Columbians, and he may bring about a solution which has been sought for fifty years.

About Being Quoted

For each quarter of the year we receive a report from a bureau which shows how many times the 95 most important papers in Canada have been quoted in print. We are proud of our standing in the list, and reproduce here the names of the first twenty papers, with their record of quotation:

| | |
|---|---|
| 1. Windsor, Ont. Star | 1043 |
| 2. Ottawa, Ont., Journal | 933 |
| 3. Toronto, Ont. Financial Post | 677 |
| 4. St. Thomas, Ont. Times-Journal | 589 |
| 5. Ottawa, Ont. Citizen | 588 |
| 6. Hamilton, Ont. Spectator | 493 |
| 7. Peterborough, Ont. Examiner | 489 |
| 8. Edmonton, Alta. Journal | 478 |
| 9. Toronto, Ont. Globe & Mail | 440 |
| 10. London, Ont. Free Press | 412 |
| 11. Fort William, Ont. Times-Journal | 402 |
| 12. Toronto, Ont. Star | 393 |
| 13. Kingston, Ont. Whig-Standard | 372 |
| 14. Montreal, Que. Gazette | 365 |
| 15. Montreal, Que. Star | 359 |
| 16. Kitchener-Waterloo, Ont. Record | 354 |
| 17. Toronto, Ont. Telegram | 353 |
| 18. St. Catharines, Ont. Standard | 343 |
| 19. Brantford, Ont. Expositor | 330 |
| 20. Port Arthur, Ont. News-Chronicle | 329 |

It is pleasant to be quoted often, but there are qualifications; the bulk of the quotations from any newspaper are from its short paragraphs—such as our "Notes and Comment"; extended quotations of opinions expressed on matters of importance are more gratifying, and we are happy to say that we have a good record in this respect also. We do not proffer this information because of vanity, but because every time this newspaper is quoted in a contemporary, the name of Peterborough is brought to the eyes of countless readers, and is made more familiar to Canadians everywhere. The Examiner is the city's most active and untiring publicity agent.

The Party System's Great Virtue

Consideration of the results of the Quebec election shows that although the Liberals have won only fifteen seats there, they polled about 46 per cent of the total vote. We have not the final figures at hand as we write, but they do not matter to what we have to say. The election results give the Duplessis government many more seats than they are strictly entitled to have, on a basis of representation; but these same results give Quebec a coherent and powerful government, and that is in itself a virtue.

British Columbia has recently had a taste of the complexity and indecision which goes with attempts to achieve strictly accurate representation, and the new government there will be lucky indeed if it can do any good work under the circumstances. A straight party system works great injustice in some cases, but it allows the winning government to get on with the job.

If a government so elected proves incompetent or corrupt, the voters can always turn it out next time. But what happens more often is that the government which comes to power in a straight party election, with one vote and no second choices on each ballot, is a government of some merit, and the power which it holds in the legislature gives it a chance to show whatever quality it may have.

The simpler voting system is clumsy and arbitrary, but it works well in practice. Politics is very much more a matter of practical achievement than of theory.

The Passion For Completeness

In no previous age has mankind shown such a passion for completeness, for the orderly cataloguing and presentation of information, as we do in the twentieth century. We like to get everything down on paper, so that everybody can learn, if he wants to. It is an admirable trait, but it involves some tremendous undertakings.

We read, for instance, that a complete edition of the musical works of Franz Joseph Haydn is to be published by the Haydn Society of Boston; though its headquarters is in the U.S.A. this society is established in several countries. Haydn wrote a great deal of music, and while it is not supposed that any masterpieces lurk among his unpublished works, there will be much that is of interest and value, and when the edition is completed, a complete survey of the master's development and work will be possible to any musical student. But the size of the undertaking! It will include 33 series, some of which will comprise ten or twelve volumes within themselves. The final edition will run to over a hundred carefully edited, scholarly tomes.

Haydn, the most modest of musicians, would have been pleased but, we think, somewhat overwhelmed by the posthumous attention which is being paid to his lightest, as well as his most careful, work.

Why Not Revise The Authorized?

We have read several suggestions recently that the King James Bible needs revision. In the main such suggestions come from clergymen and Biblical scholars, but some of them come from laymen, as well, and great numbers of laymen are interested in the matter. The objections to the Authorized Version generally come under two headings: it contains archaisms unfamiliar to modern readers, and it is in many places a faulty translation, out of tune with modern scholarship.

We are not greatly worried about archaisms, because we do not think that it is too much trouble for a modern reader to learn to understand the comparatively small number of them which occur in the Bible. Anybody of ordinary intelligence has only to be told once that the word "prevent" when encountered in the Bible, may mean "to go before"; nobody seriously suggests that Shakespeare should be purged of archaisms, and we think any modernizing of the text of the Bible, in this respect, should be approached with caution and literary taste.

The charge of faulty scholarship, however, is a serious one, and mistranslations should be corrected. How is this to be done without creating an uproar? For—make no mistake about it—hundreds of thousands of people would be very much affronted by a new translation of the Bible; they love the text they know, and want to keep it. And it must be said that with all its faults the King James Bible has a majesty of prose which no other translation has achieved.

We suggest, therefore, that a revision of the King James Bible might meet the case. Great stretches of it are apparently satisfactory to scholars and laymen alike; why not leave them as they are, and revise only those parts of the text which are at variance with the original Hebrew and Greek texts, and which later scholarship has explained? And why not put the new translations—using good taste and literary instinct—into English which is congruous with the English of the King James Bible?

What we suggest is not a new translation, but some careful tinkering and repairing of the old translation. By such means the fine old King James version could be retained, almost in its present form, but with those passages amended which offend scholars and cause confusion to readers.

NOTES AND COMMENT

There are no believers in miracles these days, says a novelist. It would be fairer to say that we look in a different direction for our miracles, and are ready to believe virtually anything that is told to us if it is labelled "science."

Life in Britain becomes more and more austere, but their health authorities report that the health of the British people is better than ever. Bear that in mind as you pass back for a third helping of coconut fudge cream pie a la mode, with chocolate sauce.

Twelve Good Men and True

By A JURYMAN

"I'D OFTEN heard of this happening but I never thought is could happen to me". The disgruntled man who whispered in my ears, had, like some seventy others, been called for jury duty.

We had all gathered at 9:30 one Tuesday morning ("wherefore fail not at your peril," the summons had said) in a dingy court room in the Sessions House, and were now sitting whispering to one another in the tone reserved for religious meetings.

The atmosphere of a church service was very strong upon us, but though we all awaited some penitential Lenten rite none of us knew just what happened next. At length a wigged figure entered the courtroom, and the more knowing ones amongst us whispered: "He's the judge," and stood up to show their respect. In fact it was the Clerk of the Peace to give us a short talk on our duties as jurymen.

HE BEGAN by reminding us somewhat unconvincingly that the right to serve on a jury was a special privilege of all free-born English men and women who paid more than a certain sum in rates. After this feeble flattery came the really bad news—and it seemed to be news to everyone—that we would not try just one case, but would be kept in court for a fortnight, or possibly even three weeks, trying case after case between our Sovereign Lady the Queen and the several defendants.

As compensation for our day's work we had been awarded by the munificent Act of Parliament, passed in 1948, the sum of £1 a day. This, we gathered, was a Welfare State innovation which partly compensated jurors who for seven centuries had gone unpaid.

ONE FEAR was haunting my mind: would we be incarcerated in this black hole throughout our service, being fed by deaf and dumb warders? There was a general sigh of relief when the Clerk of the Peace told us that we would be allowed outside the court precincts for lunch and at the end of the day—but on one stringent condition, that we never discussed the cases we were trying with anyone except fellow jurors. "It is not enough that justice is done," the clerk perorated, "it must also be seen to be done."

In the next two weeks that phrase kept on returning to my mind. There is so much that is haphazard and incongruous about the jury system, so much that is illogical and ridiculous, that it seems in complete contrast to the stately dignity of the law. Does a jury really see that justice is done, I wondered, or is it a fake antique front behind which the modern machine of the law grinds out its inexorable decisions?

The incongruities of the jury system are certainly striking. As twelve of us who had been chosen for number two court were instructed in our immediate duties by the usher it became clear that we were to be considered both as the centre of the court's action—the linchpin of each case—and at the same time the one unpredictable and uncontrollable factor which might prove a beastly nuisance and delay the machinery of the law.

THE USHER obviously felt that his duty was, without any undue pressure, to make us co-operate in the swift administration of justice. He was a kindly man who explained everything with the watery-eyed patience of a professional guide: "This 'ere's the jury room where you retire, it's a bit dark and damp and smelly, but I'm sure none of you ladies and gentlemen will want to stick around long coming to your decisions." To make our task easier he explained that although we should pay attention to learned counsel, we would get everything made clear by the judge.

We were then shown into our uncomfortable jury box and awaited the opening of proceedings. Waiting, as we were to learn, is an essential part of a jury's service, and there were a full twenty minutes of fruitless bustle before the judge entered, counsel bobbed to him, and the prisoner in the dock was charged with larceny. "Swear the jury," said the clerk of the court, and the usher ambled over to us. "I suppose you're all New Testament men," he said as he handed us cards containing the oath. We were, and in five minutes we were at last a sworn jury.

THE THING that struck me about the court and its proceedings was how shabby and amateur they were compared with the films, which had constituted my only previous experience of the law. There was never any drama nor tragedy, just the piteous insufficiency of the prisoners. They were charged with minor crimes ("We get no rapes nor murders here, they're for the Bailey," the usher had explained). Their counsel were mostly minor advocates, who often had scarcely time to master the brief given them from the prisoner in the dock, for most of the prisoners had not instructed solicitors to prepare their defence.

Yet the dignity of legal proceedings was impressive at first, like a rich Victorian drawing-room, though it soon began to pall, with its endless repetition of detail. To hear each fact, even the most obvious, stated by counsel, restated by a witness, maintained by him under cross-examination, and repeated by the judge in summing up seemed a waste of our time. For witnesses the waiting and time wasting must have been even worse. The owner of a business would spend a day in court simply to say that he locked up at 6 o'clock in the evening of February 21, and his assistant would also have to spend the day away from business in order to assert on oath that he found the door smashed in at 9 o'clock on the morning of February 22.

HOWEVER TEDIOUS it may be, the clinical accuracy with which evidence is established is an impressive tribue to the idea of even-handed justice. So it was something of a shock on the first day to go down to lunch with my fellow jurors. "I think we can ignore the police evidence in this case," was the opening gambit of one stout juryman, "after all, they're probably just trying to get promotion." At the other end of the table an elderly colleague had just confided that he was already convinced the prisoners were guilty. "I don't think they would be in court if they were innocent," he remarked with a sense of outraged propriety.

Clever advocates are supposed to be skilled in playing on a jury's prejudices, but I wondered if they ever guessed how strong and varied those prejudices are. The detective novel and the mystery film have bred a race of jurymen who see the most complicated plots behind the plainest evidence; what is more serious the mass of petty legislation in the past decade has made juries somewhat contemptuous of the law, and even inclined to be suspicious of the police.

THIS MEANS that many of the refinements of lawyers and of the law are severely mauled by a jury; it means that the police are under a constant scrutiny which forces them to pay very strict attention to the rights of the subject; it means that prisoners in the dock know that they are indeed being tried by their equals—men and women with uneasy consciences. But does it mean that justice is done and seen to be done?

Slowly, after hearing eighteen cases, I was convinced that the jury system, with all its faults, does enable justice to be done. In spite of all the individual prejudice of its twelve members, a jury is as good a means of establishing the facts of a case as any more scientfic device. Even more important the jury can help to make justice apparent to the prisoner.

The law is ponderous, confusing, and hostile-seeming to many bewildered men; justice to them seems very different from the law. Lawyers and the law can easily appear to be a net set to snare the innocent; the jury with its own confusion, bewilderment, and muddle does still introduce into the law courts the essential element of trial by equals and not by experts.

DOES THE POOR GUY EVER WONDER IF IT'S WORTH IT?

Desmond McCarthy

ONLY a cabled paragraph told of the death in England last week of Desmond MacCarthy, this in itself a commentary on our times. For Desmond MacCarthy, without the frothy, vulgar talents which invite publicity, was a significant literary light of our day, one who reverenced and helped to preserve the majesty of English speech.

He was almost the last of a great school, of that galaxy of critics essayists and journalists who burst upon England's literary and journalistic landscape during the first three decades of this century. What a company they were! Henry Nevinson, J. L. Hammond and C. E. Montagu on the Manchester Guardian, Nevinson the Sir Galahad of lost causes, Hammond producing the best book on Gladstone, and Montagu writing like an angel; J. A. Spender with his Westminster Gazette, one of the last authentic voices of the old Liberalism; Garvin, the ex-Fenian, thundering every Sunday for imperialism in the Observer; A. G. Gardiner at the Daily News and writing his incomparable portraits; the incorruptible Massingham dipping his pen in acid at the Nation; Clifford Clark making the New Statesman what it isn't today; Robert Lynd with his whimsy and gaiety in the Chronicle; and James Agate, Desmond MacCarthy and Ernest Newman doing books, the theatre and music for the Sunday Times.

They were not, these men, of the pitiful school of pedantry, parading their learnings, aloof from the common crowd, writing self-consciously of "culture". All of life's activities they encompassed, the commonplaces and menial tasks of freedom, the political problems of their country, the sorrows and joys of the masses, the bitter realities of life as they found it. Nevinson was all his days a champion of the underdog; Spencer was the confidant and adviser of Asquith; Gardiner could write of Keir Hardie with the same insight and sympathy that he could write of the King; Desmond MacCarthy was an Irish patriot.

The day of England's chain newspapers has produced no successors for these giants. Mr. Max Freedman, with characteristic eloquence, pens this lament:

"The golden breed is fading. Virginia Woolf is gone, and Kynes has quit his epigrams and Strachey no longer converts history into art, and Robert Lynd has hushed his gaiety, and now, as a crowning stroke, Desmond MacCarthy has left us. Two great men, Forster and Tomlinson, are of this vintage and are still with us, though now approaching tremulous old age. Long may they grace our days with their glory."

Churchill Grows Old

(Corriere della Sera, Italy)

Churchill has grown old; in a few months he will be seventy-eight. Like all old men he often repeats himself and shows a great ability in doing the things he has always done. In Parliament he is still master, perhaps nowadays more fox than lion. His deafness embarrasses him in catching the interruptions and replies; the slowness of his reactions often deprives a phrase of its vigor. But he is still a master in debate, especially on foreign affairs, and in his subtle polemics with his opponents.

This human drama thrills the English. Churchill had to wait for power until he was over sixty. The war gave him power and carried him into the world of heroes. But the peace again denied him power, although now his Party had come under his authoritarian and impatient leadership. When finally he had achieved an electoral victory and had formed his own Government, his own Party began to revolt silently against him. Churchill is a pilot for times of storm. This common-place serves equally for those who want to get rid of him, who say that as there is no war there is no storm, and for those who want to keep him in power and declare that Britain's present conditions are even more difficult than those of 1940. In fact, there is a storm raging, but it is different from the other, and the old pilot seems to have lost his bearings and is tired.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people. And his fame went throughout all Syria: and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatick, and those that had the palsy; and he healed them. (Matt. 4: 23, 24).

✧ ✧ ✧

And seeing the multidues, he went up into a mountain: and when he was set, his disciples came unto him: and he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,

Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven . . .

Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled. (Matt. 5: 1-3, 6.)

✧ ✧ ✧

No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon. (Matt. 6: 24.)

✧ ✧ ✧

A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.

Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them. (Matt. 7: 18-20.)

Letter To The Editor

HYDRANTS AT THE HOSPITAL

Sir. In the latest edition of The Examiner you state that I am convinced that two hydrants provide sufficient fire protection for the Civic Hospital. This is not correct.

The request for additional hydrants gave us no explanation of the reasoning back of the request. This data has been requested but not yet received. Pending the receipt of this information we are not taking a position for or against the request.

I am sure you will agree that we should not blindly consent to the spending of a large amount of the taxpayers' money.

To a layman in fire protection, the 4 streams now available appears a fair quantity of water for a fire proof building where there is presumably no possibility of a fire spreading rapidly and that might have to be fought from a number of points

Yours truly,
G. R. LANGLEY
Utilities Commissioner.

RUGGED GAL

Never having worn a pair of shoes in her life, the mountaineer's feet were tough as leather themselves. Her husband stretched out on the cabin floor, watching her stir the stew in the fireplace, laboriously lifted a hand to remove his corncob. "Maw," he said, "best move yore foot. Thar's some live ashes under it."

She kept on stirring. "All right, Henry; which foot?"

Una Merkel Finds Many Friends During Illness

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Una Merkel wants her friends to know that she never felt better in her life, thank you.

This is heartening news from the actress, whose life has been hounded by tragedy. Only recently, it appeared that her troubles had proved too much for her. She was reported to have taken an overdose of sleeping pills. The news stories indicated that she had been despondent because she had not been working in the movies.

"Nothing was further from the truth," said Miss Merkel on the "I Love Melvin" set. "It was all a terrible mistake. I was ill, but not despondent."

The actress was abashed when she saw newspaper accounts of her illness. She tried to explain that she had taken some sleeping pills by mistake, but the publicity damage had been done.

FATHER COLLAPSES

As she expected, her father collapsed when he read the news but she was able to reach him by phone and explain. Studio people showered her with bouquets and messages of cheer.

"The incident proved to me that something good always comes out of the bad things that happen to us," said Miss Merkel. "I had never realized how many friends I had. I heard from boys in Korea. I got letters from men who had seen me during the last war when I went to New Guinea with Gary Cooper. I had a lovely letter from a bus driver in England, who included bits of poetry.

"In all, I received four or five hundred letters. It has been a wholly wonderful and a very emotional experience for me."

Thief Suspects Caught

Earl Of Elgin Arrives For Centennial Celebrations

MONTREAL (CP)—The Earl of Elgin and Kincardine has arrived in Canada to attend centennial celebrations for Elgin, Ont., named for his grandfather, Governor-General of Canada when the southwestern Ontario community was founded.

Lord Elgin, accompanied by Lady Elgin, arrived yesterday aboard the liner Empress of Scotland and told reporters they were looking forward to the celebrations.

"It's not my first crossing," he said. "I first came to Canada in 1908 to attend tercentenary celebrations for Quebec, and have been here on several occasions since. As a matter of fact, my father was born here in the west-end of Montreal. It was known as Monklands then."

The Elgin celebrations will take place Aug. 3-10 and the Earl and Countess will take a prominent part, attending the laying of a cornerstone for a new 300-bed hospital, Caledonian games, a horse show, a civic and an industrial dinner.

Lord Elgin is well known in the community which bears his name, particularly to the men who served with the Elgin Regiment in the Second World War and whom Lord Elgin visited frequently.

HONORARY COLONEL

"I am honorary colonel of the regiment," he said. "The late Lord Tweedsmuir, then Governor-General of Canada, signed my commission some 14 or 15 years ago."

A breeder of Aberdeen-Angus cattle, Lord Elgin was a judge at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto in 1938.

"I keep upwards of 35 cattle at my home, Broomhall, in County Fife, some 15 miles from Edinburgh. Three years ago, one of my bulls, Brose of Broomhall, won first prize at the Royal Highland Show at Dundee."

SON WAS PAGE

Speaking of his family—three boys and three girls—Lord Elgin said his youngest son recently acted as a page to Queen Elizabeth.

"The Queen had come to Scotland to enroll three men as Knights of the Thistle," he said, "and young David Bruce carried her train in a solemn procession."

The Earl and Countess expect to be in Canada until the end of August and the British Board of Trade plans to have the Earl open the British section of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. They will visit Ottawa next week.

They were met here by W.H.A. Sparling, industrial commissioner for St. Thomas and an acquaintance of the family since Mr. Sparling's days as quartermaster for the Elgin Regiment.

Puppet Pope Said Aim In Red China

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Chinese Communist Leader Mao Tse-tung is trying to set up a puppet pope, Vatican sources charged yesterday.

The sources, basing their information on reports of missionaries and other Roman Catholics who have left China recently, said the Communists are trying to win over China's 4,000,000 Catholics to an "independent" church. They have already chosen their "pope"—Bishop Chou Chi-shih of Hanchang.

Bishop Chou was reported to have been arrested by the Communists last May, but was offered his release on condition he accepted the office of Chinese "pope."

The Vatican sources said Bishop Chou replied: "Why should I become pope of China alone? If I remain loyal to Rome I may one day become pope of the whole world."

The sources added they had received reports recently that Bishop Chou has died in prison, but these have not been confirmed.

Denike Family Holds 4th Annual Reunion

The event took the form of a dinner party with time spent in renewing associations and recalling events of by-gone days, while the younger members present enjoyed swimming and boating.

Those attending were from Winnipeg, Toronto, Michigan, Warkworth and Havelock.

It was the second fatal crash of a B-47 six-engine stratojet in Florida this month.

Maritimes Get Big Corner Of Tourist Trade

By KINGSLEY BROWN, JR.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A tip for Canadian tourist bureaux: Follow the time-worn but efficient slogan "it pays to advertise."

The Maritimes, heading for a record season, are already reaping fabulous dividends from an intense post-war advertising campaign that has turned the tourist trade into a top-ranking industry.

Nova Scotia's $25,000,000 trade last year placed agriculture in fifth spot, above agriculture, and only $7,000,000 out of third-place fisheries. Revenues totalling $15,000,000 in New Brunswick put it in fifth place, above mining. Tourists in Prince Edward Island spent $4,200,000 last year to boost it to third position, above fisheries.

And tourists are rolling into the Maritimes this season as never before. They come for attractions like New Brunswick's Fundy National Park and hunting and fishing haunts, Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley and highlands of Cape Breton, and Prince Edward Island's garden country.

'GOOD INVESTMENT'

Although provincial governments have poured millions into projects to lure tourists since the war, government officials say it has been a good investment.

Nova Scotia's tourist influx has increased 27 per cent over last year. New Brunswick has a seven-per cent increase. One of the most spectacular gains was registered by Quebec tourists, who have been entering the province at a 56-oer cent increase over last season.

The advertising campaign is directed by a relatively small and efficient group operating on a comparatively low budget.

Nova Scotia now is also using movies and has material for six or seven films. Many earlier films have been shown in the United States, notably on television, and in Canada.

The international tuna tournament at Wedgeport, N.S., attended annually by some 60 reporters, photographers and film producers, gains a windfall of publicity for the province.

Gives Self Up After Accident

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—John A. Bettridge, 32, of London, surrendered to police yesterday and was charged with leaving the scene of an accident in which John Bailey of Blyth, 50-year-old construction company watchman, was severely injured near Nilestown early Saturday.

Police said Bettridge gave them a statement.

Magistrate F. G. McAlister released Bettridge on $1,000 property bond and $1,000 in his own recognizance, to appear July 25. He was not asked to plead.

In Victoria Hospital Bailey was reported improving satisfactorily. His right leg was amputated below the knee.

Named In Indian's Death

HUNTINGDON, Que. (CP)—Lawrence Sunday, 34-year-old Indian of Snye, Que., last night was found criminally responsible by a coroner's jury in the death Sunday of John Buckshot. ## To Cut Imports

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain will buy a lot less of this season's North American tobacco crop than she did last year when $86,000,000 worth crossed the Atlantic from the United States, Brig. H. R. Mackeson, secretary of overseas trade, told Parliament yesterday: "The amount of dollars made available for purchase from this season's North American crop will be very much less than last year."

HONORED BY POPE—Msgr. John O'Neill, vicar-general of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Ottawa, has been made an Apostolic Prothonotary one of the highest honors given by the Pope. Msgr. O'Neill is pastor of Our Lady of Perpetual Help parish in Ottawa. He formerly served at Saskatoon and Victoria.

British Busmen Given Loads Of Food On Way

Norwood's hospitality to the London Transport bus party Sunday evening exceeded personal appetites and capacity. The appetites had folded with satiety at a Perth dinner.

Charles W. Price and his party were also supplied with boxes of more food for the rest of the trip to Peterborough, and then Norwood greeted them with ample spread. Shades of the queues at the London meat and grocery shops!

Austerity may stare them in the face when they get back home and look into their domestic larders, but on this trip into the United States and Canada since the beginning of last March the visitors have been putting on solid poundage, and trying to keep waist lines in control.

The British travel group resumed their odyssey Monday afternoon, heading off to Lindsay at 2 p.m. At North Court Motel on the Chemong Road they had a rendezvous with Mayor Lamb, members of [illegible] cil and several others. After 20 minutes of leisure[illegible] on the top deck of one [illegible], the "all aboard" call [illegible] nded, and the visitors headed west.

New York Residents Protest High Watel Level Damage

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Property owners along the New York state shore of Lake Ontario said yesterday that their land is being ruined by high water levels and they claimed that the Gut Dam and the Ogoki River diversion are the principal causes.

Their testimony was offered at a one-day hearing of the six-member International Joint Commission.

Walter S. Forsyth, lawyer [illegible] the Lake Ontario Beach P[illegible] Association, said Canada had lost what he called its "Gut Dam gamble." He glared at the three Canadian members of the commission and declared:

"Get the thing out. Don't wait. We've suffered long enough."

DEMANDS COMPENSATION

Forsyth told the Canadian members of the I.J.C.:

"You agreed to compensate the United States for any damage caused by high water traceable to Gut Dam. You took a chance that you would never have to stick to your promise. You took that gamble and lost. Why not lose gracefully?"

An estimated 650 persons jammed the meeting room of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce for the hearing, first of a series designed to lay the groundwork for the giant St. Lawrence Seaway and power project. The related issue of Great Lakes water levels, however, was the only topic of yesterday's session.

The Gut Dam, an earthen structure which now has trees and shrubs growing on it, was built by Canada in 1902 between two islands in the St. Lawrence River above the International Rapids. The purpose was to aid in routing water into the Canadian ship canal around the rapids.

CLAIM HEAVY LOSS

The property owners' group claims recent damages totalling $20,000,000. U.S. army engineers, in a survey last spring, estimated the total at about $7,000,000.

Representative Kenneth B. Keating declared that surveys indicated that Gut Dam and the Ogoki River diversion in Northern Ontario accounted for about 10 inches of the Lake Ontario water level, now about 10 inches over normal.

Elimination of the two, he said, would bring at least "a measure of relief."

The Ogoki once flowed into the Hudson Bay Basin. But in 1937, it was diverted into Lake Superior as an aid to navigation and as a means of improving the hydro-electric power potential of Canada.

BOBBY SHANTZ, Philadelphia Athletics, lefthander who is leading the Major Leagues with 16 wins and three defeats, tipped the beam at 139½ pounds when he was placed on the scales by Fred Humphreys, chief of Philadelphia's Bureau of Weights and Measures, with A's manager Jimmy Dykes looking on. Shantz's size has been the subject of much discussion among fans and teammates.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

He may be pessimistic, but Bunny Morganson writes in the Tely: "Mimico's dream of a senior lacrosse championship this season received a terrific jolt when they carried Ken Dixon off the floor early in Saturday night's game at Owen Sound. Dixon, who is Mimico's scoring sparkplug and top point collector in the O.L.A., fell in a heap suffering great pain when carrying the ball, giving his left knee a bad wrench and tearing the ligaments. His knee is now in a cast. With Dixon sidelined for perhaps the remainder of the season, Mounties face the acid test of maintaining a playoff berth. Their first comes Wednesday against Petes in Mimico. Same clubs are back here Friday. Dixon's loss is a tough break for Mounties.

Unquestionably, the gutted-stick game is a rough one and a great many injuries result. But it is generally the fans and the scribes who do most of the beefing over rough play. Some refs take a dim view of illegal tactics whilst others let plenty go, having been senior players themselves ere donning the white uniform. The present players rarely squawk about rugged going in a game — they give and take. A guy gets injured on a cross-check or being thrown into the boards and he limps off. See him after the game and say "That was a dirty check Jones threw at you," and chances are he'll grin and reply "Well, Jonesy plays it pretty rugged." Maybe he figures he'll outbump Jonesy next time they meet.

But They Do Have Rules

You might think that, like pro wrestling, there are no real rules in lacrosse. There are quite a few but theyre not called too closely at times in the senior division. For instance, how often have you seen this rule violated: "A player shall not hold an opponents stick with his hands, arms or between his legs, nor hold, strike or trip him with his stick, run in front of an opponent or interfere with him in any way to keep him from the ball until another player reaches it. Nor shall be bodycheck any opponent not in possession of the ball. How often, huh? Why, intereference is rampant from start to finish of every fray. But who cares?

* * * * * *

Other infractions, in brief, which are common include: Hold, strike or push an opponent with his hand; charge the goalie; cross-check a rival; jump at or shoulder an opponent from behind; kneel in front of an opponent to throw him; attempt to influence the decision of a ref.; bodycheck a player into a fence or goal crease; charge an opponent after he has thrown the ball; use the jab check; slash another guy; lie on the ball or in any way try to delay play; check an opponent's stick except when he has the ball; threaten a rival; and so on ad nauseam. The way the seniors play it, a game would be just a parade of penalties if the referee called 'em all.

U.E. Takes First Place

Edging Lakefield 4-3 in 10 innings at the Bowl last e'en U.E.W. took over top spot in the men's circuit. They have 20 points to 19 for Seabrooke's, Revoy's being third with nine, two more than Lakefield and four above Lindsay. Thursday, it's Seabrooke's vs. Lakefield, and then Revoy's vs. Seabrooke's. Dick McCracken pitched nice ball for Lakefield, while Jim Driscoll and Howie Dalton split the slab chore for U.E., the latter having two for two at bat. Leether, Legrow and Grafstein had two for five each. Lindsay won 12-8 o'er Revoy's on steady pitching by Jack Kean and hard hitting by Bolderstone, O'Connell, O'Donoghue and Plumpton. Whalen cuffed two for Revoy's, and Nelson hit a homer.

* * * * * *

Petes dropped a tough senior ball decision 3-2 to the Monarchs in Kingston last eve. Levandoski's single in the seventh sending in Rank to break the tie. Ferguson hit a two-run homer in the first for them. The Petes came back next heat to sew it up with two runs on two miscues, a wild pitch, fielder's choice and hits by Joe Stewart and Arn Dugan. Latter also smacked out a double later and was robbed of a hit in the eighth. Gunner Whitehill hurled a nice game for the K's, Bill Edger having the other bingle. A swell scrap to win but a heart-breaker to drop. The Petes play tomorrow in Belleville, Phil Clancy probably pitching.

U.E. Grabs Top With Verdict Over Lakefield

Buck Legrow's cagey U.E.W. nine slid into first place in the men's senior softball standing Tuesday night, one point ahead of the twice idle Seabrooke Motors squad by virtue of a thrilling 10-inning 4-3 victory over Lakefield Merchants, in the curtain-raiser of the regular twin-bill. U.E.W. at the moment have an aggregate of 20 points; Seabrooke's have 19; though the latter have three games in hand, and play Lakefield and Revoys Thursday when they hope to gain some ground.

Dick McCracken went the route for Merchants and twirled a beautiful game. Ill-fortune dogged him in the final stages of a dramatic struggle as U.E. put over the tying run in the last of the ninth when Reg Leether scored on White's long drive to Cupoli in left; they went on to get the winner in the 10th when Bernie Robson's hard smash to centre scored Graftstein.

Jim Driscoll started for U.E. but yielded to pinch-hitting Howie Dalton with a 2-0 deficit in the sixth; and the strategy paid off. Dalton singled with two away and Robson aboard, and Leether's triple cleared the sacks to tie the score. Howie hurled well for the balance ,after some difficulty in the seventh, with jittery support, and earned credit for a close win. It was a tingling game all the way, with several sparkling fielding features by John Cupoli, Red Wasson, Jack White, Tony Giardino, John Lickley and Bruce Taylor. Dalton hit two for two; Leether, Legrow and Graftstein each hit two for five. Tuesday's crowd was the second largest of the season.

Lindsay Gets Win Over Revoy's 12-8

Lindsay Combines rose in wrathful indignation Tuesday, at the East City Bowl, to smite George Hawke's Revoy Motors 12-8 in the nightcap of the men's softball doubleheader, before a big crowd; Revoy's currently occupy third place in the standing.

Jack Kean toiled the route for the Hanson crew, scattered seven hits fairly well, and outlasted his two rivals Fife and Revoir to give Combines thier second win of the campaign in their cool cellar birth. He fanned eight and walked seven while his mates supported him in fair style.

Bert Fife started for the motor lads but yielded to Earl Revoir in the fifth with 'Combines trailing 4-3; Fife struck out four, allowed five hits. But the Scugog boys took kindly to Revoir as strategy backfired and O'Connell's double, Richards' triple and Mark Donoghue's hard smash to right netted Combines a pair; and they never looked back. A big seventh-inning burst for five runs really filled the Lindsay joy pump with oil as England, Plumpton, Bolderstone and Richmond all connected safely; which with an error and a fielder's choice, paid off.

Revoys fought hard and it was nip-and-tuck to the wire. Bobby Nelson homered with one aboard for Revoys in the seventh; Jack Richards hit a triple, and Bolderstone, O'Connell, Donoghue and Plumpton all hit well for Lindsay. Doug Whalen had two safeties for Revoys. England starred afield.

Kingston Yanks Out Win Against Senior Petes In 3-2 Central Loop Fray

KINGSTON (Special)—Kingston Monarchs gained sole possession of second place in the Central Ontario Baseball League race last night when they shaded the Peterborough Petes by 3 to 2, in McGaffin Memorial Stadium. Coach Joe Levandoski's single in the seventh inning scored Eric Rank with the tie-breaking marker, but in the main it was Lorne Ferguson's two-run homer over the left centre field wall in the first frame and Babe Stinson's four-hit pitching that wrecked the visitors' hopes.

The Petes racked up their two runs in the second frame with errors by Cliff Aitken and Jack White tainting both of them. Joe Stewart led off with a single to left. Bryan Young got a lift on a misplay by Aitken and both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Arnie Dugan singled, scoring Stewart. Don Pagett was safe on a fielder's choice. White erred and all runners moved ahead, Young tallying.

SETTLED DOWN

Despite such shaky suport Stinson retired the next three batsmen and over the rest of the route restricted the puzzled invaders to a two-bagger by Dugan in the sixth inning and a single by Bill Edger, who led off the seventh. Stinson, whose control was good, struck out 10 batsmen and also showed his mettle in the eighth when he threw out Dugan after the latter's terrific line drive struck the stocky local moundsman in the stomach and temporarily laid him hors de combat.

The Monarchs struck early in creating a two-run lead. Rank, first man to face Whitehill in the opening inning, walked and was singled to third by Don Gilmour.

Levandoski forced Gilmour at second, Rank took too long a lead off third and was run down, Menzies to Garvey to Menzies. Ferguson, who hits to all fields with equal abandon, drilled the ball over the left centre field wall and scored Levandoski ahead of him.

TIED IT EARLY

Play continued at a fast rate after the Petes forced a deadlock in the second. Stinson continued to out-pitch his veteran opponent but the canny visitor exhibited almost perfect control and got out of trouble as fast as he got into it, until he wavered in the seventh after Stinson, leading off, had been retired. A long double to left by Rank sparked the winning attack. Gilmour followed with a single and Levandoski duplicated the feat, scoring Rank. Gilmour was, however, erased, Young to Garvey to Stewart, when he tried to go from first to third on the blow.

Phil Clancy batting for Whitehill struck out in opening the ninth but reached first when Carnegie erred. Joe Lowrey lifted a high fly ball in front of the plate and Stinson made the catch while colliding with Carnegie. Edger was safe on an error but with the prospective tying and winning run on the paths, Garvey and Menzies skied out to Levandoski in right field.

P.G. & C.C. CHIPSHOTS

Les Reid captured low gross honors in the sweepstakes Saturday, shooting a nifty 76. In doing so the current city champion defeated Jack Richardson 4 and 3 to advance to the second round of the club championship. The veteran is playing steady golf these days and when the chips are down Les is at his best.

Fred Hollowell, runner-up last year, evened things with club champion Joe Watson by defeating old "Ropey" 3 and 2 in their match. If you recall last year's thrilling final, Fred lost to Joe one down on the 36th green. Joe, sometimes known as "Mr. Golf," is a real competitor and hates to lose, but when he does you don't hear any alibis.

The eigfht players still in the hunt fight it out as listed below:

Les Reid v. Mike O'Leary
Reg. Stewart v. W. Vanstone.

Decide Shirley Eckel Will Be Scratched

HELSINKI (CP)—Shirley Eckel, blonde little speedster from Toronto, has been scratched from the women's 80-metre Olympic hurdles.

Coach Joey Richman said last night that because of a leg injury it's almost certain Shirley will also be out of the women's 400-metre relay.

The 20-year-old girl has been bothered by a pulled muscle in her right leg since shortly after her arrival from Canada July 6. She hasn't gone over the hurdles in more than a week.

Her loss is a big disappointment to the track and field team, still without a single point for Canada in the team standings.

Australian Girl Wins Sprint

By JACK SULLIVAN

HELSINKI (CP)—The 70,000-seat Olympic Stadium was sold out today for the first time since Saturday's opening ceremonies of the 1952 Olympic Games.

The big drawing card was the javelin throw, a national sport of this small country. The predominantly Finnish crowd was supremely confident that Finland's first gold medal of the Games was as good as won.

On that basis the United States faced another halt in its powerful march to track and field titles.

AUSSIE WINS SPRINT

There was a break yesterday. Marjorie Jackson, 21-year-old Australian girl, skimmed down the brick-red track to win the women's 100-metre sprint championship.

In doing it she equalled the Olympic and world record of 11.5 seconds. A South African girl and two more Australians followed her over the finish line.

The United States got only a sixth place out of that sensational show but took the other three final events in the big stadium to the accompaniment of record-crashing.

Rev. Bob Richards of Laverne, Calif., who is both preacher and pole-vaulter, broke the pole vault record with a mark of 4.55 metres —14 feet, 11.14 inches. Three others bettered the old record of 14 feet, 3½ inches.

Sam Iness, giant Los Angeles discus thrower, let go with record heaves and outdistanced the defending champion, Adolfo Consolini of Italy.

HURLS 180½ FEET

Iness' longest throw was 180 feet, 6.85 inches. Consolini also bettered his 1948 record of 173 feet, two inches, and so did Jim Dillon of the United States.

A third record for the day was made when Herbert Schade of Germany chopped three full seconds from the 5,000-metre record in winning a heat in 14:15.4. The final in this event comes up tomorrow.

Mal Whitfield of Columbus, Ohio, gave the United States its third victory of the day in winning the 800-metre run. It was a repetition of his 1948 success at London and he duplicated his Olympic record of 1:49.2.

For the third day Canada's athletes tried vainly to get into point-scoring places.

In yesterday's two heats in the 200-metre event three Canadians were eliminated. Don McFarlane of Hamilton and Bob Hutchison of Victoria were eliminated in second heats. Pete Sutton of Toronto went out in the first.

Rich Ferguson of Toronto was the only runner in a field of 44 to drop out of the 5,000-metre heats. He said his legs "went dead."

PELLA TRAILS

Roy Pella of Sudbury got past the qualifying round of the discus throw and placed 14th in the final.

In addition, Canada's rowing quad is through. The eights—Toronto Argonauts—were the last to go, defeated yesterday in a last-chance heat by Germany. The wrestlers are also finished. Armand Bernard, Montreal featherweight, suffered his second defeat yesterday.

A grand new series of events came up today in track and field, along with the final in the 200-metre dash.

The Finns not only were the favorites to win the javelin throw but they hoped they could break a record in doing it.

Records have been broken so often in the first three days of track and field—eight of the first 12 events—that the crowds have come to regard anything less than a record as a pretty poor show.

FAVOR NEW ZEALANDER

A possibility of another champion from Down Under was seen. Practically everybody favored Yvette Williams of New Zealand in the women's broad jump.

The new sprint queen, Marjorie Jackson, ran the race of her life yesterday in winning the 100-metre championship. Teammates set up a yell of "couee, couee" as she flashed over the line.

She is a typist in Lithgow, a coal mining town in New South Wales. She first attracted big-time attention in the 1950 British Empire Games at Auckland when she won the sprints and anchored winning relay teams.

Since then Australians—particularly Lithgow miners and railway workers—have paid her high tribute.

Tracks were laid out so she could get as much experience as possible. Her trainer, Jim Monaghan, a former professional sprinter and now a store clerk, worked out a new training theory. He trained Marjorie each evening far away from spectators and let her keep her own peculiar style of running, which many experts say is all wrong. The most noticeable peculiarity is the way she rolls her head from side to side when running.

DRAWN BY LOT

NEW YORK — (NEA). — In horse racing, post positions are drawn by lot.

Toronto Argonauts Eliminated In Olympic Rowing Competition

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—Toronto Argonauts, Canada's last remaining entry in Olympic rowing competition, were eliminated yesterday when the eight-oar crew finished nearly a length behind Germany in a semi-final.

But Britain, South Africa and Australia will carry colors of the Commonwealth and Empire into today's finals with entries in five of the seven events.

The Canadians, using borrowed shells, had advanced to the second-last bracket by finishing in a dead heat Monday with Sweden. The judges decided to move both teams into the semi-finals.

TRAIL THROUGHOUT

In yesterday's race, Germany took the lead from the start and was ahead eight feet at the 200-metre mark. Then the Germans steadily increased their lead to a length at 1,000 metres and to 1½ lengths at the 1,500-metre mark. But the Canadians began to close up near the finish.

Argos finished the 2,000-metre race in 6:24.8. The Germans 6:19.3.

Frank Kaysmith, Argos coach, said there could be no excuses.

"We just met a better crew," he said. "At least it was something to get into the semi-finals."

The Canadians were racing in Swedish boats because their own craft were damaged beyond repair while being shipped to Helsinki.

Canada's only other rowing entries, the Winnipeg pair of Bob Williams and Derek Riley, and the Hamilton Leander senior four, were eliminated Monday.

TO DISBAND

It was learned that Argonauts' eight-oared crew will disband after one more race at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Three members of the crew are quitting, including Ted Chilcott, a veteran of 13 years in the sport.

The Canadians were disconsolate over the assorted misfortunes which have dogged their bid for sculling glory.

"We were built up for this over a long period, and now everything seems like an anti-climax," said George McCauley.

Crescents Clip Athletics 20-16

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Owen Sound Crescents made a nine-goal first-half lead stand up for a 20-16 win over St. Catharines Athletics last night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game. The result broke a tie between the two clubs for fifth place in the league standings.

The Athletics, down 14-5 at half time and with only 11 men in uniform, made a game comeback. They sliced the Crescent lead to 16-14 after three minutes of the final quarter but then ran out of steam and the Sounders ripped home four straight goals.

Bun White sparked Owen Sound to its third straight win with five goals. Arnold Smith, Tony Capula and Fred Marchant tallied three each and Bill Allum got two with the singletons going to Harry Kazarian, Fred Smith, Don Campbell and Johnny Matheson.

Bill Nelson topped the A's offensive with four goals and Johnny Dewar was next with three. Tank Teather, Skip Teal and Jim McMahon had two each, and the others went to Joe Cheevers, Scotty Baldwin and Ted Howe.

Tigers Edge Washington 1-0 In Thrilling Ball Game

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Baseball fans, looked back to last night's thrill-packed action and cracked: "What, no no-hitter?" That's about the only thing that didn't occur in the major leagues. And that, too, came within one pitch of being accomplished. The star—or is it victim?—of that pitching feat was Virgil Trucks, already the author of the American League's sole no-hitter of the 1952 season. The Detroit right-hander gave up just one hit, a single by Eddie Yost, in hurling the Tigers to a 1-0 victory over Washington Senators.

Yost's hit came on Trucks' first pitch of the game. It was a slow-moving grounder between short and third. Had the Tigers been able to retire the leadoff batter, Trucks would have gone down in sports history as the only pitcher to hurl two no-hitters against the same club in one season. He held Washington runless and hitless May 15 by the same 1-0 score.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS

Other highlights included:

New York Yankees swept a doubleheader from the vanishing Indians before 57,666 crushed Cleveland fans, 7-4 and 8-1, to increase their first-place margin over Boston Red Sox to five games.

Bobby Shantz continued on his way to his 30-victory goal, pitching Philadelphia Athletics to a 3-2 win over St. Louis Browns. Shantz yielded eight blows for his 17th victory against three losses.

Dave Koslo registered his fifth straight success over St. Louis Cardinals this season, his 12th in a row over them in three years, as New York Giants earned a 3-2 win on Hank Thompson's two-run homer in the sixth.

DODGERS TRIM REDS

Brooklyn Dodgers met a four-run 10th inning by Cincinnati with a five-run outburst of their own to nip the Reds 7-6 and retain their 7½-game bulge over the Giants in the National League race. Ken Raffensberger, third Red pitcher of the inning, hit Rube Walker with a pitched ball to force over the winning run.

Boston Braves spotted Chicago Cubs a 4-0 lead on Dee Fondy's grand-slam homer and roared back to win, 6-4.

Philadelphia Phils climbed to the .500 mark with a double win over Pittsburgh, 14-4 and 8-1, and moved within a game of the fourth-place Cubs.

Rookie Dick Gernert rapped a two-run homer in the 13th to give Boston a 4-2 triumph over Chicago White Sox.

TV DEMONSTRATED IN 1926

The earliest practical demonstration of television was given by J.L. Baird before the Royal Institute in 1926.

Ungava New Treasure Chest

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Labrador and Ungava may have been only names to you. True, if you were from the Maritime provinces, Labrador may have been a little more than that—an indistinct coastline fronting a vast unknown interior, about which captains of small trading schooners told you strange tales.

You had heard of the work of the missionary-doctor, Sir Wilfred Grenfell. You remembered the woman you had once talked to on a train—a woman from the Moravian mission, on her first trip out in 12 years, whose greatest material wish was for a washing machine to relieve the scrub, scrub of the washboard.

If you were from Newfoundland, your knowledge was more extensive.

CAIN'S DOMAIN

From Quebec, Ungava probably would be a great wilderness which had been added to your province in 1912. By now it might be catching your imagination as "New Quebec," and its southern shore, at least, was a part of "Old Quebec," with fishing and trading villages.

If you were from farther west, however, it is probable that Labrador and Ungava were at best soft names for sleeping cars. At worst, in the words of Jacques Cartier, they were the land given to Cain.

But this summer's day, as you sweltered at Peel and St. Catherine streets in Montreal, you knew you had to give up those misty ideas.

REMOTE RICHES

For this is the day of the airplane, and in a few hours you would be in Labrador-Ungava. You had read about it and you knew you would find, not the lonely land of your sub-conscious mind, but the opening of a new rich part of Canada.

You would see a railway being thrown across rivers, around lakes, through gorges and canyons; see a country running red from the iron ore lying beneath it—a country which, by all the implications of its known geology, must be a treasure chest of many minerals.

Where is this land, awakening from the long sleep into which it was lulled by the ice ages?

It is that giant peninsula bounded on the east by the Atlantic Ocean, on the north by Hudson Strait, on the west by Hudson Bay, and on the south by the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

It contains about 450,000 square miles. The eastern part, more than one-quarter of it, belong to Newfoundland and is called Labrador. The rest is part of Quebec and, except for the southern shore, is called Ungava, or New Quebec. It comprises about one-eighth of all Canada.

ROMANTIC STORY

What has happened to bring it into prominence?

Iron ore has been discovered smack in the middle of it.

What is being done to bring out the ore?

A 360-mile railway is being built from where the ore is, in the vicinity of Knob Lake and Burnt Creek, to tidewater at Seven Islands (Sept-Isles), Que., at the wide mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

How do you reach Seven Islands, the entrance to this country?

By plane nearly 500 miles northeast from Montreal; or by train to Mont Joli, Que., on the south side of the St. Lawrence, then across by air, 140 miles.

The discovery and development of the ore, and the building of the railway, is the story of men, and women too, wrestling with the wilderness—people from all parts of Canada and many parts of the world.

The wilderness yields slowly. In my week there, one man was drowned, one killed, two injured, one lost for three days. However, that was a "bad week."

WARNING WILDERNESS

And the wilderness, to give it its due, will likely point a cautioning finger at you as you approach it, to tell you that though this country is rich, it remains stern.

I caught a direct flight from Montreal to Seven Islands—two hours and 35 minutes with a tailwind. Past Quebec, the summer sunshine faded and we flew through fog, rain, and bumpy air. At Seven Islands the ceiling was only 300 feet, and we listened on the earphones as the plane was talked in on the beam.

I asked: "Do you always fly in weather like this?" and I was told:

"If we didn't fly in weather like this, we'd spend a lot of time on the ground."

Labrador-Ungava weather does indeed ring all the changes. In its centre, at Burnt Creek, I saw it rain, shine, snow, shine, hail, shine, blow, all i none day of the "fine weather" season. "Typical," was the local comment.

In winter, at Seven Islands, on the coast, I was told that it blows and blows—first inland and then back to sea. The thermometer may drop to 40, 50, 60 below zero, and still it blows.

One spring day, an ice floe, estimated to weigh 75,000 tons, cut away 300 feet of dock like butter, pilings and all.

In summer, the Seven Islands vicinity is a land of sand; and, in a wind, of sandstorms.

BEAUTY, TOO

Yet the shores rise softly from the sea; and on fine days the miles-long beaches are beautiful. Even the fog and rain have a sombre appeal.

There isn't much mud, either at Seven Islands or north at Burnt Creek. Jeeps and trucks plunge through rain-filled hollows which would scare a motorist in other parts of Canada.

But, in all, though Labrador-Ungava will yield great riches to Canada, it is not a place for vineyards. Neither will there be wheatfields to threaten the golden granary of the west.

AWAKENING LAND.—This vast peninsula, 450,000 square miles—comprising about one-eighth of all Canada—is being opened up as great mineral treasures, especially iron ore, are found. A 360-mile railway is being built from the vicinity of Burnt Creek to Seven Islands, Que., at the wide mouth of the St. Lawrence. Iron for Canada and the United States will come from the huge development in the Labrador-Ungava region.

WILDERNESS BEAUTY. — Labrador-Ungava has a tranquil as well as a rugged side. One hundred miles north of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Wacuna Lake presents an inviting picture of wilderness beauty, serene and peaceful but only experienced woodsmen would venture into the wilds which surround it.

WINTER ROAD.—Winter and summer supplies for the Ungava iron-ore project are carried across this tote-road. Vehicles buck the snow and cold at Mile 82 camp, one of the stops on the route from Seven Islands, Que., to the centre of Labrador-Ungava.

MacDonald Says Trade Unions Great Bulwark Of Democracy

OTTAWA (CP)—Unfettered trade unions are one of the greatest bulwarks of democracy in post-war West Germany, Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said yesterday. Mr. MacDonald talked to newspaper men at a press conference on his return from the recent general council meeting in Berlin of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, anti-Communist world union group. The Sydney, N.S., man is on the executive of the 53,000,000-member I.C.F.T.U.

He said German labor has been rebuilding trade unionism strongly since the war, and the Berlin meeting of the 69-country organization was a tribute to their work.

Unless more is done for the people of under-developed countries, he said, Communism might extend its hold. East Asian delegates at the council had said something must be done soon or "anything may happen."

Mr. MacDonald said he had found a too-prevalent idea that Canada is a mecca for immigrants. He had sought to dissuade fellow delegates from the idea that all immigrants have to do is "come to Canada and they are all set."

Feud Threatens To Split Scottish Clan

By KINGSLEY BROWN, JR.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. ANN'S, N.S. (CP)—A feud that has been only whispered among Cape Breton's lochs and glens for 70 years threatens to split the Scottish clan MacNeil, reputed to be the proudest of them all.

The split arose when Robert Lister MacNeil, New York broker and generally-accepted chief of MacNeils of Barra throughout the world, was invited to open the annual Gaelic mod here Aug 7.

It raised bitter cries from MacNeils of the nearby communities of Pipe's Cove, Castle Bay and Barra Glen, who claim as their heriditary chief a 52-year-old railroad sectionman named Colin MacNeil of Vernon River, P.E.I.

These MacNeils, who comprise 90 per cent of their clan in Nova Scotia and help make Cape Breton Canada's last Scottish stronghold, declared Robert Lister a "pretender" and demanded Colin be recognized as chief. They said they will protest at the mod.

CLAIMS CHIEFTAINSHIP

"By all rights, mon, I'm chief of all MacNeils," said Colin yesterday. "Although I've never learned the Gaelic, I know my father went to Scotland in 1900 and accepted the clan chieftainship.

"When my father died, the title passed down to my brother Wallace, who died about three years ago. Now I'm the chief, mon. There's no doubt about it."

Rev. A. W. R. MacKenzie, Gaelic college director in charge of the mod, has cabled Edinburgh for confirmation that Robert is chief.

The dispute itself stems from a complicated genealogical setup, further complicated by the old Scottish law of tanistry, which permits a laird to transfer his title to one of his choosing.

The majority of MacNeils in the Maritimes claim Robert is a member of the junior branch of the family while Colin, whose brother Wallace was head of the senior branch, belongs to the senior.

Robert petitioned in 1913 that he be permitted to use the MacNeil coat of arms. Permission was granted, but with the stipulation that the arms bear "second son's difference."

Early history of the MacNeils is uncertain. But they tell of being a powerful clan at the time of the Flood and claim that while Noah had an ark, the MacNeils had one of their own.

Until recent times, when the chief was in residence at Castle Barra, four trumpeters would stride to the battlements, blow four blasts to north, south, east and west, and proclaim: "The great MacNeil of Barra, having finished his repast, the princes of the earth may dine."

Whatever the outcome, MacNeils generally hope their ancient Gaelic battle cry of "Buaidh no Bas" (victory or death) will not be taken too seriously.

Shoot 'Em Down

BRAMPTON (CP) — Councillor F. F. Beckett suggested to council yesterday that housewives be supplied with shotguns and an open season declared on low-flying airplanes. The councillor—himself a commercial pilot—said the planes, flying as low as 500 feet, frighten residents. Brampton is eight miles northeast of Malton airport, and is near the R.C.A.F. station at Downsview.

See 5-Week Hot Spell Nearing End

Mass of Cooler Air From West To Bring Showers

Cooler.

That's what the weatherman said today. Cooler. Showers, thundershowers, temperatures droping sharply.

In most summers, people in the Peterborough district are inclined to cuss out rain as being nothing but so-and-so interference with their holidays. Not so today. They gazed at the morning's gray sky with a good deal of hope and respect, and welcomed the brief rain that fell.

The weatherman said as well that the cold air moving in from the west could bring an end to the hot spell. That followed on the heels of an earlier, gloomier prediction of 95-degree heat with all sorts of humidity.

High temperature Thursday should be about 75. Thundershowers were forecast for late this afternoon.

The effects of the hot weather have been mixed. The district wheat crop has not been damaged excessively, and potatoes and corn have flourished. The expected surplus of milk, predicted earlier in the year, has dwindled to a small increase.

Pasture fields suffered in the early part of the hot spell, but lately have recovered their greenness. City gardens have suffered somewhat because of a lack of water, and lawns have turned brown in many parts of the city.

The strawberry crop was cut short by the excessive heat, and it may be too late for the raspberry crop to get a lift from the predicted rains.

TWIN CALVES were born about a day apart to Nellie, a Holstein cow owned by Thomas Medland who has a small holding on Hilliard St. The youngsters are doing fine. Tuesday night Mr. Medland sold the cow and her calves because, since he sold six acres of his holding, he has not enough pasture for them. This is the first time the seven-year-old cow has given birth to twins. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Tries To Avoid Skunk Car Rolls Over

Taxi Driver Escapes With Cut Thumb New Car Wrecked

A skunk darting across the highway early today caused an accident that resulted in a 1952-model car being wrecked and minor injuries to the driver.

Lucky to escape with only a small cut on left thumb as well as a few bruises was 34-year-old Jimmy Turner, a Peterborough taxi driver who lives in Bridgenorth. The accident was on Highway 28, three miles southwest of the city.

LIGHTS SHOW SKUNK

As Turner was driving toward Peterborough about 3 a.m. his headlights shone on a skunk trying to run across the highway. Not wanting to run over it, Turner swung to the left and went off onto the shoulder of the highway. The car went out of control and rolled over three times, finally coming to rest on its roof, about 60 feet from where it left the northern edge of the paved surface.

The driver's door was wedged up against an earth bank so Turner had to kick out the window on the passenger's side to get free.

At that time an unidentified man who had been gathering dewworms in a nearby field came up. He had heard the crash. And he volunteered to take Turner into Peterborough in his own car.

The car, that had only been in taxi service about two weeks, received about $1,400 damage. It was towed out of the ditch by a truck from Kawartha Garage.

O.P.P. Constable John Cawood investigated the freak accident.

75 Traffic Cones Needed School Opening

Traffic safety cones, warning motorists to go slow because they are entering a school zone are a big help in controlling traffic at intersections where children have to cross going to and from school, Costable Don Mackay said today.

When school opens in September, Constable Mackay who is organizing school safety patrols in city schools, hopes to have 75 of the yellow and black cones to place at all main intersections.

"They are the answer to controlling and slowing down traffic at controlled intersections," said Constable Mackay.

The Prince of Wales Home and School Association has purchased two of the cones for the patrols and Constable Mackay is enthusiastic about their effectiveness.

IN CENTRE OF ROAD

They are placed in the middle of the street, about 75 or 100 feet ahead of the school safety patrol and where the two cones have been used, at Sherbrooke St., and Clonsilla Ave., they have caused motorists to slow down from 30 to 15 miles an hour.

The money voted by the Police Commission has been used to purchase rain coats and other necessary equipment for the school patrols and there is no more available this year to purchase the traffic cones.

They cost about $13 each. Constable Mackay is hoping that other home and school associations and organizations interested in promoting safety and seeing that every precaution is taken to ensure that no children are killed or seriously injured on their way to school, will purchase some of the traffic cones so he will have a number of them when school reopens.

C-O-O-L Water

In these dog days one of the minor pleasures is a good cold drink of water. And because the Otonabee River—the city's source of water—is warm at this time of year, some means of cooling it must be found. Tourists and local residents, often critical of the city council, have a pat on the back for one piece of foresight that has been shown. Three times a week some 500 pounds of ice is put into each of five drinking fountain pits in public parks scattered throughout the city. The Sanitary Ice and Fuel Ltd. have the contract and pack in 7,500 pounds of ice every week. A cool and refreshing drink of water can be had at fountains in Confederation Square and at Victoria, Inverlea, King Edward and Riverside Parks.

Girl, 10, Saved From Trent River

HASTINGS (ENS)—Lois Dugan, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Dugan of Norwood, nearly drowned here Monday afternoon when she got into difficulties while swimming in the Trent River.

She was rescued by Morgan Hazelwood, 19, of Hastings. He was swimming in the river some distance away when he heard a cry for help. He ran along the river bank to where Lois' companion, Doris Clark of Hastings, was standing and at a loss to know what to do.

Doris pointed to the river and said Lois had disappeared.

The youth jumped in and seized her as she was sinking near the east bank of the river. Though she had gone down a couple of times and had swallowed a few mouthfuls of water Lois did not need artificial respiration.

She has been staying at the home of her cousin Doris for a holiday.

Morgan Hazelwood is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hazelwood of Hastings.

Cooler Air Brings Break For U.S. Midwest

CHICAGO (AP)—Cooler weather moved into the midwest today, bringing relief to some sections of the swelter belt.

The weather bureau said the cooler air will spread over all of the midwestern states and eastward through the Great Lakes region and Ohio valley by tomorrow.

But temperatures were expected to continue high from Texas eastward to the coast.

It was hot yesterday in the area extending from the southern Rockies, eastward over the plains and Mississippi valley to the Atlantic coast.

OVER 100 DEGREES

Lamar, Colo., had a high of 105 degrees. Garden City, Kas., reported 102, Nashville, Tenn., 103. Highest temperature reported was at Needles, Calif.—112.

Six deaths in Baltimore were attributed to the 100-degree heat. Another 49 persons were prostrate.

A sustained heat spell so far is making this the hottest month in New York on record. Eight of the last 12 days have been above 90 with the other four above 85.

Pope Urges Russians Return To Truth

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Pope, in his first apostolic letter to all the peoples of Russia, has appealed to them to "return to truth and to the right path."

"Undoubtedly," the Pontiff wrote "we have condemned and rejected, as the duty of our office demands, the errors which the promoters of atheistic Communism teach and try to propagate to the greatest detriment and misfortune of the citizens."

But, he added, "we do not turn away" the persons who are in error.

"We desire that they should return to the truth and the right path," he said.

The letter will be broadcast to the Russian people by Vatican radio.

Marmora Youth Dies At Dentist's, Had Weak Heart

MARMORA (ENS) —A 20-year-old Marmora youth died Tuesday afternoon in a dentist's office shortly after four teeth had been extracted.

The youth, Donald Davidson, had been given anaesthetic by Dr. S. R. Beatty of Madoc, and dentist Dr. Grant Fraser extracted the teeth. Death was attributed to a heart condition and no inquest will be held.

Dr. G. L. Mullin and Dr. S. Eagleson were summoned, and artificial respiration was used without effect. Davidson ceased to breathe shortly after the teeth were extracted.

Davidson was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson of Marmora, and was a popular member of St. Paul's Anglican Church. He delivered groceries for the F. R. Loveless store.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers and six sisters: Clayton of Coe Hill, Sam of Marmora, Mrs. George Marriott (Dola) of Niagara Falls, Mrs. William Tompkins (Margaret) of Trenton, Mrs. Cecil Neal (Verna), Mrs. James McMurray (Grace), and Mrs. Clifford McCaw (Myrtle), all of Marmora, and Laura at home. ## Noisy Car Horns In Weddings May Bring Fines

Horn blowing by motorists in wedding processions has reached the point where it is an annoyance and a nuisance, Police Chief John Thompson said today.

Chief Thompson served notice his men will be cracking down on car drivers from now on who serenade newlyweds with a raucous chorus of blaring horns.

Last Saturday was the peak Saturday for weddings in the city when more than 20 couples were married and the blowing of horns reached the point of annoying people working downtown on Saturday afternoon. There may be prosecutions in the future," Chief Thompson said.

The desk sergeant was kept busy all day, answering the telephone to hear complaints of irate citizens whose tempers were frayed by having their ear drums continually vibrated by the blast of horns. The horn blowing was further intensified by the heavy traffic which slowed down traffic and resulted in the honeymooners taking longer to get through the city.

CONTRARY TO LAW

It is contrary to both the Highway Traffic Act and a local anti-noise by-law to blow a car horn long enough to make an unreasonable noise that annoys people in the vicinity.

Under the Highway Traffic Act, there is a penalty of $5 and costs but the fine under the local by-law can be up to $50 and costs.

One man has already been convicted so far this year and fined $10 and $2.50 costs. The charge was laid against William Edward Oliver, 564 Hamilton St., in May, when he continued to blow his horn in a wedding procession after he had been asked to stop by Constable Andre Dalton.

Unless friends of honeymoon bound couples and other motorists who honk their horns at cars decorated with wedding streamers refrain from the practice, Chief Thompson indicated they run the risk of being charged and having to pay fines.

DOROTHY DIX

Living In The Past Really Retards Cure Of A Broken Heart

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Being 25 years old, I know I should be ready to settle down with a husband and family, but I am afraid to face reality. I have carried a torch for one man for too many years. He married someone else, and I cannot forget him. I've become bitter and keep telling myself I'll never again fall in love so completely. A few months ago I moved from my home town but go back every chance I get. I live in the past, enjoying the fact that everyone knows of my heartbreak. I don't even think of the future.

Recently, I met a fine young man who says he loves me and wants ao marry me. He, too, has had heartbreak but isn't carrying a torch like I am. I feel he would be a wonderful husband but am afraid there would be times when my mind would wander to the past as it often does now. The young man says he believes I will straighten out if I stay away from my home town. He is trying to help me; and that's what I need. Could I be happy with him? Do you think I'll ever settle my mind and be a normal girl living a normal life? M. I.

ANSWER: You most assuredly need a drastic change of attitude and have fortunately been blessed with a friendship that may help you attain it. Recovery from a severe emotional shock seldom is automatic. You have settled down into a state of actually enjoying your melancholy and the dramatic sensation of being a heartbroken and deserted heroine. Your dominant feeling is not love for the man who jilted you, but pity for your own plight—which is not nearly so tragic as you assume.

Self-pity is the most devastating of all human feelings; to give way to it continually is to mark you as a lost woman —a fate most unbefitting a girl of 25. Wake up to the futility of your wasted love, the possibilities of a fine future, the existence of a happy, produtive present.

MANY HAVE SURVIVED

Many women have shared your experience—in fact, most women at one time or another have been sure their hearts were eternally broken. Somehow or other they survived the tragedy of betrayed love and lived to look back on the experience with a smile—if not actual laughter. You can have the same happy ending to your story, provided you begin now to put all thought of your former sweetheart behind you. Stop dwelling on the misery he has caused you, stop revelling in the limelight you now enjoy as a wan, jilted maiden. The days when a broken romance doomed a girl to eternal grief were in the last century—they have no place in this atomic age.

You are lucky to have found a man who cares enough for you to put up with your lamentations over a lost love. He deserves better treatment than that, doesn't he? Count your blessings and forget the tragedies of the past. But don't marry your nice young man until you are sure that you have buried the past, and buried it deep! A good husband is entitled to more than the dregs of a warmed-over romance. When you can go back to your home town with no desire to dwell on memories, you're cured! And make it soon! Time's a wastin'!

DEAR MISS DIX: When I was a small child I had a serious operation which left me hard of hearing. I had to be taken out of school in the tenth grade because of illness. Now I can't seem to find any friends. I am 20 years old and don't want people to feel sorry for me, but it does make me lonely to stay home all the time because of my hearing. B. B.

ANSWER: You are by no means in a hopeless predicament. Hearing aids are so efficient today, and so inconspicuous that they can be worn almost without detection. My strongest suggestion would be to get one, then make an attempt to further your education, though you write a beautiful letter for a girl who didn't finish high school.

If you would like to work on a worthwhile project, contact your local home or school for the deaf, where your experience as a hard-of-hearing person would equip you admirably to help others with even less hearing. It would also help you to make a place for yourself in the world. Poor hearing need no longer cut people off from society as it once did.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I want to join the WAC but have no idea how to go about it. Can you give me the information? ROSE K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The Army Recruiting Station in the city nearest you will give you complete information on joining the service and will be very glad to help you.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cabbage Has Many Uses Cooked With Imagination

It is a good cabbage year. I have it straight from a cabbage head. Sure — he operates a cabbage patch so he's head of it, isn't he? Quick-cooled wedges of cabbage are good I know, especially with boiled or corned beef, but we want to be different in this cooking club, so let's use cabbage as if it were a delicacy and serve it with an air.

If you are truly European-cookery-minded you will ladle sour cream over these Kol Dolmer while they are baking and when eating. You won't do it without coaxing if you are Canadian so I should keep quiet. Try it just once. I did and I'm Canadian to the marrow bone. It was delicious.

AN INEXPENSIVE SUPPER

Kol Dolmer (cabbage rolls)
Stuffed Tomato Salad
Quality Bread Pudding (for Mrs. Stuart M.)
Iced Tea or Coffee

DIRECTIONS—KOL DOLMER

Ask the butcher to grind you 1 lb. beef and ½ lb. shoulder pork together. Mix these with 1 cup raw washed rice, 1 chopped onion, 1 teaspoon each sugar and salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Separate the leaves from a medium-sized cabbage — a fresh bright green one rib from the biggest outside — and trim the thick part of the leaves. Drop them into pot of boiling water and let boil 1 minutes — just to wilt them. Lift the mout and drain. Put a heaping dessertspoonful of the meat mixture in each cabbage leaf. Roll the leaf up half way and fold ends in, not too tightly, and finish rolling up. Place folded side down in buttered baking dish, having each roll just touching. Dot cabbage with butter and add 1 cup boiling water, or better still 1½ cups tomato juice or canned tomatoes, or even better still 1 cup sour cream. Cover and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours, then remove cover and bake at 275 for last ½ hour — giving them 2 hours in all. Do not try to turn or baste them or they will break. Carefully lift to hot platter to serve.

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD

Place each tomato on a small plate on bed of lettuce, having cut tomato nearly through into quarters. Fill centre with mixture of cottage cheese, chives and mayonnaise OR spoonful of mixture of finely chopped celery, green pepper and crisp bacon and mayonnaise. Top with sprig of parsley.

Farmer Sells Produce Using Honor System — Successful

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (NEA). — The neatly-printed "self-service" sign at the Roselawn Poultry Farm's roadstand means exactly what it says—even when it comes to using the cash box.

Putting his customers strictly on the "honor system," proprietor Albert M. Gonsalves lets them drive up, enter, select their purchases, leave their money in the cash box and depart. If necessary, they even make their own change — all without anyone around to watch them.

ALBERT GONSALVES: His poultry plan didn't lay an egg.

So far, despite the temptations offered, no appreciable shortages have ever been discovered; either in products or money. Sometimes, there'll be a penny or two short at the end of the day, but just as many other times there'll be a penny or two over.

This Gonsalves attributes to the inability of some customers to count out their change properly.

All goods are prepared for sale beforehand. Poultry is dressed and kept in a freezer. Eggs are priced marked in individual containers, and garden vegetables are put in sacks. All the customer has to do is make his selection and pay for it. If he wants to weigh something, he can do that, too.

The stand is now a large operation, with receipts equivalent to those of a good-sized grocery. Local competitors flock to look it over.

All items come from the large Gonsalves farm, which contains 4,000 laying hens, 5,000 growing birds and a large assortment of crops.

NOT SURPRISED

Farmer Gonsalves isn't surprised at the success of his "honor system."

"Most people have basic honorable qualities," he says. "When left to themselves, their sense of honor and pride prevents them from overstepping the line, even when tempation is at its greatest, as it is here."

To lessen the "temptation" he talks about, Gonsalves goes down to the stand once or twice a day to relieve the cash box of bills of larger denominations.

Otherwise, it's completely "hands off" from a vigilance angle — which would certainly have startled Diogenes.

QUALITY BREAD PUDDING
(For Mrs. Stuart B.)

In top of double boiler heat 2 cups whole milk to scalding. When hot pour this over 4 cups coarse breadcrumbs or stale crustless white bread cut into ¼-inch cubes. When this is cool pour over it a mixture of 2 beaten eggs, ¼ cup melted butter, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup seeded raisins, and 1 teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg. Stir a little then pour into buttered baking dish to 2/3 its depth. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes or until silver knife comes out clean when inserted.

VARIATIONS: To make a custardy type bread pudding increase milk to 3½ cups and reduce bread to 2½ cups. To make Chocolate bread pudding melt 2 squares unsweetened chocolate in the milk when it is heating.

A delicious Spice Breadcrumb Pudding may be made too: Mix together 1 cup each soft breadcrumbs and buttermilk. Mix together very well 2 tablespoon molasses, 3 tablespoons soft butter and 1 cup brown sugar. Stir in the soaked bread mixture. Sift together ½ cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon cinnamon and shake of cloves. Stir into the mixture, then add ½ cup seeded or seedless raisins or dates. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. in buttered baking dish for about 20 or 25 minutes. Quality Bread Pudding or any of these others are delicious with Hard Sauce.

Ottawa Takes One-Half Of Doubleheader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It isn't often that the cellar-dwelling Ottawa Athletics get a chance to howl. But they still were talking today about the masterful pitching job turned in by Charlie Bishop last night when he shut out Syracuse Chiefs in the second half of a doubleheader.

After Arnie Landeck tossed a two-hit, seven-inning shutout in the first game to give the Chiefs a 2-0 decision, Bishop came back and yielded only three safeties in the standard nightcap as his mates took the game 1-0.

He was under pressure all the way, but struck out eight, most of them in critical moments. Ottawa scored its only run in the first inning when Harvey Gentry singled and went to third on an error by John Blatnick. He got home on a rounder by Jack Littrell.

In the opener Carden Gillenwater hit his fifth home run and Ben Zientara hit a fly with a man on third to account for both Chief runs.

PICK UP HALF

Rochester Red Wings picked up a half-game on Montreal Royals by splitting a doubleheader with Springfield Cubs, and are two games away from the front-runners. The Wings took the first 4-3 and the Cubs the nightcap 8-2.

Royals dropped a 3-2 decision to Toronto Maple Leafs, while Buffalo Bisons and Baltimore Orioles split a twin bill. Bisons grabbed the first 4-3 but the Orioles came back to win the second 1-0.

500 Delegates Expected At Red Cross Conference

TORONTO (CP)—The 18th International Red Cross conference, first to be held in Canada, opens here today against a background of possible controversy between East and West.

Delegations from Communist China and North Korea were expected to register this afternoon and the feeling was that these and other Communist delegates would bring to the convention floor germ-warfare charges against the United States.

Five hundred delegates are expected from 68 countries and another 500 observers—statesmen, diplomats and medical men—are anticipated.

International newspaper correspondents and radio men have arrived to report the meetings. The BBC and radio networks of Switzerland, Belgium, France and Luxembourg are arranging broadcasts. Tass, the oficial Soviet news agency, is sending a correspondent and so is radio Peiping in Red China.

REDS DUE TODAY

For several days there was no word from the Chinese and North Korean delegations. Then they turned up in Prague and it was learned here last night they were due to arrive at Gander, Nfld. early today and Toronto in the afternoon.

Seating arrangements are being handled by lot and it is possible delegates of opposing political views from North and South Korea will find themselves sitting side by side.

Delegates will listen to the discussions in three languages—English, French and Spanish—through a simultaneous translation system with small portable receiving sets. They can use 70 microphones to state their views.

The Spanish delegation arrived yesterday and denied reports it had been held on Ellis Island at the Port of New York by U.S. officials. Manuel Martinez de Tina, president of the Spanish Red Cross and head of the delegation, said that because of a misunderstanding the delegates were delayed on board their ship for some 20 minutes.

Democrats Planning To Unveil New Platform On Civil Rights

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

CHICAGO (AP)—Democrats, in a surprising display of harmony, planned to unveil their new platform today. It contains a compromise "civil-rights" plank.

Tentative drafts of two key planks—foreign policy and labor—were handed to reporters Tuesday night as the platform architects applied final polish to their handiwork.

All 108 members of the full platform committee were called into closed-door session today to go over the document word by word.

Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, who has been pushing the work day and night, was confident the full committee would approve the final version, produced by a sub-group. That would send the document out to convention hall for consideration later in the day.

SECTION REVISED

Those who helped frame the "civil-rights" plank said it is a revision of a 1948 section that plunged the national convention into a bitter floor battle. Many Southern Democrats bolted that convention and four states remained outside the Democratic column in the election.

The new plank was said to promise Negro and other minority groups equal opportunities to vote and work, security of person and an end to discriminations based on race, color, religion or origin.

It avoids specific proposals that have proved offensive to Southerners, who contend that racial problems are best handled at state and local levels.

Also softened were demands of Senator Herbert Lehman of New York and other Northerners for a tough "and-filibuster" plank calling for revision of Senate rules. The filibuster is a device which has been used effectively to block anti-discrimination measures in Congress.

GENERAL TERMS

The plank in general terms proposes improved congressional law-making machinery without specific mention of "filibuster" or Senate rules.

Both the foreign policy and labor planks, pointed with pride at 20 years of Democratic accomplishments and viewed with alarm the new Republican platform.

The labor plank once more urged —but did not promise—repeal of the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act. It permits anti-strike injunctions and other measures labor deplores.

In the foreign policy plank, the Democrats, as did the Republicans, put world peace as the top goal.

"We urge continued effort, by every honorable means, to bring about a fair and effective peace settlement in Korea in accordance with the principles of the United Nations Charter," it said.

In plugging for collective security, the plank said, "We reject the ridiculous notions of those who would have the United States face the aggressors alone."

And of immigration and naturalization laws: "We are determined also to eliminate distinction between native-born and naturalized citizens. We want no 'second-class' citizens in free America."

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eleanor Holm Jarrett, United States swimming star, was dropped from her country's Olympic team 16 years ago today. Shortly before her Berlin-bound steamer dropped anchor, the 22-year-old backstroke champ lost her place through alleged repeated violation of training rules aboard ship. Later she married Billy Rose.

Novel Toys

COPENHAGEN (CP)—City Council decided some years ago to give children life-size toys. On playgrounds they placed a fire engine, a railway engine and a fishing boat. The children were delighted. The far-sighted councillors now are placing tramcars on the playgrounds, hoping to increase the intake of apprentice conductors.

Aussie Jumper Equals World Record

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Helsinki (CP)—The onslaught on Olympic track and field records began early today, fourth day of the 1952 Olympic Games that opened under a steady drizzle of rain in raw and cold weather. The stands were nearly full.

Shirley Strickland da la Hunty of Australia broke the Olympic record and equalled the world mark today in winning a heat in the women's 80-metre hurdles.

Yvette Williams of New Zealand set a new mark of 6.16 metres (20 feet, 2.52 inches) in qualifying for the final round of the women's broad jump. The old record was 18 feet, 8.02 inches, made by Olga Gymarmati of Hungary in 1948.

CANADIAN QUALIFIES

Dawn Josephs of Victoria qualified with a jump of 17 feet, 6.23 inches. The qualification mark was 17 feet, 4.66 inches. Rosella Thorne of Montreal fouled out on three tries.

In the hop, step and jump competition Adhmarada Silva of Brazil beat his own world record of 16.01 metres (52 feet, 6.30 inches) with a tremendous leap of 16.22 metres (52 feet, 10.66 inches).

Harrison Dillard of the United States tied his own Olympic record of 13.9 seconds in placing first in a heat of the 110-metre high hurdles.

Gordon Crosby, Toronto policeman, placed third in a heat and failed to qualify.

Two Australians were heat winners, Ken Doubleday and Ray Weinberg.

The first two men in each heat qualified. Only 35 countries were entered, one of the smallest fields of the entire games.

Russia came up with a heat winner on Eugenij Bulanchik, who was timed in 14.4. Jack Davis and Art Barnard were other Americans to win heats in addition to Dillard.

Peter Hilldreth of Great Britain qualified by placing second to Barnard.

BEATEN BY STEP

Crosby missed qualifying by a whisker. Both he and Frederick Parker of Great Britain were caught in 14.8 behind Australia's Doubleday, but parker was placed second by the judges. Crosby was beaten by scarcely a step.

In the dressing room later he said: "No alibis. I thought I was in."

In the second half of the field in the hop, step and jump qualifying round, Leonid Scherbakov of Russia headed the list with 49 feet, 4.53 inches—nearly a foot below Da Silva's record-shattering mark made on one of his tries. Canada had no entries in this event.

Da Silva's achievement also broke the Olympic record of 16 metres (52 feet, 5.93 inches) set by Naota Tajima of Japan in 1936 at Berlin.

Mill Seeks Court Order To Start Production

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A rayon mill here is seeking a court order to force the government to let it start up its machines.

The company's petition told this story:

The government says the mill can't run because its machines are not the latest type.

The machines were up-to-date when the millowners first asked for the government okay—two years ago.

The government took so long to give the go-ahead, the machines now are obsolete.

Bethany Triumphs

BETHANY — (ENS). — One of the best games of the North Durham series was played here on Monday night with the final score 4-1 for Bethany over Blackstock.

Family Of Five Hitch-Hike To New York

NEW YORK (CP)—A family of five Canadian hitch-hikers, including one only six months old, left here yesterday on the return journey home to Toronto.

The group hitch-hiked to New York from Toronto in two days. The family left Toronto with $32. The return trip was begun with only $4.

The trip was made by Frank Peter, 49, his wife Laura, 32, and their three sons, Frank Jr., 8; Tom, 4, and the baby, David.

They left Toronto Friday night and travelled in 21 different vehicles. They took along knapsacks containing various canned foods and baby food.

Peter, a lithographer, said nearly everyone who heard about the trip thought he had "bats in his belfry."

"This was our vacation," said Mrs. Peter, "and although it was an unusual one, it was wonderful."

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Even the most ardent Ottawa Rough Rider fan won't be able to tell what's going on without a program when the Dominion champions open the 1952 football season Aug. 9 with an exhibition game against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Practices started this week, and railbirds found less than a dozen of last year's Grey Cup champions back for the opening whistle.

Coach Clem Crowe has rounded up 12 American imports to work for the eight spots allowed by Big Four regulations. Judging by his choices, Crowe—an old lineman who played under Knute Rockne in Notre Dame's balmy days—will field a weighty team.

Tom O'Malley, who quarterbacked Riders' Grey Cup win over Saskatchewan Roughriders last November, will have the support of a couple of giants. They are Harry Ulinski, 245-pound, six-foot-four snap who was with Washington Redskins last year, and Lloyd McDermott, 250-pound University of Kentucky middle.

Besides O'Malley, last year's import holdovers are Bill Stanton, outside, Alton Baldwin, pass-catching end, and lineman John Bovey. Both Howie Turner, Riders' star running half, and John Wagoner, All-Star lineman, are classed as Canadians this year.

Canadians back with the team are Bruce Cummings, kicking star, Ottawa home-brews Benny MacDonell, Frank Dunlap and Buck Rogers, end Matt Anthony and the goat-or-hero Pete Karpuk, whose play in leaping from the bench to tackle an opponent drew wide attention last fall.

MARY LOU TO RACE

Mary Lou O'Connor from Warwick Downs, R.I., invades Toronto harness racing circles today to drive against men at Thorncliffe Raceway. Mary Lou will drive her own pacer, Sweet Prince, in the day's secondary pacing feature. She brings a stable of four horses to campaign on the Toronto track.

NEW COACH COMING

Louis Passador, 30, will report in Kitchener Sept. 15 as the new coach of Kitchener Greenshirts of the O.H.A. junior "A" series, it was announced yesterday. Passador, of the Western Canada junior hockey finalists, Fort William Hurricanes, last year, succeeds Lloyd Gross of Kitchener.

WANTS TRYOUT

Al Dekdebrun, the United States quarterback Toronto Argos cut loose in the 1951 football season, wants a tryout with the 1952 team. Bob Moran, Argo president, said in Toronto yesterday "we have to give it quite a bit of thought" after Dekdebrun, who sparked the Argos to the Dominion championship in 1950, reported that the sore arm which hampered him last year is completely better.

TO PLAY IN 'PEG

Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Canadian women's Close and Open golf champion, will play an exhibition match in Winnipeg tomorrow. She will stop over there en route to the 1952 championships at Edmonton. She will team up with Les Beaven, professional at St. Charles club, against June Baker, Manitoba women's champion, and Niakwa pro Harold Eidsvig.

CHANNEL SWIMMER FAILS

Egyptian swimmer Mustafa Dawoud, 19, a Cairo radioman, gave up last night on this season's first try at the English Channel. Ten hours and 45 minutes after starting at Cap Gris Nez, he was about six miles short of the English coast—and swimming the wrong way. His coach blamed compass failure in his escort motorboat for the misdirection and failure.

MILWAUKEE IN IHL

Professional hockey apparently will return to Milwaukee this winter. Michael D. Preston, representing Milwaukee stockholders, filed incorporation papers yesterday. He said the team, an International Hockey League entry, will play 30 games in the Arena. Other members of the I.H.L. are Grand Rapids, Toledo, Detroit, Windsor and possibly St. Louis or Louisville.

"COOL CONTROL" the "OVERLAPPING" GRIP

1 Allow club shaft to lie diagonally across the left hands

2 Close fingers for firm but not tight grip on club, with left thumb running down outside of shaft. "V" formed by thumb and forefinger should point to right shoulder.

This is considered finest grip for control of club.

It's control that counts, in golf as in every sport — control which brings the balance, the comfort and the extra quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

TWO PERSONS lost their lives by drowning when their home collapsed during a flash flood in Rockford, Ill., following one of the heaviest rain storms residents of that area have seen for some time. Seven and a half inches of rain fell between midnight and seven a.m. turning this street into a miniature lake and stalling a number of cars when the water reached halfway up the grillwork.

Dismiss Charge Against Official

WATERLOO (CP)—A charge of obstructing police officers against Keith Ross of Guelph, International representative of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), was dismissed yesterday.

Magistrate James Kirkpatrick said the crown did not establish that Ross had even indirect authority over a group of pickets at the strikebound Sunshine Waterloo Co. Ltd. plant who refused to allow the general manager's automobile to leave the grounds without being searched.

The strike began July 3 over a wage dispute and Ross was arrested July 14 after A. M. Snider, general manager, was turned back by pickets for refusing to open his car's trunk.

The magistrate said Ross should have been charged for refusing to aid police when asked to let the car go through.

HERE'S "EGGS-ACTLY" what happened when two trucks, one carrying 1,650 dozen eggs, collided in Seattle, Wash., laying eggs in every form. "Poachers" scrambled around to give the sagging budget a shot-in-the-arm with a few free eggs. Nearly $1,200 worth of eggs came up omelet style in the crash while the car in the background was damaged by the egg shampoo.

Naked 17 Hours In Wild Bush

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fishermen Pete Roche, 27, and his brother, Jack, 22, both formerly of Toronto, arrived here yesterday with a tale of life in the nude along British Columbia's chilly northern coastline.

The brothers spent 17 hours naked in wild, rugged country after they stripped and swam to shore when their 28-foot trawler Rebecca was capsized a week ago in Ylingsby Channel, 315 miles northwest of here.

"We felt like a couple of nature boys running through the bush," Pete said.

They attracted the attention of a fishing boat. They had to swim out to the boat.

Call Mass Meetings Over Tax Increase

TORONTO (CP)—Several mass meetings have been called in suburban Toronto township to protest municipal tax increases ranging from 80 to 300 per cent.

Some residents threatened to refuse to pay their 1952 tax bills, but township comptroller Dean Henderson said yesterday they are "just blowing off steam."

Township officials attributed increases to equalization of assessment—based on 80 per cent of the 1941 real estate replacement values—and high cost of education.

Make Charlotte Texas Admiral

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton has been appointed an admiral of the non-existent Texas navy.

A commission as admiral, properly signed by the Governor of Texas and the Texas Secretary of State and stamped with the seal of the state, arrived yesterday for Miss Whitton.

The commission is the result of a visit here of United States newspaper editors. A Texas editor arranged it.

Mayor Whitton wonders if it entitles her to wear a cocked hat when she pilots her boat, the Mugwump, on McGregor Lake, 25 miles north of here.

AAs Hold Picnic At Trent Bridge

Some 150 members of Alcoholics Anonymous from as far away as Belleville and Toronto held a picnic Sunday at the cottage of Dr. J. Kooms, of Cleveland, at Trent Bridge, south of Havelock.

About 30 went by car from Peterborough and there were members from Port Hope, Belleville, Toronto, Havelock and Keene.

The men spent the day playing sports, fishing and touring the river in boats provided by Dr. Kooms. This is the third year that the picnic has been held at the doctors cottage.

Hiss Denied A New Trial

NEW YORK (AP)—Judge Henry Goddard yesterday denied Alger Hiss another new trial of his perjury conviction. Hiss, former State Department official, had blamed "forgery by typewriter" for the conviction.

Hiss, now serving five years in federal prison, pleaded that he had new evidence that it was possible to fake the typewriter which was a vital piece of evidence against him.

However, Goddard ruled:

"There is no newly-discovered evidence which would justify the conclusion that, if it were presented to a jury, it would probably result in a verdict of acquittal."

Hiss committed perjury by lying under oath in denying that he ever gave State Department secrets to a pre-war Soviet spy ring, and lying about the length of his relationship with Whittaker Chambers, self-styled courier for the ring.

Big Regatta Planned For Bensfort Bridge

The next large regatta of the district this season is July 27 at Bensfort Bridge, on the Otonabee River south of the city. It commences at 1.30 p.m., and concludes in the evening with outdoor movies.

Alf Pink is in charge of the program which includes open events in swim and canoe races, tilting, greasy pole, a three-mile swimming competition, as well as surfboard and skiing and outboard and inboard motorboat races. Herb Cardwell and his sons demonstrate tricks in canoes, and Cliff McInroy does trick diving.

Peterborough ornamental swimmers are an added attraction, besides the many sea cadets in their cutters with their band. Cottagers at Bensfort Bridge and merchants in Peterborough have put up 75 cups for winners. Other information may be had by phoning Alf Pink at 5140. There is no admission charge.

Russia Attempts Block Membership Of West Germany

TORONTO (CP)—Russia and Red China today tried unsuccessfully to block consideration of West Germany's request for membership in the League of Red Cross Societies. The Communist countries' delegates raised the point of exclusion in the opening minutes of the first session of the executive committee of the league. They said the request hadn't been made in time. Yugoslavia and Turkey abstained and 10 other delegations voted for inclusion of West Germany.

It was the first disagreement between east and west of the 18th International Red Cross conference. The Russian opposition, backed by Red China, came on a vote to approve an amendment to the agenda to include the countries requesting admission to the league.

Requests of Ceylon and San Merino were already on the agenda.

Dr. Boris Mikhailovich Pashkov, leader of the Soviet Red Cross and Crescent Societies, speaking in Russian, said a precedent shouldn't be created.

Yesterday the conference was told that restrictions on the flow of foreign exchange have prevented some countries from paying their dues to the League of Red Cross Societies.

The problem was raised at a closed meeting of the finance committee of the league, made up of national Red Cross organizations, and disclosed later in a press release. Non-payers were not identified. The announcement said that Soviet Russia and Communist China have paid their dues for this year.

The payments by the two Communist countries was taken as a heartening sign. They are expected to raise a rumpus about germ warfare and prisoners-of-war in connection with Korea. Since they have paid their dues, delegates here from some 68 countries believe the Communists plan to continue their link with the Red Cross.

Some delegates had expressed fears this would be the last conference of the International Red Cross—one of the last links between East and West.

UN Planes Stage Heavy Raid In Wonsan Area

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United Nations planes set out in force over North Korea today in a follow-up to yesterday's deadly co-ordinated bombing of Communist port and power installations by hundreds of carrier- and land-based planes.

Some 200 United States, South Korean, South African and Australian jets and bombers teamed with navy planes from two fast U.S. carriers Wednesday. Their target was the Wonsan area of northeastern Korea.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force said its Sabre jets and fighter bombers went out in big numbers again today.

HILL BATTLE SLOWS

On the ground, the eight-day battle for Old Baldy Hill west of Chorwon fell off to sporadic artillery, mortar and small-arms fire. Associated Press photographer George Sweers said the Chinese still held the crest of the western-front hotspot.

The navy said planes from the carriers Bon Homme Richard and Princeton demolished three steam electric plants near the battered port of Wonsan.

Other U.N. aircraft turned Osan, a Communist supply port 10 miles south of Wonsan, into a raging inferno. More than 80 buildings were levelled, amid considerable other damage.

Communist and Allied troops patrolled and probed all across the 155-mile ground front Wednesday and this morning.

27 Injured By New 'Quake

TEHACHAPI, Calif. (AP)—Continuing heavy aftershocks of the great Tehachapi earthquake have injured another 27 persons in this devastated community.

The new jolts also hit hard at nearby Arvin, now almost as badly damaged as Tehachapi. Several severe tremors yesterday collapsed the fronts of previously-cracked buildings in both towns. Several structures that weathered the big shock Monday collapsed under the new onslaught.

Joe Barber, public information officer of the Red Cross, said two persons in Tehachapi suffered broken bones and 25 other were cut and bruised in the new shocks yesterday.

Scientists said the first giant upheaval—which caused 12 deaths and an estimated $100,000,000 damage in southern California—was caused by earth slipping along more than 25 miles of the Bear Mountain fault.

U.S. Cost Of Living Reaches All-Time High

WASHINGTON (CP)—The cost of living in the United States soared to an all-time high in mid-June, the Bureau of Labor Statistics disclosed today.

Figures released by the bureau show that on June 15 the price of food, clothing, rent, entertainment and other daily living costs averaged 189.6 per cent of the 1935-39 period.

This was 11.4 per cent higher than two years ago, just before the start of the Korean war.

The cost-of-living index jumped one-half of a point over the previous record high of last January, under the pressure of higher costs for food, rent, and miscellaneous goods and services.

About 40,000 wage-earners may get a pay increase as a result of the new index. These workers have contracts which tie their wages to the rise and fall of the index.

Geologist Snaps Four Flying Saucer Photos

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France (AP)—Andre Fregnale, a geologist, claimed today he had snapped four photographs of a flying saucer over this south-central French city.

He said he had seen the object at 5 p.m. one day last week and that it was flying at from 9,000 to 24,000 feet.

The object was like an oval saucer, he said, with brilliant light in the centre which he guessed came from "some kind of gyroscopic system, turning very rapidly which would explain the reflection that is very clearly seen in my pictures."

Search Party Loses Contact Briefly

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP)—A search party seeking the wreckage of two aircraft which collided in mid-air Tuesday lost radio communication with the R.C.A.F. base here briefly yesterday but never was considered lost itself, R.C.A.F. spokesmen said today.

The party was one of three that went into the hilly and heavily-wooded countryside where the aircraft crashed 30 miles south of here. It never did reach the wreckage—though the others did—and returned to base last night.

Air force officials said radio communications have been poor in the crash area.

Boston Forward Hurt In Crash

WEST BRANCH, Mich. (AP)—David Creighton, 22, a forward for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, was injured seriously last night in a head-on automobile collision six miles west of this town, 150 miles northwest of Detroit. Four others were hurt.

Creighton, of Port Arthur, suffered severe lacerations, possible broken ribs and possible chest fracture.

His father, Frank, 61, and his mother, Sadie, 62, also were injured. The mother suffered a possible fractured hip.

Police said Creighton collided with a car driven by Dr. Bordon Bachysnki, 27, of Memphis, Tenn., at the crest of a hill.

Bachynski and his wife, Margaret, 22, were less seriously hurt.

KENNER COLLEGIATE looks like this from the air. The new building which is being prepared for its first classes this fall faces Monaghan Road in the south end between Gillespie Street and Orpington Road. Some 350 students of the south part of the city will have a much shorter trip to school each day when they start.

Seven On Plane Perish In Bog Crash

LAC DU BONNET, Man. (CP)—All seven men aboard a Manitoba Government Air Service plane were found dead yesterday when two helicopters eased down near the plane's wreckage on a spongy, floating bog, 200 miles north of Winnipeg.

"No one alive after impact," was the terse radio message from the desolate spot where the plane crashed into fog-shrouded trees Monday.

All the men were married and their survivors included 15 children.

Piloted by Russell G. Percy, 32, of Lac du Bonnet, the float-equipped Norseman was carrying 6 government employees on a 250-mile trip from Lac du Bonnet to Norway House at the northern tip of Lake Winnipeg.

Besides Percy, the other victims, all from Winnipeg, were: Arthur G. Hanson, 34; Robert H. Frederickson, 35; M. T. Madden; John G Horsburgh, 32; Allan W. McLellan, about 40; Frank East, 40.

The plane vanished in murky weather, 100 miles from its destination. A sister ship, braving continued bad weather, spotted the wreckage Tuesday. It was strewn for 1½ miles across the muskeg.

Two helicopters flew in to the desolate spot yesterday while other planes circled overhead.

The crews were to lay planks and matting on the muskeg so searchers could reach the wreckage without sinking up to their waists.

Newspaper men aboard circling planes said the wreckage indicated one of the plane's pontoons struck a tree as it turned south to make an emergency landing.

A.H.L. Rookie Of Year Injured In Accident

KITCHENER (CP)—Earl (Dutch) Reibel, 21, Indianapolis Capitols star and rookie of the League, is in hospital here with injuries received in a car accident last night.

Reibel received chest abrasions and a bruised left shoulder when the car in which he was riding rolled over at an intersection near Kitchener. His condition today is described as "satisfactory." Four others were hurt in the mishap.

Nominations Ready To Start

CHICAGO (CP)—Delegates to the national Democratic convention today came back to work wearied from 12 hours of oratory and wrangling. They still have to select a Presidential candidate, the job for which they convened here last Monday. Like the Republicans two weeks ago, they spent the first three days of their convention fighting among themselves on and off the convention floor, and in listening to party oratory. Today the nominations are expected, and possibly a start on the balloting which is likely to see Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, a reluctant candidate, take an early lead and probably emerge a winner.

In that event the two old parties will have drafted candidates and overlooked the eager aspirants who have spent much money and effort to sell themselves to the people. Two weeks ago Republicans nominated Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who for a long time stood off requests for his consent to be a candidate.

CHICAGO — (CP) — The draft-Stevenson campaign at the Democratic national convention continued with an announcement by Kansas delegates that they will cast all their 16 votes for Illinois Governor Adlai Stevenson. The new support increased to 188½ the first-ballot strength assured for Stevenson in voting expected to begin tonight.

ADOPT PLATFORM

Early this morning the convention adopted a 10,000-word platform covering virtually everything from world peace "with honor" to protection of the recreation resources for the country's 28,000,000 game hunters and fishermen. Mississippi and Georgia dissented.

The plank on racial discrimination, which has kept the conven-

Canadian Destroyer Iroquois Attacks North Korean Coast

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Canadian destroyer Iroquois today participated in an air-sea attack on the west coast of North Korea. The Iroquois battered troop and artillery positions on the Ongjin peninsula, with British planes working as spotters. On the Yellow Sea coast British carrier-based planes destroyed a transformer station and turned a control house into an inferno with napalm.

The attack was part of a concentrated offensive by carrier-based aircraft on Communist power plants on both the east and west coasts of North Korea.

In a continuation of Gen. Mark Clark's plan to destroy communist power supplies, U.S. planes hit hard at three well-protected plants near Wonsan on the east coast. Damage in each case was estimated as at least 75 per cent.

Corsairs and sky-raiders bombed the area after anti-aircraft positions had been softened by panthier jets.

Naval headquarters told today how a tiny American rocket-ship had a private battle with two 75-m.m shore batteries east of Chinnampo last Tuesday.

After fighting for some time single-handed, the rocket ship got support from the British cruiser Newcastle and the frigate Mounts Bay, who turned their four and six-inch guns on the Communist artillery.

N.Y. Architect Ruled Clan Chief

St. ANN'S, N.S. (CP)—A New York architect was proclaimed true chief of the clan MacNeil last night but Cape Breton's independent Scots were rumored planning to split the honor with a Prince Edward Islander.

Sir Thomas Learney, Lord Lyon King of Arms, called the Gaelic College here that the New Yorker, Robert Lister MacNeil, was "adjudged chief in 1950 and so remains."

Rev. A. W. R. MacKenzie, Gaelic College director, asked Edinburgh for the ruling after a dispute over the rightful holder of the chiefstainship arose when Mr. MacNeil was invited to open the annual mod—or gathering—here Aug. 7.

Colin MacNeil of Vernon River, P.E.I., a 52-year-old railroad sectionman, claims he is the true chief and many Scots back him.

The Gaelic College here, hoping with typical Scotish diplomacy to avoid more violent dispute in the matter, is rumored planning to invite both MacNeils.

9 Die In Explosion

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters)—Nine men were killed by an explosion at the Fabrica Brasil industrial powder factory at Guaretingueta in the state of San Paulo yesterday. One was killed instantly. The others died from burns.

Boy 14 Escapes Guerrilla Toils

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—It may have been just another skirmish in Britain's war with the Communist guerrillas, but to Terry Edmett it was the greatest moment of his 14 years.

The lad, son of an English rubber planter, crouched behind the wheel of an armored car and drove his parents and younger brother to safety through a hail of bullets in a jungle ambush yesterday

When the Communists sprang their trap in the Kotatingga area of Johore the boy was driving his father's armored car out to inspect a rubber estate.

Suddenly terrorists poured in fire from a jungle thicket, the Edmetts returning it from the armored car.

Terry never hesitated. Up the road he went, only to find a burned-out truck had been pushed across as a block by the bushwhackers.

He changed into low gear, and nudged the block into the ditch. Still under fire, he got the car past.

60 Escape In Crash

PITHIVIERS, France (AP)—A four-engined R.A.F. plane with 60 passengers and crew members aboard crashed and exploded in flames near here last night but only one person was seriously hurt. Three others received slight injuries.

The craft, carrying 54 military passengers and a crew of six, was bound from London to Egypt. It crashed when a propellor broke.

National Day of Mourning

Iranian Premier Jubilant At Success

TEHRAN (CP)—Iran today observed a national day of mourning for victims of last Monday's riots, but beneath the solemn observances was an undertone of jubilation on the part of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's National Front supporters.

A high government official said that "all differences between Dr. Mossadegh and the Shah have been ironed out," implying that the Premier had successfully pressed home his demands for wider powers to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi.

Other sources said the Shah had agreed to the appointment of a civilian war minister. Last week his refusal to do this led to Mossadegh's resignation, and the brief regime of Ahmed Qavam, reported variously as now under arrest and having fled the country.

MOURN RIOT VICTIMS

All government offices throughout Iran closed today in mourning for 30 or more persons killed in the street fighting which brought about Qavam's downfall. Flags flew at half-staff.

Mossadegh's election by the Majlis (House of Representatives) was confirmed last night by the senate. A "Hate America" campaign spread to the press, reflecting rising anti-United States feeling here.

The United States rapidly was drawing closer to Britain as an object of public fury. Quoting a Parliament member, the newspaper Bakhtar-e-Emruz — official organ of Mossadegh's national front—said: "The American policy toward Iran is hated by this nation."

Much of the feeling stemmed from a visit by U.S. Ambassador Loy W. Henderson to Qavam during his brief term of office. Qavam set off Monday's riots with a promise to settle Iran's oil dispute with Britain.

CLAIM ANTI-MOSSADEGH

The Nationalists viewed Henderson's visit as support for those opposed to Mossadegh; the American said he was summoned and, as an ambassador, had to go.

All opposition to Mossadegh appeared to have evaporated. One after another, opposition members of Parliament sent letters to the newspapers last night pledging him their support.

The Majlis approval of his return to office was seconded by the Senate without a dissenting vote.

Though he as yet has presented no program, the Premier earlier said there must be no compromise with Britain of the oil dispute which has denied the government its major revenue.

Uses Strong Terms In Conference With Firms, Union

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman told industry and union leaders in a dramatic face-to-face meeting at the White House today that they must settle quickly the devastating strike of 650,000 steel workers. Then the President sat the leaders of the two sides down to try to work out the issues in the strike which has also closed down the country's steel mills for 53 days. A White House spokesman said that Truman in talking with Benjamin Fairless, President of U.S. Steel Corp., and Philip Murray, head of the striking United Steelworkers of America C.I.O. used very strong language.

The appeal, the spokesman said, amounted to an ultimatum.

Murray and Fairless met for an hour and 40 minutes, then left the White House together, telling newspaper men they would be back at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

"We are going to discuss the situation with our own people," Fairless said.

HOPEFUL SIGN

The fact that Fairless and Murray planned to talk to associates seemed to indicate that some kind of new formula for ending the strike was in the works.

In order to talk with chieftains of labor and industry the President put off a planned visit to the Democratic national convention until tomorrow.

Truman apparently was making the administration's final big try to bring accord between the industry and Murray's 600,000 striking steelworkers.

Defence Mobilizer John R. Steelman, whose repeated mediation attempts to stop the 53-day strike have failed, was asked to sit in during the Presidential appeal to both sides for an immediate end to the walkout.

Ruest To Be Hanged At Midnight–Order

OTTAWA (CP)—Genereux Ruest, 54-year-old crippled watchmaker, will be hanged after midnight tonight as planned, the secretary of state's department announced today.

Telegrams ordering the hanging were sent today to Montreal where Ruest has been awaiting the outcome of an appeal for clemency. He was convicted of murder for his part in the time-bombing of an airliner in 1949 in which 23 persons died.

Ruest, suffering from tuberculosis of the bones and unable to walk without the support of his guards, was convicted for manufacturing the time bomb placed in the airliner.

His sister, Mrs. Arthur Pitre, 43, was found guilty of placing the bomb aboard the plane and sentenced to be hanged Oct. 17. She plans to appeal the case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Delegate Plans To Nominate Truman Again

CHICAGO — (CP) — A Pennsylvania delegate to the Democratic national convention today went ahead with plans to put President Truman's name up for presidential nomination.

Representative William J. Green Jr. of Philadelphia said he would place Truman's name in the race unless he receives "direct orders from the President not to do it."

Truman has declared he will not stand for re-election but Green said he won't drop plans to nominate him unless he gets word directly. He said he would not accept a request relayed through another person.

"Mr. Truman can reach me as easily as he can reach anyone else," Green told newspaper men, adding that he had not consulted either the President or the chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation.

Green said he had made up his mind to nominate Truman because he believes "the convention is in such a state of confusion that Truman is needed to straighten things out."

"He's the best candidate we can put up. He can lick General Eisenhower hands down."

Egypt Gets New Premier

CAIRO (Reuters)—Aly Maher Pasha, created Egypt's "emergency premier" after yesterday's swift military coup, left here today for Alexandria where he will present his plans for a new government to King Farouk.

He is expected to announce the composition of his cabinet soon after conferring with the monarch. Gen. Mohammed Naguib, who engineered yesterday's dramatic intervention by the army, said today that military action would end "immediately a new Cabinet is formed."

Naguib, now commander-in-chief of Egypt's armed forces, is calling for a purge of corrupt elements in Egypt's government. He claims his coup has already cleaned up the army high command.

ARRESTS BROTHER

One of his first actions yesterday was to arrest a number of senior officers who might have thwarted his plans, including his brother, Gen. Mohammed Aly Naguib. Naguib said these arrests were "purely precautionary." Among those held was the army chief of staff, Gen. Hussein Farid Bey.

Naguib has demanded Hussein's dismissal along with that of the former commander-in-chief, Marshal Mohammed Haidar Pasha.

He has also asked for a change in the composition of the army purchasing commission—recalling the scandal over the supply of deficient arms to Egyptian troops in the Palestine campaign.

"ONLY SUITABLE MAN"

Naguib has described Aly Maher, an independent and former prime minister, as "the only suitable man" to form a new administration.

The burly general, 51, seemed bent first of all on removing the army from politics and the influence of Farouk.

Elaborate Ceremonies Out In New Queen's Reign

LONDON (CP)—The reign of the new Queen will not be marked by elaborate and costly ceremonies.

R.A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made this assurance in the House of Commons today in reply to Socialist demands for greater simplicity in palace activities.

Then the House gave final approval to the civil-list bill which grants an annual income of 475,000 pounds to the Queen and 40,000 pounds to the Duke of Edinburgh.

"Those members who are nervous that under the new reign there is to be an intensification of elaborate ceremonial which would put the Crown further away from the people, are making a mistake," Butler said. "It is neither the wish, so far as I know, nor the intention, nor indeed, the tradition of our present royal family."

BARRAGE OF CRITICISM

His statement followed a barrage of criticism, led by Jennie Lee, wife of fiery Aneurin Bevan, over the size of the royal income and the manner in which it is spent.

Miss Lee, as she is addressed in the House, accused the Tory party of trying to maintain the royal family as a "centre of snobbery." She suggested Butler should let the nation know whether the Queen as a private person was immensely rich or whether her fortune, in the main, had been handed back for public service.

"When the Queen and the royal family have so many other public duties, I do not see why their energies should be taken up with the traditional reception of young women simply because they are rich," Miss Lee declared amid Socialist cheers. "It is bad for the royal family and not in keeping with the 20th century.

HITS TORY "SNOBBERY"

"Our criticisms are not disrespectful or nagging," Miss Lee went on, "for I believe the royal family can do a wonderful job for Britain and the Commonwealth. But it cannot do it unless it ceases to be the prisoner of the snobbery and class privilege for which the Tories stand."

E. Fernyhough, Labor member for Jarrow, said he believed the majority of the British people feel it would be much better if the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh could lead the lives of ordinary married people, spending far more time with their children.

J. Carmichael, Socialist member for Bridgeton, suggested it is wrong to give the Duke of Edinburgh an allowance for life without knowing what was going to happen in the next 10 or 20 years.

Ordinary people, he said, are unable to understand why the government is handing over to the royal household large sums of money every year, when at the same time it rejects the workers claims for wage increases to meet living costs.

Lightning Bolt Knocks Transit System Out

VANCOUVER (CP)—A bolt of lightning knocked out Vancouver's transit system for an hour last night.

Hundreds of trolley buses and street cars were lined up for scores of blocks throughout the downtown district. Gas buses were pressed into service on affected lines.

The breakdown was caused by a lightning bolt which struck a power pole at nearby Ruskin. Thousands were stranded downtown.

Locate Bodies Of 6 Fliers, One Missing

Rescue Planes Reach Wreckage, North of Winnipeg

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (AP)—R.C.A.F. rescue crews today set out with little hope for the survival of the last man unaccounted for in a crash between a Lancaster bomber and a Vampire jet fighter.

Until last night, it was thought possible that two men might have parachuted from the bomber, but this hope dimmed when the body of one of them was found in the burned wreckage, and when one of the rescue groups said the body of the sixth member of the crew might be found in the debris today.

FIVE BODIES FOUND

The bodies of four of the six-man crew of the Lancaster were found yesterday; the body of the fighter pilot was reported found last evening; and the body of the fifth member of the bomber crew found last night. All bodies, except that of the fighter pilot, were unidentifiable.

Flt. Lt. Andre Pelletier, medical officer of 438 City of Montreal Squadron, brought out the body of jet pilot Flt. Lt. Charles Stewart Buchanan of Dorval, Que., and Oshawa, Ont. Flt. Lt. Pelletier was accompanied by a para-rescue nurse and a para-rescue sergeant who had jumped to the site of the crash. He had flown in to a lake near the scene.

It was Buchanan's aircraft which collided with the bomber yesterday, shearing off the tail section of the Lancaster and losing one of its own wings.

Names of those in the bomber:

FO. Robert Alexander Gray of London, Ont., and Greenwood, N.S. Captain.

FO. Alfred Marrier, St. Leonard d'Aston, Que., co-pilot.

FO. Richard H.D. Noble, Gravenhurst, Ont., and Middleton, N.S., radio operator.

FO. James E. Macara, Toronto.

Cpl. Robert C. Smith, Maberly, Ont.

FO. Edward C. Hutt, Bangor, Me., navigator.

Helicopters are being flown to the site of the crash to bring out the bodies.

IN JOINT OPERATION

The Lancaster, from the R.C.A.F.'s 404 squadron at Greenwood, and the Vampire, from 401 auxiliary of Westmount, Que., were taking part in Operation Signpost, joint air manoeuvres launched last Saturday by the R.C.A.F. and the United States Air Force.

Small Plane Tries Daring Rescue

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—A small plane today threaded its way through the towering peaks of the Rockies to make a hazardous attempt at rescuing two seriously injured crash victims from a lakeshore 7,000 feet above sea level.

A light plane with three persons aboard crashed into or near Lake Magog in Mount Assiniboine Park on the B.C.-Alberta border yesterday. The pilot apparently escaped unhurt but his two passengers were seriously injured.

The pilot made his way to a lonely forest ranger station near the lake and a call for help went out over the forest service's radio network.

Identity of the pilot and passengers was not immediately known.

Support Weakness On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—Support weakened today in early afternoon stock market dealings and prices made little headway after an early gain.

Activity dwindled from a cautious opening. Volume for the first three hours was 747,000 shares.

Agricultures, steels, refining oils and banks retained a majority of fractional advances to form industrials' strongest sections. Utilities, constructions, manufacturing companies and retail stores also drew firm support. Miscellaneous issues dipped.

Western oil leaders were strong but lower-priced issues slipped. Canadian Devonian, Central-Leduc, Jupiter, North Canadian and Triad climbed moderately.

Base metals eased as Chromium, Golden Manitou, Labrador, Silver Standard, United Keno Hill and Yukeno turned downward. Nesbitt-Labine and Mindamar were strong.

Senior golds showed scattered strength as Hollinger and Teck Hughes climbed slowly. Junior producers and prospects dipped. Holding companies were firm.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indices showed industrials up .39 at 321.49 golds down .03 at 93.50, base metals down .24 at 192.87 and western oils up .80 at 138.83.

Flier's Wife Unaware Of Husband's Death

LONDON (CP)—The young wife of Flt. Lt. Charles Stewart Buchanan, killed at Bagotville, Que., when his R.C.A.F. ampire jet collided with a Lancaster bomber, left London airport last night unaware of her husband's death.

Mrs. Mary Buchanan received word while visiting relatives in Scotland that her husband was missing in yesterday's collision.

The couple arrived here seven days ago but Buchanan had to return to Canada almost immediately to attend a summer air school.

As she rushed from Glasgow to London by plane, Mrs. Buchanan said "I only know that my husband is missing, that is all."

Mercy Trip Fails To Save Boy's Life

COLLINGWOOD (CP)—Norman Stanley Bastin, 9, died from unknown causes yesterday after a 100-mile-an-hour drive to hospital here for medical attention.

Coroner Dr. J.M. Storey said an autopsy did not reveal the cause of death.

The boy had been spending his vacation at nearby Springhurst Beach where he was joined by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bastin, during the week-end.

First indication of the ailment came Monday when he complained of a "sore throat."

Collingwood, on Georgian Bay, is about 65 miles northwest of Toronto.

Kitchen Sink Last On List Jailed 2 Years

William B. Joselin, 28, who has stolen practically everything but a kitchen sink since 1939, has finally added this offence to his record.

He was sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate E. A. Gee today when he pleaded guilty to stealing the sink, a pair of taps and other merchandise from Kingan Hardware about July 1.

Joselin's record is so extensive that he came within an ace of being charged as an habitual criminal and in the words of Magistrate Gee being "put away for good, once and for all."

His record includes convictions for stealing a variety of articles ranging from a radio, to a baby carriage and a woman's dress, shopbreaking, breaking and entering, receiving stolen goods, in fact, it looks like a listing of all the offences under the Criminal Code.

"Reformatory sentences have not done you any good," commented Magistrate Gee in sentencing Joselin alias Kenneth G. Abott to two years in penitentiary.

CONVICTED IN 1951

He was last convicted here on April 10, 1951, and sentenced to 10 months definite and four months indefinite on a theft charge involving articles valued at more than $25 and a concurrent sentence of six months on each of two charges of stealing articles valued at under $25.

Questioned by Magistrate Gee as to what started him stealing, Joselin mumbled it was liquor, but did not elaborate any further.

A plumber by trade, Joselin has been working for the hardware firm recently. When Joselin tried to sell the sink, and other merchanise to a man, he became suspicious and informed the police.

When questioned, Joselin admitted to city detectives that he had stolen the articles and was arrested Wednesday tion embroiled in a states-rights argument, was so worded as to be acceptable to most southerners, who have traditionaly resented any proposal of federal guarantee of equal rights for Negroes.

Earlier last night Vice-President Alben Barkley, the 74-year-old Grand Old Man of the party, delivered a speech which won him the sort of ovation usually reserved for victorious candidates.

PETRILLO ON TAP

One well-wisher was James Petrillo, powerful head of the Musicians' Union, who went to the rostrum to pose with the Vice-President. Afterward he was asked who was likely to be the candidate and he said Stevenson "better start taking music lessons," an indication he believed that Stevenson would succeed piano-playing Harry Truman. He has the reputation for picking winners.

Still to be made clear today was the fate of delegations from Virginia, South Carolina and Louisana.

They have refused to pledge their support to whatever candidates the convention elects—a condition fixed by the rules committee for those who wish to participate and vote.

If they are refused participation they probably will walk out and start their own movement for a candidate of their own choosing.

But House Speaker Sam Rayburn, installed last night as permanent chairman, said that so far as he was concerned all delegates on the floor would have equal rights. From his long years of presiding over the House of Representatives observers here believed he would dispose of the North-South wrangle without further trouble.

The press release said the meeting of the finance committee considered payments in goods instead of money to overcome the exchange situation. The league, which has an annual budget of some $300,000, also found a problem in rising expenditures

So far there has been no political clash between east and west, although delegates seem sure the Communists will attempt to use the conference as a sounding board for the Communist party line.

First indications may come Saturday at the opening plenary sessions. While expectations may fall short of what actually happens, Communist delegates may be opposed and may seek to be seated in an Iron-Curtain bloc. Conference spokesmen say this is unlikely since the seating will be by draw and add that any country—including Communist China—which professes to subscribe to the Geneva Convention, has a voice in the international humanitarian organization.

Little was scheduled for today. The conference will not officially open until Saturday night.

Canadian Gov't Applies For Power Development

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian government yesterday made a formal application to the International Joint Commission for a hydro-electric power development on the St. Lawrence River. The project would produce 2,200,000 horsepower for Ontario and New York state.

Canada mentioned in her application her intention to build a Canadian St. Lawrence Seaway to allow ocean-going vessels to operate on the Great Lakes. The United States Congress has consistently turned down joint proposals for the seaway.

D. W. Mundell, counsel for the Canadian government, told the commission that Canada's primary concern in the hydro project was that it did not affect sanitation and navigation facilities along the river.

"I am authorized to state that if this application is granted the government of Canada will go ahead at the same time with the navigation aspect of the seaway plan," he said.

The seaway project in Canadian territory would not need authorization by the commission.

WATER LEVELS DISCUSSED

The international body also heard submissions yesterday on the high water level of Lake Ontario which has damaged many lakefront properties. The one-day hearings now move to Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Canada's application noted that a waterway is contemplated to provide a ship channel 27 feet deep between Montreal and Lake Erie.

The hydro development would require a dam across the river between Cornwall and Messina, N.Y. Between Chimney Point, N.Y., and St. Regis, N.Y., 48 miles of the river would be involved in the project.

Appearing for the Ontario government and thus for the provincially-owned Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Leslie E. Blackwell of Toronto said the whole seaway proposition would promote the economic prosperity of both Canada and the U.S. and at the same time cure "many of the evils you no doubt will hear about today." He was referring to the disastrous lake levels.

He conceded there would be many interests and properties of both Canadian and U.S. citizens in the area seriously affected by the hydro development. But plans had been made and legislation passed to compensate those affected.

MORE POWER NEEDED

Mr. Blackwell, former Ontario attorney-general, said Ontario's industrial future depended to a large extent on the availability by no later than 1958 of hydro power from the St. Lawrence. The alternative was steam-generated power at high cost.

Mayor Allan Lamport of Toronto told the commission that if something isn't done about Lake Ontario's water level much of Toronto's sewage and water supply system will be ruined. Another foot rise in the level would back the lake waters through downtown sewers and seriously damage pumping and filtration services.

C. M. Bonham, who said he was "just a citizen" from Grimsby, asked that something be done to make sure Lake Ontario's level never will be permitted to rise above 247 feet above sea level.

"We little people," he said, "are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars trying to take temporary, picayune measures to protect our own properties."

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, the Canadian chairman of the commission, assured Mr. Bonham "and all other citizens" that the commission intended to respect its responsibility to all persons.

13 Fatalities Total In Four Crashes

Thirteen persons are dead, two seriously injured and one unaccounted for following a series of four plane crashes in Canada since Monday.

Major crashes were the mid-air collision of a Lancaster bomber and a Vampire jet fighter in the Bagotville, Que., area and the crash of a Manitoba Government Air Service plane Monday.

Each is believed to have claimed seven lives although the body of the seventh man involved in the mid-air collision had not been located at noon Thursday.

Air Force search crews had little hope that he had survived the collision and ensuing crash.

The fourth plane to meet disaster was a small craft which crashed on a lakeshore near Nelson, B.C., about 7,000 feet above sea level.

The pilot, apparently escaping serious injury, made his way from the scene of the crash in the Mount Assiniboine park on the B.C.-Alberta border to reach a lonely forest ranger station. There he called for help for the two passengers who he said were seriously injured.

A British Columbia Central Airways plane left Nelson early today to try to make the rescue.

In the background was the threat of paralysis to the United States defence effort. Defence Secretary Robert Lovett estimates that "somewhere between 20 and 30 per cent" of the expected arms production for this year will be lost because of the strike.

COAL STRIKE LOOMS

Possibility of a strike in a second vital industry—coal—made the picture even darker. John L. Lewis was reported to have notified at least part of the soft coal industry that present contracts will end in two months. That makes a strike or slowdown in coal fields all but inevitable if a new contract is not signed by Sept. 22.

The President said nothing in advance about a possible new plan to compromise the steel dispute and bring a new contract to 650,000 steelworkers.

There was speculation that he might suggest a new plan to deal with the union's demand for a union shop—an arrangement which compels all workers to join the union. The union-shop demand—and the industry's refusal so far to agree to any form of union shop—was the only remaining obstacle to settlement when the last industry-union negotiations collapsed last Sunday.

Since then, the union has reinstated all its original demands, based on Wage Stabilization Board proposals last March 20. It has technically wiped out all compromises reached during weeks of bargaining since then. The demands include also wage increases totalling 26½ cents an hour and other benefits.

The President made his first personal settlement effort May 3.

That was one month before the strike started. While the mills were under seizure, the action was ruled unconstitutional and the strike started.

Australian Girl Winner Of 80-Metre Hurdles Crown

By JACK SULLIVAN

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Helsinki —(CP)—Shirley Strickland de la Hunty of Australia won the women 80-metre hurdles Olympic championship today, almost equalling her world record made 24 hours ago.

Records again were being shattered with abandon.

The Australian girl won the final in 10.9 seconds. Yesterday she broke the world record of 11 seconds flat and the Olympic record of 11.2 seconds in a heat and semi-final.

Two Canadians qualified for semi-finals in the 400-metre run.

Jim Lavery of Calgary won a heat, outrunning Russia's Jurii Lituev. Jack Carroll of Verdun, Que., ran second in his heat behind Arthur Wint of Jamaica.

Doug Clement of Vancouver finished in fifth and last place in one heat and failed to qualify.

SECOND WIN FOR ZATOPEK

Emil Zatopek, Czechoslovakia's great distance runner who succeschampionship last Sunday, won the 5,000-metre run today in record time of 14:15.4, beating the old record of 14:17.6 made by Gaston Reiff of Belgium in 1948. Reiff competed again today but dropped out with a lap to go.

Zatopek won in a gruelling stretch finish, with Alain Mimoun of France second and Herbert Schade of Germany third. Both also bettered the old record. Gordon Pirie and Chris Chataway of Great Britain were fourth and fifth.

Jim Lavery of Calgary qualified for the 400-metre semi-finals by placing second in the second-round heat today.

A heat winner in the preliminary heats, Lavery ran second to Arthur Wint of Jamaica in the next heat. Three in each heat qualify.

Jack Carroll of Verdun, Que., also qualified, placing third in a heat won by Mal Whitfield of the United States. Hans Geister was second. Carroll was second in an earlier heat.

Bill Parnell of North Vancouver qualified in a preliminary heat of the 1,500-metre run. He placed fourth—the last qualifying spot. His time was 3:53.4. The heat was won by Olov Aberg of Sweden in 3:51.0.

Today's events were scarcely under way when Jozsef Csermak of Hungary, eventual winner in the hammer throw, shattered both world and Olympic marks. His best throw was 60.34 metres (197 feet, 11.64 inches). The old world record was 59.88 metres (196 feet, 5.52 inches) and the old olympic record 56.49 metres. That was the 15th Olympic mark to fall.

Democrats Take Crack At Seaway Veto

CHICAGO — (CP). — An apparent reference to forces fighting United States participation in construction of the St. Lawrence seaway is contained in the Democratic Party platform.

The platform, approved last night by the convention, did not specifically mention the seaway, but it said in part:

"The Democratic Party denounces all obstructionist devices designed to prevent or retard utilization of the nation's power and water resources."

President Truman has repeatedly urged Congress to approve U.S. participation in the seaway and power project. Senate action was blocked at the recent session, and Canada has said she will go ahead alone.

Opponents of the seaway include a number of U.S. railroads and eastern seaports.

Dealing with natural resources, the platform says:

"We favor sound, progressive development of the nation's land and water resources for....navigation....power.... We favor the acceleration of all such projects.

"The Democratic Party is dedicated to a continuation of the natural resources policy inaugurated and carried out under the administrations of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman."

Mayor Allan Lamport said the city is vitally interested in civil defence but wants "a few more dollars" from the provincial and federal governments before the organization can be expanded.

24 Members In Upper House In Quebec Serve For Life

QUEBEC (CP)—One segment of the Quebec Legislature will remain undisturbed by the province's July 16 election.

That branch is the Legislative Council, which corresponds to the Canadian Senate, and whose 24 members are appointed for life. It is the only provincial Upper House remaining in Canada.

Like the Senate, the Council functions as a sort of legislative "safety-valve," reviewing and giving its approval to legislation coming to it from the elected 92-member Assembly.

Though most provincial legislation originates in the Assembly, the councillors are allowed to initiate bills so long as they don't commit the government to spending. All money bills must originate in the Assembly.

LIBERAL MAJORITY

At present the Liberals hold a substantial majority in the council, partly through filling vacancies when that party was in power from 1940 to 1944. There are 16 Liberal councillors, seven Union Nationale representatives and one vacancy in La Valliere division. The Liberal incumbent, Joseph C. E. Ouellet, died last January.

Though the Liberals are in the majority, Council votes rarely are along party lines.

It is in the red-carpeted, 19th century Chamber that the Lieutenant-Governor goes to give Royal Assent to legislation once it has been approved by both Houses.

It is here, too that distinguished visitors are received when they come to this old history-steeped capital. The most recent of these visitors was Queen Elizabeth, visiting Quebec with the Duke of Edinburgh during their tour of Canada last fall.

That was the second time in little more than a decade that the Chamber has been visited by royalty. In 1939, Queen Elizabeth and the late King George were received there.

IT TICKLES—Little Janet Tyerman of Vancouver and Gertude, a year-old deer, make quick and affectionate friends. Gertrude, found wandering around the streets of Vancouver's business district, was turned over to the University of British Columbia for its own safety since it was found to be too tame. The deer reached the city after swimming Burrard Inlet from the North Shore.

Haida Indian 73, One Of Last Carvers Of Soft B.C. Slate

VANCOUVER (CP) — Captain Brown, 73-year-old Haida Indian, is one of the last of British Columbia's unique artists, argillite carvers, whose works are known in many of the world's leading museums.

Argillite is a slate found on Graham Island, of the Queen Charlotte group. When quarried it is comparatively soft, but hardens quickly when exposed to air. Its surface takes a beautiful polish.

When white men first arrived on the Pacific coast, the Haidas were carving wood, bone and ivory, into almost everything from spoon handles to ornate ceremonial masks.

These products were sold readily to the whites and soon the Haidas were reputed to be the best wood carvers in North America. They acquired steel tools and learned to carve gold, copper and silver, and later, slate.

Some of the oldest and most ornate pieces were collected before 1800, but the finest carving was done from 1830 to 1890.

In that period handsome boxes, carefully joined by wooden dowels and fish glue, pieces of irridescent abalone shell with slate inlays and small totem poles were turned out.

Best known carvings were the totem poles, symbolizing mythical and religious stories.

No matter what they carved there was always a "flowingness," symmetry and simplicity creating distinct beauty.

The Haidas used dried skin of sharks or dogfish, or just the palm of their hands to add polish to their work.

OUTSTANDING ART

A figuring created in 1833, now in an eastern United States museum, is said to be the finest example of work by any North American aboriginal. It is called "Bear Mother," based on an Indian legend of a princess captured by bears and forced to marry the king of the bears.

She has a child by him and the figuring depicts with perfect rhythm of line and pattern the bear mother writhing in agony while nursing her ferocious offspring which is half bear and half boy.

The Haidas' skill began to wane late in the 1800s and early 1900s when they sacrificed skill and patience for mass production to satisfy the demand for their work.

However, old Captain Brown, peering from near-sighted eyes as he plies his carving tool, still gives loving care and patience to his craft.

Say Japanese Reds Tortured Korean

HIROSHIMA, Japan (Reuters)—A court was told today that Japanese Communists had tortured a Korean Communist and then hanged him from a tree as an American spy.

The prosecutor presented a document which he said had been seized from the local Communist organization. The document said that the hanged Korean, Kei Ki So, was suspected of being a spy and was grabbed by fellow-Communists May 16.

After an inquisition, which the prosecutor said made the man plead for death as a release from pain, he was bound in iron wire, blindfolded and left hanging from a tree for 24 hours in a remote mountainous district near here.

Serpent Mounds: Two Milleniums Old

A mound is a heap of earth, not necessarily interesting in itself. But mounds are made, and big ones for some purpose. Therein lies the importance of mounds: who made them and why. Old mounds are especially interesting, because, unlike most plinths and columns they are able to stand for aeons against the ravages of wind, weather and time.

* * *

Among all the storied relics of Oxford and its historic buildings, the oldest and most storied is Castle Mound. This conspicuous mound may have been raised about A.D. 900 to command a Saxon military route; it may be older, some erection of Roman-Celtic times. Castle Mound is an object of study by archaeologists and historians, a point of interest for tourists, even in that ancient city with its hundreds of other antiquities. Bordering Rice Lake, south of Peterborough, is not one mound, but several, and as conspicuous on the landscape as Oxford's mound. They are at least as old, yet have been almost completely neglected, very little is known of their old, old story — and few tourists know they exist, let alone visit them.

* * *

Like the ancient Mound at Oxford, they are not remarkable to look at—just big mounds. But within them may lie secrets of an unknown age in Canadian and North American history. They are believed to date from the first century before Christ. They thus have special value to historians and archaeologists, who are now actively studying the Serpent Mounds of Rice Lake. (They are called "Serpent" because of their collective snake-like configuration.) They are remarkable in this so-called "new" country whose known history goes back pitifully few centuries. Here in these Mounds and surrounding camp sites scholars believe are the traces of prehistoric tribes and perhaps evidence of their culture. They are among the oldest in Canada, after the Laurentian tribes (1000-2000 B.C.) and the White Quartz people of Manitoulin Island (c. 5000 B.C.). The "Mound Builders" seem to have lived here two thousand years ago, and to have had a settled, not a nomadic life.

* * *

So little is yet known of them that scholars have not even given them a name. More will be found out as archaeological parties dig into the ashes by Rice Lake and survey the Serpent Mounds, and when Canadians generally and particularly people in this part of Southern Ontario recognize that here, pointing back twenty centuries, are earth-locked relics of their own country's past; valuable, of supreme historic interest. More than that, Canadian time itself is here encased in sands which have hidden the records of ages and can reveal it again. A serious beginning of discovery has been made this month by diggers from the Royal Ontario Museum.

It is essential to history and science that only trained people potter in the earth of the old camp sites and among the gravel of the mounds. Amateurs and the merely curious should not go out with shovel and trowel in the hope of finding an arrow head. Careless digging and inept scratching can destroy evidence for which archaeologists are looking, and prevent a reconstruction of this ancient native peoples' history. To preclude vandalism of history's traces, unauthorized persons are not allowed to dig at Serpent Mounds — and the area is an Indian Reserve lease. It should be interesting enough for the general public to look over the land and to know that here two thousand years stand still and silent. The few fragments of artifacts and the layers of ashes are themselves exciting and instructive only to trained eyes.

* * *

In time, if experts and money to finance the digging are available the area will be a treasure of Canadian history — and, incidentally, should become as important a tourist attraction as any we have in southern Ontario. Meanwhile, let us look on the place as a monument to the forgotten past, and treat it as a reserve. We hope that steps may be taken to make Serpent Mounds a national site to be preserved forever against plow, buildings and feckless feet. The antiquity of the mounds is not a recent discovery; their importance is.

The Department of National Revenue reports that the highest average income of any Canadian group in Canada in 1949 was enjoyed by Alberta doctors. Odd that ministration to the sick should be profitable in a province famous for its wells.

The Senate At Work

It is frequently suggested—very often by people who have never visited the Senate, or read the Senate Hansard — that the Senate does very little work. People who are interested in the Senate sufficiently to examine the record know that this is not true, and they know that the Senate's best work is done not in the Red Chamber, but in committee. Of the Senate committees undoubtedly the most important is the Finance Committee, composed of 36 members under the chairmanship of Senator Crerar. Its duty is to examine government expenditure in detail. There is a Commons committee which supposedly does the same thing, but it sometimes suffers when party loyalty outweighs ordinary judgment. The political climate of the Senate committee is cooler, for the Senators of the government party do not feel it necessary to defend every government move, and the Senators of the opposition suffer from no corresponding desire to attack expenditures merely for the sake of attack.

The Report of the Senate Finance Committee makes interesting reading. Most Canadians will agree with the committee that $18,000,000 is an astonishing sum for the government to spend in a single year on office supplies and stationery. They will be interested, too, in the committee's speculations upon the effect of a one per cent. drop — not at all a large or improbable drop—in prices upon the annual revenue raised by taxation. They will be interested in the large sums spent on government publications, and the large sums spent in mailing them, post free, to thousands of recipients. The committee's keen sense of economy should be of interest to every taxpayer.

More general observations also appear in the report which will find echoes in many taxpayers' hearts. "If the public insists that the administrative costs of government be reduced — as many think they should — it cannot reach this desirable end unless it rids itself of the idea that governments have to dance when it calls the tune of more expenditures," says the report. This has been said many times before and it must continue to be said until it is understood by those who at present cry for lower taxation and increased benefits almost in the same breath.

The Senate Finance Committee has done its usual good job, and deserves congratulation.

William G. Ovens

W. G. Ovens will be buried tomorrow on his forty-sixth birthday. The untimely sudden death of this vigorous, well-known former Mayor of Peterborough was a saddening shock to many hundreds of people outside the circle of his intimates and family. Carpe diem, the Latin sage advised. Bill Ovens did make much of each day, and improved the time, but should there not be time for such as he to savour life in maturity? He died in the midst of a holiday.

William Ovens led a very active life, in business in which he was a successful manager, in associated societies of which he was a valued director, in Provincial service as a member of the Milk Board, in sporting, fraternal, church and club life; and particularly in civic affairs. He was an alderman for six years and subsequently mayor for three. He was a member of the first Board of Governors of the Civic Hospital. A busy life such as this is exacting, demanding of heart and health.

Mr. Ovens was affable and unpretentious. His affability was an outward indication of a generous, unsuspicious and sincere nature, heartiness of a heart which was sympathetic to people wherever he met them and whoever they were. His unpretentiousness came from his simplicity, his honesty and his directness. His life was upright, his dealings dependable, his outlook steady and firm. A genuine and good citizen has gone. Our sympathy goes out to his widow and two young daughters.

A Link With The Past

The death of Mrs. Arthur Stevenson severs a direct link with Peterborough's past, as well as removes a person whose own qualities and character were actively devoted to the welfare of her native city and the promotion of her church. Mrs. Stevenson was a daughter of Canon J. W. R. Beck who became rector of St. John's Church in 1856 following the Reverend Mark Burnham's ministry; her husband's family was also prominent in Peterborough affairs. She herself was born a year before Canada's Confederation when Peterborough was a town of only four thousand people. Her social, educational and patriotic work during the last part of the last century and into the thirties of this was a forceful influence in moulding Peterborough's character. Mrs. Stevenson was a lady of indomitable quality, honoured and esteemed by Peterborough people.

No Kissing On Indian Screen

By RAWLE KNOX

THREE INDIAN FILM STARS flew into London last Thursday to join their director Mehboob Khan for the London premiere tomorrow of their film "Aan" (rough translation: Honour, or Prestige).

It is the first Indian film ever to have been shown commercially in Europe or America. Yet India, turning out an average of over 250 pictures in every post-war year, is the second largest film-producing country in the world.

"Aan" is the story of an honourable and plebeian young man who wins his peasant girl in the face of some extremely complicated devilries by the local ruling prince. The story is hardly new, but Indians are not the only filmgoers in the world who sit complacently watching old plots unfold themselves on the screen.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEY MAY BE the only filmgoers, however, who demand (or so their producers believe) some seven songs and five dances in every single picture, no matter what the plot. In Asia entertainments have to give full value for money. "Aan" runs in London for two and a quarter hours, but an hour of the original has been cut to suit the taste of impatient Westerners. (After all, a Malay shadow show can last for several days).

There has never been any tradition of straight drama in India, and therefore the whole concept of the film had to be plucked out of the air, an air in which there were already thick Hollywood clouds floating about. Thus the plot of the "social" type of Indian film tends to be pretty familiar, though the treatment certainly is not.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEY NEVER KISS on the Indian screen, though sometimes the stars get so near doing so that you think they can hardly avoid it without overbalancing. Though the audience in an Indian cinema is at least eighty per cent male and therefore highly interested in the attractions of the female star, she must make a pretence of the modesty which Indians expect in their own womenfolk. Though female stars have worn bathing dresses on the Indian screen—Nargis in "Awara" ("The Vagabond"), for instance —it is most rare, and the scene is very likely to be cut by the local censor.

About male stars the Indian seems to be fairly catholic in his taste; he will applaud the muscular, chest-beating Prem Nath as loudly as the cheeky, pathetic, chaplinesque Raj Kapoor. The females are invariably bosomy and usually run to a good deal more weight than Hollywood would allow. But their leading beauties, Nargis, Madhubala, Shyama, are very beautiful indeed.

✧ ✧ ✧

SEVERAL Indian stars have refused small parts in American and British films on the grounds that they make as much as any Western star by staying at home. Acting is still a slightly "disreputable" profession in India (as it was in Europe not so long ago) and the supply of stars is never as great as the demand. The stars are often acting in more than one production at the same time, and the fabulous Ashok Kumar, who now owns Bombay Talkies—the firm which originally employed him as bit player and laboratory hand—was at one time last year making ten pictures simultaneously.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE STARS thus have a complete hold over the producer and are often able, as India's Film Enquiry Committee disapprovingly pointed out earlier this year, to extort "black payments" over and above original contract agreements to carry on working.

The great majority of producers, stars and song-writers in Bombay, India's film capital, are Muslims. Many of them are descendants of court entertainers, nautch girls and singers who entertained the Moghul princes in Delhi and the Kings of Oudh in Lucknow.

The old Indian dance drama (scenes from the Indian epics that are played from village to village) went out of aristocratic favour with the Muslim invasions towards the end of the fourteenth century A.D. Song and recitation took its place. But under the influence of the European operette, musical plays were introduced to the court of Wajid Ali Shah, Nawab of Oudh, around 1850, and were popular to Lucknow for another 50 years. It is this influence that has lingered on into the Indian film, faintly cross-bred with the dance drama idea that the peasant will understand.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE ARE SEVERAL producers in Bombay, notably Mr. J. B. S. Wadia, who would like to break away from the present formula of the Indian film. In 1937, Wadia produced "Nav-Javan", the only non-musical Indian film (documentaries of course excluded) that has ever been made. It was a flop. So was his "Court Dancer", his Indian film in the English language, which Wadia made because he believes that India can make films about herself that will win worldwide appreciation.

✧ ✧ ✧

FEW OTHER producers have done real justice to the country, though Raj Kapoor's "Barsaat" ("The Rains") was a beautiful effort at portraying India's annual drama. Bombay continues to churn out its three well-tried types of film; the "social", with its elegant ladies, often in European dress, who burst into songs very closely related to the samba and rhumba (whose beat is certainly close to much Indian popular music); the "historical", very often with a strong flavor of Robin Hood or the Prisoner of Zenda; and, more interestingly, the "mythological", a tale from one of the many great Indian epics. London critics who are surprised at the amount of rumbustious activity in "Aan" should see a mythological, in which it is nothing for one character to burst from another's breast or transform himself into a goat.

INDIA'S FILM Enquiry Committee has urged the need for better Indian films, but really they are little, if at all, worse—in their medium—than those of Hollywood and London. They offer the escape the audience demands. The Committee thought producers placed too much reliance on stars, but stars are mobbed by a frantic public in India just as much as they are in Europe. At a Delhi film pageant I watched Cesar Romero and Marie Windsor of Hollywood stand almost unnoticed as crowds burst down barriers to get a glimpse of Nargis.

Indian film stars in Bombay, with their fast cars and swimming pools, are the subjects of as much hissing gossip as those of Hollywood. Their possible romances are coyly hinted at in film magazines. They have come to stay. A yearly attendance of six hundred millions in India's three thousand cinemas, not to speak of those who rush to Indian films in Burma, Ceylon, Malaya and Hong Kong, is sufficient proof of it.

What is more, the social position of the film actor is rising. When, at a reception for them in Government House, New Delhi, earlier this year, a bevy of female stars breasted their queenly way into the hall only a bare half minute before the President, one felt they were estimating their power very nicely. More than one staid Indian gazed at them as though to say that the nautch girls would have known their place better in the courts of Oudh.

An American Opinion: THE DONKEY'S TURN

Let's Not Be Beastly To The Vandals

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

REACTIONARY influences are at work in the city of New York. Perhaps that shouldn't concern anyone in Canada, were it not for the fact that traces of the same reactionary spirit have been perceptible from time to time in this city. There are fuddy-duddies in this city who feel that parents who are financially able should be required to pay for destruction or damage done by their children, and this is precisely the form of reaction that is afflicting the more enlightened citizens of New York City at the moment.

It seems that apostles of reaction there have managed to get a bill before City Council which would make parents responsible in the manner described. It is a deceptively modest bill; it would impose a fine "commensurate with the damage done, but in no case to exceed $25" on parents or guardians of children "who fail to exercise reasonable diligence". There modest requirements however, have not deceived the alert protectors of the rights of the little ones, who were quick to detect the inevitably deleterious effects of the legislation upon the tots, and who perhaps saw in it the proverbial thin edge of a wedge to pry things open for a return of the bad old days.

These protectors—psychiatrists, psychologists, child developments experts, justices of children's courts and others, according to The New Work Times—have denounced the measure as a punitive approach to the problem of vandalism. That is bad, of course. Punishment for wrongdoing is pretty backward stuff. They also say it wouldn't work, and they may have something there; it wouldn't work very well if the protectors appeared in court in strength, as they undoubtedly would. Above all, however, the proposed legislation is to be condemned because, under it, the children of parents fined would make "less satisfactory adjustments" than other children.

At all costs, the opportunity to make satisfactory adjustments must be assured for the current generation of tots. There was once an imbecilic school of thought that held that a parental adjustment in the woodshed would correct such things as tendencies to plug drinking fountains, chop up park benches, raid and destroy flower beds, and other manifestations of childish prankishness. Fortunately, the abysmally unenlightened now stand corrected, and the parents who tacitly encourage such behaviour must be accorded the exemption an enlightened society bestows. And this a good thing—especially for those among the protectors named above who depend rather considerably upon delinquency for their livelihoods.

Peers

(Ottawa Journal)

"Yes, there is a Magna Charta Day in America." So says an announcement sent out by the Baronial Order of Magna Charta. This organization, which has its headquarters at Philadelphia, is a living answer to the fallacy that the United States scorns pomp, degree, and panoply. The order has a Marshal, a Justiciar, and a Keeper of the Signet; it has a Chancellor (Mr. Bevan Aubrey Pennypacker), a Prelate (the Rev. Arthur Adams, Ph.D.), and even a Chirurgeon and an Historiographer. Its members are known as barons, and are apparently "elevated to the baronage" on giving proof of their descent from our medieval noble families (some of which seem to have been more prolific across the Atlantic than at home). A baron may present his ancestral standard to the order and deduct the cost from his income-tax return.

But the order does not live by social bread alone. Its purpose is to keep the importance of Magna Charta before the American public: to this end it holds services on the anniversary of Runny Mede and issues a pamphlet in which Kipling has his doggerel fling and the growth of freedom is traced from Magna Charta to the Charter of the United Nations through "The Star Spangled Banner". It is comforting to find that Magna Charta is given, if anything, greater consideration in Pennsylvania than in England. But the news is most interesting in that it adds another emblem to the constellation of American societies: after the wheel, the elk's antlers, and the red fez, we must reckon with the double-breasted suit beneath the shining coat of mail.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

When Ephraim spake trembling, he exalted himself in Israel; but when he offended in Baal, he died . . . Yet I am the Lord thy God from the land of Egypt, and thou shalt know no God but me: for there is no saviour beside me . . .

O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself, but in me is thine help . . . I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction. (Hos. 13: 1, 4, 9, 14.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away: and there was no more sea . . . And there came unto me one of the seven angels which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come hither, I will shew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife. And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and shewed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, having, the glory of God. (Rev. 21: 1, 9-11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God, and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him . . .

Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city . . . And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely. (Rev. 22: 1-3, 14, 17.)

The "high-brow" girl student was trying to freeze out the young man who wanted to marry her.

Said she: "Circumstances compel me to decline a marital arrangement with a man of no pecuniary resources."

"Er—" he stammered. "I don't get you—"

"That's what I'm telling you!" was the icy reply.

Scaffolding Will Remain For Coronation

LONDON (CP)—A network of scaffolding which for 24 years has surrounded some part of Britain's stately Houses of Parliament, will still be there at the time of next year's coronation and for many years more.

When Lord Rea in the Upper House sought information on the subject, he was advised that work started 15 years ago on the 336-foot-high Victoria Tower would not be completed until the end of 1954.

At present, some 66 miles of steel scaffolding surround the tower whose ancient limestone is being replaced by workmen. Prior to this operation, stone-masons had spent eight years of restoration work on the Palace of Westminster which forms part of the historic structure.

After the tower job has been completed several years will be required to repair other sections of the buildings.

PLAY FOR FUN, HE SAYS — Robert Whitford, who wants to start a revolution in the piano teaching tradition, peers at the busy fingers of two prize pupils, Linda Karen Hall, 9 (with glasses) of Forestville, N.Y., considered top child pianist, and Janice Hall, 7, her sister.

Want To Play Piano? Start On Tunes, Not Scales

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Now comes the revolution in learning how to play the piano.

No more hour-per-day practice sessions, with the big switch in the corner as the main inspiration to Junior's music appreciation.

No more do ra mi fa so la ti do, with variations, until the neighbors go raving mad.

And no more Carnegie Hall as the magic goal to lure Junior from the pool table to the parlor upright.

Chief inetrpreter and prompter of this revolution is fast-talking, energetic Robert H. Whitford of Miami, Fla., president and founder of the International Piano Teachers Association. The group, with a total membership of 3,000 teachers who claim to have 100,000 pupils, has just had its seventh anpual meeting here in the Statler Hotel.

PREPARE AHEAD

Says Whitford:

"The old method ,of course, was to cross all bridges before coming to them, by practicing exercises on all of the difficulties that might appear in pieces. But we really do not want to learn to play the piano. We want to learn to play pieces on the piano. If you practice an exercise, you have learned an exercise. If you practice a piece, you have learned a piece. The problem is not key pushing, but music making."

He starts his pupils right off on "Yankee Doodle," as a rule. But any other simple tune, like "Ten Little Indians," is okay with him, if that's what they want. If they have a burning urge for boogie woogie, that's okay with him, too.

"If playing the piano is to be the pleasure it should be, then the piece must come first, last and always," he says.

The new attitude of most teachers on how much time a pupil should practice each day is also a drastic change from the old theory, Whitford explains.

Now it's 20 minutes to a half-hour for the younger ones, a half-hour to 45 minutes for the intermediate group, and maybe a full hour for the older, more advanced students. But the practicing need not all be at one sitting.

Another major change in piano teaching, Whitford says, is the goal which is set for the students.

It used to be, he admits, that teachers constantly prodded their pupils toward the concert stage, or a commercial career of playing, regardless of what kind of talent they had. Today the only motive is to get the youngsters interested in playing for the fun of it, and to learn to enjoy playing.

Only when a pupil shows extraordinary talent, nowadays, does a teacher suggest that he consider making a career out of the piano.

Whitford says this approach is attracting more students than ever before. It's also keeping them interested longer, and at the same time producing just as high a percentage of good artists, he claims.

He thinks the average person can learn to play good, parlor-type music in about three years under the new system.

Whitford, who also composes and publishes music, has himself a kind of side revolution going on in music publishing. He advocates the elimination of sharps and flats for easier reading. A flat note would be diamond-shaped. There wouldn't be any sharps.

However, he admits this revolution might take a hundred or so years to accomplish.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

It was sad, indeed, yesterday to learn of the sudden death of W. G. (Bill) Ovens. An unassuming but capable man, Bill was very popular with all who knew him. The former mayor took a keen interest in athletics and was on the senior ball club executive here this summer. It was at a meeting in his office early in June that the executive decided to carry on when it looked like the club might fold. Bill called a public meeting several years ago and this started the Civic Arena project, the mayor urging folks to forget arguments over a site and proceed with the job. He has also coached kids' teams, a fact few knew about as Bill wanted no publicity on it. He was a fine fellow and will be missed plenty.

U.E.W. leads the men's softball loop at the Bowl by the narrowest of margins. Winning nine and tying two in 14 games played, the Legrow lads have 20 points. Red Sullivan's Seabrooke squad have nine victories also with but one loss and a tie for 19 points. Revoy's are third with four nods, seven negatives and a draw for nine points. Lakefield follows with three, six and one for seven. Lindsay cools off in the cellar with two wins and a tie in 13 starts for five. They forfeited one to U.E. on July 17. Seabrooke players have a big chance tonight as they meet Lakefield at seven and Revoy's in the nightcap, weather being oke. Schedule ends July 29.

Those Shop Holidays

Bill Gunn of the Quakers advises us that the Industrial Fastball League schedule was suspended for a couple of weeks as so many shop fellows were away on holidays. There is a rained-out game yet ere the playoffs. The standing could wind up in a two-way or even a three-way tie for top position. Norwood has been erased already, but four team are in playoffs: Raybestos, Outboard Marines, Woollens and Quakers. They will get into their important sawoffs in about two weeks. Exact dates will be announced as soon as we get 'em. Our holidays are looming, too, so loops should shoot in the dope if they want their followers to get lots of notice.

Mimico Mounties are here Friday eve for an 8:45 battle with the Petes' Timbermen in Miller Bowl. It should be one of the O.L.A. senior highlights of a hot season as the sizzling race for top spot continues with Mimico, Toronto and the Petes all right in the thick of it. What happens one night means nothing the next when these top teams clash. The 1951 local Mann Cup champs know their past rep means little this semester to the bolstered Yorks and the well-balanced and powerful Mounties. They've got to beat 'em the hard way to keep up around the top. No soft touches from here in as they head toward the final turn and then into the stretch drive.

* * * * * *

One For The Mounties

Petes were minus Ike Hildebrand and Jerry Fitzgerald as they dropped a 10-5 decision in Mimico last p.m. before some 2,000 fans. A rugged encounter with Denny Peterson leaving in the last quarter with a shoulder injury. Penalties hurt the Thorpe team some, too, but the Mounties are always tough on their own floor. Same as the locals are in Miller Bowl, so the Friday fray should result in a Peterborough triumph, we figure. Chard, Sandford, Peterson and Davies stood out on the attack for the Mounties. Nit O'Hearn was a power for the Petes all evening and he tallied twice, singles going to Curly Mason, Harry Wipper and Ross Powless. Both goalies shone.

Cobourg's weekly columnist some time ago said the local junior ballsters shouldn't be allowed in the intermediate Lakeshore Loop, as it was no place for kids. Now he'll be more certain than ever that the Young Petes shouldn't be in there—on account of they beat Cobourg 7-3 last eve right in Cobourg! Their fifth win of the semester o'er intermediate opposition, so they're doing okay. Jerry Frizzelle hurled five-hit ball 'gainst Howie Dalton's club and had good backing. Dave Langhorne was back in action and played excellent ball, getting two safe hits. So did Johnny Cupoli, who also stole home once. Gary Kearns smacked out a mighty triple. An okay tilt for the local crew under the guidance of Al Menzies and Shockey Mein. They go to Whitby on Saturday and have Cobourg here Monday e'en.

Junior Petes Win 7-3 Over Cobourg

COBOURG (Special) — The Young Petes defeated Cobourg Legionnaires 7-3 here Wednesday night in a Lakeshore Baseball League fixture. It was the visiting juniors' first win of the season over the local intermediates, but the fifth Lakeshore League victory for the fast-coming Peterborough pack, guided by Al Menzies and Shockey Mein.

Jerry Frizzelle pitched five-hit ball in a neat showing for the winners, fanning five and walking but two. His mates kicked in with just two miscues and came up with some nifty fielding at times. The Young Petes bingled Lawless for nine safeties, and the Cobourg club booted four. The visitors won the game with a five-run rally in the sixth inning.

Langhorne led the visitors at bat with two for three, while Cupoli had two safeties in four tries, and stole home in the sixth inning. Bigford also got two in four. Young topped the losers with the willow in bingling safely twice in three official trips to the plate. Teams:

Over at Lindsay yesterday, in the men's open doubles, there were 38 entries, 17 of them coming from our club, and the boys did fairly well. They had a three-game winner, a two-game winner and a no-game winner; that's all the games there were. Results:

Third for three wins — Gar Braund and H. R. Martin, sk.

High for two wins—A. Mander and R. Payne, sk.

High of one win—W. Saunders and J. Cullen, sk.

Canada Fast Becoming Spectator Nation At Games

By JACK SULLIVAN

HELSINKI (CP)—Canada is fast becoming a spectator nation at the 1952 Olympic Games.

After four days of competition, Canada's athletes have a point-total of exactly zero in the unofficial standing of countries.

The rowing crews are all through. So are the wrestlers. In a dozen track-and-field events no one had come even close to a sixth place—which means one point in the standing.

NEVER REACHED FINALS

Where eliminations govern in track events, no one has reached a final—the only phase where points count. In events calling for a qualification round—especially in the field competitions—Canada had a couple of qualifiers but they finished far back in the finals.

At London in 1948 Canada won no events but scored a total of 35 points, finishing in a tie for 20th place in the standing. But at this same stage of the Games, Canada at that time had only six points—all in track and field.

In 1948 the paddlers scored 14 points and so did the track and field squad. The weightlifters picked up five points and the yachtsmen two. The oarsmen and wrestlers scored no points at London. They're now out of competition at Helsinki.

In the current Games the track and field performers have appeared in these events: Men's high jump, pole vault, men's discus throw, women's broad jump, 800-metre run, men's and women's 100-metre sprints, men's 200-metre sprint, 5,000-metre run, 110-metre hurdles, women's 80-metre hurdles, 50-kilometre walk.

At the same stage in London in 1948, with minor differences because of entries or non-entries in certain events either year, Canada had six points in these events: A fourth place, for three points, in the women's 100-metre dash; a fifth place, for two points, in the same event; a sixth place, for one point, in the men's high jump.

DID BETTER IN '48

The highest point-score in any event at London in 1948 was five points. Doug Bennett, paddler from St. Lambert, Que., placed second in the 1,000-metre Canadian singles of the canoeing competition.

Track and field athletes scored 14 points also. In addition to the six points scored in the same events that have been completed here, the remaining eight points were made this way:

Women's 400-metre relay team, third place, for four points; men's 400-metre relay team, fifth place, for two points; women's high jump, fifth place, for two points.

Athletes Scorning First Place Win Must Have Record-Breaker Now

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The way these Olympic Games are going you'll soon be able to buy a generous assortment of track and field marks—Olympic and world—for a couple of finnmarks.

A mere first place has so depreciated that it's practically scorned. Athletes who haven't become record-busters are beginning to feel they should have stayed at home.

Take yesterday's astonishing show in front of 70,000 spectators. Two world records were broken, five Olympic records wiped out and two equalled.

U.S. WINS JAVELIN

Such a performance should have sent the crowds into jubilation. But there was an unkind touch—the Americans stole the Finns' national sport away from them by placing one-two in the javelin throw. And with a record distance, of course.

The two world marks that fell were simply shattered. Adhemar Ferreiar da Silva of Brazil broke his own world record four times in winning the hop, step and jump. Shirley Strickland de la Hunty of Australia sliced the 80-metre hurdles world mark from 11 seconds flat to 10.8 in winning a semi-final heat.

Yvette Williams of New Zealand jumped nearly two feet beyond the Olympic record in winning the women's broad jump.

Cy Young of the United States, who throws the spear better than the Finns, set an Olympic record in winning the javelin throw. His teammate Bill Miller took second place.

Horace Ashenfelter, another American, bettered an Olympic mark in winning a heat in the 3,000-metre steeplechase.

SPRINTERS 1-2-3

Sprinters from the United States grabbed all three places in the 200-metre dash. Andy Stanfield led the procession in 20.7 seconds, equalling the Olympic record.

Harrison Dillard, the American hurdles specialist, was a heat-winner and record-equaller in the barriered 110-metre event.

This track and field rampage was mighty pleasing to the Americans but they still ranked second in the unofficial point standings to the Russians.

Russia's women gymnastics collected points by the dozen, while the United States got none in that competition. The Russians also had a margin on points in free-style wrestling.

When today's long schedule of events got under way the Russians led the standing with 266½ points. The United States had 202. No other country was near these rivals. Hungary was third with 59. Great Britain was in seventh place with 42. Canada was still without a point.

ROWERS STAND OUT

As usual track and field was the big attraction, but the rowing crews staged a great show all their own in settling finals.

Turij Tjukalov of Russia defeated Mervyn Wood of Australia, the defending champion, in the singles sculls. The powerful U.S. eight-oared crew from the Naval Academy of Annapolis, Md., remained unbeaten in defeating crew from Russia, Australia, Britain and Germany.

The U.S. also won the pairs without coxswain. Argentina won the double sculls, France the pairs with coxswain, Czechoslovakia the fours with coxswain and Yugoslavia the fours without.

In yachting, skipper Bill Gooderham's Toronto crew sailed their Trickson into second place in yesterday's six-metre-class race and now are sixth in the standing. Other Canadian boats finished far back yesterday.

In wrestling, Russia, Turkey and Sweden won two gold medals and the United States and Japan one each.

In fencing all of the Russians and all but one of the Americans were eliminated in the second round of individual foils. Three entries from Egypt and Italy advanced.

SHOE-IN—This odd-angled view of Rocky Marciano shows the Brockton, Mass., heavyweight training with the medicine ball at Greenwood Lake, N.Y. If his feet were really that huge, maybe the Black Buster could just step on Marry Matthews and win the scheduled 10-round fight at Yankee Stadium, July 28.

Dutch Runner Beaten By Australian

HELSINKI (AP)—A wan and weary Fanny Blankers-Koen went into eclipse yesterday as the world's fastest woman. She didn't seem to mind.

Dizzy from penicillin shots, the housewife heroine of the 1948 Olympic Games smiled weakly and told a reporter she thinks it's a "good thing" her world and Olympic marks are being broken.

"Records are made to be broken," said the 34-year-old Dutchwoman. "I think it's a good thing. It doesn't worry me at all."

An hour earlier, the Dutch mother of two watched from the sidelines as a younger generation stamped her world and Olympic records for the 80-metre hurdles into the red clay track at Helsinki Stadium.

In one semi-final, Australia's sensational Shirley Sticklund, a slender, attractive blonde, breezed home in a record world mark of 10.8 seconds.

Runners-up Maria Sander of Germany and Britain's Jean Desforges, clocked in 10.9, also broke Fanny's old mark of 11 seconds.

BEATEN BY RUSSIAN

In the other semi-final, Mrs. Blankers-Koen was second to Russia's Marija Golubichnaja, whose time of 11.2 equalled Fanny's Olympic mark. Fanny was timed yesterday in 11.3.

Later the still-smiling Fanny went to her hotel for medical treatment. Since Monday she has been taking penicillin injections for an attack of carbuncles on her back.

Without trying to alibi, Fanny said she felt feverish and dizzy before the race.

"I saw spots before my eyes," she said. "The carbuncles didn't hurt once I got running but I think I could have done better if I hadn't been so weak."

Give Russians Box Of U.S. Ammunition

HELSINKI (Reuters)—The U.S. Olympic pentathlon team gave the Russians a box of American ammunition after yesterday's shooting event, in which Soviet marksmen lost out when their own bullets misfired.

Aleksander Dehaev of Russia missed one complete round of five shots when his .22 automatic pistol misfired twice. Examination of the Soviet-made bullets showed that the pin had struck home in both cases but without firing them.

OLD GUARD—Some people suspected that Al Brazle was washed up, but the left-hander has pitched remarkable ball, starting and relieving for the Cardinals at 37.

Mounties Beat the Petes In Rough 10-5 Game To Lengthen Senior Lead

TORONTO (Special)—Mimico Mounties temporarily staved off the Petes' first-place drive as they downed the Timber Structures 10-5 in a roughly played contest before almost 2,000 fans, the largest gathering of the season. The win moves Mimico four points ahead of Toronto in second place with the Timber Structures six points back and two points back of the West York team.

Harry Wipper gave the Petes an early lead as he took a pass from Curly Mason at the 4:35 mark of the first period but Mimico came back with three unanswered goals to lead 3-1 at the end of the first period. They scored twice more in the second quarter before the Timber Structures came back, Curly Mason scoring his second point of the night. It was 7-3 at the half.

PENALTY HURTS

Peterborough started to threaten early in the third quarter as Ross Powless scored but Nit O'Hearn earned himself a cross-checking penalty as he boarded Mimico goalkeeper Red Hartley, who came far out of his net to field the ball. After that, the steam seemed to go out of the Timbermen, Sanford and Davies scoring.

Both teams scored once in the final period with Pop Chard of Mimico evening the score after O'Hearn had counted.

Pop Chard led the Mimico crew with three goals, Freddie Sanford and Denny Peterson each getting a pair, while Derry Davies got two goals and a like number of assists.

O'Hearn led Petes with two goals, the other three being split between Curly Mason, Harry Wipper and Ross Powless.

Toward the end of the game, Denny Peterson was involved in a shoving bee near the Mimico nets and was assisted off the field with a possible separated shoulder although the final X-ray reports have not as yet been received.

Petes—Wootton, Wipper, O'Hearn, Vitarelli, Nickle, Killingbeck, Powless, Thorpe, Ashbee, Burns, Robinson, Mason, Slater, Smith.

Mimico—Hartley, Downer, Blakely, A. Dixon, Stocks, Chard, Sanford, Davies, Simpson, Pritchard, McIntyre, Horwood, Peterson, Taylor.

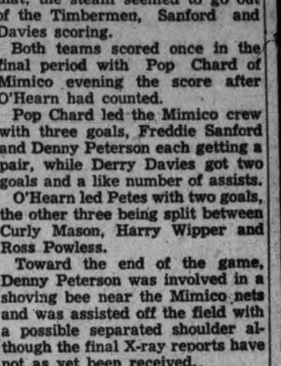
FLAT FEAT—Gene Woodling teetered over backward going after and barely hanging on to a long fly hit to left field by the Indians' Barney McCoskey at Yankee Stadium. Note the ball in the tip of the glove.



CAN'T BEAR IT—This young fellow appears as despondent as a loyal Dodger fan who has just watched the Bums blow one to the Giants. "There we were," he seems to be muttering, "last of the ninth, bases loaded, two out—and that Furriler takes a third strike!"

Omemee Subdues Arsenal Rockets 6-1

LINDSAY — Veteran right-hander Reg Gordon, of Omemee Whitemores, won his seventh straight game by defusing Canadian Arsenal Rockets on two hits for a 6-1 victory in a Lindsay Men's Softball League game last night. Gordon also homered in the ninth inning, and, on the mound, he struck out 13.

Nineteen-year-old Murray MacDonald pitched good ball for the losers, scattering seven hits and fanning three. Roy Crawford banged out two hits for the winners while Ken Bryans' booming triple tied up the game in the third. Max Graham and Vaughan Hogue were the only Arsenal players to hit off Gordon.

Royals Blast Toronto In 10-1 Triumph

By The Associated Press

Montreal rookie Ed Roebuck may become one of those baseball rarities, a hitting pitcher.

Ed held Toronto Maple Leafs to 10 scattered hits while his mates pounded out 13—six of them for extra bases—to trounce the Leafs 10-1 in the International League last night. He contributed a single and double to help win his eighth game against five losses.

Jim Marchio put the game on ice in the sixth inning with a three - run homer. Charley Thompson banged two triples and Junior illiam added a double and triple.

Marv Rickert accounted for Toronto's run with a circuit clout in the fourth inning.

Ottawa Athletics beat Syracuse Chiefs 5-4 on a five-run third inning. The Chiefs rallied in the ninth but fell short with only two runs. Marion Fricano got credit for his 10th win against five losses and Bill Woop was the loser.

Buffalo Bisons edged Baltimore Orioles 4-3 to creep within half-game of the fifth-place Orioles. Buffalo tallied the winning run in the last inning without a hit. An error, two walks—one of them intentional — and reliever Blix Donnelly's wild pitch allowed Don Lund to race home with the decision.

Springfield Cubs evened up with Rochester by taking the fourth game of the series, 5-2. The Cub attack was led by Red McQuillen with two triples and Bob Ludwig with a single and triple. Joe Padget won and starter Willard Schmidt was tagged with the loss.

Philadelphia Trips Pirates As Brooks Bow To Cincinnati

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

The magic number now is 18 in Pittsburgh's dash toward the major league booby prize. Any combination of 18 Pirate losses or Brooklyn wins will do the job. As the Pittsburgh lads—0-13 with Brooklyn—plays 11 more with the Dodgers, it shouldn't take too long.

After last night's 4-1 loss to Philadelphia, Pittsburg rested 41 games behind Brooklyn with 59 to play. And this is only July 24.

Rookie Steve Ridzik and ace Robin Roberts of the Phils teamed up on the Pirates with a five-hitter while Del Ennis blasted a two-run homer that doomed Bob Friend to his 15th defeat.

Brooklyn lost to a left-handed starter for the first time this season, letting Harry Perkowski of Cincinnati win with a 10-hitter, 6-4. Homers by Joe Adcock, Andy Seminick and Bob Borkowski off Carl Erskine carried more weight than Billy Cox's two-run double and Gil Hodges' 19th homer with one on.

Because New York and St. Louis were idle, the Dodgers lost only a half-game of their National League lead, now measuring seven games.

Bob Rush, making his eighth try for win No. 10 since June 13, finally succeeded in Boston where Chicago Cubs ripped into Max Surkont and three others for 13 hits and a 6-2 victory.

Just when New York Yankees were ready to land a knockout blow on Cleveland, the Indians bounced back behind Bob Lemon to win 7-3. Coming after Tuesday's double loss, the Tribe still trailed by 6½ games in fourth place.

Al Rosen's 18th homer in the fifth put Cleveland ahead to stay. They nailed it down with a four-run burst in the seventh that floored rookie Tom Gorman for his first major-league setback.

Boston closed within four games of the Yankees by blasting seven runs in the ninth inning at Chicago for a 10-4 decision. Eleven Red Sox went to the plate in the big inning.

Washington remained in a challenging position, only six games back, by besting Detroit 5-2 in 16 innings. Singles by Pete Runnels and Mickey Vernon drove in the three runs.

Starter Alex Kellner and winner Bob Hooper held St. Louis to four hits as Philadelphia Athletics handed the Browns their seventh straight defeat, 3-2.

Remember When—

Babe Ruth showed he could still hit home runs 14 years ago today when he drove out a 430-foot clout to win $50 in a long-distance slugging contest at St. Louis. Joe Medwick, a St. Louis Cardinal player won the $25 second prize with a 425-foot drive.

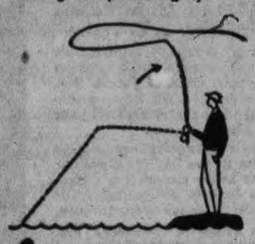
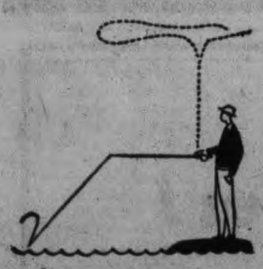
"COOL CONTROL"
FLY CASTING

1 Begin with basic grip—thumb on back of rod checks the back cast, gives essential control. With rod extended, clear line and leader from water by tensing rod upward slightly.



2 When fly is surfaced, snap rod upwards sharply—this sends line smoothly behind you. This pick-up should be swift and snappy. Movement is done with wrist and forearm. Check movement of rod when it is straight up.



3 When rod is perpendicular, wait for line to straighten out behind. When tip bows with back pull snap rod forward to horizontal position. Do not use force—a smart snapping movement with wrist and forearm will give proper control.

Yes, it's control that counts, in fishing as in every sport—control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Harry Matthews To Fight Rocky Marciano

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—When they were counting Max Schmeling out before his first fight with Joe Louis, the Pretzel Pounder said: "I zee zomezings."

Schmeling closely scrutinized the pictures of Louis' four-rounder with Max Baer. And when he started bombing the Brown Bomber with rights to the whiskers, what he saw became perfectly obvious. Louis dropped his left hand after jabbing.

Now it's Jack Hurley's turn to zee zomezings in Rocky Marciano, whom his tiger, Harry Matthews, must beat at Yankee Stadium, July 28, to qualify for the big one with Jersey Joe Walcott.

"Marciano is as green as Vinegar Bend Mizell," says Manager Hurley. "I saw him in a good fight in which he belted out Old Man Louis and in a poor one in which the breeze of his punches kept Lee Savold awake for six rounds. Marciano probably is not as accomplished as he appeared to be against the legless Louis. He couldn't possibly be as bad as he looked against the reformed barkeep, Savold. So I am striking a common denominator."

MARCIANO STRAIGHTENS UP TO JAB

Among other things, Marciano tips his mitt three ways, according to The Professor.

"Throwing his right hand and hooking with his left, he fights from a crouch," analyzes Hurley. "He straightens up to jab. When he has the right in mind, he bends to the right. His stooping to the left means the other bloke is going to get a left, or at least have one pitched in his direction.

Rocky Marciano Harry Matthews

"Now don't write this. I don't want those fellows to know we know. Oh, go ahead and write it. It's too late for them to do anything about it. Marciano in the fight will revert to that with which he has gotten the best results, anyway.

"And his giving us advance notice easily could go a long way toward spelling the difference.

"Matthews in workouts boxes only to see where the other guy's punches are coming from and to perfect the delivery of his own. Against Marciano it won't be too difficult for The Athlete to see where the punches are coming from."

SOFT FOR REAL PRO LIKE MATTHEWS

Marciano is a wild swinger, and Hurley wouldn't be surprised if he threw himself out of the ring a couple of times, trying to land a punch.

"He looked mighty awkward in both of the fights I saw him in," continues The Fox of Fargo.

"It is my idea that someone is going to be knocked out, and I feel certain that if Ted Lowry could twice go the limit with Marciano and Roland LaStarza and such as Don Mogard and Red Applegate, the latter only 15 months ago, could be on their feet at the end of 10 rounds, a real pro like Matthews should rather easily outpoint him."

You can't outsmart a solid sock on the jaw, but Jack Hurley insists that if Rocky Marciano nails Harry Matthews with one of his swings from Port Arthur and way points, he'll hit The Athlete on the head with the stool when — and if—he returns to his corner.

The Professor has zeen zomezings, you zee.

Housewife Claims World Record

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP)—A 26-year-old housewife who solved the baby-sitter problem by putting her two young sons to bed in a homemade buggy right on the Cape Cod beach claims a women's world record for striped bass.

Mrs. Kay Townsend of Shrewsbury, Mass., has learned that the 40-pound, 10-ounce striper she caught last week-end in the surf near here may be a record for women anglers.

The present titleholder is Mrs. Miriam Fowler of nearby North Truro. Her striper, caught two years ago near her home, weighed an even 40 pounds.

Because striper fishing is best at night the young mother had to overcome the baby-sitter problem. Her husband John built a special body on an old car with sleeping quarters for the whole family.

Mrs. Townsend's big striper was caught on a rigged eel lure at night.

New York Club Leading Henley Regatta

By CRAIG SWAYZE

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—The New York Athletic Club set out today to maintain its lead for the point aggregate championship and the Maple Leaf Trophy as the Royal Canadian Henley regatta swung into its second day of action.

There will be 25 races run off on the Old Welland Canal starting at 2 p.m. and eight will be finals. The remainder will determine starters in tomorrow's finals of the annual four-day international rowing competition.

N.Y.A.C. TAKES LEAD

Yesterday N.Y.A.C. grabbed an opening-day point lead when veteran Joe Angyal won the 145-pound singles quarter-mile dash from clubmate Rudy Jezek.

Angyal, the defending champion, swept to the finish line a deck length in front of Jezek, the United States' national titleholder. G. A. Hunkele of the Nereid Boat Club of Belleville, N.J., came third. Angyal's time was 1:25.

Don Guest, of Etobicoke High School in Toronto, second son of former Diamond Sculls winner Jack Guest, won the Canadian high schools singles championship in the only other final on the card. However, it did not count in the regatta standings.

Guest hugged the inside course all the way down to finish a good two lengths in front of W. L. Pfaehler of the Nutley, N.J., high school. Elmer Ewert of St. Catharines Collegiate was third. Guest pulled the mile in 6:29.

The New York scullers gained a total of four firsts yesterday. Angyal and Jezek won their dash heats and then Angyal captured the final while Eugene Loveless finished first in the opening heat of the junior singles.

BUFFALO, BROCKVILLE 2ND

Buffalo West Sides and the Brockville Rowing Club shared honors in the runner-up position, each club registering a pair of victories. St. Catharines, Ottawa, Ecorse, Mich., Hamilton Leanders, Toronto Dons and the Detroit Boat Club shared the rest of yesterday's spoils.

The two Brockville wins were outstanding in that the same crew pulled through in them both. John Bissonette stroked his lightweight four to victories in the junior 145-pound fours and the junior 135-pound fours less than an hour apart. The four boys will row both of today's finals.

An early-afternoon down-course wind whipped the waters of the historic course into eight-inch waves, the roughest veteran observers had ever seen the canal. However, by mid-afternoon the breeze had died and crews experienced little difficulty with the water.

It was a different story at the start as the exposed floats were whipped by wind and an extra heavy flow of water coming from the Decew power station upstream. Several races had to be restarted when boats drifted together or cross-currents threw the shells into each other.

Izvestia Has Complaint About Olympic Games

MOSCOW (AP)—Izvestia today printed the first complaint about the Olympic Games in Helsinki when it criticized the conduct of wrestler Tom Evans of Norman, Okla.

The Soviet press called Evans' conduct "improper." The press claimed that Evans struck Ollie Anderberg of Sweden several times in the head and at the end of the match refused to shake hands with his opponent. Anderberg defeated Evans, 2-1.

Hungarian Breaks 13th Olympic Record

HELSINKI (AP)—Jossef Csermak of Hungary today broke the 13th Olympic record of the 1952 Games by throwing the hammer 57.20 metres—187 feet, 8.02 inches—on his first qualifying throw.

The old record of 56.49 metres—185 feet 4.06 inches—was set by Karl Hein of Germany in 1936. Required qualifying distance is 49 metres.

Post Office Wins

Post Office edged Provincial Police 7-6 in their Civic Softball League fixture last evening. They cashed in on walks for four runs in the first and bingled home three more in the third. Coombes doubled in the fourth. The Police shoved one across in the first stanza and ran in five in a big sixth inning on some solid clouting. They threatened frequently from then on, but failed to tally. Teams:

Police — Rowe c, Crough 2b, Naismith cf, Healey ss, Philips p, Traynor 3b, Armstrong lf, Mohns rf, Louth 1b, Ede.

Post Office — Coombes c, Willshaw ss, Reid lf, Loucks 3b, Maher 1b, Smith rf, Moore cf, Thirnbeck 2b, Wilson p

CUTIE — Paul Minner was strictly a relief pitcher until acquired by the Cubs from the Dodgers. The southpaw worked into the nine-inning groove by outsmarting batters.

Piersall Remains Zany Character After Demotion

By TOM SILER
NEA Special Correspondent

NASHVILE, Tenn.—Jim Piersall will wake up one of these days and discover that the sports world is laughing, not with him, but at him.

Jim Piersall

He could be playing for the Red Sox, building a solid career, making twice the dough, trying to help the club win a pennant but, no, the young man finds such prosaic labor stifles his peculiar talents.

Somebody told Piersall he was a "character." He believed the man; instead, he should have shot him.

Piersall is only 22, a youth of tremendous talent, but the lad apparently is bent on self-destruction; that is, in the professional sports field.

He took his demotion from Boston to Birmingham of the Southern Association in characteristic style. At the Boston airport he said, "Vollmer! Vollmer can't blow his nose." Vollmer is the outfielder who is now playing in his spot.

Arriving in Birmingham, Piersall lashed a three-run homer.

Eddie Glennon, general manager of the Barons, believes the lad would bring $150,000 on the open market.

He might if someone could handcuff his selfish imagination.

He draws fans by the thousands, meanwhile infuriates teammates.

He tossed the ball to Pitcher Windy McCall, a teammate, and said, "That's a better curve than you've got," and trotted out to centre field.

McCall fired the ball at the retreating figure, missed him.

Piersall retrieved the ball, began drop-kicking it about the outfield, wound up playing catch with the scoreboard boy. He was thrown out of the game.

Piersall dressed, joined a group of kids in the stands. They soon were chanting, "We want Piersall, we want Piersall."

Red Mathis darted out after the umpire on a particularly odious decision. Piersall stood just behind him, unnoticed by Mathis, and mimicked the manager's every gesture. The fans roared, of course, but where does such clowning stop?

Boston is still talking about the defensive plays the kid can make.

He was hitting .29 when Lou Boudreau regretfully gave him a one-way ticket.

Piersall was just another quiet, studious recruit until after the June 15 trading deadline.

Then he was the cheerleader for the bleacher fans out his way.

He liked to trot in from the outfield behind DiMaggio and mimic Dom's peculiar gait.

On the baselines he likes to run straight at the fielder, then swerve by at the last second.

At bat one day in Boston he watched three pitches by Connie Marrero go by. After each called strike he made the exaggerated motions of a slugger. After the third one he got quite indignant with the ump, then proceeded to kick his glove all the way from behind second base to his post in the outfield.

Bobo Newsom, quite a showman himself, called Piersall the best outfielder he had ever seen.

Boston is eager for kids who can make it now that the old team is being dismantled. But Piersall doesn't seem to learn.

Leaving Boston, he blasted almost everybody the reporters asked him about. He said Bill McKechnie "is running the club, not Lou Boudreau." And added, "There isn't anyone on the club playing better than I am except George Kell. He likes to win, too."

Alas, the Jim Piersalls make wonderful copy.

But you get more mileage out of DiMaggios and Musials.

AUSTRALIA'S MARJORIE JACKSON speeded to a world record yesterday in winning the Olympic 100 metres dash at Helsinki. Here you see the Empire athlete getting away on one of her characteristic starts. Her time was 11.5 Tuesday and she had the race well under control all the way.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Merry England, the bay mare owned by Dr. J. S. Ferguson of Chatham, won both divisions of the Winnipeg Stake at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway yesterday. The Winnipeg Stake was named for the famous Canadian-bred harness horse which still is ranked as the world's greatest pacing gelding.

Merry England, well handled by Wilbur Apthorpe, came from well off the pace to whip 11 rivals in the first heat. She won under mild restraint in 2.08 3-5 with the veteran Norval G in second position and Jean Dillon third.

In the second heat, Merry England took the lead just as the field moved past the half-mile pole and she won handily. She paid $3.50 on her second trip with Jean Dillon second this time and Ima Lady M. in third place.

The afternoon marked the first appearance of Mary Lou O'Connor, from Warwick Downs, R.I., driving in open competition against the men. Obviously picking her way around the strange track, the little miss finished behind her seven rivals in both heats with her horse, Sweet Prince. However, she was right in contention in the second heat and showed driving skill when between horses on the turns.

VOYLES LIKES DARCH

Coach Carl Voyles of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four football union thinks he has a real find in middle wing Art Darch who played last season for Stamford Collegiate near Niagara Falls, Ont. "Now there is a boy who would easily jump from collegiate to our first-string club," Voyles said in Hamilton yesterday as he watched Darch work out with the Cats.

If Darch makes the first team, he will be following in the footsteps of Pete Neumann who caught a place with the Cats last year after playing with St. Catharines Collegiate in 1950.

TO STAY IN OTTAWA

Roy Mack, vice-president of Philadelphia Athletics, said yesterday the Athletics' Ottawa farm club will be in the International League next season. Mack said in Ottawa the parent A's would like to see Sunday ball in the capital, but failure to get it won't result in removing the franchise.

CUBS SELL RAMSDELL

Chicago Cubs yesterday announced the sale of knuckle ball pitcher Willie Ramsdell to Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League. The 34-year-old right hander won two and lost three with 67 innings. He appeared in 19 games.

U.S. YACHT WINS

The United States yacht Caribee, owned by W. Carlton Mitchell of New York, arrived in Plymouth, England, yesterday to win the 2,780-mile Bermuda to Plymouth yacht race in which five craft, one American, three British and one French, participated. They left St. David's Head, Bermuda, July 3.

WANTS JOE TO FIGHT

At Cincinnati, promoter Sam Becker yesterday offered heavyweight champion Joe Walcott a $200,000 guarantee to fight Ezzard Charles for the heavyweight title there Sept. 26. Walcott won the title from Charles and then won a decision from the Cincinnati heavyweight again at Philadelphia several weeks ago. Charles beat Walcott twice before.

FULVOUS WINS STAKES

Fulvous, a daughter of Dixiana Stable's famed Spy Song, won the 24th running of the $68,175 Lassie Stakes at Chicago's Arlington Park yesterday. The little chestnut filly is owned by Mary V. Fisher, daughter of the Detroit automobile body manufacturer and owner of the Dixiana Farms in Lexington, Ky.

A'S SIGN TWO

Philadelphia Athletics of the American Baseball League signed two Ontario boys as they closed their baseball school and tryout camp at Chatham. The boys who signed contracts were Jack Gallivan, 20, an outfielder from Petrolia, and Harold Newton, 18, Windsor pitcher.

MATTHEWS READY

Harry Matthews has the New York fight mob puzzled. The boys ride the subway down to 17th street and climb two flights to watch him work every afternoon. They wait, and nothing happens. Jack Hurley's protege glides through a couple of rounds with husky Keene Simmons of Bayonne, N.J., and calls it a day. They have been waiting for him to cut loose. So far he hasn't. But Manager Hurley says he'll be ready for Rocky Marciano Monday at Yankee Stadium.

Trickson Makes Best Showing In Yacht Race

HELSINKI (CP)—Best showing of Canada's four entries in Olympic yachting competition was made yesterday by the Toronto-owned Trickson which finished second in an international six-metre class race.

Trickson, skippered by Bill Gooderham, crossed the finish line three minutes behind Llanoria of the U.S. which covered the triangular course in two hours, 45 minutes and 36 seconds.

Trickson had to retire from Tuesday's race, however, and is in sixth place in the point standing with a total of 1,745. Norway's Elizabeth X still clings to top place with 3,036 points.

Racing ends Monday after a two-day break.

In other races yesterday Canadian boats finished far back and results of the Finn dinghy class races were not announced last night because so any protests were filed that the Olympic sailing committee deferred its decision until morning.

Canada's entry in the Finn class is sailed by Paul McLaughlin of Toronto, in 12th place in point standing Tuesday night.

The dragon-class Jet, sailed by J. N. F. Robertson, Archie Howie and Don Haines, all of Hamilton, placed 11th in yesterday's racing. Jet's 1,699 points places her well below Norway's Pan, leading with 4,070.

John R. Haley Dies

PITTSBURGH (AP)—John R. Haley, 37, of New Salem, Pa., a former star International League pitcher, died yesterday after a lingering illness. Haley pitched with Newark for several seasons and in 1938 led the circuit with a 17-2 record.

SUPERSONIC SAFETY IN A CAPSULE—These pictures illustrate the working of a remrkable new method of pilot escape from supersonic jet planes at high altitudes. They were taken during recent tests on a special track at the Naval Ordnance Test Station at El Segundo, Calif. Briefly, the device consists of a sealed cockpit capsule, containing the pilot, which is ejected from the plane during an emergency. It was tested at more than 760 miles per hour on the test carrier pictured above. The carrier is propelled over a 10,000-foot test track by rocket power. The capsule is ejected from it as it would be from a plane. Sequence pictures below show (top) the capsule-carrier speeding down test track. Then (centre) capsule is ejected and a fin apparatus opens to give it stable flight. Parachutes (bottom) are released to slow down the capsule. Capsule is sealed and pressurized against adverse atmospheric conditions, floats on water and is insulated against cold weather.

Press Photographer Frank Filan Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Frank Filan, 47, one of the United States' top-flight press photographers, died last night several months after an operation for a brain tumor. He was a 22-year veteran with the Associated Press and a Pulitzer Prize winner.

Filan served three years in the Pacific as a war cameraman and made 16 amphibious landings.

Filan's dramatic picture of Japanese bodies strewn on bomb-gutted Tarawa won him the Pulitzer Prize for the best news picture of 1944. It was made under fire with a borrowed camera after Filan's boat had been sunk and he had lost all his equipment.

$32,000 Loan For Prescott Bridge

OGDENSBURG, N.Y. (CP)—A proposed bridge across the St. Lawrence River between Prescott, Ont., and Ogdensburg went a step further yesterday with announcement of a $32,000 loan to the Ogdensburg Bridge Authority by New York State.

The bridge would provide the area's only all-year link in the event the St. Lawrence Seaway is completed and the water level here is raised.

The loan, along with $25,000 advanced previously, will enable the authority to proceed with engineering work without waiting for the State budget to be brought down next spring.

What's World Coming To? Reduce Beer To Tablets

By ALFRED CHEVAL

BRUSSELS (AP)—A young Belgian biochemist claims he has found a way to reduce any beer to tablet form.

The beer tablets, Robert Mouton says, can be turned back into a true foaming brew simply by adding water, alcohol and carbon dioxide.

He sees the future for his tablets in the opening of a world-wide beer market. Beer would be concentrated into tablets wherever raw material and manufacturing is the most economical. The concentrate then could be exported anywhere.

CAN STORE FOR YEARS

Mouton says "There'll be no water to transport, no bottles, just an easy to handle concentrate, cheap to pack, and transport. It could be stored for years even under tropical climate."

He claims a beer drinker would find it difficult to tell whether his beer comes from a tablet or straight out of a barrel or bottle.

Mouton says the process was demonstrated before the United States quartermaster-general representative in Washington, who said "it yields a beverage which very closely resembles the regular type of American beer."

Mouton says he has applied for patents for his process in which the beer's gas, alcohol and water are extracted through combined vacuum and deep freezing. What is left is a powder which can be pressed into any shape and size for transportation and easy storage.

1 Killed, 4 Hurt

RENFREW (CP)—One man was killed and four persons suffered minor injuries yesterday when a light truck and an automobile collided seven miles west of here and rolled into a 40-foot ravine. Stephen Murphy, 28, of Renfrew, driver of the truck, was killed. Cuts and bruises were suffered by Mrs. Eileen Hayley and her son, Kirk, 10, and Eleanna McLean, all of Ottawa, and Walter Hudson of Renfrew, a passenger in the truck.

Cupid Thrown For Loss By Starlet

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Cupid got thrown for a loss today as Debbie Reynolds declared she has no time for marriage—not at this stage in her blossoming career, anyway.

Debbie is the curvaceous cutie who made a hit by keeping up with the dancing feet of Gene Kelly and Donald O'Connor in a recent musical. Since then, she has been boomed for top stardom by her studio, and she has assured that romance will not interfere with her film plans.

"Building a career and being married are both full-time jobs," she said. "You can't do both at once and do justice to either of them. I come home at night after a dance number and I collapse. When I'm not in a picture, I'm out on a personal appearance tour.

CAREER FIRST

"That's the way it has to be when you're building your career. I can't even consider marriage for a year. If I have arrived by then I can afford to do less pictures; then I can think about getting married.

"Also, there is the matter of money. It wouldn't matter to me if my husband were making less than me. But he would have to have a healthy attitude about it. . .if he started to resent it, that would be the end of the marriage."

Debbie is not without her ideas about marriage. Some of them are very interesting. Such as: "The important thing about a marriage is to have babies. You should have as many as you can. You can worry about paying for them later; somehow you always do."

Got Wrong Name For Gun Victim

WINNIPEG (CP) — R.C.M.P. yesterday announced that the victim of a gun battle near Vivian, Man., Sunday night was not John R. Zahara, 42, of Kelowna, B.C., as previously stated.

Police had identified the man as Zahara from personal papers found in his possession. They declined to say who the man is until his next-of-kin in Ottawa has been notified.

The man, a suspected bank robber, was felled by police bullets in an exchange of shots at Vivian, 30 miles east of here. Another suspected robber, Alexander Zakopiac, 33, of Winnipeg, and Const. John Friend, of the R.C.M.P., were wounded.

The two suspects were believed implicated in a $7,000 bank hold-up in suburban East Kildonan. The money was recovered. Zakopiac has been charged with armed robbery.

Celebration Costly

WINDSOR — (CP) — Two lake seamen who ended an evening's celebration by using street carrier lanterns for footballs were fined $20 each yesterday. Boyd Armstrong, 28, of Toronto, and Lyn Freeman, 21, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., said a third, unknown person kicked the lanterns.

Seignory System Lives Again In Quebec Camp

MONTREAL (CP)—Seven young Canadians were knighted recently at a Laurentian mountains ceremony, 10 miles north of St. Gabriel de Brandon, Que.

Rites were carried out in the chapel of Lake Matambin Camp and there were no federal authorities on hand to point out that the practice of accepting titles has been abandoned for Canadian citizens.

In fact, squires, yoemen, pages and even a few chevaliers were on hand for the ceremonies. All of them were insured for $1,000 a head for the duration of their stay at the camp.

However, no knightly jousts are forecast and volley-ball, baseball and basketball are the aristocratic pastimes in this woodland resort.

Titles are conferred as part of the honor system at the camp, which is the only one of its kind on the North American continent.

Camp Matambin, a non-profit organization and summer resort for children from French-Canadian Protestant churches in Quebec province, has introduced the old French seignory system to keep the youngsters on their toes.

A boy starts life at the camp as a page, then becomes a yoeman. If he makes the grade he becomes a squire and finally a knight, and—in cases of exceptional merit—a chevalier. Chevaliers are invested in office in a chapel ceremony with full pomp and circumstance.

The camp, which was started in 1942 by Rev. Jacques Beaudon of Montreal, has mushroomed from four tents to a princely site comprising 30 acres of land, nine buildings, and a full program of activities.

Camp leaders are all members of the French-Canadian Protestant churches and work on a voluntary basis. Three weeks at the camp costs the young knights the sum of $25.-

Prairie Crops Good

OTTAWA (CP)—Crop development in the prairie provinces is "generally ahead of last year" but current wet, cool weather may retard maturity, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday. Warm, sunny weather is needed to promote filling and to diminish the threat of stem rust.

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A HORSE. — Thoroughbreds in training never find life dull or uninterestings. Here a runner at New Jersey's Monnouth Park is shown in various phases of a day's activity. Up at 6 a.m., he blows through the stretch, is rubbed down after the work. He revels in a roll in the sand, has his noon meal with the coach dog puppies, enjoys a quiet rest in his stall while awaiting the afternoon post time.

Horses' Many Whims Keep Bettors Guessing

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK —(NEA)— There are many understandable reasons why a race horse loses his form.

These are, as a rule, traceable to weight imposts, breeding, track conditions and jockeys. But there are other problems faced by the trainer. Temperament cost Morris Dixon's Kaster a chance at a purse at New Jersey's Monmouth Park. The usually well-mannered steed became so fractious in his stall, just before post time, that his handlers were unable to quiet him, and he had to be scratched. Thereupon he returned to quiet feeding, has shown no semblance of disorder since.

For The Thoroughbred Record it merely went to emphasize that no animal is as full of whims or whimsies as a running horse, as responsive to indulgence or receptive to cajolery. That is evident whenever horses suddenly lose their speed, crack up temperamentally or go into long spells of sulking.

A nervous filly who wouldn't eat was turned into a good-doer by Ben Jones, who cut a window in her stall so she could see her neighbor. Hirsch Jacobs was compelled to take up board flooring in Stymie's stall, so the Peepul's Cherce could dig his feet into the earth.

The great Australian, Carbine, flatly refused to go out in the rain. His trainer once was forced to shield him with an umbrella as he went to the post.

While most horses have individual peculiarities, they share a common liking for carrots. It was upon this knowledge the one-time remarkable rider, Isaac Murphy, predicted his success. He won a horse's friendship by petting him and crooning melodies into his ears, all the while permitting him to nibble carrots from his hands.

RIDER AND RAIL

Some horses run their best only when ridden by a favorite jockey —Red Pollard on Seabiscuit, for instance, or Otto Grohs on Thumbs Up, and today Jimmy Stout on Spartan Valor.

A number of gallopers won't perform their best unless they can run along the rail. Misstep was one of these. This extraordinary chestnut lost several stakes when his rider attempted to bring him out around the field.

Phil D. was once barred from starting in the far west because of neurotic post and paddock behavior. Today he has settled down considerably, but still has his eccentricities. He likes to dunk his hay into his water bucket before eating it. His trainer now provides him with two buckets.

A peculiar critter, the horse, which is not the least reason that betting on him keeps so many people broke.

WASHINGTON MILLENIUM—Taxi drivers even open the doors for their customers in the strange way of Washington Summer life.

Only Home Folks Living In Washington—Like It

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — We never had it so good here.

We, that is, who are left in the capital of the nation with Congress adjourned and almost everybody else gone—either on vacation, attending conventions or recovering from conventions.

The transformation is welcome therapy for the liver and disposition of the District of Columbia.

Washington, temporarily minus its high-powered politicians, lobbyists, world-savers and cranks, turns out to be a fairly habitable place.

In fact, the terrible impact of normalcy has been so great it sent the town's first citizen, Harry Truman, to the hospital for a few days, for the first time since he moved here.

Here are just a few of the indications which highlight our temporary revolution in living:

An afternoon cocktail party at the French Embassy broke up before midnight.

Most of the officials of the Bureau of Internal Revenue have stopped bringing their attorneys to work with them.

Gene, headwaiter at the Mayflower Hotel, promptly seated four sets of guests who didn't have advance reservations for lunch the other day before he realized what he was doing.

An admiral attended a cocktail party and forgot to point out the fallacies of the Air Force's strategic bombing plans. An Air Force general went to a cocktail party and forgot to mention the vulnerability of aircraft carriers. An Army general made a speech without once revealing that it's the doughboy who always wins wars.

Politics has fallen to such a low ebb that when Republican Vice Presidential nominee Sen. Richard Nixon's daughter stuck her tongue out at her neighbor, Sen. Estes Kefauver's daughter, neither Frank E. McKinney nor Guy Gabrielson bothered to deny it.

There were so many government officials at the baseball game the other day that when the umpire screamed "yer out," half the audience automatically reached for the resignations all bureaucrats carry around with them these days.

Washington social life has undergone the greatest summer changes, with odd results. The party life has fallen pretty low. And a young State Department official was heard to complain that for the first time in six months of married life he learned that his wife couldn't cook.

Two senators who had remained behind to catch up on their work after the session ended were amazed to find that you have to pay for your lunch in the Senate restaurant.

Guests at a party at the Korean Embassy were also amazed to find that you could attend a Washington buffet dinner without coming away suffering major contusions and abrasions.

In fact, it has gotten so downright pleasant in Washington even the taxi and bus drivers have become civil to the customers. And that, friend, is the millennium.

Well-To-Do Families Favor Corporal Punishment

LONDON (CP)—A survey of United Kingdom opinion conducted by the Mass Observation organization, has disclosed that more well-to-do than poor families favor corporal punishment as a measure of discipline.

The poll, confined to the larger cities of England and Scotland, showed that 16 per cent of those with incomes of 20 pounds or so a week were opposed to caning or similar forms of punishment of school children. In the lower income brackets—families with weekly earnings of six pounds or less, 31 per cent were opposed.

Whether or not people are married or have children made little difference to their views on the subject. There were equally slight variations between those of differing political or religious affiliations.

The survey, however, indicated that 68 per cent of those interviewed favored some sort of disciplinary action. But most approval of caning was based on expediency rather than principle.

Only a small percentage felt that caning actually would be good for a child or that it instilled into it respect for discipline and gave it moral training. Many, however, favored disciplinary use of fear, especially in dealing with the "cheekiness" of present-day children.

Corporal punishment was opposed mainly on the grounds that less severe measures usually were successful or because they felt that caning harmed the child emotionally.

Canada's Boxers Cleaning Up

HELSINKI (CP) — Canada's Olympic boxers are cleaning up financially by running a pressing service while they await the elimination bouts early next week.

In room 40 of the Canadian camp at Olympic Village, Charlie Chase of Montreal and Clayton Kenny of Ottawa ply the hot iron while Jimmy Saunders of Winnipeg chases customers.

So far they have ironed out the creases in 100 pairs of pants with a cash turnover of about $40.

The price is 200 finnmarks for a pair of pants. The chief clients are well-heeled U.S. Olympic officials and athletes.

Chase started the money-making scheme and took in Kenny as a partner. They offered Saunders a 25-per-cent commission to act as salesman and messenger but he turned out to be such a hustler that the pair took him in as a full partner.

"It's a good idea and it keeps the boys out of mischief," said Montreal's Bobby Malouf.

"I only wish I had thought of the idea myself," added Malouf who is a salesman in Montreal.

BEST FOOT FORWARD—Constance Darnowski showed perfect form and co-ordination winning the 80-metre hurdles during the Olympic Trials at Harrisburg, Pa., to join the United States team. The Brooklyn miss, 17, was only a 10th of a second off the national women's record.

New Paint Jobs Clean Up House, Give Satisfaction

There are few jobs about the house that give a person the satisfaction that painting does.

Fresh white trim on a house, a shining new verandah floor, or just a freshened-up kitchen chair do wonders for the home—outside or in."

But unless the painter has some idea of how to do the job, he can drench himself in paint and have only a sloppy looking job for all his work.

The first thing to be careful about is to make sure you use all the paint you have in the can. In other words, stir up the paint when you first open the can with a strong wooden paddle, at least inch wide and with a square end. Pour off most of the liquid on top and stir the pigments thoroughly scraping the pigment from the bottom of the can. Then pour back the liquid gradually, stirring as you go.

Need Priming Coat

You should make sure you use a good priming coat on surfaces. There are many siutable primers on the market. Unless you have a good prime coat on, your finishing coat won't amount to much. Be sure, before you start, that you have removed all loose, scaly paint with a scraper and sanded the wood smooth. After priming the surface, putty the cracks and nail holes. This will prevent the oil of the paint being absored into the wood.

The thinner you use should not be the same for both exterior and interior work. For an outdoor job, thin the paint with equal parts of boiled linseed oil and turpentine. For paint to be used inside, the thinner should be turpentine.

Your care will all come to nought if you don't use a good brush. And once you have a good brush, take care of it. Never let paint dry in the brush. If you haven't completed the work, suspend the brush in a can containing a mixture of half raw linseed oil and half turpentine.

Do not stand the brush in the can. This will only bend the bristles. When you are through painting, clean all the paint out of the brush with turpentine, wash it thoroughly in soap and warm water, and allow to dry.

To make sure the paint sticks where you brush it on rather than flowing into ridges on smooth, glossy surfaces, sand the surface to be painted first.

A dirty surface caked with wax or grease can wreak havoc on paint. You should be sure of the surface you are painting, whether old floors, cement or linoleum, be sure the wax and grease is removed by washing off thoroughly with turpentine or a good floor cleaner. And don't start to paint before the surface is dry.

There are many other little pointers, such as putting on two thin coats rather than one heavy coat, that you may know already. Or you will pick them up as you go along. In either case have fun, and give some of the credit to the paint.

Tokyo Police Expect Anti-American Wave

TOKYO (Reuters)—Police headquarters warned today that Communists and Red organizations are striving to work up a wave of anti-Americanism throughout Japan to coincide with the Aug. 15 anniversary of Japan's surrender in the Second World War.

At the same time United States Army authorities here put a large area of northwest Tokyo out of bounds to U.S. troops without saying why.

Red China, Korean Delegations Arrive

TORONTO (CP)—Delegations from Communist China and North Korea arrived here by plane early today to attend the 18th International Red Cross conference. They are the last of the delegates to arrive for the three weeks of meetings which started yesterday.

Two members of the Russian delegation were on hand to greet the arrivals. The first plane arrived at 1:45 a.m. EDT and the second about an hour later.

The first plane carried 14 delegates—11 Chinese and three North Koreans. Another nine were on the second.

Montreal Bookie Tells Probe Of 'Fat' Business

MONTREAL—Harry Ship, who operated one of Montreal's biggest business annually during the fat street east from 1940 to 1946, told the vice probe yesterday that he did more than $1,000,000 worth of betting houses at 906 St. Catherine years, but was "flat broke" in 1946.

"The horses forgot to win," he explained laconically to Mr. Justice Caron, who asked how that came about.

Ship said he considered the fines paid from time to time for operating his illegal establishment as a kind of special tax to the city.

"The fines we paid," he said "took care of the Police Department's salaries, or a large part of them, and the city coffers were getting fat. I think that's why we were tolerated."

"You said that when you started there were only three bookies operating," Mr. Justice Caron recalled. "Could the police raid you twice a day?"

"Yes."

"Would the bookmaking places have continued to operate if the keepers were put in jail?"

"No."

"It's very difficult to believe," the judge remarked, "that there was no protection being paid somewhere."

Ship said that after each raid on his betting house he ordered the apartment number on the door changed, because he knew that any given address raided twice in a one-year period was subject to padlocking.

He admitted that city police had raided his place 34 times from 1940 to 1946 and there were 42 similar visits from Provincial Police in the same period.

"I see by the police records that the police raided 44 different apartments in your place," said Pacifique Plante counsel for the petitioners of the proble.

"It it's written there, it's true," said Ship.

Asked how it happened that his place was padlocked in spite of the changes in apartment numbers, Ship said:

"I couldn't understand how they managed this because of my system, but I never argued with them."

Ship continued his testimony this afternoon, after the customary Wednesday morning recess. He will be followed to the stand by Louis Bercovitch, who is serving a life term for the sensational 1946 killing of gambler Harry Davis.

Three Officers On Casualty List

OTTAWA (CP)—The Army today issued its 123rd casualty list of the Korean War, reporting three officers of the 1st battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment, all lieutenants, wounded in action.

The last previous list was issued July 11.

The list brought the number of casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korea to 917, including 160 dead, 684 wounded, 64 injured, eight missing and one prisoner of war.

WOUNDED IN ACTION

Given 4 Years In Pen On Narcotics Charge

TORONTO (CP)—Harold Crellian of Toronto today was sentenced to four years in penitentiary and fined $500 or an additional six months for having possession of narcotics.

His wife, Thelma, was given two year with a $300 fine or an additional four months on the same charge.

Magistrate O.M. Martin said: "If I were sure you were a distributor I would give you the maximum penalty of seven years and a $1,000 fine."

Raising Funds To Renovate Hall At Bridgenorth

Renovation of the community hall at Bridgenorth is the purpose of a draw for funds, and also for prizes to the public, Monday evening, August 18.

Bridgenorth hall is actually the Canadian Order of Foresters' building, but it has been so long shared by the C.O.F. with all kinds of public groups, including political party meetings, that it has been regarded generally as a community building.

At any rate it needs repairs to remain in use and as a public accommodation.

Ernest A. Scott is one of those who are inviting the interest of the people of Smith and the city of Peterborough. Other townships are included in this appeal. The committee has issued tickets at ten cents each, or 24 for one dollar, in a draw for a radio, electric household appliances, turkeys, chickens and so on.

Mr. Scott is past Chief Ranger of the C.O.F., and the present incumbent of that office is J. F. Pulcine.

For the affair of August 18, Havelock Pipe Band has been engaged. They will supply part of the program, including Highland dances.

PARADE

There will be a parade at 7.30 from the highway entrance to Chemong Park, down the road to the lakeside village. Ernie Scott expects there may be a few floats, and some decorated cars from other C.O.F. Courts, such as Lindsay, Oshawa and Peterborough.

The evening's program will be on the village green opposite Sam Bell's place, and will include step dancing, old time fiddling and other entertainment. Funds for the renovation of the C.O.F. hall will ensure its future use for Smith and Bridgenorth people, and generally for the public as well as by the C.O.F.

25,000 Cars Daily On Bridge

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's most heavily travelled section of highway is the Humber bridge on the Queen Elizabeth Way where 25,000 automobiles pass on a busy day, J.D. Millar, deputy minister of the Ontario Department of Highways said today.

He said traffic on No. 11 highway at the Toronto northern city limits often approaches the 25,000 figure, while 5,000 is the average daily traffic on the highway between Toronto and Barrie.

On No. 2 highway between Oshawa and the Quebec border the average traffic is about 1,500 vehicles, Mr. Millar said. On the most heavily travelled section of the highway, between Trenton and Belleville, the figure approaches 4,000.

He said that around towns like Brockville the figure is probably 3,500, with cities like Kingston hitting a higher figure.

WEALTHY PROVINCE

HOT WEATHER TALE—Two London Zoo denizens pull a few monkeyshines during Britain's heat wave. Cool water in a cage pool looked like a nice way to dodge the high temperatures. Trouble is the first monkey did not dodge fast enough and the second one grabbed firmly at the base of the situation. "I just want to be first in, that's all," he seems to be explaining. Battle ended with both up to their necks in water.

Bowlers Win In Deseronto

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Bowlers from the Campbellford Bowling Club went to Deseronto, Brighton and Lindsay on Wednesday to take part in tournaments in those towns. They met with mixed success.

One rink, led by Skip Walter Wiggins, won first prize at Deseronto with a score of 52 plus five. The two other members of the rink were Bert Taylor and James Archer. They were presented with nylon sports shirts for their winning effort.

Second prize was won by a rink from Stirling, consisting of Skipper Earl Fox, X. P. Mayhew and J. Jefferies. Third prize was won by a Deseronto rink.

Three pairs of doubles from Campbellford tried their bowling skill at Brighton but they finished out of the prize list. They were George Vice and James McMullen, A. D. Bennett and Bill Smith, and R. J. Locke and Art Stinson.

Another doubles team—Archie Meyers and W. A. Kingston—went to Lindsay but they also failed to place.

Du Pont Dies At 71 Years In Hospital

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—Lammot Du Pont, 71, one of three brothers who led the development of the modern E.I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co., Inc., from a small black powder factory 150 years ago to one of the great chemical companies of the world, died today in a hospital here.

Du Pont had been ill for several weeks and had been taken to the hospital recently from his summer home on Fischer's Island, N.Y.

The youngest of three brothers who built up the mighty industrial domain, he was president of the company for 14 years. He headed it from 1926 to 1940, succeeding his brothers, Pierre and Irenee in that position. From 1940 to 1948 he was chairman of the board. It was during that period the Du Pont company was called upon to use its scientific skills in helping to make A-bombs and Lammot shared in many of the important decisions.

Lammot was born near Wilmington, Del., Oct. 12, 1880, and was named for his father, who was the first American to build a dynamite plant. The father was killed in an explosion at the plant when Lammot was three years old.

Lammot followed his brothers to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from which he was graduated in 1901. He went to work at the Du Pont company a year later and became general superintendent in the black powder department in 1913.

Lammot was elected a director and member of the executive committee in 1915 and in 1926 he took over the presidency upon Irenee's resignation. He retired as board chairman in 1948.

Paris Police Investigate Cruel Killing Of Horses

PARIS (Reuters) —Police have opened an investigation into charge of cruelty at a Paris slaughter house where horses are killed for human consumption.

The charges were first raised in a series of articles in the Manchester Guardian written by a Canadian newspaper man, Patrick Keatley, Vancouver Sun reporter, who is in Europe on a press scholarship.

Officials of the French Animals Protection Society backed up Keatley's charges.

President Gaston Dumaine said horses awaiting slaughter stand watching other horses die. They are led through chambers strewn with dead horses, stacks of bloody hides and entrails.

Most of the horses killed in Paris are imported from Ireland.

Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, Canada's top co-ordinator for civil defence, said he agreed with Sir John, adding: "And let's hope Eastern Canada will soon catch up."

1 Dies, 4 Hurt In Renfrew Accident

RENFREW — One man was killed instantly and four other persons suffered minor injuries when a truck and a car crashed into a 40-foot ravine eight miles north-west of Renfrew shortly before noon Wednesday.

The death of Hercules John Murphy, 38, of Renfrew, driver of the truck, was due to internal injuries. Walter Hudson, of Renfrew, a passenger in the truck, suffered slight injuries and shock.

Driver of the car, Mrs. Eileen Hayley, of Ottawa, her 2-year-old son Kirk and 18-year-old Eleanor McLean, maid in the Hayley home, were treated at Victoria Hospital. Their injuries were not considered serious.

The child was in a safety seat beside his mother and when the car rolled over several times, he was thrown into the back seat.

Cause of the accident is not yet known and investigation by the Renfrew detachment of provincial police is continuing. Both vehicles went off the road on the north side, although the truck was proceeding east and the car west. There is no evidence of a collision between the two vehicles.

An inquest will be held Friday night in Renfrew.

Still Battling Old Japanese Mines

VICTORIA (CP)—The Second World War ended seven years ago, but the Royal Canadian Navy is still battling Japanese mines which drift on the British Columbia coast.

These old mines are still dangerous, having no automatic devices to render them harmless after a time despite the fact that the Geneva Convention demands this safety measure. Age often makes the explosives more sensitive.

Forty mines have been reported and investigated on this coast since 1944. In all cases where actual mines were found—more than 30—the mines have been defused or exploded.

Occasionally a citizen does not realize he needs protection. In 1946 a Queen Charlotte Island farmer found a mine high and dry on the beach. He dragged it 15 miles on a stoneboat to his farm and was on the point of sawing it in two to make drinking troughs for his cattle when a provincial policeman chanced by.

A navy disposal team exploded the mine, leaving a 20-foot crater in the barnyard.

Oshawa Votes To Continue Rent Controls Stratford Council Decides To Lift Curbs

Oshawa city council voted Monday night to continue rent controls as a responsibility of the Ontario government.

Ald. John Dyer said the Legislature had a select committee considering the matter, it was reported. T. D. Thomas, the riding's M.L.A., is a member of that committee which was considered the more competent body to deal with the question of rent controls.

The Legislative committee recently recommended that rent controls be retained indefinitely in Oshawa.

The women's auxiliary of the U.A.W.A. and Oshawa and District Labor council sent letters to the city council strongly urging the retention of rent controls.

The special committee of the council "noted the burden caused to property owners. They considered the matter to be a complex one which could be eased only by greater competitive building."

Peterborough council Monday night referred the rent control question to its property committee "for study and report."

Stratford city council this week, by a recorded vote of seven to three, adopted a motion that rent controls be lifted.

Stratford District Trades and Labor Council is considering the issuing of a challenge to the city council to debate rental controls at a public meeting. They say: "Organized labor will not remain complacent while elements within the city council are prepared to follow a policy which is detrimental to the wage earner, and to the less fortunate, which include widows, pensioners and veterans to whom we and you of the city council owe so much."

Shooting Death Accidental Jury Decides At Inquest

A coroner's jury took just 20 minutes Wednesday afternoon to find that George H. Cutmore, 55, died May 11 from the accidental discharge of a 20-gauge shotgun. Cutmore was found lying immediately behind the open trunk of his car that was parked in a cedar grove, just off the River Road, two and a half miles north of the city. A 20-gauge shotgun was lying by his side and there was a wound the size of a quarter in his stomach.

The inquest was ordered by the Attorney General's department with Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner of Ontario, presiding.

REPORTED AS SUICIDE

Both the police and coroner's reports, made out immediately after the shooting, called the death of Cutmore suicide. When difficulties arose over the payment of a couple of insurance policies an inquest was ordered by the department.

Chief Coroner Lawson summed up the evidence before it went to the five-man jury:

"There is nothing in the evidence that I heard which indicates the case is anything other than accidental . . . However, gentlemen, you are the ones to decide."

Twenty minutes later the jury brought in the verdict:

"We, the jury, unanimously agree that George H. Cutmore came to his death . . . by the accidental discharge of a 20-gauge shotgun."

Focal points of the inquest were the condition of the gun and the position of the fatal wound.

David Clement, gunsmith, said that the 20-gauge shotgun could be fired by cocking the hammer part way and then releasing it. If the hammer were pulled back five-eighths of an inch and then released the gun would fire every time. The fully-cocked position is three-quarters of an inch; and from that position the gun can only be fired by pulling the trigger.

DEFECTIVE

Professor Joselyn Rogers of the medico-legal branch of the Attorney General's department described the gun as "defective."

Harland Keefer, one of the jurors, asked Prof. Rogers if the gun could have been fired in this freak manner when Cutmore was removing it from the trunk of the car.

"That's the only explanation that I can see," replied Prof. Rogers.

He also pointed out that the wound was at right angles to the body. The gun would have to be at stomach level and parallel to the ground to inflict such a wound, he said.

Judging by the size of the wound the muzzle of the gun must have been touching Cutmore's stomach or not more than five inches away when the shot was fired, said Prof. Rogers.

O.P.P. Sgt Lloyd McClure said the shooting was reported to him by radio while he was on patrol and he was led to the scene by Bob Donaghue of Patterson Ave., Toronto, and two companions — Earl Gilman of Sophia St. and Maurice O'Heron, Jr., of River Rd. The trio had found Cutmore about noon on Sunday, May 11, as they drove along the River Rd.

IN DRIVEWAY

The Cutmore car was facing north and was in a small driveway among cedar trees, just visible from the highway.

Sgt. McClure said he noticed the deep impression of two heel marks in the clay behind the car. They were 22 inches apart as though Cutmore had been at a "stand-at-ease" position.

He also noticed the imprint of the butt of a gun in the clay, 27 inches in front of the left heel mark.

A juror asked Sgt. McClure if Cutmore could have tripped the trigger from that position by bending over.

The sergeant demonstrated and commented "he might."

BELIEVE ACCIDENT

Dr. C. B. Waite, pathologist, said he had never seen a man who had committed suicide by shooting himself in the stomach. Chief Coroner Lawson said that was his experience as well.

"I think it was an accident," said Dr. Waite.

"The gun would have had to be almost horizontal to have done it?" asked Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, Q.C.

"Yes," said Dr. Waite who had known Cutmore for many years.

Thomas P. McMillan, jury foreman, suggested that if Cutmore bent over the gun and fired it the shot might go through the pit of the stomach.

6 City People Hurt In Crash

COBOURG (ENS) —Six Peterborough people were injured, none seriously, when their car went out of control on Highway 2 Wednesday afternoon and overturned in a ditch four miles east of Cobourg.

Driver of the car, Grant Smith, 19, of 474 Mark St., was driving toward Cobourg when he lost control of the car. It hit a culvert and landed on its top in the ditch. The auto is a total wreck.

Smith suffered cuts and bruises, and is in Cobourg Hospital. His mother, Mrs. Helen Smith, suffered concussion and cuts, his sisters, Marjorie, 26, cuts and shock; Linda, 11, shaken up, Dorothey, 22, shock, Sharon, 5, shock and bruises. Marlene Sutherland, 12, 450B Mark St., suffered shock and bruises.

Investigating officers, Provincial Constables Lyle Erskine and Robert Tremills, said no charges will be laid.

Belleville Builds District High School

A new high school, costing $875,000 in Belleville, serving the Bay of Quinte High School District may be completed in time for the opening of the 1953 school term in September.

In approving the application of the area high school board at a special meeting Wednesday morning, Belleville council gave the board authority to purchase a site for the school, engage an architect and call for tenders.

Council's approval of the board's application does not commit the city to any large expenditure, as the council will decide whether or not to approve construction of the new school after tenders are in and a closer estimate of costs is known.

Seven transports loaded with civil defence exhibits arrived in Peterborough Wednesday night. They were met at the Exhibition grounds by Mayor Hugh Waddell and members of city council including Ald. J. A. Dewart, Peterborough's civil defence chief.

The exhibits, some of them animated, are designed to show the effect of war on civilians. A part of the whole show demonstrates the effect of the atom bomb on a city.

ALL IN CRATES

All of the exhibits were crated, and none was shown to civil defence officials or members of council. Lt. H. D. Honeck, in charge of the seven-truck caravan, said it took two weeks or more to set up the displays, and that they would not be shown in Canada for at least two months.

Sponsors of the Alert America exhibit are the Federal Civic Defence Administration, Washington, and the Valley Forge Foundation, New York. The foundation is government-financed.

The convoy was expected to arrive in Ottawa at noon today, where the exhibits will be unloaded and adapted to meet Canadian civil defence requirements. Next year the exhibits will be on tour through the larger communities of Canada.

Bricklayers Refuse Punch Time Clock

OAKVILLE (CP)—Bricklayers, insisting they wouldn't punch a time clock, were off work today for the third day at the Ford Company of Canada assembly plant, now under construction here.

The 25 men walked off their jobs Tuesday when their employer, Anglin-Norcross Ontario Ltd. refused to pay them unless they punched a time clock.

William Jenoves, business manager of the Bricklayers' International Union No. 2 (A.F.L.) to which the men belong, said clock-punching is not done on any other jobs and "we don't intend to do it at the Ford plant."

The dispute is entirely between the union and the construction company and has nothing to do with the Ford Company of Canada, Gordon McLaughlin, Ford resident engineer said.

He predicted cars would be rolling off the assembly lines a year from now provided there are no "unforseen delays."

Trenton Team Jumps To Help At Air Crash

A para rescue team from R.C.A.F. station Trenton which parachuted into the bush near Bagotville, Quebec Tuesday evening where four airmen were killed in the mid-air collision of a Vampire jet fighter and a Lancaster bomber, lost contact for several hours when their radio was damaged in the jump.

Nursing Sister Isobelle Thompson of North Bay and Sgt. T. W. Dawson of Ottawa flew to the scene from Trenton in a Dakota aircraft and parachuted to the ground with medical supplies and a radio

Circling aircraft picked up only faint garbled signals for several hours after the pair jumped but Wednesday morning, they were spotted when they began using ground strips to signal the aircraft flying over the area where the two planes crashed.

Will It Last?

Citizens are wondering if they can uncross their fingers which have been curled together since the cooler and drier weather settled in. They were hoping it would last more than one day. It looks as if they are going to get their wish. Tomorrow the day is to be sunny and warmer, but with a high of only about 80. Wednesday the peak temperature fell far below 95 that Ontario was warned was coming. It turned out to be only 84 in Peterborough and during the night it dropped to 60 and Peterborough slept.

Raise Funds For Minor Lacrosse

Permission for the Minor Lacrosse Association to sell Life-Savers candy rolls on the streets of the city Saturday, August 16, was recommended by the Finance Committee of the council Monday night.

The motion by Ald. Herbert Young, seconded by Ald. Harold Rehill, suggested that the date "should be cleared" with the Police Commission and the Chamber of Commerce, mainly to avoid conflict with any other organization.

As sports fans in Peterborough know, the P.M.L.A. is sponsored by the senior lacrosse club for the promotion of the game among boys who are attracted to it.

When the seniors first moved into Miller Bowl, their executive gave a voluntary undertaking to the city council to encourage the youngsters to learn the game. They have spent money in engaging a coach for that purpose, have a junior team in provincial competition, and a flock of young gaffers who already know how to handle a stick.

NEED FUNDS

The minor league is a conspicuous example of what can be done in promoting athletics. Such promotion involves expenditure. Funds are supplied from the senior gates. Coaching cost is part of the outlay that has been met from year to year.

Citizens who are concerned about the boys of Peterborough engaging in what are called manly sports have been favorably impressed by the sound program of the senior sponsors, and by the efficient manner in which they have performed their promise years ago to the council.

So, the people who are interested in the young boys of the city and in the policy of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club will have an opportunity on August 16 to show their approval of this enterprise in boyhood by buying Life-Savers.

Six Fishermen Given Awards For Catches

Orders of the Kawartha Muskie have been awarded to six American tourist fishermen by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce to date this season.

Only one Order of the Kawartha Angler, also an American tourist, has been awarded this season.

Orders of the Kawartha Muskie are given to fishermen with residence outside Peterborough county who catch a muskie weighing 15 pounds or over. To win the Order of the Kawartha Angler award a small-mouth bass weighing three pounds or more, or a pickerel weighing at least five pounds must be caught.

In 1951, 25 Orders of the Kawartha Muskie were given out and three Orders of the Kawartha Angler.

The majority of this year's awards have gone to people from Pennsylvania and Ohio. The biggest fish of the six was caught by Francis Lehtinan of Fairport, Ohio, which was 45 inches long and weighed 25¾ pounds.

The remaining muskie awards went to Jim Berry, Dr. Van B. Weber and Leonard C. Reyner, all of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Joseph Forma, Depew O.; Dick Pencak, Geneva, O. The sole Order of the Kawartha Angler went to R. H. Mowry of Jefferson, O.

$250 CAR ACCIDENT

A southbound car, driven by Glen Heath, 24, of 513 Romaine St., was in collision Wednesday night at Downer's Corners with an eastbound car driven by Jack Nurse, 18, of 1 Lansdowne St. Damage to the cars totalled $250. Heath had almost crossed the highway when he was in collision with Nurse's vehicle. The front end of the Heath car was damaged to the extent of about $100; the whole left side of Nurse's car received damage estimated at $150. O.P.P. Constable Jack Ricard investigated.

Takes A Tumble

Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner of Ontario, is probably nursing a few lumps today as a souvenir of his visit to Peterborough. Just as he adjourned the coroner's inquest Wednesday afternoon the dignity of the Peterborough County courtroom was shaken. He suddenly fell with a crash underneath the judge's bench with the swivel chair on top of him. For a moment there was dead silence as courtroom officials and spectators feared that he had suffered some sort of attack. But it wasn't so. A castor of the judge's swivel chair had come loose, throwing the chair into unbalance when he tried to sit down. Ontario's chief coroner lay on the floor for a moment, hoisted himself to his feet, and as he dusted off his more than 200-pound frame announced cheerfully: "It's a good thing some fat old judge wasn't here when it happened."

Commuters' Buses Off Routes During Holidays

Commuters who don't work at the larger city industries are having a tough time of it these days. Since the C.G.E., the Westclox, the De Laval, Outboard Marine, and others have shut down for holidays, bus service on three commuters' routes has been discontinued.

It has been estimated that one in every 10 workers is a commuter, but this ratio has probably dropped temporarily since the holiday shutdown.

Commuters' routes stopped over the shutdown are to and from Omemee, Lakefield, and Bridgenorth.

One man who lives on the road to Omemee and usually takes a bus to work, has to hitch-hike these days. He said that where a full busload came to the city each working day, now only seven men are coming in.

Service on these three routes will be resumed once holidays are past.

Rush 2 Girls To Toronto After Crash

One Given Plasma In Ambulance Escorted By Police

COBOURG (ENS)—Two Grafton girls, four-year-old Lynda and 14-year-old Barbara Spears, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Spears, were badly injured in a highway accident at the eastern limits of Grafton Wednesday afternoon.

Rushed to Cobourg Hospital, they were examined quickly and then taken by ambulance to the Hospital for Sick Children with a provincial police escort. Blood plasma was administered to the older girl en route.

It was at first thought that the younger girl had a fractured skull but it is now believed to be concussion. Barbara received facial lacerations and a bad fracture of the leg. The nature of the fracture was such that special attention was considered necessary and she was taken to Toronto.

The accident happened on Highway 2 when a westbound car driven by Glen Jackson, of Belleville, suddenly came upon the two girls crossing the highway, when the car came over the crest of a grade into the village's 30-mile-an-hour zone.

The driver headed for the ditch in a vain attempt to miss the girls, but struck them with the left front of the car. Jackson received facial lacerations and was also taken to Cobourg Hospital. The scene of the accident is considered a bad spot because traffic proceeding at highway speed suddenly is in the 30 mile zone after it comes over the brow of the hill, and as several accidents have occurred there, residents of Grafton feel there should be more signs.

Urges Hospital Be Reorganized After Inquiry

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—S. E. McGorman, an Essex county representative on the board of the 350-bed East Windsor Hospital for Incurables, yesterday recommended reorganization of the hospital's administrative machinery.

He told a provincial government commission which is investigating the hospital's affairs that the public confidence in the hospital's management has been lost and can be retrieved only by a government-sponsored reorganization.

The institution's charter should be revoked and the hospital reincorporated under another authority, preferably the city of Windsor, he said. At present the hospital is under the control of the East Windsor Health Organization, a private body.

He called also for institution of a hospital board which should represent "in some rough way. . .the people who have money in the hospital." Members of the present board had no money in the hospital, he said.

He criticized also the relations of the board with Hospital Superintendent Dr. J. P. G. Morgan.

DENIED NOTHING

"Nothing that Dr. Morgan ever wanted was voted down. . . Dr. Morgan (has) said no one controlled him and that, I think, is the simple truth."

Mr. McGorman said the superintendent is "the highest paid doctor in employment in Canada."

Dr. Morgan receives a $12,000 annual salary and a $6,000 expense allowance.

The inquiry, now in its ninth week, is continuing.

Bolts Rips Farm

SUTTON (CP) — A bolt of lightning smashed through Merl Sedore's barn yesterday, ripped out a section of the roof, knocked out every window in the structure and started four fires. It raced on to the Sedore farmhouse, destroyed the electrical switch box and filled the house with smoke. Five minutes later rain fell and extinguished the fires in the barn. Sutton is 40 miles north of Toronto.

Bevan Groups Pack Agenda With Resolutions

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — Rank-and-file groups have packed the agenda of the British Labor party's annual conference opening Sept. 29 with resolutions backing the policies of leftist Aneurin Bevan.

The resolutions draw the battle lines for a new struggle for Labor leadership between Bevan and former Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

Attlee and Bevan, tempestuous, crusading former coalminer, are the strong men of British Socialism.

Attlee draws most of his support from the big labor unions, whose leaders—like himself—are moderate.

Bevan, a man who has risen from the people, depends on the little men of the socialist movement.

REFLECT CONCERN

In particular, the resolutions reflect rank-and-file Socialist concern at the size of the British arms program; what is deemed British dependence on the United States; the danger of war with Red China; moves to rearm Germany; the strict race policies of Prime Minister Daniel Malan in South Africa; and the embargoes on east-west trade.

Bevan supporters argue Britain's partnership with the United States has bound this country to follow U.S. foreign policies. These policies they contend, have helped start the world arms race and have brought the rea mament burden on Britain. And in turn the scramble for guns has pushed living costs up and up.

Of 68 resolutions on foreign policy 56 are critical of the courses to which Winston Churchill's Conservative government, largely supported by Attlee and his moderates, have committed Britain.

Of 44 resolutions on Britain's arms program, 43 urge a cutodown in some form or another. Many favor expanded trade with Russia and East Europe. Several voice deepening concern at German and Japanese competition in world trade, forecasting this may well depress British living standards.

Expect Record Wheat Crop To Affect World Selling

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—With the weatherman co-operating, Canadian grain experts anticipate a record wheat crop this year, but faces dull when they consider what this may do to international bargaining.

A bumper crop has been forecast for the United States and the experts feel that if the Canadian crop develops into another bumper harvest, importing countries may use this as a lever to argue for a curb on export prices.

Some 40-odd countries are negotiating for a new international wheat agreement to replace the one which expires July 31, 1953. The top wheat-exporting countries, Canada and the United States, are demanding that the price ceiling be raised substantially from the current $1.80 a bushel, in United States funds, for No. 1 Northern.

TURNS THUMBS DOWN

Canadian negotiators want a ceiling of between $2.15 and $2.35 a bushel. The United States has suggested about $2.50 a bushel. But wheat importers, including the biggest one, the United Kingdom, have turned thumbs down on any price advance.

With an eye on the heavy wheat stockpile that may develop in the western world, they have indicated the price should remain at the present level. As a result, a preliminary meeting on development of a new wheat pact held in London last May achieved no concrete results. Another is scheduled for the fall.

By that time, the negotiators will have a clearer idea of the wheat supply. There's a feeling in Ottawa that by then it may be harder than ever to persuade the importers to agree to any boost in price.

For conditions in Canada point to the heaviest wheat crop in history. Any shift in the weather may, of course, upset the outlook, but so far the experts anticipate that the crop of 1,359,000,000 bushels harpeak harvest of 566,000,000 bushels in 1928.

The U.S. has predicted it will produce about 1,326,000,000 bushels of wheat, second only to the peak crop to 1,359,000,000 bushels harvested in 1947.

Greenland, New Nation, Off Canada's Arctic Coast

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP)—Unknown to most Canadians, a new nation is growing off Canada's northeast coast. It has moved in a few years from the Stone Age to that of electricity and industrial development.

The modern Greenland, which elected its first National Council a year ago, was described in an interview here by Dr. Paul Marinus Hansen, who came to St. Andrews as a Danish delegate to the recent annual meeting of the International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries.

The white-haired scientist has been termed one of the greatest authorities on sub-Arctic marine biology. During his 22 years of work in Greenland waters, the natives have revolutionized their fisheries, advancing from primitive seal hunting to the operation of modern motor vessels. Before many years they may invade the southerly banks.

Within the last five years the world's largest single shrimp and prawn beds have been discovered by Danish researchers in Disko Bay, far up the North Atlantic off Greenland. Each of these rich fishing grounds is 10 miles long and five miles wide, on a level stretch of ocean floor.

BIG DEVELOPMENT

Denmark has spent millions of dollars developing the land most people think of as entirely snow and ice, Dr. Hansen said. Greenland has sheep and cattle industries, some mixed farming and two export industries—cryolite mining for steel manufacture and the fisheries. Rich lead mines were recently discovered but are not yet in production.

A climatic change, reversing a cold wave believed partly responsible for obliterating a 10th-century, Norse civilization in Greenland, is seen by Dr. Hansen as the Danes' chief aid in developing "Thule." A program adopted in 1950 for scientific, administrative and industrial development of the country is aimed at providing security for Greenlanders in the event of a return to a colder period.

Warmer water has resulted in cod spawning near Greenland, and "now we have our own cod." More than 150 fishing stations dot the fjords and bays of the 840,000-square-mile island. In sheltered areas modern towns and villages have arisen, although inland most of the country is buried under ice up to two miles thick.

New birds and insects are being found on land. Forage for livestock grows again where it grew to feed animals of the Vikings 1,000 years ago.

Greenlanders are being taught to go farther afield for fish, with cod having succeeded seals in importance to the industry. If a cold period comes again, the development planners hope the inhabitants will be equipped and trained to follow the fish south and draw a livelihood from waters far from Greenland.

Commie Dictator Mathias Rakosi Reported Ousted

By LEON DENNEN

MUNICH, Germany (NEA) — Mathias Rakosi, Red dictator of Hungary and the last of the Cominform stalwarts who once ruled behind the Iron Curtain, is reported to have been ousted by Moscow.

According to underground labor sources, Hungary is now ruled by a triumvirate of Soviet citizens of Hungarian origin who are also ranking members in the Russian secret police. These are Erno Gero, Minister of Economic Planning; Josef Revai, Minister of Education, and Peter Gabor, chief of the Hungarian secret police.

The purge of Rakosi has not yet been officially acknowledged. Having spent something like 14 years in prison under the prewar Horthy regime, he is still the most popular Hungarian Communist. It would thus be difficult to purge him as brutally as were Ana Pauker in Rumania and Rudolf Slansky in Czechoslovakia.

But the once-powerful Red remains only as a show-piece in Hungary's Communist shop. The "muscovite" triumvirate is already in complete control of the country.

First indications of Rakosi's disgrace came last March when he celebrated his 60th birthday. He received messages of congratulation from Communists throughout the world. But there was one notable abstainer—Stalin.

Since then the disgraced Red has been entirely isolated from his friends and close collaborators, the underground reports say.

All his supporters serving in the Hungarian embassies, legations and consulates abroad have been recalled to Budapest. The former counsellor of the Hungarian legation in Paris, Banreve, has been arrested and charged with high treason.

Like Slansky and Pauker, Mathias Rakosi is a Jew. This is regarded as further proof that Stalin, like Hitler, is now resorting to anti-Semitic policies.

But in the view of close students of Soviet methods, anti-Semitism alone does not explain the current wave of purges behind the Iron Curtain since non-Jewish Stalinists have also been ousted.

There is growing belief that the purges also reflect the struggle for the succession to Stalin inside the all-powerful Soviet Politburo.

With Stalin ill and ostensibly preparing to retire, the fight for his mantle between Vyacheslav Molotov and Georgi Malenkov, secretary of the Russian Communist Party, has reportedly become acute.

The disgrace of Rakosi followed the visit to Hungary of Marshall Nikolai Bulganin, a member of the Soviet Politburo. Bolganin represents the Red Army forces in the Politburo and is believed to be a Molotov man. Malenkov is backed by Laurenti Beria, mysterious chief of Russia's secret police.

Molotov, who is known to rely exclusively on the power of the Red Army, has long been hostile to the Cominform and the satellite leaders, like Rakosi, who were once connected with it.

Civil List Bill Passed In U.K.

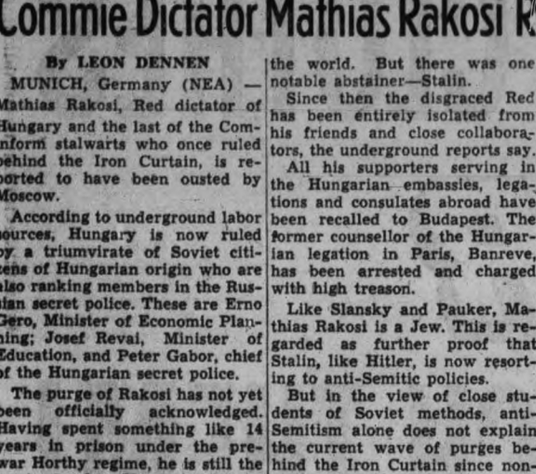
LONDON (Reuters)—The Commons early today passed the Civil List bill which provides the State income of the Royal family.

Under the bill, the Queen will get an annual income of 475,000 pounds. The Duke of Edinburgh will get an annuity of 40,000 pounds.

Since the bill was first put forward, Labor has urged reductions. Conservatives agreed that some economy might be necessary, but fought any proposals that the Queen should run her court "on the cheap."

Tom Driberg, a Labor member, said that he thought no one would want to reduce the Royal family to the Scandinavian level and have them bicycling around London.

"I do not think people would like it," he said.



LADA KIML—"They speak of the weather as being very bad."

Lidice Native Works Hard For Liberation Of Homeland

By JAY HEAVILIN

CLEVELAND — (NEA)— The people of Czechoslovakia so despair of unchaining themselves from their present Communist rulers that most of them would welcome a European war of liberation. That's the opinion of Lada Kiml, an anti-Communist leader of America's 1,000,000 citizens of Czech birth or background.

Stocky, bespectacled, 57-year-old Kiml is in a position to know. Born in Czechoslovakia, he is president of the American Committee for the Liberation of Czechoslovakia, editor of a Czech language daily newspaper here, and a veteran of World War I service with the Allies in the National Czech Army. He was raised in Lidice, the village near Prague which became world famous when the Nazis obliterated it 10 years ago.

WORSE THAN NAZIS

"Eighty-five per cent of the Czech people," Kiml says, "including many of the old time "intellectual Communists," feel that in many ways life under Red rule is worse than it was under the Germans."

Kiml says they would like to revolt. But, although the underground is active, the Soviet-trained army is too strong.

"If we were united, there might be hope," contends Kiml sadly. "But there are many Czechs — particularly among the younger people—who have turned to Communism as a means of self-aggrandizement. Some 200,000 have joined the Straz Nardoni Bezpecnostu, or Guard of the National Security. They are the dread 'S.N.B.' men who use terrorist methods to enforce the laws of the Communist state."

The "S.N.B." executes any family in whose home a weapon is found. Thus, Kiml points out, the Czech underground, though it has successfully harassed the Reds' war production program through sabotage, cannot by itself effect a revolution.

Letters from relatives in Czechoslovakia, Russia's richest satellite, and interviews with recently arived D.P.s provide Kiml with a peephole in the Iron Curtain.

WEATHER BAD

"The people do not dare write of conditions as they are or they would be shot," reports Kiml. "But always in their letters to relatives in the U.S. they speak of the weather as being very bad in an effort to tell us their hardships are great."

✧ ✧ ✧

A tribute to the efficiency of Red censorship, says Kiml, is the fact that letters from Czechs who have kept abreast of world conditions by listening at great risk to the Voice of America make no mention of the presidential scramble, or the imprisonment of American newsman, William Oatis.

Reports received by Kiml, however, indicate the Czechs like Ike and regard the Oatis case as one of the most disgraceful blots on their nation's history.

A real estate broker who has helped many D.P.s to find homes in northern Ohio, Kiml has also learned that while workers in Czechoslovakia labor 10 hours a day, six days a week, volunteering 10 hours without pay on Sunday, they have less in the way of personal possessions than ever before.

"The farmer has no tools or equipment," declares Kiml. "They have been confiscated so he will fall behind his quotas and the state can take over his farm. And in the cities, the people must pay the equivalent of $5 for one pound of beef, $15 for one pound of coffee."

Kiml asserts that if Czechoslovakia is not liberated within the next 15 years, the once proud nation will forever be lost to Red tyranny.

"Czechoslovakia must be freed before the youngsters now being indoctrinated with Red propaganda grow up. The Czechs know this," says Kiml. "That is why they pray for war to come soon."

Appoints New Ministers

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Duplessis last night announced appointment of three new cabinet ministers without portfolio to replace the three ministers who were defeated in Quebec's general election last week. "FLYING BODY"—One way scientists peek into supersonic flights of the future is with recoverable "bodies" like the one above. Packed with instruments shown here in cutaway view, the bodies are mounted with various types of wings and dropped from high altitudes. Another test method is the more conventional wind tunnel model, like the one being prepared below to study effect of porous leading-edge wings.

Need Refrigeration To Cool Pilots In Supersonic Flight

By SHERMAN MONTROSE

MOFFETT FIELD, Calif. — (NEA)—It may sound odd, but in the 60-below-zero temperatures in which today's fastest planes travel, it isn't the cold that worries the scientists who are working out the problems of tomorrow's plane—it's the heat.

Scientists at The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' Ames Aeronautical Laboratory here regard temperature—and high temperature, not low — as being the biggest stumbling block to man's efforts to travel faster and faster in the faster-than-sound speed range.

At supersonic flight levels, the rush of air past a planes wings, tail and fuselage causes terrific friction. The friction causes heat. Not long ago a Douglas Skyrocket streaked at 1,300 miles per hour above California's Mojave Desert. In the cramped cockpit, the pilot was cooled by a refrigerator with sufficient capacity to cool a theatre seating 3,000 to 4,000 persons.

But it's not merely keeping the pilot cool or in an air-conditioned cockpit that worries Ames people. High temperatures weaken aluminum structural parts, thus requiring heavier construction. The heavier the plane, the shorter the range.

Friction of the air through which the plane travels could very well cause a plane to melt—if it travels too fast, engineers now say.

While temperatures encountered by the Skyrocket on it's 1,300 miles-per-hour run are a secret, some figures have been released. At 2,000 m.p.h., for example, air friction creates heat of 600 degrees—enough to weaken aluminum alloys; at about 3,300 m.p.h.—heat may rise to as much as 1,600 degrees—heat that would sap the strength of any steel now used in plane construction.

To attack and solve the problems of this new "barrier of heat," major contributions are expected from the Bell X-2, a stainless steel research airplane designed to investigate high supersonic speeds where aerodynamic heating will be experienced.

The problem of heat is only one phase of supersonic flying being tackled at this vast air laboratory.

Here are wind tunnels, one of them the largest in the world. Here are smaller, supersonic tunnels, in which the wind screeches like a thousand banshees as it beats against plane models exerting a force equivalent to actual travel at twice the speed of sound.

This is a world of aerodynamic terminology which confuses the layman; of needle-nosed fighters with virtually no wings; of huge die casting machines; of complex recording machinery used aloft and on the ground; a world of research to find the materials and the mechanics that will go into the planes of tomorrow.

A peek into a supersonic tunnel, visible on a projected screen, shows the shock waves that bend like the strings of a bow around the model. The scream of the wind drowns out all other sounds in the room.

15th Child Welcome

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a young woman who lives in Brooklyn and she has so many children she's delighted. "The more the merrier," laughed Mrs. Anne Giacalone, 38, after the birth Tuesday of her 15th child in the 17 years of her marriage.

Lifts Cattle Ban

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's restrictions on meat imposed Feb 28 as a result of an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan will end July 25, Premier Duplessis announced last night.

HEAVY DUTY BRIDGE — One hundred fully loaded trucks roll across the new Corneille Bridge over the Seine River at Rouen, to prove the strength of the new span connecting the two sections of the city. The $3 million structure is the largest welded steel bridge in the world. It is 580 feet long and 96 feet, four inches wide.

Training Two Canadians For Biological Detectives

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (CP)—Two Canadians are training at Rutgers University to become biological detectives in tracking down diseases which strike at both men and animals.

The Canadians, Fergus J. O'Rourke, of Canada's department of agriculture, and Dr. Allen S. West, of the department of biology at Queen's University, Kingston, are studying a Rutgers-developed method of identifying sources of diseases.

Diseases, which are transmitted to men and livestock, are often carried by animals but often the identification of the disease-carrying animal has been the missing clue.

STUDIED IN LABORATORY

Through the Rutgers method, the blood sucked from animals by mosquitoes and other insects is examined in a laboratory.

If disease germs are present, then scientists can trace them back to the animal which originally carried them through identification of the blood.

For instance, a certain type of malaria in parts of Central Africa was originally believed to have been carried by rodents. Blood identification methods enabled biologists to place the blame on a tiny antelope.

O'Rourke, who came to Canada from Dublin, is learning the Rutgers method to help the Canadian department in its fight against equine encephalities in Western Canada.

Dr. West plans to lecture on the new method at Queen's.

Mines Minister Elected By Nfld. Acclamation

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Mines Minister Fred W. Rowe was believed elected by acclamation in Labrador when nominations closed yesterday for a by-election in the constituency.

No official report was received by election headquarters here and officials said this indicated no other candidate had been nominated. The Progressive Conservative party announced earlier they did not plan to contest the seat.

Bad weather deferred voting in the remote northern constituency in the Newfoundland general election last November.

Mr. Rowe's election would increase the Liberals' strength in the 28-member Legislature to 22. The Progressive Conservatives hold five seats. The remaining seat is vacant pending a by-election in Ferryland.

FOREST RESERVES

National forest reserves in Alaska cover 21,000,000 acres of wood such as spruce and hemlock.

GERM DETECTIVES — Fergus J. O'Rourke, left, of Canada's Agriculture Department, Ottawa, and Dr. Allen S. West, right, of the Department of Biology at Queen's University, Kingston, are studying at Rutgers University, Brunswick, N.J., to become biological detectives. They are tracking down diseases which strike both men and animals. Centre is Elizabeth Paulsen, of Dennville, Vt., studying for her doctorate in serology. The Rutgers method identifies diseased animals by the blood sucked from them by mosquitoes and other insects.

NOW, TIDE WASHES CLOTHES WHITER THAN YOU CAN BLEACH THEM!

THE WASH TEST PROVES IT!

TIDE gets clothes WHITER—with no bleach!

Amazing new tests prove that Tide, used alone, washes WHITER than any other washing product with bleach added. It's washday's big news . . . and you owe it to your clothes to try it! You'll never want to put bleach in the washwater again, once you see how much whiter clothes come with Tide alone!

SO MILD FOR HANDS! SO SAFE FOR COLORS! SO THRIFTY TOO!

YES! With all its cleaning and whitening action, Tide has an amazing new mildness. In fact, no other washday product is milder on hands than Tide!

ACTUALLY BRIGHTENS COLORS! For dramatic proof of Tide's wonderful safety, watch soap-dulled colors come brighter after just one Tide wash. Tide really cares for clothes and colors just as it does for your hands.

AND TIDE IS SO THRIFTY TO USE! Such a little Tide makes such oceans of rich, long-lasting suds . . . goes so far in hardest water, it's a miracle of economy.

"I've proved it, and now my clothes are whiter—thanks to TIDE!" says Mrs. Madeleine Beaudry of Montreal, P.Q.

"I'm so glad I tried Tide! I've tried all the leading washday products and the best bleaches in my wash water. But—much to my amazement—Tide alone washed my clothes whiter than they've ever been! And thanks to Tide I can now save money on bleaches, too!"

TIDE alone washes WHITER than any other washing product with a bleach added!

YOU HAVE TO SEE IT TO BELIEVE IT! And you can see it! You can see how much whiter Tide washes your clothes than any other washing product with a bleach added! No matter what bleach you use in the wash water . . . no matter what washing product you use it with . . . your clothes won't come out so white as they will with Tide alone! Amazing new laboratory tests prove it—get Tide and prove it for yourself!

SAVES MONEY! SAVES CLOTHES! With Tide, no bleach is needed—so you'll save the money you used to spend on regular washday bleaching. And clothes last longer with Tide's gentle, no-bleach action, because there's no chance for too much bleach or too harsh a bleach to weaken fabrics. Get Tide today . . . save money on clothes . . . save money on bleaches!

CLEANER CLOTHES, TOO! Tide gets clothes cleaner than any soap of any kind. Canadian women have proved it themselves! No soap known will get out so much grimy dirt, yet leave clothes so free of dulling film! There's nothing like Tide for washday miracles.

MAKE THIS SIMPLE TEST!

Prove for yourself TIDE washes WHITER!

Take two shirts; wash one with Tide alone, soak the other in a bleach overnight . . . and then compare them for whiteness. You'll see that the Tide-washed shirt is actually whiter than the shirt that was soaked in bleach! Why, except for stubborn stains, you need never bother with bleaching again!

NO OTHER WASHING PRODUCT CAN PROMISE ALL THIS!

Washes clothes WHITER than you can bleach them!

Gets clothes CLEANER than any other washing product sold in all Canada!

MILDER for hands than any other leading "detergent"!

NO WONDER TIDE IS CANADA'S FAVORITE WASHDAY PRODUCT!

Mr. Fix:

Wage War On Insects Before They Attack

Distributed by NEA Service.

Although few home-owners defend themselves from fly and mosquito hordes with anything more than window and door-screen barriers, there IS more you can do to fight off these invaders.

To give some idea of the size of the vast armies you have to combat, the National Pest Control Association offers this information.

A single pair of flies could produce 191 septillion flies in four months, if all lived. That number is 191 followed by 24 zeros.

These hordes are doubly dangerous because of the constant threat that they'll resort to germ warfare right on your own home front. House flies transmit typhoid fever, tuberculosis, infant dysentery, and other diseases. Mosquitoes carry yellow fever, dengue, malaria and others.

"Hit 'em where it hurts the most" is a rule of combat. In military warfare, armed forces are hurt most when their sources of supply are hit. The same goes in insect warfare. All the ammunition or supply a fly needs is food —the remedy is to cut it off from the supply.

Fitting lids tightly on garbage cans is one answer — thus you eliminate garbage as a source of food.

Rinse garbage cans thoroughly each time they are emptied. Finish the job with a solution of disinfectant.

Don't overfill a garbage can, for its lid won't stay in place, exposing the waste to flies.

Food particles collect in small cracks and crevices in floors, tables and cabinets. Give them special attention.

There are other lines of attack on flies, of course. Fly traps, fly papers, fly poisons, fly-electrocution devices and the old reliable fly swatters are a few.

Space sprays and spray bombs are nearly indispensable. Mr. Fix suggests that you use residual sprays that will stick on screens, garbage cans and porches.

As for screens, 16-mesh-to-the-inch screens will keep out almost all insects. Fit screen doors to open outward.

There are more ways than you might suspect of ridding your home of flies and mosquitoes, by getting to the source of the pests.

Mosquito warfare takes a similar line. Your job is to hit their source of production, or reproduction in this case.

Mosquitoes breed in standing water. You can hit them where it hurts by not allowing water to accumulate in tin cans, eavetroughs and street gutters. Put screen over open cisterns; cover cesspools, septic tanks and rain barrels; empty bird baths at least once a week, and treat standing water in pools or ponds with larvicides.

Sprays of 5 per cent DDT on porches and both sides of screen doors are effective artillery against mosquitoes.

Health authorities stress that all such chemicals should be used only in accordance with manufacturers' directions.

Detailed information on specific chemicals to use against flies and mosquitoes may be obtained by writing to the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q.—How can metal rain gutters be preserved?

A.—Paint the inside of gutters with asphalt roof coating; the outside with house paint.

Steel Strike Brings Big Grain Movements

MIDLAND (CP)—The United States stel strike brought about one of the heaviest July grain movements in years to this Georgian Bay port.

The strike forced diversion of most lake boats from ore trade to grain with the result that the five elevators here and in nearby Port McNicoll are filled to capacity. In one 30-hour period last week five freighters brought in more than 2,000,000 bushels of grain.

The situation is different in Midland shipyards where layoffs are expected because of shortage of steel.

Canada Lacks Invitations To Atom Blasts

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA (CP)—There's nothing delicate about an atomic explosion but it's a delicate and difficult thing for a foreign country to get invited to see one.

No country knows that better than Canada.

A few months ago there were signs that her federal authorities—keenly interested in seeing and studying one of these massive spectacles—might at least get invited not to one but to two of them this year, one American, one British.

So far, neither hope has materialized. All the Canadian officials know about these hideous weapons and their effects continues to be what they read in books and reports.

ALL A MISTAKE

The American case turned out to be a particularly delicate one.

Some months ago Health Minister Martin told reporters Canada had at last been invited to see one of the U.S. explosions, one designed to instruct civil defence officials in the problems of civilians under such attack.

Reliable reports indicate that it was all a mistake, that the "invitation" actually was an unauthorized suggestion by an American official who had no right to go as far as he did.

No Canadian officials have gone to see any U.S. explosion and at this date they see no sign that the U.S. intends to lower its barriers to foreign inspection.

MUM ON AUSTRALIA

The other case involves the British plan to explode some kind of an atomic weapon in Australia within the next few months. Since Canada has provided a lot of help to the British atomic program, it has been assumed here that an invitation will be forthcoming for Canadian observers to go along.

So far no invitation has been forthcoming. It may come yet.

Because the cost would be prohibitive, Canada isn't in the weapons field herself but is concentrating on peaceful development of the atom. At the same time, a lot of the research she does at Chalk River has proved of importance to both the U.S. and British weapons programs.

Steel Shortage Delays Highway

He was speaking during his official visit to old Fort Henry here. He inspected the Fort Henry guard and watched it go through a complicated, century-old foot-and-arms drill and fire a four-gun salute.

Unwanted Prairie Horses To Be Killed For Pet Food

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The demands of a farm economy and a growing market for canned pet foods are combining to wipe out much of the remaining horse population in Western Canada.

Latest move to remove from the scene more of the west's unwanted horses is the purchase of two packing plants at Edmonton and Swift Current, Sask., by a U.S. firm.

The plants, to be operated by a subsidiary of Quaker Oats Co., will process horse meat for pet food. They will be supplied from the remaining herds of surplus horses on the prairies.

FEW NOW USED

The horse, once the mainstay of farm operation, has been getting the gradual brush-off from farmers for more than two decades. Today few are used for farm work.

Mechanization of farms made the horse a liability rather than an asset. Small bands of them ran over the countryside, eating from pasture which could have been used to fee beef animals or milk cows.

As an outlet for these surplus horses, slaughter and packing plants were set up during the war. In the last seven years almost 240,000 horses have been slaughtered.

Some of the meat was sent overseas for human consumption and some used for animal food. Processing gained impetus in the last few years when high beef prices forced many housewives to look for a low-priced substitute.

However, there is still a large number of useless horses scattered on farms or running wild in herds across the prairies.

LARGELY FOR PETS

It is this supply which the U.S. firm intends to draw on to keep the plants at Edmonton and SWIFT Current operating. Most of the meat will be used for pet food, and a small amount processed for shipment overseas for human consumption.

Officials of Quaker oats said the company processes 39 per cent of the pet food sold in the United States.

It is improbable that the horse will disappear from the prairie. Many farmers keep them for odd jobs, and possibly out of sentiment. And to take part in ranching.

Avoid Past Party Feuds In Democratic Platform

CHICAGO (AP)—Democrats pledged prosperity, peace and progress to American voters today in a platform that avoided past party feuds over civil rights.

A quick decision by Speaker Sam Rayburn, after a mixed shout of yea and no votes, put the national convention's official approval on the new campaign document early this morning.

Delegates from Georgia and Mississippi asked to be recorded as voting "no." But skilful manoeuvres by Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, platCommittee chairman Frank Mckinney produced a fair sample of party harmony.

The shouted adoption, after McCormack had read the 10,000 words to tired delegates, was music to party leaders who feared a repetition of 1948. In that year a bitter floor battle for a stronger racial-relations plank split the party wide open, and in the November election four southern states were absent from the Democratic column.

BOTH CLAIM VICTORY

Curiously, both Dixie delegates who insist that states can best handle racial problems and northerners who want strong federal action are claiming victory.

The answer is that the same words and phrases, if handled skilfully, mean different things to different people.

Northerners claimed the new plank was much stronger than 1948's; southerners said parts of the plank went a bit too far but they preferred party harmony to a fight.

Other planks caused no serious trouble. They looked back with pride over 20 years of Democratic administration under the "new" and "fair" deals.

Republicans were flayed as the Democrats listed their policies for business, farmers, labor, veterans, aged persons and a score of other population segments.

Thieves Get $100, Radios, Cigarets In Hastings

HASTINGS — (ENS).—Thieves entered J. A. Sullivan's service station here during the night and stole $100 in U.S. money, all the silver in the till, three radios, and all the cigarettes from the showcase.

The theft was discovered this morning when 16-year-old Paul Sulivan, son of the owner, opened the garage. He found no change in the till, then saw the U.S. money was missing, and noticed the empty cigarette showcase.

A later search revealed the absence of the three radios, one a car radio.

Sulivan found the thieves had entered by the window in the service station's office. The garage is located at the intersection of Highway 45 and Bridge Street. Paul's father, J. A. Sullivan, left Hastings early this morning to buy tractors in Quebec.

Provincial Police are investigating.

Robertson Hopes To Secure Industry

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS). — Dr. Fred G. Robertson, M.P. for Northumberland, visited Campbellford on Wednesday and said he has high hopes of securing another industry for the town. He said he would have more definite word on the proposed new industry when he returns in three weeks. He did not say what the industry was.

Dr. Robertson, who has been instrumental in securing new industry and government projects for his home town of Cobourg, has just returned from a N.A.T.O. conference, to which he was a Canadian delegate, in New York City.

Pamphlets On Citizenship Given To Troops

By H. DENT HODGSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bureau of Current Affairs, which aims to keep Canadian servicemen posted on what they are fighting for, has branched out into a new field.

A new series of pamphlets, called the Citizenship Series, has been launched to help acquaint soldiers, sailors and airmen in various parts of the world with their own form of government. The series will cover, says Harry R. Low, director of the bureau, "the minimum that every Canadian ought to know about his government."

No. 1 in the series, written by Brig. W. J. Lawson, Judge Advocate-General of the Canadian forces, is, "The Canadian Constitution." No. 2, written by Russ Hopkins, a former deputy clerk of the Commons, will be, "How Parliament Works." No. 3 will be written by Wilfred Eggleston, journalism professor at Ottawa's Clareton College, and entitled, "Local Government."

WORK EXPANDS

The series is another facet of the work in an expanding bureau established last October and which now has a staff of 20.

Other projects include the fortnightly "Current Affairs" pamphlets issued to all units of the three forces in Canada and abroad.

The bureau also has published a series of pamphlets on countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, a pamphlet for troops going to Europe and another for those heading for the Far East.

All are available in both French and English and are reported to have been met with "very eager reception," particularly by sailors on the destroyers in the Far East and Canadian airmen at North Luffenham, Eng.

Head of the bureau is 45-year-old Mr. Low, a genial Scot who came to Canada in 1935 to teach educational psychology at the University of Manitoba. Later he became Manitoba's deputy minister of education, and director of education for the R.C.A.F.

It's all part of a new emphasis Canada—along with other countries—is placing in what has been termed "the struggle for men's minds." Training establishments throughout the three forces now are alloted one hour a week for lectures on current affairs.

The bureau also issues fortnightly current-afairs maps and language guides for troops abroad.

Exercise Keeps Ballerina's Good Figure

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor.

Ballerina Irene Hawthorne has no illusions about her lovely figure. She knows that the only way she can keep it perfectly proportioned is to exercise every single day.

"I don't like to exercise any more than most people," she confides, "but because of the demands of my dancing career, I realize it is absolutely essential."

Being a fresh-air enthusiast, Miss Hawthorne makes her exercise period pleasanter by spending it on the roof of her apartment house. To allow for complete mobility, she always wears shorts and a blouse.

"The keynote of making exercise effective," says Irene Hawthorne, "is to execute it slowly and with the precision of a military manoeuvre. It is harder at a slow pace, but it shows results."

One effective way of dealing with a protruding hipline is to employ "bumping." Sit on the floor with your legs stretched out straight and stiff before you. Point your toes. Lean back to rest your weight on your hands, palms down, about 18 inches behind you.

Using your arms as a lever, stiff and unbent at the elbows, raise your body, twist to the right and vigorously bump the hip against the floor five times. Return to the original position. Repeat on the other hip.

To flatten your stomach and whittle down a waistline, put your right foot before you, the right arm behind your waist. Place your left foot behind you, with the foot at right angles to the right foot. Raise your left arm, stiff and straight, reaching with it, and bend from the waist, bringing the arm over and down until it touches the outside of the right ankle.

Slowly come up, keeping your back flat and your torso stiff as you lean back as far as you can without raising the right foot off the ground. Do this five times and then reverse and repeat with the right arm touching the outside of the left ankle.

When your exercise period is over, stresses the red-headed ballerina, resist the impulse to flop down in a handy chair and take a long drink of water. Instead of water, eat a piece of fruit, and then hie yourself off to the bathroom and take a cool, invigorating shower.

Dancer Irene Hawthorne certainly has found the way to figure beauty. Her advice might well give you a fine start along the same path.

"EXERCISE IS ABSOLUTELY essential for a perfectly proportioned figure," advises ballerina Irene Hawthorne. "To reduce the upper leg, swinging the leg back and forth is simple but effective (above). For your hips, sit on the floor, bend the left leg at the knee so that the inside of the thigh lies flat on the floor. Bend your other leg in the same fashion. Put your hands on your hips and revolve your body from left to right" (insert above).

Travel With Baby Calls For Plan

Travelling with the baby takes definite planning if you want to keep her healthy and happy until you reach your destination.

First, consult your doctor, and explain the type of trip as well as the accommodations that will be available along the way. He will be the best judge of whether or not the journey is a good idea. Be sure to ask him what equipment he thinks you will need.

Once you have this clearance, check with the railroad or airline office, and explain what your requirements will be. They will tell you whether or not you will encounter any difficulty.

Don't worry about giving baby the same food she is used to at home. Bring along her favorite, most digestible solid foods in cans. You can warm them before opening and then serve right from the can.

If your baby's appetite does not seem up to normal, there is no need for concern. Travelling usually changes a youngster's eating habits.

An important part of your equipment should be disposable diapers. Bring along water in a thermos. Since the baby is bound to get restless, you should pack a variety of toys, and certainly her favorite to take along to bed.

Evaporated milk is a great help, and you should be prepared with at least a day's supply of empty sterilized bottles. You'll also need a measuring spoon, can opener and possibly an electric bottle warmer.

Farsighted planning for your baby's welfare will make her an ideal travelling companion and will help to insure a trip that is enjoyable from start to finish.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

You Can Reduce With Help Summer Fruit, Vegetables

Instead of criticizing my pleasingly plump column-friends today I'm coming to their defence, but do not think that I mean they can relax their reducing vigilance. No man, I'm merely explaining why it is so everlastingly difficult to keep so a strict calorie count — in this land of bounty.

First — one girl writes to me and says her husband's friends josh him because she doesn't drink alcoholic beverages along with him because they are so packed with calories. (That's a bitter pill to swallow and it requires complete understanding between a husband and wife to withstand that brand of battering and bantering.)

Second — a neighbor of a reader who invites her to tea very often insists that she eat a couple of cookies (at a 100 calories per cookie) with her tea almost every day. Wouldn't that neighbor be ever so much kinder in not passing the cookies to her? It's so gracious of a hostess to refrain from putting temptation in the way of a reducer.

Third — most of my correspondents are (1) women and (2) cooks. What uphill work it is to prepare meals for a hungry family, and then quietly eat the low-calorie items in the meal, which so seldom require much of her cooking skill? — for raw fuits and vegetables are the standby of the reducer.

Ah, me!—a reducer's life is not an easy one, but oh that glorious feeling on the morning the scales show a reduction of five pounds! This isn't purely mental you know. It is real for you can't help but feel better when you are lighter.

Today's column is written specifically for Mary B., Mrs. Morris, Limey Lil, and Mrs. Roy P. If you think these reducers' menus are especially strict it is because some of these girls want to lose that stubborn second ten pounds.

Let's tackle it with a will while we have these glorious summer fruits and vegetables to give it color and variety and ever so many different kinds of minerals and vitamins—the protective elements reducers must include.

$45 Meal Ticket Gets You Month's Meals

WINNIPEG (CP)—Meal tickets are old stuff—they come in all sizes and all shapes.

When someone offers a monthly coupon on which you can eat four steaks a day, or anything else, at your choice of three restaurants—that's a real meal ticket.

A Winnipeg restaurant took the gamble in a quiet little experiment by the recently-formed National Restaurants of Winnipeg, which specializes in Ukrainian foods.

NEW MEAL-DEAL

A $45 meal-ticket entitles the purchaser to any number of meals a day, and choice of foods, every day for a month.

The new deal began May 1. Many regular customers express satisfaction with the plan. All eat regularly and choose food much the same way as if they were eating at home, with no leanings toward expensive table items or fancy stakes.

It began when Nestor Rzepecki, general manager of the restaurant firm, remembered a meal in London, England.

"The sign on the counter read—'Eat what you wish, pay what you feel the meal is worth—if dissatisfied pay nothing"—says Mr. Rzepecki.

"When I asked the cashier how they could possibly make an offer like that—she replied that they found 99 per cent of the customers are conscientious, honest people; their profits soared.

"A plan such as ours. . .is mild compared to this. We find that people eat in the same sane fashion that they have always done."

Two examples of how the plan works:

Mr. A: Eats breakfast, dinner, supper and a snack before bedtime. Offered to pay five months in advance.

Mr. B.: Eats breakfast, takes lunch to work from home, eats supper and late lunch at the cafe. Has paid three months in advance.

Nestor Rzepecki, a European immigrant, started business in Canada with 75 cents in his pocket. He worked on a farm in Saskatchewan for a year, then came to Winnipeg in 1949.

Today he is general manager of a company that owns three restaurants, one meat store and a farm where the firm intends to raise its own vegetables and fruits.

MR. AND MRS. RALPH H. BIGELOW of Peterborough, the bride formerly Miss Marie McGrath.—(W. H. Staffen Photo)

Bigelow-McGrath Wedding

The marriage of Miss Georgina Marie McGrath to Mr. Ralph Hudson Bigelow, both of Peterborough, took place Saturday afternoon in the Lakefield Gospel Chapel. Evangelist Simon Brownson performed the marriage in a setting of summer flowers, ferns, lilies and palms. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McGrath and the groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Bigelow, all of Peterborough.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Edward Clark, the bride wore a gown of brocaded satin with skirt and train and neckline yoke of nylon marquisette. The front of the skirt was in tiers of shirred frills and the long train was edged all around with a similar frill. Her veil was of illusion net edged with lily of the valley lace and was caught to a rhinestone tiara. She carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses.

The attendants were Miss Marion Bigelow as maid of honor and Misses Shirley McGrath and Sylvia Hudson as bridesmaids. Their full skirted gowns of net over taffeta were in light blue, pale pink and pale green shades and they wore matching hats. The flower girl was Rosemary Clark, dressed in yellow organdy and a matching hat. Each carried a cascade bouquet of gladioli.

Mr. Lawrence Bigelow was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were Claude Honey, of Peterborough, and Buddy Armstrong, of New Carlow.

The wedding music was played by Mr. Craig Corner and Miss Gail Burfield was soloist. Before the service she sang "Living for Jesus" and during the signing of the register "Together."

The reception, attended by about 300 guests, was held in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield. The bride's mother received in a gown of blue crepe with Chantilly lace and wore blue and white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

The bride and groom are now honeymooning in New York City. When going away, the bride wore a flowered nylon dress with white and yellow accessories and a corsage of pink gladioli.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow will live at 236 Burnham St., Apartment 8.

Shopping Holds No Appeal To Russian Woman

Not that the gracious woman who is nearly six feet tall doesn't like shopping but "I've brought all I need with me," she said yesterday.

She was one of two women delegates who attended a health luncheon yesterday in connection with the International Red Cross conference. She didn't let on she understood little of what was said—she knows hardly a word of English and follows conference discussions in French. She joined in a toast to the Queen and received a round of applause when she was introduced as "Mrs. Sperenskaia—straight from Moscow."

Although Toronto stores don't attract the tall secretary-general, other Russian women delegates to the conference have been busy window-shopping in the downtown business section.

120 Attend Tea Held At Millbrook

MILLBROOK (ENS)—Members of the south group of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's United Church entertained 120 guests at a hostess tea held in the Sunday school hall on Tuesday afternoon. The small tables were centred with bouquets of sweet peas.

Before the serving of the salad plate supper, there was a short program with the Rev. Margaret Butler presiding. Mrs. Maurice Cruse and Miss Carol Challice gave two vocal duets "My Hero" from the "Chocolate Soldier" and "Whispering Hope," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. G. A. Spicer. Mrs. Spicer sang "The Garden of Tomorrow" with Mrs. Lawrence Winslow as accompanist. A monologue, "A Philadelphia Mother Visits School" was given by Miss Margaret Aiken and a group of two readings "Love Lightens Labour" and "The Night Wind" by Mrs. Bruce Ingham.

Mrs. Lawrence Winslow, leader of the south group, convened the tea.

Wood-Miller Rites

HAVELOCK — (ENS). — The Presbyterian manse, Norwood, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon when Shirley Doris Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Miller of Havelock, became the bride of Melville Ralph Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wood of Belmont Township. The Rev. R. D. Duncanson performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white nylon net over satin, fashioned with long sleeves and sweetheart neckline. The nylon skirt was accordion pleated in the front and had lace trimming at the back. Her waist-length net veil fell from a rhinestone trimmed headdress of net. She carried a nosegay of red roses.

Bridesmaid was her cousin Miss Sheila Hamilton of Toronto, who wore a mauve taffeta dress, the skirt having an over-skirt of lace and the bodice being designed with a round neckline and an inset yoke of lace. Her cap was of matching material and she wore mauve net gloves and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Ralph Hamilton of Cordova Mines, uncle of the bride, was the groomsman.

A reception was held at home of Mrs. Howard Hamilton at Cordova Mines, grandmother of the bride. The bride's mother received in a dress of green floral nylon, with white accessories and a corsage of salmon-pink carnations. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore white floral silk with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bride's grandmother also received, wearing navy crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Later the couple left on a motor trip to Detroit. When going away the bride was wearing a navy suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. They will live in Havelock.

If you have trouble threading a needle, rub an end of the thread over a piece of soap and twist it between your fingers. The stiffened thread end will then slide easily through the needle eye.

Choose Jewellery To Suit, Flatter Your Figure

By ALICIA HART (NEA)

THE EXCITING, CREATIVE POSSIBILITIES of jewelry are never underestimated by one of the leaders in the field, Madame Majeska. She urges women to be daring with their pearls, rhinestones and beads. For the slender, fragile-type woman, the designer suggests a nine-strand bib of graduated pearls. The bib pictured at the left has a gunmetal-colored baroque pearl in the centre of each strand and a teardrop gunmetal pearl hangs from the centre of the last strand. Cluster earrings of white pearls match the necklace. The mature woman, in the opinion of Madame Majeska, should wear two choker necklaces, while her younger friend adorns her throat with a three-strand bib necklace combined with a longer necklace inspired by the Elizabethan revival in fashion (centre). Both key their earrings and bracelets to the necklaces. All figure types, and especially the mature figure, will be flattered by the two choker necklaces pictured at the right. They are easily adjustable to any neck size because of white pearlized vari-shaped flowers, while the lower collarette type necklace is of colored carved beads between two rows of white pearls linked with a small chain of gold. Madame Majeska firmly believes jewelry must suit your individual beauty.

"Stop thinking of jewellery as just another fashion accessory," asserts designer Madame Majeska. "Chosen to suit your own individual personality and figure, it can create a most exotic and beautifying effect."

Madame Majeska is a pioneer in the realm of unusual jewellery combinations. She refuses to accept the mediocre and mundane. She challenges the accepted theory that small women must wear delicate, petite jewellery, while the women who are tall must choose large, chunky pieces.

"The important thing to learn," explains the designer, "is how to treat your individual proportions so they become an asset rather than a liability."

One way to accomplish this, in her opinion, is to wear large pieces of jewellery to accentuate your tiny figure, and just the opposite if you happen to be tall and slender.

The designer is also firm in her ideas about the mature figure. "There's nothing wrong with being full-blown," says Madame Majeska, "as long as you don't go around trying to give the impression that you are really slender."

She recommends that women with large figures wear heavy chunks of jewellery. That includes necklaces, bracelets, and earrings. Madame Majeska has created many pieces with adjustable closings that will adjust to any neck size. This is certainly good news for the large woman.

If you have a long, thin face, Madame Majeska suggests that you create a dramatic impression by wearing jewellery with a lengthening effect. On the other hand, she recommends rounded designs to accent a full face.

Madame Majeska likes to combine jet beads with gold and rhinestones. She connects pearls with gold links and large rhinestone medallions. Fringes of colored, carved beads dangle on gold links from strands of pearls.

One of her favorite bracelet combinations is of colored, carved beads trimmed with a fringe of gold-tipped pearls. All the pearls and gold are simulated. Madame Majeska also advocates the grouping of different and unusual stones for earrings.

There is much to be said in favor of Madame Majeska's ideas on jewellery. In fact, it is refreshing to hear so many new and unconventional theories expressed.

Every woman tires of wearing the same type of jewellery in the same old way. Madame Majeska offers exciting changes. It would seem more than worth your while to adapt any of her ideas to your particular needs.

Make an inventory of the jewellery you already have on hand. Combine pieces for dramatic effects. If your collection looks generally unexciting, add pieces that feature color and unusual stones.

"Think of your jewellery just as you do your make-up and clothes," says Madame Majeska. "It can have a dominant influence on the over-all impression you give as a smartly dressed chic-looking woman."

Teens Planning Hand Beauty

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

If you are a teen-ager who bites her nails, why not start an all-out summer campaign to break the habit?

Think how wonderful it would be to go back to school with perfectly groomed, tapering nails. They will make you feel delightfully feminine and even glamorous.

Decide, first, just why you bite. Is it because you don't have enough to keep you busy? Are you overly self-conscious, or are your emotions so rattled that the only way you can keep them under control is to chew at your nails?

Well, at this point in life, you are wise enough to know that you can overcome any of these problems. But if you are at all in doubt, one help is to interest yourself in an extremely active hobby. Turn your attention away from your own problems. You'd be surprised at how easily they can disappear when you are too busy to think about them.

Apply a clear polish to your nails every single day. Naturally, keep them well filed with an emery board. If you are tempted to chew while watching an exciting movie or reading a thrilling book, keep gum in your handbag or on your reading table.

Breaking the habit of biting your nails will take perseverance. You may have to make several new starts before you have the situation under control. But you can do it, and once you see how beautiful your nails can be, nothing in all the world will make you ever want to bite them again.

Visit Guide Camp

Mrs. J. R. Epping, District Guide Commissioner, and Mrs. James McLeod, member of the Local Association, motored to Ottawa today to attend the closing exercises of the Girl Guide National Camp which has been in progress there the past 10 days with 1,200 girls attending from all over Canada.

Also attending the camp is a party of 18 U.S. Girl Scouts and three leaders from Youngstown, N.Y., accompanied by two Egyptian girls. This party will return home by way of Peterborough and will camp in the Riverside Park this Saturday night. During the evening the local Guide leaders and officers will entertain them at a camp fire and weiner roast.

To protest your youngster, who often must be in the kitchen while you are working there, fence off a play space away from the stove.

What's Right

When a guest in a private home, you are sitting in a draft from an electric fan or air-conditioning unit and are unpleasantly cold.

WRONG: Feel there is nothing you can say without seeming rude.

RIGHT: If there is no other chair for you to move to, ask your hostess if she minds if you move the chair you are in.

Fashion Flashes

Ideal for smart resort wear by the mature woman is the silk crepe dress in white or pastels, the bodice tucked, the skirt pleated, and made with its own cardigan jacket. The fabric is plain, with tucks or pleats.

No end to the times that one reaches for the well-cut softly-tailored silk suit. Rich silk shantung, in dark or pastel shades is used for a well-handled suit, the very fitted jacket trimmed with silk braid embroidery at the pockets and on the softly curved collar. Jacket is lined in thin China silk, and has pointed double cuffs on the below-elbow sleeves.

At least one dressy dress for the Summer season, is the advice of a fashion-wise woman. Such a dress is bound to be the choice for many occasions, and a good selection might well be a simple model in light bamboo beige silk taffeta—very thin and crisp. The flared skirt is full in front, and the V neck is flanked by seed-pearl-embroidered revers.

If you like that most useful of cottons — pin-stripe cotton cord — you'll be glad to see that it is around this season. A good separates team is made up of a three-quarters length coat and a slim skirt. The coat has soft shoulders, full-length sleeves, and flapped patch pockets. Black or navy velvet over-collar is detachable.

Comes the urge to buy a new hat, and we find that fabric hats look nice and new after wearing straws since late winter. Pleated taffeta forms the curved brim of a pretty little bonnet, the brim extending well into the crown. A wide black velvet bow is draped across the front.

TAFFETA FOR FALL

Iridescent taffeta is slated high on the fashion agenda for fall. You will find it in cocktail and after-five dresses and separates. It will glisten prettily in evening dresses, or in dark colors it will be found in dresses for career girls to wear around the clock—for business and for fun after five. Tafeta will be shown in brides' and attendants' romantic dresses.

Sharing Others Problems Can Eliminate Your Own

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a lady almost 40, have been married 22 years and have two sons, one in the Navy and one 11 years old. I'm in a rut and don't know how to get out of it. My husband and I have never been companions. He is just a provider and I'm just a housekeeper. I don't want to leave because I want a home for my boys. We are buying a home. My husband makes a small salary so I haven't the money to join clubs or do anything else to make friends. We've only lived in this place for a short time, and I don't make friends easily. Since my boy went into service it is more lonesome than ever for me. I would like to go to work but my husband won't have it. He says the younger boy needs me at home. The only place I ever go is to my mother's and home again.

MRS. K. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A lady in her late thirties is much too young to put herself on a shelf and retire from the world. Naturally, the absence of your older son has left a gap in the family circle that is difficult to accept, but you must fill it with someone else. Your two boys give you the best introduction you could have to activities that will ease your own loneliness, and at the same time help you to cheer someone else.

TRY MOTHERS' GROUP

Many communities, probably including yours, have groups of Navy mothers who meet for mutual encouragement and to do what they can for their own sailors, as well as any others who could use a little help. Contact your local Red Cross Chapter (in your telephone book under Canadian Red Cross), and ask them to put you in touch with such a group. Have no hesitancy in joining them. You'll find that other sailors' mothers, like yourself, want company and will welcome you as one of them.

Your 11-year-old also presents an opportunity for you to meet mothers of children his age. The school he attends undoubtedly has a Parent-Teacher Association, which always welcomes new members. Participation in your son's schoolwork will soon banish all remaining loneliness. Remember, when meeting new people, to concentrate your interest on them. Forget yourself, your shyness, your loneliness. You are with them to do a community job—not to worry about your own shortcomings. Don't apologize for your self-consciousness and they'll never know it exists. Ask for work, and in mutual accomplishment you'll find fine friends. These activities cost very little money, too, and whatever expenditure you must make is so worthwhile that a little more skimping won't be begrudged.

Since your city is the center of considerable naval activity, why not act as hostess to a lonely sailor now and then? Have one or two home for dinner some Sunday, to your mutual benefit. Here again, the Red Cross will help by telling you where to send your invitation.

So much work is needed in the world today, so much kindness, so much charity, that it's actually to sin to let willing manpower go to waste. Get busy on something to help someone else, and you will have had your last lonely moment.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Although I am 16 years old, my father won't let me go out with boys as he says I will fall in love and want to get married. He thinks I am too young. What can I do to make him see that I have no intention of falling in love and getting married?

EVE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your father is only looking ahead to the natural consequences of dating. What he should realize is that, by depriving you of dating now, he will make you more acutely aware of boys, and much more likely to fall in love with the first boy you do go out with. You must do your best to convince him of your level-headedness, and of the fact that you do know how to behave.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Mother, Dad, my little sister and I make up our household. Three of us work, and I am almost 20. What, in your opinion, is the amount of money a young girl my age should keep from her pay? Should she pay board?

E. N.

ANSWER: I am always irked at the idea of a child paying "board" into the home where she has been nurtured and cherished all her life. A home is not a boarding house, and any amount of money contributed towards its upkeep by a working child is part of her responsibility toward that home—not a standard stipend to be paid as to strangers.

The amount of money contributed depends on so many circumstances that no definite amount could possibly be set by a stranger. The girl's expenses, the needs of the home, whether she is saving for higher education, paying her own doctor and dentist bills, insurance, etc., all are matters to be considered. The amount arrived at should be settled in family conference.

Fluid Lines Mark Fall Coat Designs

By GAIL DOUGLAS
NEA Woman's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) —The first fur coats of fall show a definite relationship to the fluidity of line found in a cloth coat. The fur is, in fact, cut and handled much like cloth, the result being fur fashions of greater elegance and higher fashion than we've seen in the past.

Lines range from the narrow and stem-like to the very full. There's a new narrowness at the top of the coat that does away with any feeling of heaviness or bulkiness. his narrow look is frequently achieved through dropped shoulder lines.

The wandering waistline appears in both high and low effects. The spencer cut is used at times for a coat bodice with the low middy line looking best in jackets.

The tulip line, shown in cloth coats, has also been adapted to fur and is done with slim top and low flare.

Sleeves are frequently dramatic. Some of them taper, others are full or pleated, still others are push-up but can be worn down to the wrist as well.

Leopard coat by Leo Ritter (left) has the narrow top, coupled with small shawl collar. Sleeves are fairly full and widely cuffed.

Slim, fitted coat in black broadtail (right) by this same designer has weskit cut with deep V, formed from a double collar. To create skirt fullness, double inverted pleats are used front and back. Sleeves have flaring, gauntlet cuffs.

Redhead Becomes Consul For Cuba

MONTREAL (CP) — A slight, vivacious red-head has assumed temporary duties in Montreal's consular corps, a traditionally male stronghold.

Isabel A. Figueredo y Vallejo has become Cuban consul-general, replacing William Espinoza y Dominguez who has returned to Havana for a month.

As Cuban consul, Miss Figueredo will sign consular invoices, issue Cuban import permits and advise Canadians on the brands of Cuban cigars, which she claims are the best in the world.

A doctor in social sciences and a bachelor of arts graduate of the University of Havana, she turned to a consular career because she likes to travel and live in different places.

"I want to change places as often as possible, because you learn new things wherever you go," Miss Figueredo said in an interview. In two years she has represented Cuba in Puerto-Rico, St. Louis, Mo., Detroit, Norfolk, Va., and New York.

Her grandfather, Perucho Figueredo, is the author of Cuba's national anthem, The Bayemesa, and her father was one of the leaders of Cuba's struggle for independence from Spain.

"Diplomatic careers are attracting more and more Cuban women," she said. "Our delegate to the United Nations is a woman and we have at least 15 women consuls all over the world."

6—In Memoriam

COLLINGWOOD — In loving memory of Robert Henry (Harry) who passed away suddenly July 24th, 1951.
Thy will be done.
—Ever remembered by Annie, his loving wife.

WILSON—In loving memory of our darling wee son, Gerry, who passed away July 24, 1951.
Two little hands are resting,
A loving heart is still,
A little son we loved is waiting
For us just over the hill.
—Mummie and Daddy.

WILSON—In loving memory of Gerald Wilson, who passed away July 24, 1951.
He was a flower too sweet for earth,
Sent here but for a while.
God marked him when He gave him birth
And took him with a smile.
—Ever remembered by Grandpa and Grandma Trennum and Ruth.

Get Home News Via Australia

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Canadian troops in Korea and Japan will get news from home beamed to them via Radio Australia if tests beginning Sunday are successful.

Prime Minister Robert Menzies said today basis of the scheme was worked out during his recent visit to Canada. Details of the new plan, he said, are being worked out by the CBC and the Australian network.

Menzies said radio conditions in the Pacific are such that direct transmission from Canada to the Far East is poor, but Radio Australia's service to Korea is well-received.

Dynastic Rule To Be Abolished

Mrs. Roosevelt Given Biggest Demonstration

CHICAGO— (AP)—Mrs Franklin D. Roosevelt last night got by far the biggest demonstration anyone has received so far in the Democratic National Convention.

A tremendous cheer went up when she was spotted coming down the runway to the speaker's rostrum.

And before it had finished, an old-fashioned political parade was in progress.

Mrs. Roosevelt tried repeatedly, waving her hands, to quiet the uproar, but it refused to be hushed for 15 minutes.

The former first lady smiled. Her eyes narrowed, her head bowed, as if she were trying to hide tears.

Mrs. Roosevelt talked about the United Nations and the need to keep working for a world organization in spite of discouragements.

"We may never have another chance", she said.

Shooting Death

"I don't think it could be done," said Dr. Waite as he watched Crown Attorney Bradshaw demonstrate.

Dr. H. M. Yelland, the Cutmore family physician, said Cutmore had come in for a checkup only 48 hours before the fatal shooting.

Dr. Yelland said Cutmore complained of fatigue, loss of appetite and sleep, and said he had lost four pounds in three or four weeks. Though he could find nothing physically wrong with Cutmore, Dr. Yelland advised his patient to take it easy and get away for a holiday.

"What do you say about him committing suicide?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"I don't believe he would," said Dr. Yelland. He had known Cutmore for 30 years.

BEING PROMOTED

C. L. Upper, president and general manager of the DeLaval Co., said Cutmore was being promoted from secretary and controller of plant operations to a vice-presidency. Cutmore knew about the promotion, he said, and it would result in a larger salary.

His books were audited and "everything was in order . . . very, very good."

Mr. Upper said he knew of no financial worries troubling Cutmore and he believed he had a happy home life.

He added that if Cutmore had wanted to commit suicide he had a far handier weapon to do the job: a .38 calibre revolver, owned by the company, in his desk drawer.

Three witnesses testified that Cutmore was careless in his handling of firearms. One of them, A. R. Macnab of Kingston, formerly of Peterborough, said he had discontinued hunting with Cutmore because of his carelessness.

At the close of the trial Coroner Dr. Herbert Young was called by Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson.

Dr. Young said the evidence during the afternoon's hearing didn't indicate anything but accidental death.

"There is quite a strong possibility that it was accidental."

Chief Coroner Lawson pointed out that the evidence of 16 witnesses was not available when the original reports were made. He added that an inquest is a "good thing."

"It clears up rumors," he said.

Jurors were Thomas P. McMillan, foreman, John M. Davern, Harland Keefer, William K. Sloan and W. J. Moorhead.

The grant will be used to equip a new building now under construction, which will have laboratories specifically for research on diabetes, growth hormones, the use of radioactive isotopes, and problems of physiology, histology and nutrition.

His thesis was "some aspects of present-day emigration of Dutchmen to Canada."

Dutch Defence Minister C. Staf assisted at the ceremony, attended by many prominent authorities including Agriculture Minister S. L. Mansholt, B. W. Haveman, Dutch emigration commissioner, and A. A. Ewen, Canadian emigration consul in Holland.

Immigration Controls Blow To Italians

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Siria Speranza, one of 600 European immigrants to arrive here by train today, said her Italian countrymen were unhappy about Canada's new immigration laws which restrict the number of new Canadians entering the country.

She said the revised laws came as a blow to thousands of Italians planning to emigrate to Canada.

Her husband, Giulivo, whom she could not immediately locate upon arrival, was working as a roofer in Fort Erie, Ont. He came to Canada a year ago.

Lake Huron Waves Batter Beach Shore

GRAND BEND (CP)—A gale which struck the Lake Huron shore here at midnight drove waves across the main beach as far as the concrete walk.

Less than half a mile south of here, at Southcott Pines, residents reported the waves washed out banks and the wind uprooted trees. There was no report of injuries or damage to cottages.

Will Resume Talks With Steel Workers

HAMILTON (CP)—Talks between representatives of Stelco and members of United Steelworkers of America, Local 1005, which were suspended last night are to be resumed here Monday morning.

The union seeks a basic hourly rate of $1.46, an increase of 10 cents, and a new job classification system more on a parity with conditions in the United States.

Closed Session On Rail Dispute

MONTREAL (CP)—Representatives of Canada's railways and 17 non-operating unions met with government conciliators today behind closed doors for the third consecutive session in an attempt to reconcile differences between union wage demands and as yet unknown company offers.

There was no indication of what progress, if any, was being made and no statement was expected until the government representatives report to Ottawa, probably next week.

Arthur MacNamara, deputy minister of Labor, and M.M. MacLean, chief government conciliation officer, are the government representatives.

The unions, representing 175,000 workers, have asked for a 45-cent-an-hour increase.

The railways claim it would be equivalent to a 35-per cent pay boost.

Water Bombs Help Fight Fire

TORONTO (CP)—Water bombs are helpful in fighting forest fires. Large specially-made paper bags containing water were dropped by planes on a fire that had just started in an inaccessible area of the Sudbury district. Later ground crews arrived and extinguished it.

Frank MacDougall, deputy minister of lands and forests said yesterday: "it looks as if it's got possibilities."

The bombs are loaded on the plane and released through a "camera hole" in the floor by means of rollers.

Named Administrator For Peel Board

COOKSVILLE (CP) — H.J.A. Brown, 32, of Sault Ste. Marie has been appointed business administrator for the newly formed South Peel Board of Education, it was announced today.

A graduate of Victoria College, Toronto, he was appointed graduates' secretary at University of Toronto after serving overseas during the Second World War with the R.C.A.F.

From 1948 he was secretary-treasurer and business administrator to the Sault Ste. Marie school board.

Cooksville is about 10 miles southwest of Toronto.

Eisenhower Advisers Wooing Independents

DENVER — (AP) — Political advisers to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, moved today to set up a program aimed primarily at wooing independents and disgruntled Democrats to his support.

The move is based, these advisers said, on a call by the general for continuation and expansion of the National Citizens for Eisenhower committee—an organization they credited with having played a major role in his successful bid for the nomination.

Nova Scotia Coal Sent To South America

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—The Italian freighter Fides sailed for South America last night with 11,500 tons of coal to be processed into nylon.

The specially-selected coal was mined at the Princess colliery and No. 12 mine at nearby New Waterford.

Skilled Craftsman

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—It took J. R. Ligheart 10 years to build a mosaic tea-wagon from 12,000 pieces of wood sent him from various parts of the world. The wagon was put on exhibit at a handicraft fair here.

6-Week Course Eases Shortage Of Teachers

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Department of Education hopes a six-week summer course may help to solve the shortage of public-school teachers.

Five-hundred grade 12 graduates are learning to teach in a pre-teachers college established for the summer at Bloor Collegiate.

Ontario needs 1,000 new teachers annually and Dr. J. G. Althouse, chief director of education, said he hopes this new development may at least supply a temporary answer.

"The new course assures a supply of teachers without granting so-called cheap certificates," he said.

Normal Schools turn out 1,700 new teachers annually, not enough to relieve the constant pressure. Through the pre-teachers school, grade 12 graduates, previously not admitted to Normal Schools, now can take two successive summer sessions in Toronto, and by teaching during the winter, qualify for admittance to Normal School.

At present 94 boys, 382 girls and 30 Roman Catholic nuns are taking the course. Three Mennonites are in the group.

REFUELLING BY "PROBE AND DROGUE"—In the artist's conception of in-flight refuelling, two Navy jet fighters are about to make contact with a flying-boat tanker. The probe—or nose point—of the fighter enters the drogue—or fuel cup—of the tanker, which drags the two lightweight hose lines from its wing-tips. A fuel-tight connection is made and the tanker crew services the fighters by remote control.

1,500 Workers To Decide Strike

WINNIPEG (CP)—Some 1,500 Winnipeg Electric Company employees decide today and tomorrow whether their union will call a strike.

Officers of the Winnipeg Electric Employees Federated Council, representing employees in transit, electric and gas departments, called a meeting for tonight to discuss a strike vote. A second is slated tomorrow morning for night-shift workers.

A conciliation board recently recommended a 40-hour, five-day work week effective Nov. 1 and a three-per-cent wage increase, effective April 1, with no change in take-home pay when the 40-hour week becomes effective.

The union contends the company announced the increase will take effect from July 1 rather than April 1. The union claims the earlier date was agreed upon in negotiations and also before the conciliation board.

Sideswipes Freight

Army Begins School To Halt Coughing

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, (CP)—It is so important over here to keep men from coughing that a school has been started to study the problem, among other things.

Coughing, talking, the clatter of a weapon and other noises during an armed man's progress across no man's land may tell the enemy he is coming.

One company commander recently described his men's performance as that of a "herd of buffalo."

Patrolling is the essence of the present stage of the Korean "police action." The patrol is the ultimate in military operations, involving every lesson learned by the infantry man, calls on his every skill, resourcefulness and determination, and is more demanding on nerves and discipline than a set-piece attack.

REVIEW PATROL TEACHING

Lt.-Col. J. R. Stone of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry used to say when in Korea:

"I expect two or three really good patrols from a subaltern. Then I find some other job for him." That was in a moving campaign.

The brigade's school will review the Canadian Army's teaching about patrolling, look into ways of applying it more effectively to the peculiarities of Korea, and then devise better means of getting its results across to the private soldier.

Several theories are to be examined. One is that the Canadian soldier is too humanitarian. Another is that he is not yet single-minded enough about his job.

When his comrade becomes a casualty he tends to forget the object of the patrol and thinks first about tending the wounded man and getting him out.

Every man who does that reduces the operation's chances of success. Patrols can fail when fighting men become a casualty evacuation squad. Besides failure of accomplishment, there is increased risk of more casualties.

CRITICAL MOMENT

The critical moment on a patrol, it is thought, is when the group closes in for the final mission—whether that be the collection of information, the capture of a prisoner or the infliction of casualties in a hit-and-run raid.

On a good patrol the approach is seldom a problem. But at the moment of the close-in, ruthless single-mindedness is called for from leader and men to carry through—regardless of developments—with the plan laid down beforehand.

Usually a good plan followed through accomplishes its mission. But if apprehension causes the leader to change the plan, or casualties come first in the minds of the men, the germ of disorganization sets in.

The school will teach that the momentum of a patrol must never be lost. The thinking is that the way to ensure success of a mission is to guarantee that each man is so imbued with the primary object of the patrol that the group presses on regardless of casualties, including the loss of leadership.

The school's primary task will be to find the most effective way of getting that message across to the soldier.

Barkley Sets Convention Afire With New Spirit After Pep Talk

CHICAGO (AP)—They said Alben W. Barkley was "too old" for the Presidency.

But he set the Democratic convention afire with new life and spirit last night when he spoke to more than 12,000 persons and stirred an unforgettable spectacle.

His appearance at the convention was intended as a kind of "consolation prize" for a man deeply hurt.

"TOO OLD"

Three days before, the 74-year-old Vice-President was a candidate to be his party's choice for the Presidency. Then, as he put it, 'some self-annointed labor leaders' suddenly withdrew the support he had supposed they would give him. They said he was "too old."

Barkley took himself out of the race.

There was an explosion of sympathy and affection when the "veep" marched on to the rostrum last night.

Delegates stormed into the aisles screaming and cheering, chanting "we want Barkley."

Barkley, a grey-maned old lion, stood unsmiling. The tremendous salute went on for 24 minutes.

He had no manuscript and the teleprompter was blank. He said he had not had time to write a speech.

LAUDS PARTY PRINCIPLES

Reviewing the 20-year record of the Democrats, he said:

"I believe the programs of the Democratic party give the greatest good to the greatest number of the American people and if I did not believe that, I would join some other party that does believe in those eternal and immortal principles."

Then he turned to the Republicans, recalling that Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican nominee, had said he was going to lead a crusade.

"We are not beginning a crusade," Barkley shouted. "We are continuing a crusade. . .A crusade to see to it that every child born of woman should be born under conditions making it easy for him to live in a normal, wholesome atmosphere, with a chance for education to prepare himself for the burdens and responsibilities of life."

Barkley said he spent his birthday last year in Korea.

MORE BIRTHDAYS COMING

"It was the best birthday I have ever had, but it is not the last one I will ever have by a number of years."

The demonstration at the close of his speech lasted more than half-an-hour.

Australia To Cut Flow Of Immigrants

CANBERRA, Australia (Reuters)—Australia will halve her intake of immigrants next year to enable her to "digest more comfortably the very substantial intake of the post-war years," Immigration Minister Harold Hold announced tonight.

Hold said the government has decided to restrict the admission of immigrants in 1953 to 80,000, about one-half the average intake for the last four years.

By the end of this year almost 700,000 immigrants will have settled in Australia.

The Australian economy has been dislocated by the drop in dollar earnings which set in after the Korean War boom.

Build Model Of Bombed Street

LONDON (CP)—The Imperial War Museum of Lambeth is constructing a scale model of a typical street scene after bombing. It will be a permanent reminder to those who lived through London's blitz days.

The model will show the junction of two streets where bombs have fallen. In the far background, the beams of searchlights will light up the roof skyline.

A ruined building will glow red with fire bombs and miniature lamps will illuminate details of other buildings and a bomb crater.

W. Y. Carman, in charge of the museum's exhibits, said: "The model will show 50 people and 15 vehicles of the kind that were called to the incident. There will be figures of police and different kinds of civil defence workers."

Must Spend $200,000,000 On Ungava Project Before A Nickel Earned

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

More than $200,000,000 will be spent in Labrador-Ungava before a nickel will be earned from its iron ore—before a ton of ore will be moved to market in 1954.

Before such a development can be undertaken many men must do many things: Trappers and Indians bring in reports of mineral indications; geologists spend months and years in canoes and in the bush; airplanes fly over land with the latest scientific gadgets; financial markets are persuaded that the project is a sound investment.

But most of all, perhaps, men must dream and act upon their dreams. Men must explore in far-away places. Others must believe in opening up a country for the sake of opening up a country—in accomplishing something from which others will benefit in the years ahead.

REPORTED IN 1894

We might look back to 1894 when A. P. Low, Dominion government geologist, travelled Labrador-Ungava by canoe and reported finding iron-bearing rock. We might look at a more recent day in 1936 when an Indian prospector with Dr. J. A. Retty, Quebec geologist, showed him a sample of high-grade iron ore.

Basically, however, Labrador-Ungava iron had to await the airplane, the bulldozer and the jeep; the fighting of two world wars and the threat of a third, before it could keep its date with destiny.

Who cared if there might be iron in distant Labrador-Ungava as long as the accessible Mesabi Range of Minnesota poured its ore into the furnaces of North American steel plants? By 1945, however, came the whisper:

"Mesabi has fought its last war." An end to its rich ore could be seen approaching.

Many millions of years ago, Mesabi and Labrador-Ungava ore had been built up out of similar stuff. American steel plants had been built to take Mesabi, and they could take Labrador-Ungava. But they could take ores from other parts of the world, too, and Labrador-Ungava had to compete for their attention.

Finally, however, Labrador-Ungava, its ore, the companies and the men, found one another with the co-operation of the Quebec and Newfoundland governments.

THE HUNT BEGINS

Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd., big Northern Ontario gold producer headed by Jules Timmins, and the M. A. Hanna Company of Cleveland, headed by George M. Humphrey—coal, ore, shipping—joined forces in 1942 to see what could be found.

For three years they looked primarily for other minerals, not iron, but for seven years they conducted exploration, geological surveys, mapping and—from 1947—extensive drilling.

In 1949, Iron Ore Company of Canada was formed to handle the iron concessions, backed by Hollinger-Hanna and five American steel companies: Republic Steel Corporation, National Steel Corporation, Armco Steel Corporation, Wheeling Steel Corporation and Youngstown Sheet and Metal Company.

Hollinger-Hanna and the steel companies put up $100,000,000 and persuaded 15 American and four Canadian insurance companies to put up another $100,000,000.

From that day, Labrador iron ore might be said to be on its ways to market, though only a wilderness lay where a 360-mile railway must be built.

It was too big a job for one contractor, so a group was formed of Cartier Construction Ltd., Montreal; McNamara Construction Co. Ltd., Toronto; Mannix Ltd., Calgary; Morrison-Knudsen Co. of Canada Ltd., whose head office is in Boise, Idaho. On the job, it is known for brevity as CMMK.

The financing of the undertaking has been hailed as a great accomplishment. Around Iron Ore Company, the names of Timmins and Humphrey are spoken with a mixture of affection and awe as the architects of the enterprise, with Humphrey getting a special citation for his selling job in the United States.

W. H. Durrell, who headed the wartime construction of Goose Bay airport in Labrador, became general manager of Iron Ore.

The job was "too interesting" to pass up, he explains; and he wound up his affairs in his own private company to take it. He says:

"It is the opening up of an entire new country in which there must be all kinds of minerals. We haven't looked at it yet. People will be finding mines there for 100 years."

Mr. Durrell was born in 1903 at Portage du Fort, Que. He attended Haileybury, Ont., School of Mines; and was a partner, 1921-41, in Sutcliffe Co. Ltd., consulting engineers specializing in mining developments across Canada.

A. J. Le Blanc, native of Grand Falls, N.B., who served as colonel in the Royal Canadian Engineers during the war, is assistant general manager.

IRON ORE COUNTRY—The vicinity of Burnt Creek and Knob Lake, on the boundary of Newfoundland's Labrador and New Quebec, will see the start of iron-ore mining in Labrador-Ungava. The concessions held by the exploring companies consist of 3,900 square miles in New Quebec and 20,000 square miles in Labrador. By 1962, the New Quebec holdings must be reduced to 300 square miles and those in Labrador to 1,000 square miles.

SURVEY ROUTE — Prospectors, engineers, geologists, builders, truckers and surveyors are among a few of the trades employed in the Labrador-Ungava iron-ore development project. Here two surveyors plan a section of the route the 360-mile railway will take from Seven Islands, Que., to Knob Lake.

Bookseller Has Midas Touch

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters)—A trip to the lottery office here Friday started a chain-reaction win for Bookseller V. Read that was still exploding today as it passed the 3,000 pounds mark.

He went in yesterday to collect a small prize he won in the Golden Casket state lottery and the manager told him he'd turned up the second prize in the big Australian lottery then being drawn.

This meant a neat 1,000 pounds.

Today he was signing a receipt for that amount at the same office when out popped the manager again. "You've won third prize in today's lottery," he said.

This was another 500 pounds for the bookseller.

Just before that he had shared in two first prizes, his cut for that being 1,500 pounds.

"There's no knowing where this will finish," said Read.

Steel Strike Ends As 16-Cent Increase Granted

WASHINGTON (CP)—The longest, costliest steel strike in American history is, in effect, over. Production is expected to resume next week. The striking United Steelworkers' Union C.I.O. was considered virtually certain today to ratify a strike-end agreement reached at the White House after President Truman personally demanded and got a settlement. The end of the crippling, 53-day strike was announced late yesterday by the President, with C.I.O. President Philip Murray and the U.S. Steel chairman, Benjamin Fairless, standing beside him.

Calling reporters into his office, Truman told them Murray and Fairless "have reached agreement on important basic issues" and predicted a "speedy resumption of steel production."

He said Murray will meet today with his 175-man wage-policy committee to get ratification of the agreement.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE

Fairless, it was reliably learned, plans to make a personal appearance before this committee in a dramatic move aimed at wiping out any bitterness.

At best it will be four or five days before any substantial production of steel is reached. It takes that long to heat up the banked blast furnaces which stand-by workers have kept alive since the strike started June 2.

The new steel which comes out of some 380 affected plants will sell for at least $5.20 a ton more than before the strike started. The government approved a price increase of that amount for raw, or carbon, steel. Specialized, high-alloy steel will get a boost of $5.65 a ton.

FOLLOWS WILSON PATTERN

The increase was the same as that which Charles E. Wilson, as Defence Mobilizer, had said the industry should get to compensate for higher wage costs. Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said the industry should not get more than the $2.84 allowed under the law.

Iranians Worried Over Growing Red Infiltration

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's new national police chief warned Iranians last night that Communists are attempting to use the nationalistic outbreaks which drove former premier Ahmed Qavam from power to further "sinister" Red aims.

Speaking in a country-wide radio broadcast, Police Chief Kazam Sheibani indicated that members of the outlawed Tudeh (Communist) party had infiltrated Nationalist organizations.

"Hound out such elements from your ranks and try to know them and reveal their plans," Sheibani urged the Nationalists.

FORCED RESIGNATION

Sheibani, an army brigadier, took over the police after the bloody riots Monday that forced Qavam to resign and restored Mossadegh to greater power than ever before. Thirty-five or more persons died in the outbursts.

Mossadegh, aged Nationalist architect of Iran's oil-nationalization policy, had given up the premiership a few days earlier when Shah Mohammed Rezi Pahlevi refused to allow him to become war minister in his new Cabinet.

Sheibani claimed that demonstrations against Iran's Shah during the riots were staged by Red youth organizations. His broadcast was the strongest indication yet that Nationalist leaders are worried over the extent to which Communists have been succesful in infiltrating Nationalist organizations.

REDS RESPONSIBLE

(The State Department in Washington charged yesterday that Communists were responsible for anti-American demonstrations during the Tehran rioting.)

Police, pulled off the streets by the government during the violence Monday, were having some trouble resuming control of Tehran. In a small clash last night, policemen going back to traffic duties had to use tear gas to oust Nationalist youths from the police beats they had assumed.

Wholesale Price Index Climbing

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's wholesale price index in June moved upward for the first time in a year.

The Bureau of Statistics said yesterday the general increase was caused mainly by better prices for animal, textile and wood products. Increases in the three groups outweighed decreases in the sub-indexes for the vegetable, iron, non-ferrous metals, non-metallic minerals and chemical products groups.

The general wholesale index, based on 1935-39 equalling 100, advanced 1.7 points or 0.8 per cent in June to 226.5 from 224.8 in May. At the new standing it remained below the April figure of 226.9 and was 16.5 points or 6.8 per cent lower than the figure of 243.0 for June last year.

High point for the index was 243.7 for July a year ago.

Largest increase was in the wood products group which advanced 3.4 per cent to 295.9 from 286.2 in May. Animal products advanced 1.5 per cent to 245.7 from 242.1 and textiles index went up 0.4 per cent to 252.8 from 251.8.

Ask Special Board For Power Problems

CORNWALL (CP)—A rehabilitation planning authority to deal with problems created by power development on the St. Lawrence River was suggested today to the International Joint Commission by Mayor Aaron Horovitz of Cornwall.

The commission was winding up a series of four one-day hearings here, three miles west of the site of a proposed power dam which would give an additional vast electrical power potential to New York State and Ontario.

Mayor Horovitz said the river's development had been "kicked around" for years, with selfish interests and paid lobbyists opposing it.

He said there were special problems in this area in connection with the development. These included the flooding of lands, the removal of small communities, the relocation of old cemetery plots and historic landmarks, the rehabilitation of farming centres and the shifting of a railway line and highway.

A special Cornwall problem was at its water supply, which would be disrupted by the power project.

Mystery Girl Killed On Highway

Truck Driver Finds Victim Under Tree 'Didn't See A Thing'

SHERIDAN (CP)—An unidentified girl, believed to be about 17, was killed today on the Queen Elizabeth Way near this community about 13 miles west of Toronto.

Truck driver Matthew Krebs of Leamington, said he found the girl beneath a large tree when he stopped his truck after feeling a "slight bump."

DIDN'T SEE ANYTHING

Krebs said the sun was in his eyes and "I didn't see a thing."

Police said the girl was a slim brunette who wore a blue-striped jersey and pink figured skirt.

Earlier another motorist told a service station attendant he almost struck a girl who appeared "dazed" as she walked along the highway.

Pays Tribute To Division

WITH COMMONWEALTH DIVISION, Korea (AP)—Gen. James V. Van Fleet today saluted the British Commonwealth Division in Korea as "great and gallant."

The six-country unit, first of its kind, will celebrate its first anniversary Monday.

"I am most proud to have the British Commonwealth Division under my command," said the United States Eighth Army commander.

He added:

"During the past year since this great and gallant division was integrated under Maj.-Gen. A.J.H. Cassels the unit has demonstrated high courage, unwavering determination and all-encompassing combat excellence in defeating the Communist aggressor."

Cassels will relinquish his command next month to Maj.-Gen. M.M. Alston-Roberts West.

Van Fleet was joined in pre-anniversary tributes to the division by Maj.-Gen. Paul W. Kendall, commander of the U.S. 1st Corps, who said the "Commonwealth Division stands without peer among the troops of the Allied nations which make up the Eighth Army." Cassels praised his men for great spirit, wonderful loyalty and determination to succeed.

Kill 9 Snipers By Using Decoy

WITH U.S. 1ST MARINE DIVISION, Korea (AP)—A sharp-shooting United States sergeant using a fellow marine as a decoy claims a perfect but highly unofficial record—nine Chinese snipers killed with nine bullets.

But the company commander put a stop to the bizarre tactics.

The Marines today released the story:

Sgt. John E. Boitnoot, a medal-winning marksman and Pte. Henry A. Friday, devised this deadly game:

Friday, acting as a decoy, would expose himself until a Chinese sniper opened fire. Boitnoot, armed with a rifle mounted with a sniper-scope, would fire just once and exclaim "scratch one" enemy.

Boitnoot said "the whole idea started one day when Friday made the mistake of standing up in the trench. A sniper fired at him and I fired back. I killed him."

Friday volunteered for decoy duty. In two days they set a "remarkable if highly unofficial record" of nine Chinese snipers slain with nine bullets. The men said they checked their kills with a powerful telescope.

Dangerous Man Caught

WASHINGTON (AP)—George Arthur Heroux, one of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's 10 most-wanted criminals, was captured today near Miami, Fla., F.B.I. Chief J. Edgar Hoover reported.

Heroux, 22, a native of Baltimore, was sought for two big bank robberies in Missouri and Kansas.

Five Top Ranking Officers Under Arrest In Cairo

CAIRO, Egypt (Reuters)—The army today announced the arrest of five top-ranking police officers accused of planning to disturb the public order.

Army authorities said they were transferring power back to the police gradually, but troops with machine-guns today guarded the key positions of the city, now fast returning to normal after Wednesday's army coup.

Gen. Mohammed Naguib Bey, who took over as army chief and led the coup, announced the new arrests.

Those arrested were Gen. Abdel Monsef Mahmoud Pasha, under-secretary at the interior ministry; Gen. Ahmed Tallat Bey, Cairo police commandant; Gen. Imam Ibrahim Bey, political department chief at the interior ministry; Col. Tewfik el Said and Col. Mohamed el Gazzar of the Cairo police special branch.

"After the armed forces had succeeded in maintaining public security, it was reported to us from most reliable sources that certain officers of the political police, of the special branch and of the ministry of the interior were conspiring to disturb public order. It was, therefore, necessary to arrest these police officers," Naguib's statement said.

Aly Maher Pasha's new "anti-corruption" government, formed as a result of the coup, prepared to move back to Cairo today from the summer seat of the government at Alexandria. Maher last night was invested as Premier, military Governor-General, and minister of the War and the Marine and Interior Departments.

"New factors have been added to the general situation and there can be no talk of abolishing martial law at present," Premier Aly Maher said last night. Martial law was established during the January riots and has never been revoked.

CLAIMS JUSTIFIED

Maher told a press conference that King Farouk had found many aspects of the army's major claims justified, and had referred them to the Cabinet. Naguib said the coup took place because of dissatisfaction with official corruption.

Naguib, with a strong escort, drove from his headquarters to the radio station last night to broadcast to the peeople.

Meanwhile, it was learned that all Egyptian naval units at Alexandria, Port Said and Suez have been ordered to remain at anchor, while military aircraft were grounded on Naguib's orders and coastal batteries were under the control of the new army high command.

(Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, commander-in-chief of Britain's Middle East land forces, left London for Egypt today two days earlier than planned.)

RIOTING IN IRAN—Police charge anti-government rioters in Teheran, Iran, as demonstrations marked by violence continued to flare after the resignation of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh. The ailing Mossadegh was finally recalled to office and given virtual control of the nation after three days of rioting had resulted in 300 to 500 deaths.

Granted Leave To Appeal Against Ruling

LONDON (Reuters)—The Privy Council's judicial committee yesterday granted leave for two appeals to be made today against a Canadian Supreme Court judgment in part concerning the power of a province to legislate on use of its roads by concerns outside the province.

Appellants were the attorneys-generals of Ontario, Alberta and New Brunswick, the Canadian National Railways, the Canadian Pacific Railway, and a Maine coach line operator.

The Canada Supreme Court judgment was dated Oct. 22, 1951.

The litigation arose in an action brought by S.M.T. (Eastern) Ltd., against Israel Winner of Lewiston, Maine, operator of MacKenzie Coach Lines.

It concerned the validity of a restriction contained in licence granted to Winner to run buses from Boston through New Brunswick to Halifax and Glace Bay. The licence said he was not to load or unload passengers within the province of New Brunswick.

The Supreme Court of Canada allowed an appeal against a decision of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, and held that New Brunswick legislation which prohibited the international and inter-provincial operations of Winner was outside the powers of the province.

The present petitioners and others intervened when the matter went before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Appeals to the Privy Council have been abolished, but some Canadian cases which started before the abolition still are heard by the judicial committee.

Rule Guelph Prisoners Punished At Jail

GUELPH (CP)—Prisoners at the Guelph reformatory who took part in a July 5 riot will be punished inside the institution and will not face charges in court, Col. G. Hedley Basher said today.

Col. Basher, deputy-minister of reform institutions, said that Reforms Minister Foote has authorized Superintendent Gerald Wright of the reformatory to deal with such prisoners and to give punishment he considered fitting.

Prisoners destroyed much of the reformatory's furnishings during the riot, causing thousands of dollars' damage.

Most of the 900 prisoners took part in the 12-hour demonstration. Ringleaders now will be punished inside the reformatory itself. Col. Basher said the minister's action was taken after conferences which went into the situation thoroughly.

He added that since the disturbance three prisoners have been strapped for defying regulations but these incidents had nothing to do with the riot.

$500,000 Fire Razes Two Grain Elevators

BUFORD, Alta. (CP)—Two grain elevators filled with thousands of bushels of grain were destroyed early today in a $500,000 fire at this central Alberta town, 25 miles southwest of Edmonton.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, was fanned by high winds and quickly spread from the Alberta Pacific Grain Co. elevator to the Pioneer Grain Co. building nearby.

Volunteer firemen prevented the flames from jumping to a third elevator. The fire burned itself out after five hours.

Announce Secret Talks Have Collapsed In Korea

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The three-week news blackout was lifted today from the Korean armistice talks, showing the deadlock over prisoner exchange—final issue blocking a truce—still unbroken. Despite a United Nations offer to return an additional 13,000 captives to the Communists, 18 off-the-record meetings since July 4 proved "completely fruitless," said Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr.

"We are no nearer a solution of the problem today than we were on July 4," the chief Allied delegate said. "As long as we continue negotiations there is always hope. When the enemy proposed this morning that we go back into open sessions, I agreed heartily."

Starting tomorrow proceedings will be made public daily as formerly.

The U.N. Command said it refused to back down on its decision not to return forcibly any prisoner to the Communists. Only 83,000 of 170,000 Allied-held P.O.W.s want to be repatriated, Harrison said. This is an increase of 13,000 over the figure submitted to the Reds earlier, before screening of prisoners was completed.

The Allies said the Communists insisted on the return of 116,000 prisoners. These include 20,000 Chinese captives of whom only 6,400 will return voluntarily, the UN said.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, the senior Red negotiator conceded the prisoner-exchange issue had become not a matter of principle, but of "lists and numbers." He urged the U.N. to present a figure "approaching reality." But the Allies said Nam never reconciled his statements and proposals with the Allied report that almost three-quarters of the Chinese in allied prisoner camps would resist repatriation.

Capture Escaping Service Chiefs

CAIRO (Reuters)—Two top-ranking Egyptian service chiefs, fleeing a series of arrests ordered by Gen. Mohammed Naguib, were captured today when their plane made a forced landing near the Libyan border.

Air Commodore Hassan Akef Bey one of Egypt's most famous airmen and Gen. Hussein Sirry Amer Bey, Egyptian Frontier Corps chief, had taken off earlier from Alexandria.

They had taken off as Naguib ordered the arrest of five top-ranking police officials accused of planning to disturb "the public order" and underlined the army's hold on the country by dispatching reinforcements to Alexandria, the summer capital.

CALL OUT TANKS

Naguib, who also sent tanks clattering through the streets of Cairo for the first time since the army seized power Wednesday, went to Alexandria himself to confer with Aly Maher Pasha, whom he made premier after the coup.

Hassan Akef is renowned in Egypt for making the first non-stop flight from London to Khartoum in 1950.

Maj. Cyril Tomlyn, British assistant military attache, called on Naguib and assured him there would be "no interference in the present situation," it was learned.

Germans Order Meyer Be Freed

OTTAWA (CP)—The Kurt Meyer case, dormant for weeks, is back in the news.

The name of the German S.S. General imprisoned for life for war-time atrocities against Canadian troops was listed among 146 Nazi war criminals whose release the West German government is reported demanding.

Official sources said the Canadian government is ready to refer the Meyer case to an international clemency court to be established once the treaty which will restore Germany to virtual sovereignty is ratified. A Canadian, probably a judge, would be one of six judges on the court.

But the Adenauer government has thrown a hitch into these plans by indicating that the 146 war criminals, including Meyer, must be released before West Germany's parliament will ratify the treaty.

No direct approach has yet been made to Canada by Germany but this latest development will likely land on the government's doorstep in the weeks ahead.

Build Sandbag Walls To Protect Cottages

PARRY SOUND (CP)—Pounding waves on Georgian Bay in this area yesterday forced property owners for miles along the shores to build temporary sandbag retaining walls. Driven by a strong northwest wind, the waves made traffic impossible along Wasaga Beach, 50 miles to the east.

Many vacationers who left boats too close to the water's edge found them missing today.

Marshall Appealing Five-Year Sentence

LONDON (AP)—William M. Marshall, 24-year-old British Foreign Office radio operator convicted of slipping state secrets to Russia, today appealed his five-year prison sentence.

Marshall was caught in a park on June 13 with Pavel Kuznetsov, second secretary in the Soviet Embassy here. Marshall admitted meeting the Russian numerous times before and had a secret document in his pocket when picked up.

Marshall at his trial admitted a liking for the Communist way of life but protested his innocence of the spy charges.

Can't Agree On Capital

Europe's Steel-Coal Pool Will Commence August 10

PARIS (AP)—The six Schuman plan foreign ministers today put western Europe's steel-coal pool into motion but failed to agree on a capital for their unprecedented experiment in economic unity.

The ministers agreed that some of the six-country economic union's institutions will start operations Aug. 10 in temporary quarters in Luxembourg, the capital of the grand duchy. The joint assembly, or legislative branch, will begin work a month later, Sept. 10, at Strasbourg, France.

The ministers temporarily shelved French and Italian proposals to "Europeanize" the Saar Valley as a permanent home for the plan and use Strasbourg as a provisional capital until the Saar could be internationalized.

This was put aside after France and Germany agreed to direct talks on the Saar's status, long an issue between the two neighbors.

The six ministers agreed on persons to fill the high authority, executive arm of the plan, and the court to settle disputes, but withheld official announcements for the time being.

The executive group's first task will be to open negotiations with the member governments—France, Belgium, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Italy and West Germany—leading to establishment within eight months of a common market for steel and coal.

First Roll Call Recorded Up To Mississippi

CHICAGO (CP)—A big field of hopefuls today tried desperately to stop a roll towards Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois as the feuding, quarreling Democratic convention reached the hour for picking a presidential candidate. Backers of Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Mutual Security Administrator Averell Harriman, whipped in the battle last night and early today over seating southern rebels against a loyalty pledge, hoped for a shift of sentiment among delegates trooping back into the convention amphitheatre for the convention's big job.

CHICAGO (AP)—With the first-ballot alphabetical roll called through Mississippi the count for the Democratic presidential nomination stood:

| | |
|---|---|
| Harriman | 15 |
| Kefauver | 125 |
| Kerr | 22 |
| Russell | 111½ |
| Stevenson | 108 |

Needed to nominate: 615½.

Kefauver and Harriman believed they had perhaps slowed a Stevenson steam-roller by delaying tactics which stalled off a presidential ballot last night although leaders kept the convention in session until two o'clock in the morning.

SEE SOUTHERNER NO. 2

The way the Stevenson forces manoeuvred to seat the Virginia, Louisiana and South Carolina delegations, despite their refusal to take a loyalty pledge, pointed toward a southerner as the No. 2 man on the ticket—if Stevenson wins.

But those northern elements which fly the "liberal" banner indicated they will scrap to get one of their men accepted.

With 11 candidates in the field, it might well take several ballots to shake out the "favorite sons" and get a decision.

Even in this climactic hour, Stevenson still wasn't saying whether he would accept a nomination.

The Stevenson men were credited with bringing back into the fold bolt-threatening delegations from Virginia, South Carolina and Louisiana.

They won a clear cut—though narrow—victory in keeping the delegates at work but they had to surrender finally and allow ad-

Red Cross Approves Admission Of Germany

TORONTO (CP)—Admission of West Germany into the League of Red Cross Societies was approved today over Communist opposition.

The board of governors of the league voted 33 to 5, with 3 countries abstaining, to admit West Germany. Voting against the admission were Russia, Romania, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Red China.

Those abstaining were not recorded.

The Soviet view was expressed by Nikolai Vasilievich Slavin of the Russian Red Cross. He repeated views expressed yesterday when the Russians and Chinese were outvoted 15-2 on whether consideration should be given to West German admission.

He said the application was filed too late and therefore was out of order. Also, it was made on behalf of only one part of Germany and therefore was illegal.

A Romanian delegate echoed his comment.

Orders Inquiry Into Gov't For Scotland

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill caused a stir among Scottish home rulers last night by granting what they have long demanded—a Royal Commission of inquiry into arrangements for governing Scotland.

A Scotsman, the 49-year-old Earl of Balfour, will be chairman.

But the commission does not mean that Scots are well on their way to having their own Parliament in Edinburgh. Though 3,000,000 Scots have demanded this in a petition circulated by the Covenanters (home rulers) over the last two years, neither the Conservative nor the Labor party here has ever supported the idea.

Churchill's statement in Parliament came after the report of a committee, headed by Lord Catto, former governor of the Bank of England, which for over two years has been looking into the financial and economic relations between Scotland and England.

CAN'T ESTIMATE TRADE

The committee reported that without a customs barrier between Scotland and England it was impossible to determine Scotland's share of United Kingdom external trade and her balance of payments.

The financial angle of Scottish-English relationship is an important one to Scotsmen. A point made by many of the home-rule propagandists is:

Where would the British export drive be but for Scotch whisky, Scottish shipbuilding, Scottish engineering and all the other products that come from north of the border?

Scotland already has its own law, home, education, health and other government departments. And the Conservative government has given Scotland an extra Minister of State and an extra under-secretary. But nobody in the government has talked about separate Parliaments, which is what the Covenanters want.

Canned Pork Offered For Sale

OTTAWA (CP)—Government stocks of canned pork are to be offered for sale in Canada through regular trade channels for retail distribution beginning July 28, the Agricultural Prices Support Board announced today.

The board said the wholesale price will be 40 cents per pound in carlots, basis Ontario and Quebec points, with appropriate freight differentials in other areas.

The board said that price "represents a substantial reduction from present values."

As a result of the United States embargo on Canadian meat arising from the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak in Saskatchewan, Canada has piled up a large surplus of pork. This has been purchased by the Agricultural Prices Support Board in the form of canned pork.

The board said its stocks are "a pure pork product prepared under government specifications and is packed in 12-ounce tins under the usual trade brands for pork luncheon meat or pork loaf."

Plan 1-Storey Wings Added To Hospitals

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government will erect one-storey wings to all general hospitals built in the province in the future to help halt rising hospital costs, Health Minister Phillips said yesterday.

Addressing delegates attending the 18th International Red Cross conference here, he said the wings would accommodate the aged and senile, the chronically ill and the convalescent. It would be cheaper to operate these services under a single roof rather than in separate institutions.

French Troops Hurl Back Chinese Drive

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—French infantrymen today hurled back a 500-man Chinese Communist drive on T-bone Hill in a bloody opening to the 26th month of the Korean War.

French defenders of the western front hill inflicted heavy losses during two hours of pre-dawn hand-to-hand combat. Three Red companies advanced at 2 a.m. against the hill west of Chorwon. Artillery bursts punctuated hand-to-hand fighting as the 500 Communists got caught in crossfire of French positions at the bottom end of T-bone.

FORCE WITHDRAWS

A front-line officer estimated 56 Chinese were killed and 150 wounded. The cut-up Red forces withdrew at 4 a.m.

The French battalion is attached to the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division, which has fought the Chinese since July 17 for possession of nearby Old Baldy Hill. The Chinese regained the crest of Old Baldy Tuesday.

Overcast skies reduced Allied air activity to fighter-bomber strikes on the front this morning.

Ground action Thursday was light, except that Communist artillery and mortar shelling was almost double that of the previous day.

Crippled Watchmaker Hanged In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Genereux Ruest, 54-year-old crippled watchmaker from Quebec, was hanged early today for his part in Quebec's bizarre airlines murder case in 1949.

Ruest, suffering from tuberculosis of the bones and unable to walk without support, was taken in a wheel-chair from his cell to the scaffold in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail.

The trapdoor was sprung at 1:12 a.m. and he was cut down and declared dead at 1:28 a.m. He had attended mass at 12:30 a.m. and was attended to the gallows by Rev. Roger Jeannotte, the prison's Roman Catholic chaplain.

Ruest was convicted Dec. 19, 1950 of the murder of 28-year-old Mrs. Rita Guay, killed with 22 others when the airliner in which she was travelling blew up in mid-air near Quebec. He manufactured the time-bomb which shattered the aircraft.

Check Steady Advance On Stock Market

TORONTO (CP)—Sporadic early afternoon profit-taking today checked a steady stock market advance.

Trading was slow and cautious. Volume for the first three hours was 959,000 shares.

Western oils balanced a broad list of gains and losses. Calgary and Edmonton, Canadian Atlantic, General Petroleum A, Home Oil and New British Dominions strengthened while Central Explorers and Punch weakened.

Base metal leaders were firm. Barvue, Coldstream Copper, Falconbridge and Pend Oreille traded higher. Chromium, Normetal and United Asbestos dipped.

Not Suffering From F-M Ban

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian farmer isn't getting as much now for his cattle as in the pre-foot-and-mouth disease days—but he's not getting much less either.

A review of prices through the months since the Saskatchewan outbreak was confirmed Feb. 25 shows the livestock seller hasn't done badly. In fact prices now are a little better than the average for 1951, considered a fairly normal year in the livestock business.

Good steers now are averaging between $25 and $26 a hundredweight at Toronto and about $2 less at Winnipeg. This is giving the farmer a return of between $1 and $2 a hundredweight lower than he was getting just before the foot-and-mouth outbreak in February. The market at that time was in decline.

Present prices are better than the $24.74 Toronto average for good steers throughout 1950. In 1947 the average on the same basis was $14.20.

The average for good steers at Toronto last year was $32.60, but agricultural officials here said this was considered "abnormal."

Steel Strike Ends

Truman stuck with Arnall and Wilson resigned.

No wage or other terms were announced, but it was reliably learned that the agreement includes these conditions.

A wage boost of 16 cents an hour for 650,000 basic steel workers; a highly-modified form of union shop which allows present non-union members to stay out and gives new employees a 15-day escape period during their first month of employment; six paid holidays; three weeks vacation after 15 years' service; a two-year contract dating from last June 30, with a wage reopener next June 30.

These concessions come to a total of just over 21 cents an hour for each worker. Pre-strike pay averaged slightly less than $2.

REPERCUSSIONS GREAT

The strike and the dispute which preceded it had enormous repercussions throughout the federal government.

On April 8 the President seized the entire industry. The Supreme Court on June 2 voided the seizure as unlawful and said Truman had no inherent power to take over the industry.

The pay and union-shop recommendations made by the Wage Stabilization Board March 20 led to a complete revamping of the W.S.B. last month. Congress abolished the W.S.B., which Truman had created by executive order, and set up a new board with no power to intervene in and propose settlements in labor disputes.

The Justice Department has been investigating a complaint by the union that the six major steel producers were guilty of violating the anti-trust laws by their pact not to sign up with Murray separately.

All six companies were party to yesterday's agreement. They are: U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Jones and Laughlin, Inland and Youngstown Sheet and Tube. Together they account for 70 per cent of U.S. productive capacity.

Other steel concerns are expected to go along with the agreement between Murray and the Big Six.

Wool Order Ready To Be Sent To China

LONDON (Reuters) — Bernard Buckman, director of London Export Corporation Ltd., said today that within five weeks his firm will ship the first of a $1,400,000 wool yarn order to Communist China.

He said 30 firms in Bradford, Yorkshire, are supplying the wool tops ordered by the Chinese.

The orders were placed at a recent trade conference in Moscow.

A spokesman for the government trade department said today: "There is a wide range of non-strategic goods with which Britain is ready to do trade with China providing we can spare them."

Cattle Rustling Charge Ordered Dismissed

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—A cattle rustling charge against William Thibideau, a Toronto resident formerly of Kirkland Lake, was dismissed today by Magistrate S. Atkinson.

Arthur Bowers said he had boarded the cattle for two years without pay and they were taken from the barn the night before they were to be auctioned off.

He said he was justified in auctioning them under the Innkeepers' Act. Thibideau said there had been no agreement as to the amount of board to be paid for the cattle.

Sees Heavy Diversion Of Ships For Ore

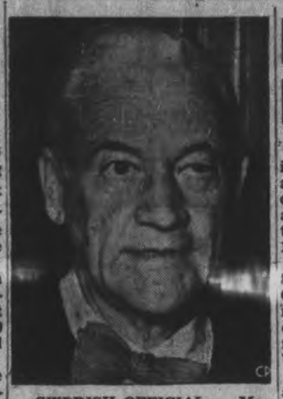
OTTAWA (CP)—Transport controller R.W. Milner said today that settlement of the steel strike in the United States will result in a "heavy diversion" of lake shipping to the transport of iron ore.

Mr. Milner said in an interview that about 60 boats now are tied up at Duluth, Minn., awaiting ore cargoes. The ore is not now at the dockside. The ships will have to wait until the miners return to work and start the ore moving again.

It will not take long, he said, now that the 53-day steel strike has been settled. The strike also closed the ore mines.



SWEDISH OFFICIAL — Mr. Justice Emil Sandstrom, president of the Swedish Red Cross and deputy chairman of the International Red Cross Federation, will preside at the 22nd meeting of the Board of Governors, League of Red Cross Societies, in Toronto, today. # Pacifies Angry Labor Delegation

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill yesterday pacified a delegation of angry labor leaders who called on him to protest against his Labor Minister's refusal to sanction wage increases for 1,500,000 store workers.

The delegation, representing the 8,000,000-member Trades Union Congress, accepted Churchill's promise that the protest would be carefully considered and agreed to further talks with the Minister, Sir Walter Monckton.

The T.U.C. maintains Monckton abused his powers under an industrial act by refusing to approve the increases after employers had already agreed to them. Monckton has defended his action in Parliament, pointing to the government's call for wage restraint to ease Britain's economic problems.

First Roll Call

journment in the early-morning hours because of what had all of the earmarks of a filibuster by the Kefauver-Harriman coalition.

FIRST-BALLOT STANDINGS

With the start of balloting only a few hours away the Associated Press tabulation of known first-ballot standings was: Kefauver 272½; Stephenson 215; Senator Richard Russell of Georgia 207, Harriman 107½; others 247½, uncommitted 179½. (Needed to nominate 615½).

Kefauver and Harriman took a 615-to-529 licking in efforts to prevent the 28-vote Virginia delegation from balloting on presidential and vice-presidential nominees.

The Virginians had refused to subscribe fully to a new loyalty pledge put across by the Kefauver-Harriman combine which would require delegates to go to work to place the convention's nominees on their state's November ballot, under the Democratic label.

WRANGLE AFTER VOTE

In the two-hour wrangle that followed this test vote, Representative John McCormack of Massachusetts—filling in for convention led the South Carolina and Louisiana delegations back on the roll call from which they had been stricken when they refused to take the loyalty pledge.

The net result was to leave the three delegations in a position to cast a total of 64 convention votes for the south's champion, Senator Richard B. Russell. Then, if they didn't like the eventual nominee, they could go home and name their own candidate for President in state conventions. All they appeared to be pledged to do, as Governor James F. Byrnes of South Carolina explained it, was to give the national party a place on their state ballots.

UNSCHEDULED EXCITEMENT

Byrnes was in the centre of an unscheduled bit of excitement when a newspaper caught fire near him while he was speaking. Peter J. Cloherty of Boston, an assistant sergant at arms, seized the microphone from Byrnes and shouted:

"Don't get panicky. It's only a newspaper. It will be put out in a minute."

Fire Commissioner Anthony J. Mullaney said he thought the blaze may have been set deliberately in an effort to force an adjournment of the proceedings.

Stevenson backers were confident he could hold the south in line and apparently were counting on some of the delegations to go his way if Russell faded.

BARKLEY RE-ENTERS RACE

But Senator Thomas Hennings of Missouri threw up something of a roadblock against any Dixie swerve to Stevenson by re-entering the name of Vice-President Alben Barkley in the nomination race.

Barkley had quit the race early in the week when some labor union leaders told him he was too old at 74.

Barkley's re-entrance added to the stop-Stevenson movement, since votes for Barkley will come largely from pro-Stevenson areas.

Stevenson, who has insisted that he doesn't want the nomination and is seeking only re-election as Governor, showed more interest after his name formally had been placed in nomination.

"I had hoped they would not nominate me, but I am deeply affected by this expression of confidence and goodwill," he said in a statement.

PRESIDENT'S CHOICE

Earlier in the day word had come to party leaders from the White House that President Truman prefers Stevenson. Truman is scheduled to arrive later in the day to present the new party nominee to the convention tonight—if the meeting can get back on schedule.

In between the parliamentary rows, speakers succeeded in offering in nomination the names of Stevenson, Kefauver, Harriman, Russell, Barkley, Senators Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, William Fulbright of Arkansas, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Governors G. Mennen Williams of Michigan and Paul Dever of Massachusetts, and Oscar Ewing, federal security administrator.

Senator Sparkman was getting top billing as a possible running mate for Stevenson, if the Illinois Governor gets the nomination. By custom, however, the presidential nominee will pick his own running mate.

Girl 19 Snubs Lover 47, Shooting Follows

UXBRIDGE (CP)—Richard Fowler of Toronto yesterday was committed for trial on a charge of attempting to murder 27-year-old Edward Brown of Utica, near Oshawa.

The charge was laid after Brown reported that four shots were fired through the window of his one-room frame house June 28 while he and his common-law wife were sleeping. Brown's two-year-old son was asleep in a crib and a visitor, Shirley Pallister, 19, was asleep on the floor.

Miss Pallister said she had known the 47-year-old Fowler for five years and had lived with him for a while in Toronto. They separated because neither had work.

Brown testified that one shot hit the bedpost and nicked him on the shoulder and elbow.

"I didn't know Fowler very well. Two weeks before the shooting he spent the night in the barn with Miss Pallister," Brown testified. "At that time, I asked him to leave the property and he did. I didn't see him again until the night before the shots were fired. He was on the front porch and he asked to see Miss Pallister. She didn't want to see him."

Brown said he told Fowler he would force him off the property with a .22 rifle if he didn't leave.

MAKES THREAT

He quoted Fowler as saying: "If that's the way you want it, you asked for it."

Brown went on to say he saw no more of Fowler until 5.30 the next morning.

"I heard the window smash. I heard some cursing, and there were some shots fired. I recognized his voice," the witness said. "I saw a face at the window. I rolled out of bed and picked up my rifle and let a shot go through the door."

Brown said the Pallister girl woke up and shoved a bullet into another rifle for him.

Shirley Pallister said she had known Fowler for five years and that she had been living with him in a River St. house in Toronto for five months.

"We separated as he had no work and I had none. Two weeks before this affair, he came to the Brown house where I was staying," she said. "I thought he was going to cause trouble. We went to Brown's car where he showed me the gun. It was a revolver. He wanted me to go back with him."

She said she was threatened by Fowler in the car.

"He said to me, 'This is for you. I've come to get you'." Miss Pallister admitted spending the night in the barn with the accused because: "He had the gun all the time. I didn't want to make trouble with the Browns."

She explained that the next time she saw Fowler was the night before the shooting.

"I told him I didn't want anything more to do with him. He asked me if I meant it and I said yes. He turned around and left," she said, adding that she was awakened about 5.30 the following morning by the noise of breaking glass.

She said that last Christmas Fowler hit her on the head with a beer bottle.

Church Members Gave $566,936 In Tithes

OSHAWA (CP)—The 2,582 Seventh-day Adventist Church members in Ontario and Quebec gave $566,936 in tithes and mission offerings during 1950 and 1951, G. Eric Jones yesterday told delegates to the biennial business section of the church.

Mr. Jones, president of the Ontario-Quebec Conference, said that gifts to the church during 1951 averaged $115.22 per member.

The session preceded the annual Church conference on the campus of Oshawa Missionary College, where members from the 34 adventist churches in the two provinces are gathering for a week of religious activities.

Mr. Jones announced the completion of new church buildings in Hamilton, Chatham and Haileybury. Five new church congregations were received into the conference.

The strike of 150 members of the International Woodworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) entered its fifth day today.

Company officials did not say when the plant would close.

US Asks Reds Observe Pact

TORONTO (CP)—The United States, expected to be the target of Communist accusations arising from the Korean war at the International Red Cross conference, took steps yesterday which may thrust into the discussions charges of its own.

At Washington, the State Department announced it has asked Russia to use its good offices to get North Korea and Communist China to comply with the 1940 Geneva Convention rules for humanitarian treatment of prisoners of war.

What may bring the issue into the international meetings here is a further request to the International Red Cross committee to persuade North Korea and Red China to agree on means of applying the Geneva convention principles.

MAKES SEVERAL CHARGES

The U.S. note to Russia said the following provisions have not been observed: "Inspection of prisoner-of-war camps by an impartial international body has not been permitted; relief parcels have not been delivered; and the prisoner-of-war camps have been placed in areas in proximity to military objectives, exposing the prisoners to danger of attack."

Paul Ruegger, president of the International Red Cross committee, declined comment here last night on the charges, saying he had not yet received the U.S. note.

B.M. Zonov, Russian delegate, said he hadn't heard from Moscow about the appeal. "I don't even know yet whether it will affect our delegation at all," he said. "We might have nothing to do with it." Boris Pashkov, another Russian delegate said he understood the North Korean government had expressed its willingness to abide by the Geneva Convention.

Some western delegations looked on the U.S. action as a move in anticipation of expected Communist charges before the conference that the United Nations have resorted to germ warfare.

FIRST U.S. STEP

It was the first aggressive step by the U.S. government which announced through the State Department July 18 that it would not send a voting delegation to the conference in an effort to avoid a direct clash with the Reds over Korean-war charges.

Yesterday's sessions saw the Russians and Chinese outvoted 15 to 2 on the question of whether West Germany should be admitted to the Red Cross. There was no debate on admittance of Ceylon and San Marino, two other applicants, and the admission of these countries and West Germany will bring the International Red Cross strength to 71 from 68.

African Police Find New Way Fight Campaign

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (CP)—South Africa's police have found a new weapon to fight the campaign by non-Europeans to crowd the union's jails in defiance of Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan's white supremacy laws. The police are turning out the prisoners against their will.

The police move is the government's answer to protest demonstrations by the African and Indian National Congresses here. Congress leaders had asked their colored members to defy South Africa's race laws in great numbers, thus filling the country's jails to overflowing.

SEIZING MONEY

But now money found on the demonstrators is being seized by the police and used to pay fines, even though the prisoners protest that they want to stay in jail as a matter of principle. With the fines paid, the protesters are forced to freedom.

To meet the police tactic, an African leader said "in the future we'll see that volunteers come with empty pockets to the jails."

Meanwhile, in East London, police arrested 148 non-whites today on charges of breaking curfew laws.

This brings to 268 the total arrests in East London since the start of the "defiance of unjust (race) laws" campaign June 26.

Charge Reduced. Driver Fined $50

A drunk driving charge against John Black, 37, 531 Hunter St., was reduced to driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol after Magistrate E. A. Gee heard evidence in police court Thursday.

Black, who did not testify in his own defence, was fined $50 and $5 costs. Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw offered no evidence on a second charge of careless driving.

Constable Dennis Traynor said Black admitted he was the driver of a northbound car which was involved in a head-on collision on George St., the night of June 21. He said Black was "in a drunken condition," that he "staggered considerably, repeated his conversation" and seemed confused. He said Black's car was almost entirely on the wrong side of the road.

Constable Andre Dalton who drove Black to the police station in the police cruiser said he kept asking what had been done with his whiskey and had considerable difficulty getting out of the cruiser. His condition became rapidly worse, Constable Dalton said and he collapsed before he could get him into a cell. Constable Dalton said he finally ended up dragging Black into cell and onto the bed.

Under cross-examination, Constable Dalton agreed with defence counsel J. C. N. Currelly that Black was so confused that no reliance could be placed on what he said. Seizing on this, Mr. Currelly argued that the charge should be dismissed because the only thing identifying Black as the driver of the car was his admission to Constable Traynor. In view of his condition as described by the two constables, Mr. Currelly argued that his admission should not be accepted.

However, Magistrate Gee ruled that the evidence called for a defence.

HAD OPERATION

Dr. C. F. Cahill, said Black had had an operation for a stomach condition some years ago and that he was of a nervous disposition. The next afternoon, he said he treated Black and that his nose was bleeding and there was some difficulty in stopping it. Constable Traynor had said that Black's nose was bleeding when he first saw him standing on the curb. From the condition of his face, Dr. Cahill said it was possible that Black could have suffered concussion in the accident. He said that his condition which become worse after the accident could have been due to his injuries and the resultant nervous upset to his nervous condition.

"Is the court going to take the evidence of what the officers saw or is it going to be bamboozled by the usual medical evidence of concussion, a blow on the head and friends who say he was alright a short time before?" asked Mr. Bradshaw.

The crown attorney made this comment after Dr. Cahill, three lawyers, a real estate broker, the manager of a finance company, a garage operator and a salesman had testified for the defence.

James F. Dunn said he arranged bail for Black about 1 a.m. the following moring and that Black's eye was so badly discolored and his face so puffed that he did not recognize him at first when a constable took him down to the cells where Black was sleeping.

ONY ONE GLASS

Two other lawyers, P. D. Scollard and Norman Crook, real estate broker Edward O'Toole and Victor Nolan, manager of a finance company all said they had been with Black at a picnic during the afternoon and up until they last saw him about 9 p.m., he had only been seen with one glass in his hand by two of the witnesses who said it could have contained liquor.

About 10 p.m., garage operator Norris Williamson said Black phoned to ask if he could loan him some liquor as friends had dropped in. He said he had a part of a bottle which he agreed to loan him, and Black called around to pick it up about 10 p.m.

He said he showed no signs of intoxication when he left about 10:30. Mr. Williamson said the bottle was not quite half full. A bottle produced in court which Constable Traynor found in the front seat of the car had less than two inches of liquor in it.

Hubert Mullins, a salesman, said he met Black for the first time at the garage that night and that he showed no signs of having consumed liquor about 10:15. The accident occurred shortly after 10:30 p.m.

Ignoring Our Most Important Scenic Spots

"Peterborough is fortunate in having such natural assets as Jackson Creek, the Otonabee River and Little Lake. With the growth of the city, however, they have been ignored as the City's most important scenic spots and today their inherent beauty is no longer visible in many places."

These words were written five years ago in the Master Plan proposals for Peterborough's development. Has anything been done in the past five years to reclaim its fortune in natural assets: Jackson Park creek, the Otonabee and Little Lake?

* * *

Very much has been done in Little Lake and the Otonabee within Peterborough's boundaries. New mains and sewers have been laid to relieve the lake of the muck formerly poured into it from East City; it is becoming a clean, usable lake. Likewise the water of the Otonabee beyond the Sewage Disposal plant is not suffering from contamination now that the plant has been enlarged. Several beauty spots on the banks have been developed during the last decade; for instance, the park immediately south of the George St. wharf; and of course the shrubbery and flowers along the Water street embankment at Goose Pond continues to be a joy. The Parks department has also developed the approaches to the river at Hunter St. East, noticeably the rock garden under the bridge.

* * *

But the recommendation following the two sentences quoted at the beginning of this article have seemingly not made a dent on the Council: "By reclaiming much of the land in the vicinity of the river and creek for park purposes, the beauty of these localities can be greatly restored and the attractiveness of the city enhanced." There has been no reclaiming of land, as far as we can see, since the shoring up of the banks of Little Lake in the middle of the Depression, as a project to provide employment. The only reclamation we have noticed — it can hardly be called reclamation, — has been the continuous filling of the west bank of the Otonabee along Water street across from the Brewers' Warehouse. The banks have been greatly widened by dumping over the years, refuse, rock and gravel — and every bit of new land thus created has been taken up by railway sidings and tracks. This is intolerable. Why allow a railway company or any other company to further extend its holding of the river bank? Enough new land has already been created to have made, for the citizens' enjoyment, a pleasure-walk lined with trees east of the original tracks. But instead, that new land is now occupied by more tracks.

* * *

Almost nothing has been done about Jackson Park creek, except some commendable efforts by volunteers, and the Parks Department to clean up some of the mess in the creek's bed, and a very fine job just south of the Park—the pool and creek diversion there. Apart from these, the city has officially permitted private business to expand itself along the creek's border. The city let the bus company have a strip of land running right to the creek's bank, so that the company could extend its parking lot. That strip could have been the beginning of a public walk. The city was officially heedless when the Loblaw company bought up houses beside the creek on Sherbrooke street, tore them down, and also cleared a parking lot behind the store right back to the creek. Could it not have put a finger on a narrow strip of all this creek bank, for future public use?

* * *

The Master Plan says: "In Jackson Park only does the beauty of the creek show to full advantage. To provide additional scenic spots along the creek every possible piece of property with the exception of expensive industrial and commercial sites should be acquired. This property should be developed as park land making use of the natural setting of the creek." The Council seems to have ignored the recommendation completely. Some future council in a decade not far distant will rue the recklessness of councils of the last several years, when it tries to do then what could be done now in easy stages: to reclaim Jackson Park Creek as it wanders through the city. Every year the cost of this becomes greater as private business and industry get an ever tighter hold on the creek.

* * *

Peterborough is wasting a prize advantage: its creek. Let Peterborough see what Stratford has done and let it begin to do likewise. By damming, by clearing sites, by planting trees and building walks along little waterways, it has created right in the heart of the city lovely pleasure gardens and walks. With twice the natural advantages, Peterborough could do much more at half the cost. But it should begin to do it now. It should have begun five years ago — or fifty.

* * *

Peterborough has become an industrial city. It is no longer a marketing town, close to the country. The population has become an industrial population. Every year it becomes increasingly necessary to cherish what green spots and scenery we have, and to reclaim what we have lost. Yet even today the city is throwing away more beauty spots, just as it has done so lamentably during the last hundred years. Let us wake up before it is too late.

What Gadgets In Peterborough's New Post Office?

We are told that the new Post Office in the new Federal Building to be put up in Peterborough within the next year (after thirty years' waiting for it) will be a model of post offices, as well as a training centre for postal employees. We wonder if the new place will hold the marvels which the Postmaster General, the Honourable Alcide Cote, spoke of when visiting Calgary recently. In his speculations of the future of postal service, he spoke of electronic marvels which will sort the mail and other gadgets which will speed the work behind the counters, and, we hope, the serving of customers at the wickets.

The Calgary Herald has listened to Mr. Cote with a sardonic ear. "In between his intriguing and promising experiments with electronic sorters, Mr. Cote might, we think, usefully spend a little of his time endeavouring to discover why second-class mail sometimes takes eleven days to reach Calgary from Toronto." The Herald notes that every night of the week two transcontinental trains leave Toronto and arrive in Calgary on the next morning but two. It wants to know where the other nine days go to, in second class mail delivery.

Electronic sorters and all-up air carriage for first-class mail are no doubt satisfying to dream about. But for ourselves we should be more content if some of the Post Office's surplus energy were devoted to prosaic problems like local delivery, convenience for the public which uses the mails and thereby provides the Post Office with its revenues, and the fabulous overseas parcel rates.

We bend a sympathetic ear to the Herald's grumblings.

History and Imagination

It is not enough for a country to have history; every country has a history of some sort. What is necessary is that history should be seen through the eyes of men capable of discerning what is truly significant in it, and presenting what they see in a manner which will fire the imagination of their fellow-countrymen.

Canada has a long history—not long compared with England, or China, but long in comparison with Belgium or the Philippines. But until recently our history has been presented in two forms; in textbooks supposedly for children, in which unpleasant facts were suppressed and other facts "tidied"; and in learned and detailed volumes which repelled the ordinary reader. But of late Canadian history has been receiving the attention that it needs; the approach to it has been not only scholarly and honest, but also literary and imaginative.

We have at hand a slim book called Towards The Last Spike, which has been sent to us by the publishers, Macmillans. It is a narrative poem by E. J. Pratt, our best narrative poet, telling of the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Now, we have heard that history before, in many versions, but the imaginative power which Dr. Pratt brings to it gives it a significance which we had not previously seen in it. That is as it should be; the task of the poet is to show us what we have not the sensitivity, or the imaginative scope, to see for ourselves. In this poem character sketches are provided of some of the great men concerned in the C.P.R. venture which are romantic in the best sense of the word—the actions of a few hours are illuminated by the light of a lifetime. Once again we are indebted to Dr. Pratt for a work which shows the qualities which have gained him a place of honour in our literary life, and which brings a portion of Canadian history into sharp focus and rich colour.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A bumper wheat crop is expected in the Canadian West; perhaps as much as 600,000,000 bushels will be harvested. We wonder what that will bump, or who will be bumped if the bumper crop does not turn out to be bumper? A clear definition of "bumper" is needed.

General Douglas MacArthur was chosen to make the "keynote" speech at the opening of the recent Republican party convention. Having heard it, and seeing the results of the nominating convention, we are inclined to believe that General MacArthur struck a truer key a year ago when he addressed Congress: "Old generals never die; they just fade away."

Where Is Peron Going?

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

HERE in the democratic little Republic of Uruguay the chief subject of conversation at the moment is the health of Senora de Peron, wife of the President of Argentina. When I was on the the other side of the Andes in Chile a month ago, the Chileans, despite an exciting electoral campaign were almost equally preoccupied with Argentine affairs. Even in Bolivia, with a domestic revolution to cope with, and in Peru, which has no common frontier with Argentina, I found the same situation.

In all these countries one encountered the same worried prognostications, and the same wry jokes, that were made about Germany in other European countries before 1939—also the same sense of unreality coupled with the fear that "it might happen here." There is widespread belief, probably exaggerated, that Presidents Odria of Peru and Paz Estenssoro of Bolivia are secretly supported by Perop, who has also publicly favoured the candidacy of General Ibanez in Chile, and here in Uruguay has an unabashed "quisling" in the person of Luis Alberto de Herrera, leader of the Nationalists.

✧ ✧ ✧

HERRERA, in his speeches and his party newspaper, "El Debate", supports Peron's "third position," which regards the United States and the Soviet Union as equally dangerous imperialist aggressors, but sees the former as the closer threat. Herrera's party officially espouses the cause of a River Plate Basin Alliance, comprising Argentina, Chile, Uruguay, Bolivia and Paraguay. Except for the Herreristas here, public opinion in the proposed satellite countries is bitterly opposed not only to Peron but to the Argentines themselves (though newspapers are careful to make a distinction), but there is good reason to believe that the idea of such an alliance has considerable support in some influential quarters.

✧ ✧ ✧

INSIDE ARGENTINA itself one gets the idea that the whole world revolves round Peron's "Justicialist" Republic. Opposition papers, such as there are, are almost unobtainable, and the controlled Press prints only such items from abroad as are favourable to the Peronista regime.

As a result the Argentine reader, who is virtually unable to see any but the most unpolitical foreign publications, is led to believe that the rest of the world is gasping with admiration for the New Argentina, and is prevented from following Argentina's example only by the machinations of the Wall Street war-mongers. Fulsome self-praise of Argentina is equalled by diatribes against the United States.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS SECOND LINE of propaganda is more successful than the first, because the Argentines have never loved the United States, know little of what it is really like, and in many cases (including not a few Anglo-Argentines) bitterly hate it. Educated middle-class people, who cannot swallow the fantastic deification of Peron and Evita and who detest the way their country is being run, are perfectly willing to believe anything they read about the character, aims and actions of the North Americans (not "Americans"; only Argentines are unhyphenated Americans).

This tumult and shouting to the tune of "Argentinos, si! Yanquis, no!" increases in volume as the actual state of the country grows visibly worse. Though the poorer descamisados ("shirtless") are still enjoying a higher standard of living than before, the rest of the population is urged to embrace an austeridad (the word is official) which they cannot help practising in any case. In the course of the last three years prices have risen anything from five to fifteen times, tramcar fares in Buenos Aires have been tripled, and subway fares quadrupled. There is a shortage of everything, including even meat, which may not be sold in shops, hotels or restaurants on one day in every week, and quality has deteriorated all round —the adulterated bread is pale grey in colour and crumbles to pieces if you try to spread butter on it.

✧ ✧ ✧

IF THE HOUSEWIFE'S LOT is an unhappy one, the plight of the businessman and the manufacturer is desperate. Foreign trade is vestigial, and local industry is unable to sell its products because the public has no money to buy them—textile firms in particular have enormous unsold stocks on their hands. In spite of this, the Government, in order to maintain the fiction of "full employment," forbids such firms to dismiss their employees and even loans them money to continue their unproductive existence.

What the Government gives with one hand, however, it takes away with the other, since firms (as well as every other kind of entity and individual) are obliged periodically to disgorge large sums as "voluntary contributions" to Senora Peron's octopus-like benevolent institution, the Fundacion Eva Peron, whose books are not audited, and whose balance sheet has never been published.

✧ ✧ ✧

CONDITIONS in the countryside are little better than those in the cities, and two years of drought have now added their quota to an already disquieting situation. Cattle farmers are not fattening their stocks or sending them to market because of the poor prices; grain-growing estancias are handicapped by the migration of workers to the cities, the splitting-up of their land, heavy taxation and other factors; and smallholders are merely cultivating what they need for themselves.

Up to date working classes are still adherents of Peron and Evita, but what will happen if Evita dies is another question. It is known that Peron had always hoped to rule by keeping the balance between labour and the Army, but this equilibrium was upset by last year's frustrated putsch and the consequent purge of the armed forces. To-day the C.G.T. (General Confederation of Labour) is unquestionably the most powerful body in the country, and it is headed by Evita's protege, Espejo. If Evita should disappear from the scene, Peron might try to break Espejo's power, and that would certainly mean trouble with the workers. It is feared in these neighbouring countries that in that event Peron might be tempted to start some kind of adventure abroad to avert civil war at home.

An American Opinion: TALL IN THE SADDLE

Happiness Means Stagnation

(CALGARY HERALD)

We just wish one of those Gallup "pollsters" would come around our office. We'd give him an earful. But we suppose we'll never have such luck. After all, did you ever meet anyone who had been interviewed for the Canadian Gallup poll?

Well neither have we and, after looking at the results of last week's public opinion poll, we don't believe they interview anybody. Imagine 92 per cent of the poll sample of the Canadian people allegedly telling these "pollsters" they are either very happy or fairly happy. What nonsense! Only one per cent of those supposed to have ben interviewed had the courage to come out and say they were not happy at all. And then on top of that the opinion surveyors had the nerve to compare these figures with some they had cooked up in 1946 and so suggested that Canadians are happier now than in 1946.

What have Canadians got to be happier about? Taxes are going up, aren't they? The cost of living hasn't declined much, has it? The same old politicians are still running the country, aren't they? And the weather, have you noticed the weather lately? It certainly isn't anything to be happy about.

And if Canadians are so happy why are so many of them out on strike? Why do so many of them complain about prices and taxes?

If that ubiquitous "pollster" had come around to us and said: "In general, how happy would you say that you are?" we should have snarled right back: "We are not a bit happy, in fact we are miserable, thank you" and we would have described our symptoms. "We are unhappy because the rain keeps washing our new lawn out. We are unhappy because our street is full of potholes. We are unhappy because our taxes are too many and already overdue. We are unhappy because everybody but us is driving a V-12 Supermobile this year. We are unhappy because the stock market is dead and nobody can make any money on it. We are unhappy because the way the city is run, and the province is run and the Dominion is run. And finally, we are unhappy because 92 per cent of this poll is happy."

For if they are happy, they are contented. They are saying "everything is for the best in this best of all possible worlds." And if that is so, where is dear old Canada headed? After all it's not that good, yet. Where would this Dominion have been if 92 per cent of its citizens had been happy and contented in the good old days? If it hadn't been for the beefing and discontent of more politically-minded persons, what kind of a democracy would we have right now?

If this polls is accurate, Canada must be in for a period of unhappy stagnation. But we think it is wrong and that a good 50 percent at least, of the populace is good and properly unhappy. We'll be happy if that is so, because it should mean a spirited, "happier" future for Canada.

Musical Comedies For Canadians

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

THE premieres of musical comedies this week in Vancouver and Halifax are events of unusual interest to Canadian audiences. For both of the musicals were written, composed and produced by Canadians. James Richardson, of Vancouver, wrote the words and Chet Lambertson, a professor of English at King's College, composed the musical score for "Bonanza," the first performance of which has been given in Halifax. "Timber!!" which succeeds at least in out-exclaiming "Oklahoma!" opens the 13th season of Vancouver's famous Theatre Under the Stars" in Stanley Park. Douglas Nixon, a C.B.C. program director, and David Savage, a free-lance writer, collaborated on the book and lyrics and Dolores Claman wrote the music.

A substantial section of the community seems to have been drawn into the production of "Bonanza." The Nova Scotia Opera Association, the Nova Scotia Ballet, Robert Alban Players, Halifax Symphonettes, Theatre Arts Guild and Halifax Conservatory of Music are active participants; radio station CJCH is the show's financial backer; and local service clubs and women's groups are assisting in its promotion. Rather astonishingly, the story which the Haligonians are so enthusiastically interpreting in songs (17) and ballets (four) concern an Alberta family that strikes oil.

Ironically, the presentation of "Timber!!" by the Vancouver professional company coincides with a province-wide strike in the logging industry. The plot on which the songs and dances are strung—loggers on a spree in Vancouver—may seem a little less light-hearted now than it would have several weeks ago.

Whether or not these musical comedies have more to recommend them than local colour remains to be seen. Having been served a rather regular (however palatable) diet of Victor Herbert for a very long time, Canadians will be happy to judge for themselves the merits of these two new musical comedies.

ONLY HIM

"You are not opaque, are you?" sarcastically asked one man of another who was standing in front of him at the theatre.

"Faith, an' Oi'm not," replied the other. "It's O'Brien that Oi am."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father in law, the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the backside of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb . . . And the Lord said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and have heard their cry by reason of their taskmasters; for I know their sorrows; and I am come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out of that land unto a good land and a large, unto a land flowing with milk and honey . . .

Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt. (Ex. 3: 1, 7, 8, 10.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And Moses answered and said, But, behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken to my voice: for they will say, The Lord hath not appeared unto thee. And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod. And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it.

And the Lord said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand. (Ex. 4: 1-4.)

Behold, God is my salvation; I will trust, and not be afraid: for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation. (Isa. 12: 2.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. (II Tim. 1: 7.)

✧ ✧ ✧

There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love. (I John 4: 18.)

A Man And His $8,426 Job

(Ottawa Journal)

The right to work, or to be able to get a job if willing to work, is considered a fundamental by most people today. But it presupposes a lot of other things, one of which is that the opening or the job is available and that facilities are provided for the workman to do the kind of work for which he is trained. Naturally, providing such facilities costs money, and this part of the business of getting a job has not been given a great deal of attention or thought.

Someone in the Canadian Manufacturers' Association apparently asked the question "How much does it cost to provide a man with a job?" and the association thought it worth while getting an answer. It asked nearly 500 firms who employ 335,000 people and the results show that it cost these firms $8,426 in buildings, equipment, new materials and other goods in order to provide one man with one job.

It should be obvious that this large investment in one job does not come from the prospective employee — at least not in many firms. The worker may have to provide a few tools, he certainly has had to invest time in training, but he seldom has to put up cash in order to get that job in industry. In the main the money came from shareholders, the people who invested savings or earnings in a particular industry, or from profits earned and plowed back into business.

This major role which the investor plays in providing jobs is often forgotten; also the fact that a business must earn profits in order to expand and provide still more jobs. Today high taxation of profits is making it increasingly difficult for industry to provide more jobs.

"I reckon they ought to send some of these go-slow strikers down here as a source."

B.C. Labor Picture Brighter As Two Strikes Now At End

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's gloomy labor picture brightened a bit today—at least around the edges.

Some 6,000 fishermen went back to sea after a four-day tieup caused by a dispute over salmon prices and 300 officers on ocean-going vessels settled their six-month wages argument with four shipping companies.

But 32,000 workers who quit the forests and sawmills June 15 were still idle. There was some hope, however, they might return to their jobs next week.

MEDIATION FAILS

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan yesterday announced failure to end the $1,000,000-a-day coastal lumber strike after talks under his mediation lasting seven days.

However, he placed a new proposal before the International Wood- and Forest Industrial Relations workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) Ltd., spokesman for the 162 operators.

He suggested a 5½-cent-an-hour increase to bring the basic wage, including the current 11-cent cost-of-living bonus, to $1.46. He asked for a reply from both parties by Monday.

The union said its policy committee will consider the formula today. The membership will vote on it Sunday at 14 meetings of coast locals.

Forest Industrial Relations said it is considering the plan.

The I.W.A. originally asked for 35 cents an hour. Union President Stewart Alsbury said the I.W.A. scaled this down to 9½ cents during mediations.

This would have made the basic rate, including cost-of-living bonus, 1.53 an hour. The operators said they had proposed a basic rate of $1.43½. Current rate is $1.40½.

The companies originally proposed a 10-per-cent wage cut but later accepted a conciliation-board recommendation for no wage increase at this time.

ACCEPT CANNERS' OFFER

The salmon fishermen accepted the final price offer from the canners, less than last year except in the case of sockeye. The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (T.L.C.) said two-thirds of the fishermen favored a return to work.

The canners, like the lumber operators, have said they cannot pay more because of falling overseas markets.

Masters, mates and engineers will receive wage increases ranging from $15 to $22 a month and a 7½ per cent cost-of-living bonus increase from Canadian Pacific, Canadian National, Union Steamships and Frank Waterhouse and Co. Ltd. Negotiations opened in February and were finally concluded Wednesday.

Some 4,000 carpenters and painters are still on strike—they started their walkout June 9—in seven coast cities. Another 5,000 workers in allied trades have been laid off.

Still hanging fire are disputes affecting another 12,450 workers, including 4,000 telephone employees, 5,700 cannery workers, 1,000 shipyard men, 500 steelworkers and 450 bakers.

See German Combine

GEORGETOWN (CP)—Farmers in this district, some 25 miles west of Toronto yesterday saw a demonstration of a German-made combine that cuts and threshes grain and bales the straw. Its mechanism is driven by a motor on the combine but it is hauled by a tractor or other motive power. Canadian-made combines are self-propelled but do not bale the straw.

PAINTING IN OILS, fast becoming a hobby with men of distinction, seems to have particular appeal for top military strategists. One of the best known amateur artists in the military class is Earl Alexander, Britain's Defence Minister and former Governor General of Canada, who has displayed many of his works. But not to be outdone is General Dwight D. Eisenhower, U. S. Republican presidential nominee, shown here with brush in hand while vacationing in the Colorado mountains. While not busy trout fishing, he turns to canvas and faithfully reproduces the beauty of the surrounding countryside.

Toughening Up Training

No More Lotus Eating For Canadian Troops

By BILL BOSS

HARAMURA, Japan (CP)—The day of the soft lay-over in Japan is over for the Korea-bound Canadian infantry reinforcement.

No more lotus-eating while awaiting the call to battle, once the final training is over. No more sitting around the reinforcement centre waiting for a vacancy at the training camp.

From the moment he leaves ship at Yokohama, his every thought and every action are oriented to the reality awaiting him in a Korean slit trench.

Waiting trains whisk arrivals fro Yokohama to Kure, whence trucks take them 30 miles north, through beautiful rural Japanese countryside, to Haramura. There a rigid regime devised by Lt.-Col. M.R. Lonsdale of the British army awaits them.

Haramura is an old Japanese army training ground. It is hilly—no more and no less than Korea—and is thickly overgrown.

OLD TRAINING GROUND

The 1st Japanese jungle division and its successors were trained here.

Lonsdale's syllabus suits the ruggedness of the terrain.

Brig. M.P. Bogert, commander of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, explaining the policy which sent the men here, told them during a recent visit:

"A nice holiday isn't the best way to prepare you to go into battle, so we have brought you here, where you will acquire the fine points and become as fit as it is possible to make you."

The organization to which the men go is the Commonwealth division battle school, in which the Canadians operate a wing.

Present commander of the wing is Capt. Harry O'Dell of Montreal, who served in Korea with the 2nd Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment. He also commands the English-speaking wing, while French-speaking soldiers go to a company commanded by Capt. Rolly Leclerc of Rimouski and Lachine, Que., also a veteran of Korea where he served with the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment.

MONTH'S TRAINING

Soldiers spend approximately one month in either "Harry" or "Rolly" company and then are posted immediately to their battalions, without the intermediate stage of a period in a holding depot.

The system makes it important that the flow of reinforcements from Canada be so regulated that brigade requirements will be met almost exactly by graduates from the battle school.

Even if the number turned out is excessive for the immediate need, the men will still go to their battalions. It is felt better psychologically and militarily to send them straight away to the theatre than to risk a let-down from their peak form by a period of waiting in Japan.

Program and living conditions are rigorous.

The men are confined to barracks during their time here, except for one week-end. They live in large Japanese-style barracks with raised-floor platforms for their cots. There are no amenities in the buildings.

In winter the quarters are unheated. Throughout the year the men wash and shave in cold water. They are worked from morning to night, have ravenous appetites but get supplementary potatoes and bread in their Australian rations.

CANTEEN POLICY

One compensation Lonsdale allows is a relatively free canteen policy.

"I believe in letting a fellow have as much beer as he wants," he says. "You can always sweat it out of him the next day—it just pours out.

"The canteen profits provide extra messing—salads, sauces and things like that."

Lonsdale is a hard-bitten, enthusiastic infantry officer who goes about his camp in shirt sleeves or bare-chested, as the mood fits, with never a rank badge. He is immediately recognizable and—expects to be.

He is a devil for fitness, goes through the obstacle course and tramps over the exercise areas with the men, controlling the supporting fire of live ammunition that accompanies their training.

An aim of the course is to accustom the men to the noises of the battlefield. Haramura noise exceed anything Korea has yet produced.

Of the 800 Commonwealth soldiers under Lonsdale's command, 400 are Canadian. With the opening of the school's Canadian wing, the Canadian Infantry School at Nipponbara has been closed.

Agreement Reached In Toronto Strike

The agreement will be presented to union members for ratification.

Soldier's Mother Dies Son Held In Korea

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Allan E. Goodmurphy died yesterday. She was the mother of Pte. Harold Ward who unsuccessfully applied for compassionate leave from Korea to visit her when he learned she was fatally ill. Pte. Ward, 19, was Mrs. Goodmurphy's son by her first marriage.

Mrs. Goodmurphy was born in Trenton. Burial will be held at Carrying Place in the Ottawa district.

5 Killed In Mine

APACHE JUNCTION, Ariz. (AP) One hundred and fifty tons of crushed rock, held in an elevated wooden hopper, crashed down on seven men yesterday, killing five, in the worst mine disaster on record in Arizona. Two men and a small mongrel dog, which was protected by one of the victim's bodies, escaped unharmed.

'Jane Steps Out' At Height Of Play Season

Jane Steps Out, and there is nothing but fun and gaiety at the Summer Theatre. Opening next Monday evening, "Jane Steps Out," a barrage of laughter by Kenneth Horne, tells the story of a Cinderella girl who decides to go "on the town."

When presented in Bermuda this winter with Kate Reid, Peter Mews, and Barbara Hamilton in the leading roles the play broke all theatre records. Kate Reid will again play the Cinderella, Jane, and Peter Mews the elusive young man of her choice.

HEIGHT OF SEASON

Last year "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and the season before Leslie Howard's play "Elizabeth Sleeps Out" were chosen to fill the bill at the height of the holiday season: in keeping with its tradition the Summer Theatre management this year presents "Jane Steps Out."

There are five stages of Jane:

Just a Cinderella lass,
Men never seem to make a pass
When Jane Steps Out.

Sister says it's just a ramp,
That Grannie's teaching her to vamp
When Jane Steps Out.

Soon shapely limbs and roguish eyes
Cause no end of a surprise
When Jane Steps Out.

And clever sisters can be jealous
If they find they lose their fellahs
When Jane Steps Out.

And you can laugh and learn the art
By watching how she steals his heart
When Jane Steps Out.

So goes the ditty.

As one English critic wrote, "A sheer delight . . . of course there must be a fault somewhere—and I intend going again to see if I can find it!"

Census Costs 7 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The job of counting heads in Canada—the census undertaken every 10 years—is expected to cost about $7,000,000, an anticipated saving of $2,000,000 over the original estimate. Herbert Marshall, Dominion statistician, said yesterday new methods of collecting the figures and use of new machines are expected to make a big saving when work is completed about June, 1953.

Petes Down The Redmen In 5-2 C.O.B.L. Fray To Tie For Second Place

BELLEVILLE (Special)—Failure to support a magnificent pitching performance by Art Wright cost the Belleville Redmen a 5-2 C.O.B.L. game here last night and boosted the Peterborough Petes into a second-place tie with Kingston Monarchs. The hurling of Wright and Phil Clancy for the Petes featured a game that saw both teams kick the ball around when errors meant runs. But Wright, Redmen ace righthander, deserved a better fate.

He struck out 19 Peterborough batters, retiring the side on straight strikes on two occasions. He pitched hitless ball for four innings, allowing only four singles over the nine-inning route. He weakened in the ninth when he issued four of seven walks forcing in a run, but at that he retired the side with whiffs.

GOOD HURLING

Clancy won his game with fine clutch hurling. He turned back the Reds in the second after loading the bases with none out. In the fourth and eighth he retired the side with two Reds aboard, and struck out three in the ninth with a Red runner on third. Clancy issued no walks and whiffed five.

While the Redmen touched the Petes hurler for 10 safeties, one of them a triple by Tony Pettit for the only extra base hit of the game, they failed to come through in the clutches. They errored four costly times, all of the bobbles accounting for runs.

The Petes kicked the ball around six times but they were not costly with Clancy's clutch hurling pulling them out of the holes. Tony Pettitt, Red catcher, got the only R.B.I. of the game when his long right centrefield triple in the first inning drove home Fitzpatrick who had singled ahead of him. Pettitt scored the Reds' second and last run when he raced home on a passed ball.

SCORED EARLY

The Petes scored a run in the first on an error, a walk, a sacrifice and hit by pitcher. Their second came in the third on a sacrifice, a walk and another Redmen bobble.

The teams battled runless until the eighth with Wright doing a two-hit job, when Al Menzies' and Arn Dugan's singles combined with another Redmen wild throw to score a pair. Wright forced in the fifth tally in the ninth with four consecutive walks before he retired the side on strikes.

On the other side of the fielding ledger the Petes came through with two twin-killings to choke off threatening Red rallies.

Fitzpatrick and Red Carson led the Reds at the plate with three singles each. Pettitt tripled, Vern Goyer came through with a pair and Bush a lone single.

Arn Dugan rapped out two singles with Garvey and Menzies being the other Petes to connect safely with Wright's shots.

Four Canadians Battle To Semi-Finals

HELSINKI (CP) — Competitors and officials in the Canadian Olympic camp could be excused if they were a bit starry-eyed today.

Four Canadian runners went out on the Olympic Stadium track yesterday and battled their way into semi-finals. There was hope that Canada at last will get a place in the list of countries with point scores—event if 'way down.

Here is yesterday's record of the four runners:

1,500-metre preliminary heats (four qualifiers in each heat):

Bill Parnell, North Vancouver, placed fourth; time, 3:53.4. Heat won by Olow Aberg of Sweden in 3:51.0. Denis Johansson of Finland second in 3:51.2; Rolf Lamers, Germany, third in 3:52.4.

John Ross, Oakville, Ont., placed fourth; time, 3:55.2. Heat won by Werner Lueg of Germany in 3:52.0. Vaclav Cevona of Czechoslovakia second in 3:53.4; Audun Boysen of Norway third in 3:55.0.

400-metre preliminary heats, first round (first two in each heat qualifying for second-round heats):

Jim Lavery, Calgary, first in heat in 48.4 seconds. Beat Russia's Jurii Lituev by four-tenths second.

Jack Carroll, Verdun, Que., placed second; time, 48.0. Heat won by Arthur Wint of Jamaica in 47.3.

Second-round heats (three qualifiers):

Lavery placed second; time, 47.5. Heat won by Wint in 46.9.

Carroll placed third, time 47.7. Heat won by Mal Whitfield, United States, in 47.6. Hans Geister, Germany, second in 47.7.

Marlene Stewart Cracks Course Record

WINNIPEG (AP)—Marlene Stewart, Canadian women's Open and Close golf champion, yesterday cracked the women's course record at Niakwa Country Club here with a sizzling three-under-par 74.

Out in one-under-par 38, she came home in a two-under 36.

Playing in an exhibition foursome, the 18-year-old Fonthill golfer birdied four holes, parred 13 and took one over par on the 6,322-yard course. Women's par is 77 and men's 71.

Her partner, professional Les Beven of St. Charles Country Club, took a six-over-par 38-39—77, while home professional Harold Eidsvig shot a one-under-par 35-35—70.

June Baker, Manitoba women's Open champion, completed the foursome. Miss Baker had a 51-44—95.

Playing a low-ball, low-aggregate match, partners Stewart and Bevon won with a one-point edge.

The five-foot, 108-pound champion matched her personal low score in yesterday's play. Only a putt that rimmed the cup on the 18th green prevented her from carding a new low round.

Only once, on the 520-yard dog leg sixth, was Miss Stewart off the fairways. Her second shot from about two feet in the rough caught a trap after nicking the green. She blasted out, then rimmed the cup for a one-over-par six.

Miss Stewart left last night for Calgary where she will visit before leaving to defend her titles Aug. 7-16 in Edmonton.

Denies Richard In Bad Shape

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, last night described as "ridiculous" a report that Maurice Richard has an abdominal growth and may never play hockey again.

Richard now "looks better and feels better than he ever has in his life," said Selke, commenting on a report in the Hamilton News which attributed its information to a "reliable source."

The high-scoring right wing missed some 20 games last season when he was troubled by pains in the lower abdomen. The Canadiens sent him to Florida on a holiday and he returned to help the club beat Boston in the Stanley Cup semi-final playoffs.

Saskatoon Entry Finishes Fourth

HELSINKI (CP)—Bob Adams of Saskatoon, Canada's entry in the Olympic decathlon, today finished fourth in his heat in the 100 metres —first of the 10 events—to gain 650 points.

His point-score, awarded on a basis of times and distances in the various track and field events on the gruelling decathlon schedule, left him far behind the leader, Milton Campbell of the United States, who was timed in 10.7 seconds for 1,028 points.

Defending champion Bob Mathias of the U.S. ranked second, winning his heat in 10.9 seconds for 946 points.

Adams was tied for 22nd place among the 28 contestants.

U.S. Basketball Team Pastes Hungary 66-48

HELSINKI (AP)—The United States basketball team today started defence of its Olympic title by defeating Hungary 66-48 in a slow game.

The Americans took an 8-4 lead in the first three minutes and were never headed throughout the game.

At the half the U.S. led 37-23.

A fast-breaking Argentina team smothered the Phillipines' outclassed little scrappers 85-59. Argentina led at the half 44-30.

Canada meets Brazil later today in a qualification match. Canada placed ninth in the 1948 Olympics.

Reject Russian Protest Against U.S. Opponent

HAMEENLINA, Finland (AP)—An 11-man board of appeal decided last night to reject a Russian protest against a United States competitor in the swimming event of the Olympic modern pentathlon competition.

The jury announced Lieut. Fred Denman of the U.S. had "not obstructed the way of Russian Swimmer Aleksandrev Dekhaev" in the 300-metre free-style, fourth of the five events in the pentathlon.

The ruling left the United States in third place back of Hungary and Sweden.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

At first glance at the O.L.A. senior "A" standing, local fans are apt to get a bit of a shock. The Petes' Timbermen, Canadian champions, are nestling in third place now back of Mimico Mounties and Toronto Yorks. Hamilton is just a couple of games back in fourth slot, while St. Kitts and Owen Sound fight it out for next position, Fergus resting uncomfortably in the cellar. However, the Petes are just a game back of Yorks, and three games out of a first-place tie. A local win this e'en would tie Timbermen with Toronto for second place in the standing, two tilts back of the pace-setting Mounties. So, it's quite a scramble.

* * * * * *

Tonight's lacrosse attraction here, weather being right, has the Mounties vs. Timbermen at 8:45 in Miller Bowl. 'Twas a rugged encounter the other night in Mimico when Mounties beat Bob Thorpe's crew 10-5. However, this is another night and on other grounds. The Petes haven't dropped a decision on the home pitch yet this year and they don't expect to do so this p.m. Mimico Mounties have the legs this semester, being a strong young bunch with a sprinkling of top veterans. The team to beat for the marbles, we figure. But the Petes aren't champs for nothing. They should knock 'em off this time even if extended plenty in a hard-hitting scrap. It's a "natural".

Young Petes Doing Okay

Young Petes have a Lakeshore League ball game in Whitby on Saturday and they entertain Cobourg here Monday after supper. Their scedule is running out and they're playing winning baseball in recent weeks. Beat Colborne twice, Lindsay, Port Hope, and Cobourg once, and should have taken Whitby. Bowmanville as loop leaders have been stiff intermediate opposition for the local juniors, but the latter forced the Rose: to the wire in their last tussle. Cobourg has three ex-seniors aboard, Howie Dalton, Bob Crowe and Sonny Beckstead, so the kids rate credit in downing 'em by a 7-3 count on Wednesday of this week. They are deserving of more fan support at home.

* * * * * *

No senior baseball here this week, and we haven't heard of next week's setup yet. Seems a long time since Joe Stewart's Petes have played at home. Dropped a close one early this week in Kingston, and were listed for Thursday and Saturday night struggles in Belleville, one a postponement from earlier in the schedule. The club is carrying on and playing good ball now, despite recent losses of Bill Huntley and Junior Milne, who moved out of town. While the Petes are a bit thin on pitching—since Bill Edger's arm is bothering him and he looks like a fixture at first base—Lefty Dadson, Gunner Whitehill and Phil Clancy are available for slab service and should win their share of games. It's a small loop but a strong one.

Petes Cold Shoulder Reds

Beating the Redmen 5-2 in Bella Villa last p.m., the Petes climbed back into a second-place C.O.B.L. tie with Kingston Monarchs. Nifty clutch twirling by young Phil Clancy had much to do with the triumph as his mates booted six, though they helped on a couple of twin killings. But the youthful American righthander bore down plenty with Reds aboard to ease himself out of holes and limit the league leaders to two markers. Art Wright on the other mound was robbed of a win by miscues by his mates and their inability to clout in the clutches. Wright threw a four-hitter and fanned no less than 19 batters, yet still lost! Arn Dugan led the winners at bat with two for four, as Freddy Garvey and Al Menzies got the others. Fitzpatrick and Carson topped the losers.

* * * * * *

Lefty Doris came up with the iron-man pitching stunt at the Bowl last gloaming to hurl Seabrooke's into the men's softball lead with wins over Lakefield 7-3 and Revoy's 5-0. A swell double chore by the smart southpaw. His support generally was good and the East City bats bingled John Hinton of Lakefield and Earl Revoir of Revoy's in timely style for the triumphs. Skeeter O'Heron and Murray Byrne led the winner at bat in the opener, as Red Wasson got two of Lakefield's four hits. Nightcap saw Speed Curry having a large night at the plate, O'Heron, Jim McGrath and Bob Wyatt also clouting the apple for Red Sullivan's squad. Jack Mackness and Walt Fife led the losers, who were held to six hits. Next games are next Tuesday.

St. Kitts Club Leading Field In Point Total

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Eleven North American rowing championships will be decided here today as the third afternoon of competition at the four-day Royal Canadian Henley regatta gets under way on the Old Welland Canal.

The day's program, which also includes eight qualifying heats for tomorrow's races, is scheduled to begin at 3 p.m.

St. Catharines Rowing Club, hosts for this 70th regatta, yesterday earned a total of 44½ points to lead the record field in the grand aggregate for the Maple Leaf trophy, emblematic of regatta supremacy. Buffalo West Sides was second with 35 and the New York Athletic Club third with 34.

FINALS TO SIX CLUBS

St. Catharines gained one second and two thirds to pull up their point total. As it was, the six finals counting toward point competition were won by six different clubs.

Gabby Beaudry, formerly of Ottawa and now rowing under the Lachine Rowing Club's colors, provided one of the biggest upsets yesterday when he won the open quarter-mile-dash final from six United States scullers.

Beaudry finished a length in front of the U.S. dash champion, Rudy Jezek of the New York A.C., who held a deck-length lead over veteran dasher Joe Angyal, also of the New York A.C.

Two Brockville and St. Catharines lightweight crews battled in the junior 145-pound fours and the junior 135-pound fours. Both managed wins by a few yards over each other, St. Catharines taking the 145-pound event and Brockville coming back to capture the 135-pound race.

DON GUEST DUCKED

Don Guest of the Toronto Dons was a disappointment in the junior singles final won by Eugene Loveless of the New York A.C. Guest caught a crab on the sixth stroke and was left splashing in the muddy waters of the canal.

On the second afternoon of the 1951 regatta, brother Jack did the same thing in a driving finish of the open dash final. His plunge was taken in front of a packed grand stand.

Buffalo West Sides took the junior 155-pound four final in 7:23 over Hamilton and St. Catharines while Ottawa had an easy time of it in the junior fours. The eastern Ontario crew finished eight lengths in front of runner-up Buffalo with a Detroit boat club crew third.

Hal Sing and Bill Hammond gave Hamilton Leaders their win with a clean-cut victory over R. Alexander and W. Thornborough of Toronto Dons in the junior 140-pound doubles final. An Ecorse, Mich., entry finished third.

Out At The Kawartha

The 18-hole ladies' competition at the Kawartha Golf Club this week was low gross on the first nine, and was won by Mrs. Fraser Dunfield, who took the china. Mrs. R. Miller won a point with low net, and Mrs. Fred Reed got a point for second low net. Mrs. Dunfield also took a ball.

The nine-hole competition was low net and went to Mrs. Doreen McDougall for a point. Mrs. Muriel McGinnis won the china and Mrs. J. Clark won the ball.

Millers Trip Dunham In 10-11 Victory

COBOURG—Lyle Ball came to the rescue here in two ways for Baltimore Millers. First, Ball took over the pitching in the fourth frame, relieving starter Glen Crowe. Then, in the last inning, he doubled with two mates aboard to drive in the winning tally against Dunham Aces in an 11-10 victory.

Ball, who started the fourth, gave up only six hits, walked two and fanned 11 of the losers.

FIRST RACE TO STORK

The Stork, sailed by Jerry Cassell of Rochester, N.Y., yesterday won the first of three races for the George Cup, Lake Ontario's most coveted international sailing trophy. The defending champion, the Circle, handled by Reg Dixon of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto, placed second, 55 seconds behind the Stork. Circle won the trophy last year at Rochester to bring it to Canada for the first time since 1939. The second race will be run off in Toronto harbor later today.

Doris Pitches Seabrooke's To Double Victory As Club Takes Over First

Red Sullivan's colorful band of male softballers swung back into action at the East City Bowl, after 10 days of idleness, to defeat Lakefield Merchants 7-3, in the opener of Thursday's twin-bill. A large crowd saw the fighting teams square off. Lefty Doris took the hill and twirled his usual capable game, limiting the Junkin lads to four bingles, one a double by Red Wasson in the second; he struck out three and walked a pair. On the opposing mound, John Hinton toiled in noble style; but the power of Seabrooke's general attack over the route proved too strong a factor to overcome. John was tickled for eight safe bingles, including a double and triple by Skeet O'Heron, who drove in a pair of runs and a triple by Wyatt; he fanned eight and issued four passes.

Seabrooke's committed four miscues in the first when Lakefield tallied twice. They settled down nicely for the remainder to blank the homesters till the ninth, when Sullivan's thrown glove at a high pitch entitled Hinton to score, after his single; Umpire Payne called it. Meanwhile, the East City wreckers kept pecking away to pile up a steady winning margin on Hinton.

Leading hitters for Seabrooke's were O'Heron and Murray Byrne, two for three and four respectively; Byrne drove in three runs while Curry, Thompson, Wyatt, and Doris each connected once. For Lakefield, Red Wasson hit two safeties in four, while Cupoli and Henry copped the other two bingles. Fielding features were supplied by Neil Thompson, Gord Henry, Wyatt and Cam Wasson.

TOOK NIGHTCAP

Seabrooke Motors took their 11th win in 13 starts—one a tie—Thursday night at the Bowl when they whitewashed Revoy Motors 5-0 in the nightcap of the sparkling men's softball double-header.

Since the victors also triumphed over Lakefield in the opener, they are firmly ensconced in first place, three points ahead of the idle U.E.W. nine with 23 and 20 points respectively.

Lefty Doris pulled the iron-man stunt by twirling the afterpiece to complete a grand night's chore in the absence of Terry (Meal Ticket) Woods, his sidekick in the mound corps of the explosive and vitriolic East City crew. Woods is currently holidaying in the Maritimes, his native heath. Doris allowed six singles, fanned two and walked a single batter. Earl Revoir toed the slab for Revoys and twirled a fine game save for a wobbly fifth inning, when hits by Curry, Spencer, Thompson, Wyatt, McGrath, O'Heron, and Sullivan's fielder's choice, gave Seabrookes four runs to virtually hamstring the melon match there and then.

Leading hitters in the nightcap were Speed Curry with three safeties in five trips, Skeeter O'Heron likewise with an R.B.I. as well, and Bob Wyatt and Jim McGrath with two for four each; Neil Thompson doubled to send two runs across in the big fifth. Revoy's big stickers on a lean night were Jack Mackness and Walter Fife, each with two hits. Thompson's fielding proved a brilliant feature, while great catches by O'Heron, Sullivan, and the work of Walter Fife also made a hit with a big gallery.

Red Hot N.Y. Giants Hand Cardinals 9-5 Defeat

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Giants' two straight over the red-hot St. Louis Cardinals, along with Brooklyn's split of four games with their "cousins" from Cincinnati, has revived talk that the Giants have started their big push. Still 6½ games behind the Brooks in the National League, the Giants can draw new hope from the performance of Max Lanier. A disappointment in early spring, Lanier appears to be rounding into his old hot-weather form.

Lanier's six-hitter against his old St. Louis mates yesterday for a 9-5 decision was his fourth win in his last five games.

FOUR HOMERS COUNT

Bobby Thomson, Dave Williams, Sal Yvars and Jim Rhodes hit home runs in the Giants' 11-hit attack on loser Harry Brecheen and three others.

The Giants almost made up more ground but Brooklyn came back to shade Cincinnati 2-1 on Duke Snider's 11th-inning homer after the Reds had won the first half of a doubleheader, 3-2.

Snider's smash, the 100th homer of his big-league career, came off Frank Smith who took over after Ewell Blackwell was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the 10th. Rookie Ben Wade went all the way for Brooklyn with a four-hitter.

Bubba Church shut out the Dodgers until the seventh inning of the opener. Despite Rube Walker's run-scoring double in the seventh and Jackie Robinson's homer in the eighth, he went the route for his second win. Andy Seminick homered for the Reds.

Ed Mathews hit his 16th homer and later scored on Walker Cooper's double in Boston's 3-1 victory over Chicago Cubs. Sid Gordon also homered for the Braves off loser Turk Lown. The Cubs had 13 hits off Jim Wilson and Lew Burdette.

The Phillies and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

TRIBE BEATS YANKS

Talk of a New York Yankee runaway in the American League faded as Cleveland handed Tom Morgan a 4-2 loss. The win left the fourth-place Tribe 5½ games back of the Yanks.

Mike Garcia registered his 14th win with a seven-hitter. He had a shutout until the sixth when Yogi Berra's 21st homer tied the score. Homers by Joe Tipton and Dale Mitchell and a two-run single by Johnny Berardino off reliefer Ed Lopat accounted for the Cleveland scores.

With a chance to gain on the Yanks, both the runner-up Boston Red Sox and Washington fell down. Boston was shut out by Chicago's Lou Kretlow 3-0.

Walt Dropo continued his long-distance hitting for Detroit with a two-run tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning for a 4-2 edge over Washington. Bill Wight was the winner over Randy Gumpert.

St. Louis Browns ended their seven-game losing streak with a 4-3 win over Philadelphia Athletics on Bobby Young's sixth-inning homer. Ned Garver got the victory; Sam Zoldak suffered his fifth straight loss.

One Delegate Receives Permit

BERLIN (Reuters)—East German Communist authorities have issued a permit to only one of 5,000 Lutheran churchmen who sought to attend a Church conference in the west, due to open tomorrow.

Church officials said here today that Bishop Beste of Mecklenburg was the sole delegate to receive an inter-zone pass.

He alone will represent Communist-zone Lutherans at the Lutheran World Union convention opening in Hannover tomorrow.

The Church has protested to the East German government.

Officials said eastern delegates were told at their local Communist police stations that there were no forms available.

Church officials said the Communist move was an "arbitrary reprisal of the worst kind" designed to punish the Church for not supporting the Communist political system.

MODERN TRAVEL—Modern diesel-electric locomotives will go north into Labrador-Ungava as the railway line from Seven Islands, Que., to Knob Lake is built. Until now the airplane, inset, has been used to transport everything from buns to bulldozers ito the far-north iron-ore development project. The locomotives are just part of the 200,000 tons of freight which will cross the docks at Seven Islands, during the summer.

Canada's New Development

Ship First Ore Loads In '54

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

What makes up the $200,000,000 iron-ore development in Labrador-Ungava?

In the first place, more than 400,000,000 tons of ore is known to exist right in the centre of the peninsula.

That is enough to start mining, and to justify the $200,000,000 expenditure; but geologists feel sure it is only the beginning of what will be found later.

The known ore bodies straddle the boundary of Newfoundland's Labrador and Quebec's Ungava—or New Quebec—with one-third on the Labrador side and two-thirds on the Ungava side.

Digging the ore is a relatively simple mining operation. You don't need to sink shafts or tunnel underground. You just take off a light overburden of rocks and earth, which averages about seven feet deep, and dig out the ore.

SERIES OF PITS

Open-pit mining it is called. Small mountains will be dug away and their places taken by big holes; the ordinary surface of today will become a series of pits several hundred feet deep.

The problem, and the major expense, comes when you try to get the ore out of the centre of Labrador-Ungava and down to a shipping port.

For that job, a 360-mile railway, which is called the Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway, is being built almost due south from Knob Lake, in central Labrador-Ungava, to Seven Islands—Sept Iles—at the wide mouth of the St. Lawrence River. The railway will cost $100,000,000, and the ore-handling terminal at Seven Islands $18,000,000.

From Seven Islands, most of the ore will go by ship to Montreal, where it will be trans-shipped at a terminal to be built there. It will be loaded on canal boats or railway cars and go to its markets in the United States mid-west. Some of the ore probably will follow an Atlantic route to United States seaboard points or Britain.

Initially, 10,000,000 tons a year will be shipped, but if the St. Lawrence Seaway is built, it is planned to ship 20,000,000 tons. Given favorable transportation and favorable markets, the figure can be increased indefinitely.

CANADA'S NEEDS SMALL

There appears to be little market in Canada for the ore, until Canada has more population. Canadian steel mills consume 4,900,000 tons of ore a year, of which 4,700,000 tons is supplied by existing Canadian mines. The remining 200,000 tons would require only a few days of mining once production starts in Labrador-Ungava.

Due to cold winter weather, which would freeze the ore, mining will be confined to about six months of the year, but stockpiles will be built at Seven Islands to supply the nine-month navigation season.

About half the grading has been done for the railway and steel will be laid to mile 190, more than half-way, by the end of the year. The railway will carry its first ore in 1954.

It will be a modern railway in every way, on communications and equipment. Rails will weigh 132 pounds, heaviest in Canada. Four diesel-electric locomotive units, each unit 1,600 horsepower, will haul 125-car ore trains, each train weighing 14,000 tons.

The 13½-hour run from Knob Lake to Seven Islands will be first an easy climb, and then mostly down-grade for the last 150 miles.

It is probably the first present-day railway venture in Canada to be built without government assistance.

HUB OF MINING AREA

It is expected to be declared a "common carrier," and so will be available for all traffic that develops in Labrador-Ungava. As W. H. Durrell, general manager of Iron Ore Company, puts it:

"I see the northern terminus of our railroad as a point from which prospectors will radiate all over the vast territory of New Quebec and Labrador and locate and place in production minerals known to be there."

The ore-receiving, stockpiling and loading terminal at Seven Islands is a story in itself. N. D. Vernon, borrowed from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, says it will have the "best, biggest, fastest, most modern ore-handling facilities in the world."

The terminal is 2½ miles long and covers 525 acres. It will be able to put 8,000 tons of ore an hour into the ore-carrying ships.

It is a "hump" yard. Once the ore cars are pushed over the hump, they are in the hands of gravity, cables and men in control towers. They are virtually untouched by human hands until after their ore is dumped into a ship or into a stockpile, and they are moved to the pick-up point for empties.

CAREFUL DIRECTION

Analysis of the ore in each car will have preceded it by teleprinter from Knob Lake. The control-tower men will direct the movement of each car so the required blend of ore reaches each ship.

The dock for the project will be 2,200 feet long; 600 feet for a government dock; 800 feet of mooring space for ore ships waiting to be loaded and 800 feet for the ship being loaded.

Two ore-carrying ships, each 650 feet, each to carry 30,000 long tons, are being built in Britain to supplement present ore-carrying fleets.

Two hydro projects, each costing $5,000,000, will supply power—one at Menihek Lake, 30 miles south of Knob Lake, for mining operations; one at Marguerite River, 20 miles from Seven Islands, for operations at Seven Islands Each will develop something like 20,000 horsepower.

Should greater power projects be needed in the future, there is a potential 500,000 horsepower at Eton Canyon in the north, and another 1,500,000 horsepower at Hamilton River to the east.

HEAD DEVELOPMENT—Jules Timmins, left, of Montreal, is the driving force behind the development of iron ore in Labrador-Ungava. He consults with W. G. Durrell, general manager of Iron Ore Company of Canada, the company formed to handle the iron-ore concession.

Gregory Re-elected Chairman Of Board

SIMCOE (CP)—Francis R. Gregory of Leamington was re-elected chairman of the board of directors of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Association at a director's meeting here last night. He has served as chairman since 1949.

Mr. Gregory's re-election followed a stormy annual meeting in the Simcoe High School auditorium in the afternoon. About 1,000 growers from the tobacco belt jammed the hall and frequently interrupted the meeting with boos, cheers and heckling as the chairman employed 1,600 proxy votes, entrusted to him by members of the association, to pass amendments to association by-laws.

One amendment allows the buyers of the association to resign without penalty while the other permits buyer directors to cast a vote for the three grower directors, who sit on the price appraisal committee each fall to set the minimum average price.

Kingsville Planning Old Home Week

KINGSVILLE (CP)—Everyone is pitching in to make Kingsville's Old Home Week which starts tomorrow an outstanding community enterprise.

Few persons in this Essex county town of 2,500 haven't had a hand in preparing for the 100th anniversary of the establishment of a post office in Kingsville—in effect of the institution of Kingsville as a community.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce has compiled a list of 1,800 former Kingsville residents who have been invited back for the festivities. Churches are holding special homecoming services. There will be a back-to-school day at the Kingsville public school where everyone will meet to see how many school chums they can find.

Woman Has 18th Child

MILFORD, Mass. (AP)—Mrs. Charles W. Desper, 40, gave birth yesterday to her 18th child. Seventeen of the 18 are living, the oldest, a 23-year-old son, and the youngest, a 16-month-old daughter.

Hospital Wing Under Fire

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The chronic wing of Kitchener-Waterloo General Hospital came in for further criticism yesterday before a provincial government commission investigating the affairs of the 350-bed East Windsor Hospital for Incurables.

Mrs. Madeline Campbell, nursing supervisor at East Windsor, said she would be ashamed to work at the Kitchener-Waterloo hospital and that she didn't realize that "such a place" could exist.

Gordon Friesen, administrator of the Kitchener hospital, called earlier as a commission witness, criticized staff and dietary arrangements at East Windsor hospital. East Windsor Superintendent Dr. P. J. G. Morgan has directed analagous criticism at Kitchener-Waterloo hospital.

Mrs. Campbell gave detailed descriptions yesterday of staff organization at East Windsor hospital.

The inquiry is continuing.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CV. No. 21 — FRIDAY, JULY 25, 1952

MAIN STREET TOPICS

PAINTING LIBRARY

The Public Library is being spruced up this week by painters who are freshening the window frames and the trim of the building with white paint.

GRASSFIRE BREAKS OUT

City firemen shortly after 1:00 p.m. today used a booster pump to quell a grassfire that broke out in a field behind Winslow Motors, 16 Lansdowne Street. There was no property damage.

DIED IN CHICAGO

The death of Alan R. Trussler in Chicago is reported from Toronto by his mother. A letter to the Examiner recalled that he was a son of the late Joseph Trussler and Mrs. Trussler, Toronto, formerly of Peterborough.

BIG CROP PROSPECT

The prairies are heading for another bumper crop, but the reverse of a year or so ago even when the grain was nearer harvest than it is now, cautions against counting the bushels before they are in the granary. Wheat in Manitoba is ripening, and rye and barley in that province is being cut.

BRIDENORTH BUSES OPERATING

Bus service to and from Bridgenorth for commuters who work in Peterborough has not been discontinued during the two-week holiday shutdown of the city's major industries. The Omemee and Lakefield commuter schedules will be resumed when enough of the workers at C.G.E., Westclox, DeLaval and Outboard Marine return from holidays.

MAYBE IT'S WEEDS

Melville Johnston will be on CHEX Saturday at 12:15 p.m. That's the Federation of Agriculture broadcast. He is still flailing at the weeds, signifying that he is still giving farmers a going over to keep up and enlarge the business of weed killing. A lot of the weeds have reached the seed stage, and from their standpoint there is not much to worry about for 1952.

WINS DRIVING AWARD

In a safe driving competition in Ottawa last week, Constable John Conlin of the city police force won top honors in competition with policemen from other Ontario centres attending the Ontario Police Association Convention at the Chateau Laurier. Constable Conlin's safe driving skill won him a $25 bond donated by the police association. Constable Conlin, who is treasurer of the Kawartha Police Association and president Harold Andrew attended the four-day convention as delegates of the city police department.

*ALL ABOUT ART is taught by well-known district artist Oscar Schlienger to 39 students chosen from Peterborough schools. ## Kicked By Horse

A ten-year-old Toronto girl holidaying in the Kawarthas was injured Thursday when she fell off a horse while horseback riding and the animal kicked her after she fell to the ground. Nancy Herron, 320 Fairlawn Ave., is recovering in Civic Hospital from brush burns, a bruised kidney and a fractured rib. Her injuries are not considered to be serious and her condition is described as fair today.

Cavan Farmer Wins Top Award For Field Crop

Robert Armstrong of Cavan is the winner of this season's Norwood Fair standing field crop competition in registered Cornell wheat with a score of 96 points in a possible 100.

The awards of the judge, Wesley Wilson of Omemee, were relayed from Norwood today by G. A. Brethen, president of the Norwood Fair.

The scores of the registered Cornell growers were as follows in Mr. Wilson's book:

Robert Armstong, Cavan, 96; David Stewart, Otonabee, 95; Neil Whitfield, Fraserville, 94½; Alex Huston, Otonabee, 94; John Waterman, North Monaghan, 93½; Ralph E. Drummond, Otonabee, 93; Archie Davidson, Keene, 92½; Gerald Coughlin, Norwood R.R. No. 3, 92.

Mr. Armstrong is president of the Peterborough Crop Improvement Association, although his farm is over in Cavan township. To that extent the neighboring communities have succeeded in erasing the boundary line.

David Stewart is a son of Warden R. R. Stewart and is a comparative novice in experience and achievement. He is a 4-H Club member, the ultimate juniors in the county farm family.

Fall Wheat Averages Over 30 Bus.

1952 Crop Threshed Earlier Shows Good Quality

Peterborough district's fall wheat crop, now rolling to the local mills, is indicating an average of 30 to 40 bushels an acre. Yield is normal and quality is good.

Stewart Lockington, grain buyer at Quaker Oats, said today: "We have been buying local wheat since July 22, seven days earlier than last year. Eighty per cent of receipts so far is of good quality but there is a small percentage showing ball smut.

"One truck load from the Warkworth area carried wheat from two fields. The front half was exceptionally good, but smut in the rear half of the truck reduced the wheat to the feed level.

STORING LITTLE

"Farmers so far are storing only a small percentage of the crop. Our finding of moisture content from the fields threshed by combines is rather high, from 13.8 to 14.5 per cent. For No. 1, the maximum of content should be 14 per cent. Some farmers report that they are leaving the crop standing a little longer to let it dry more than it is."

Mr. Lockington said the truck receipts are from as far as Trenton on the southeast to the Lindsay district.

Storage cost at the local mills is one cent a bushel per month to the farmer who wishes to hold his grain for a while.

"We are recommending sale," Mr. Lockington said. "It is up to the farmer to make his own decision, but it seems advisable to sell now. There is no export outlet yet, and no indication yet that there will be."

Fall wheat price is steady at $1.85.

Ernest McWilliam at Dewart Milling roughly estimated the average volume from present evidence at 30 bushels or more.

A lot of grain has already been delivered to that mill on Simcoe St.

Car Sales, Trades Hit Peak In July, C. Of C. Reports

Car selling and trading in Peterborough is at a peak according to statistics released today by the local Chamber of Commerce. Records of motor vehicle ownership permit transfers show that 1,003 more transfers have been issued from May 1 to July 24 this year than the total issued for the three months, May, June and July in 1951.

The total for two months and to date in July is 3,579. July is in front with 1,311 transfers issued so far.

The Chamber of Commerce as local issue office of ownership permits and driving licences, has been kept busy issuing these transfers at a rate of approximately 75 a day during July.

There has also been an increase in the issuing of driving licences. At present the Chamber issues approximately 90 chauffeurs' and operators' licences during a week and 140 beginners' licences.

Much Hotter 16 Years Ago

So you think it's been hot the last week or so. Well, nobody's going to argue that point. But it's still a long way from a record.

Take 1936 for instance.

For two weeks—from July 6 to July 14—the day's highest temperature was never below 90. And five times the thermometer soared over 100 degrees.

A year later, once again the temperature recorded daily "highs" of 91 degrees or more.

Following is a comparison of three heatwaves in the month of July. The peak week for the month is taken each time:

| 1936 | 1937 | 1952 |
|---|---|---|
| 101 | 91 | 84 |
| 100 | 92 | 87 |
| 101 | 95 | 88 |
| 102 | 97 | 83 |
| 96 | 94 | 84 |
| 101 | 95 | 84 |
| 92 | 92 | 78 |

Ornamental Swimmers Bound For Niagara

Peterborough's much travelled Ornamental Swimming Club are leaving for Niagara Falls, New York, Saturday morning.

The ornamental swimmers will be the star attraction at a swimming show being staged in the falls city's Hyde Park Saturday night.

On Sunday, they will be taking part in a synchronised swimming clinic, and will show a group of interested swimmers from various parts of New York State how the various movements and intricate maneouvres are made in the water.

The clinic is in charge of Myron Hendric, recreation director of Niagara Falls, New York.

Car Plants Will Take Some Time To Resume Work

DETROIT (CP)—Automobile industry heads were reluctant today to predict when the industry would be back in production following the ending yesterday of the United States steel strike which began June 2.

More than 180,000 Detroit area automobile workers are jobless on account of the strike.

General Motors Corporation officials said they are "laying plans to get back into normal operation as fast as possible but there is no way at present of estimating how long it will take." It would be "several weeks" before depleted steel stocks were restored.

Some 126,000 G.M. workers are idle. Layoffs involving a further 10,500, announced yesterday, will be unaffected by the strike-ending, officials said.

Chrysler Corporation—with virtually all operations closed down and with more than 60,000 workers idle in the Detroit area—said there was little hope of resumption "until about three weeks after the steel mills are reopened."

The Ford Motor Company announced that some 35,000 employees will suffer curtailed work weeks until further notice.

City Playgrounds Hold Safety Week

Next week will be safety week in the Recreation Commission's eight supervised playgrounds.

For the first time this year, the commission is sponsoring an annual safety campaign in co-operation with the police department.

Constable Don Mackay, who is in charge of organizing school safety patrols is taking an active part in safety week activities and will be working closely with playground supervisors to put the campaign over successfully.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Constable Mackay will be visiting the various playgrounds and talking to the children on the importance of being careful to observe safety rules when crossing streets and intersections.

Tuesday morning he will be at Riverside Park first, then at Inverlea and in the afternoon, he will visit Fleming Place and Hamilton Park.

He will complete his rounds of the playgrounds on Wednesday, when he will be at Turner Park and All Saints' Tot Lot in the morning and at Braidwood and King Edward Park in the afternoon.

WATER SAFETY

Other features of safety week announced by Recreation Commission Director Alex Sinclair today will be instruction in water safety by swimming instructors and neighborhood night at Riverside Park, Thursday evening.

Parents have been invited to attend and the commission plans on organizing father-son volleyball and softball games.

Over 300 children have signed up with the commission for swimming lessons and Mr. Sinclair reports they are making good progress and will receive their tests the week after next.

39 Chosen Students Learn Painting From Ground Up

Basic concepts of art are being taught to 39 students from Peterborough schools by Oscar Schlienger, well-known district artist. The 10-lesson course is sponsored by The Examiner, which supplies the materials the students use. After the third lesson, each student receives a plywood box with oil paints, three brushes, palette, sketch pad, and other painter's needs.

When the course ends, the top three will be chosen from the group, probably by a Toronto artist. The original choosing of the group was done by Miss Gertrude Cox, art teacher for the city's schools.

Reason for the course, said H. L. Garner, general manager of The Examiner, is to give these students an opportunity to display what talent they may have. Children wishing to study art in the past—in this city—have not had too many opportunities to do so.

If the course is a success, and both Mr. Garner and Mr. Schlienger are sure it will be, it will be repeated in future years, with some changes.

FOUR GROUPS

The group of 39 is split into four separate classes, according to age groups. On Mondays, the students are 11 to 13, on Tuesdays, 13 to 14, on Wednesdays, 14, and on Thursdays, 15 to 17. Usually, two lessons are given each afternoon.

At Thursday afternoon's class, held at the south end of Riverside Park, six students in the 15-17 age group were using oil paint for the first time. Their previous exercises had been done with pencil.

Before the lesson started, Mr. Schlienger explained that he was trying to get across to the students as much of the basic rules of art as he could.

They must learn about tone, about light and shadow, about the patterns in a composition, how to observe and how to put in their compositions the larger masses, saving details for later work.

REAL TALENT

"In every class," said Mr. Schlienger, "there are at least two who show real talent. There are others who are just as eager to do well, but who haven't got it up here (tapping his head)."

"And if it's not in the head, how can it come from the hand?"

Students at their first lesson are given the theory of art, at their second they see their teacher demonstrate the methods used, and from the third lesson on, they practice what they have been told and what they have seen.

To the students, he reiterated the need for "good tools." The brushes they were using, he said, were the best, and must be looked after.

When the course ends—in two weeks—the best three students will be selected, and prizes for them will be in the form of additional lessons.

Fire Chiefs Hold Convention

Annual convention of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs will take place at the Admiral Beatty Hotel, St. John, N.B., Sept. 1-4. Fire Chief Allan H. Clark of Lakefield is secretary-treasurer.

The program covers a wide variety of subjects. One of them: "If Fire Chiefs should be members of the A. F. of L." by John P. Redmond, president of the International Association of Fire Fighters.

"Canadian Civil Defence" has been assigned to Major-General F. F. Worthington, C.B., Civil Defence Co-Ordinator for Canada.

There will be a forum on "The Fire Service and Civil Defence" conducted by Chief G. E. Huff, Brantford; Chief F. C. McGillivray of Halifax; Deputy Chief C. L. Blickstead, Montreal; and W. A. Walker, Provincial Fire Marshal, Vancouver.

Other topics are: "Arson and the Fireman," "A National Installation for Oil Burning Equipment" and various others including a discussion on Forest Fire Protection.

Cost Of Learning

A Lindsay man, Gordon Richard Stephens, took his wife out to teach her to drive Wednesday and ended up in hospital. He said his wife was driving the car along a county road toward Little Britain. When she went to turn along a township road, she put her foot on the brake pedal, but it slipped and hit the accelerator pedal. The car leaped ahead into the bank of a ditch. Mr. Stephens was thrown forward and his head smashed the windshield. He received a cut that took five stitches to close.

Frankford Child Struck By Car

TORONTO — (CP) — Helen Bonisteel, five, underwent brain surgery for a depressed fracture of the skull at the Toronto General hospital today.

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bonisteel, she was struck by a car near her home at Frankford yesterday. Brought to the Hospital for Sick Children she was later transferred to the Toronto General for the operation.

Frankford is five miles north of Trenton.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

T. B. Survey in Peterborough County Proposed For September By Federation of Agriculture . . . Harvesting of Wheat Rapidly Expanding in This District . . 4-H Club Members Relate Impressions of Trip to O.A.C.

Impressions of their experiences on their recent trip to the Ontario Agricultural College indicate the interest of 4-H Club members in agricultural practice, and generally new farming ideas.

Harold Lewis arranged for a group of two boys and two girls to recall on the air their observations. Those selected were: Dorothy Chambers, of Otonabee; Gaye Hancock, of Smith; Douglas Clark, of Smith, and Eddie Heffernan, of Asphodel.

Excerpts from their reports should indicate to rural parents that these outings afford educational value, including the importance of agriculture in the objective evidence of all the resources of science and study and experiment that are tremendous aids to modern farming.

The young folks, representatives of their company of 137 boys and girls of the Peterborough area, expressed their appreciation of the contributions which made the trip to O.A.C. and Leitchcroft Farms possible. The sponsors were the Kiwanis Club, Peterborough Hog Producers, the Federation of Agriculture, and the Ontario Department of Agriculture, represented by Frank C. Paterson and his assistant, Ken Best, and of course the O.A.C. itself.

The following is a composite of impressions from the 4-H speakers' scripts:

Feeding Of Swine

"I was specially interested in the swine. They showed us 9 months old gilts that were as big as lots of sows two years old on the average farm. They are fed on a formula, and it shows that good feeding and management pay . . . I have read about O.A.C. crops and livestock in farm magazines, as well as seeing pictures of them, but I never realised what they were like till I visited the farm and buildings . . . We arrived home safe, although a little tired, but I greatly enjoyed the trip . . ."

"We learned what the College is doing about one of the farmer's biggest problems, that is, how to cut and handle hay so as to lessen the time and labor, and reduce the loss of many valuable nutrients in our winter feed . . .

Hay Drying In Mow

"I was interested in the hay drying system. The hay was cut, raked and baled, and not left in the field over 48 hours, sometimes less. It was then put in the barn. By the use of air ducts at the bottom of the mow and a large fan, air was forced up through the hay for about eight to ten days. It was thoroughly dried, and only bleached slightly on the outside of the bale . . . It was green an inch or two inside. The advantages of this system are that the hay retains much of its high protein value, its color and leaves. It also lessens the danger of being spoiled in the fields by rain, because the hay can be put in before it is thoroughly dry."

Crop Rotations

"The head of the field husbandry department showed us around through two fields of test plots. In one, there was a three-year rotation of corn, soya beans and grass mixtures and in the other field a four-year rotation program is carried out. A different mixture of grass and legumes is sown in each pasture plot, and it is tested for growth, also in the barns where small groups of cattle are each fed only one kind of hay . . . New types of machines are produced in the agricultural engineering department. The invertor blueprints the machine, and then the original is turned out. The machine is tested on the college grounds. The students in the department also tear down engines, study them and rebuild them. Different types of tractors are studied and tested. Everything is done on an experimental basis."

+ + +

POWDER POST BEEETLES

Serious accidents occur each year when floors in homes, barns, and other buildings give way with people or equipment standing on them. Hundreds of buildings throughout the province are infested with post beetles, and can become dangerous, through the weakening of timbers, joists, sheathing and sub-floors, unless the beetles are checked.

The first evidence of powder post beetle injury may be the depositing of fine sawdust-like material beneath where the beetles are working or the appearance of small exit holes about the size of a pin head where the beetles emerged through the surface of the wood. As infestation continues, repeated generations of larvae burrow deeper into the solid wood, until its structural value is destroyed. Professor R. H. Ozburn, Department of Entomology, Ontario Agricultural College, points out that in many whitewashed buildings, the whitewash obscures the exit holes and other evidence of damage, making the detection of powder post beetle damage more difficult.

Sprays form the best insecticides, and should be applied at low pressure at the rate of one gallon per 70-100 square feet of surface area.

Additional information, including complete details about the sprays to be used, is supplied in Circular 140, obtainable at the office of the agricultural representative.

+ + +

PRESIDENT OF A.I.C.

Dr. R. O. Bibbey, Head of the Botany Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, is the new President of the Ontario Council of the Agricultural Institute of Canada.

President of the O.A.C. Branch of the A.I.C. for the past year, Dr. Bibbey is a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan and Iowa State College, from which he obtained his Ph.D. degree in 1946. Appointed Professor of Botany in the Botany Department, O.A.C., in 1948, Dr. Bibbey succeeded Dr. J. D. MacLachlan as Head of the Botany Department in 1950 when Dr. MacLachlan was appointed President of the O.A.C.

+ + +

EVENING MEETING

About 110 farmers of Peterborough and Durham attended the crop improvement meeting Tuesday evening at the farm of Gerald Anderson in South Monaghan. Four test acres of oats were discussed by Dr. Huntley of O.A.C. He also spoke at a later meeting in the farm yard where the program included a new agricultural film produced by Massey-Harris. Carlos Tamblyn, president of Durham Crop Improvement Association, was chairman. A vote of thanks to Dr. Huntley was moved by Robert Armstrong of Cavan, president of the Peterborough Association.

+ + +

COMBINES IN ACTION

Combines went into action this week in many of the wheat fields of Peterborough district. Some farmers were waiting until next week for further drying of the grain.

Numerous fields that were cut with binders are in stook. The crop appears to be well up to the average with little lodging.

Oat fields are taking on harvest color these days. Generally the spring grain appears to be light in yield.

Recent rains have stirred new vigor in corn for ensilage in this district, and is showing improved promise of satisfactory volume.

+ + +

COUNTY TB SURVEY

Arrangements for a TB survey in Peterborough County in September will be discussed by the Federation of Agriculture next Wednesday night.

Harold Lewis, Federation fieldman, said yesterday that he understood that the proposed survey might require the entire month to make it complete.

"This will be an opportunity for every person in the county to be examined free, as is done in the factories of the city," Mr. Lewis said. "Naturally, the Federation is undertaking this survey in the hope that no farmer will pass up the opportunity indicated by this examination."

"Its value has been demonstrated in Peterborough city and elsewhere, and we believe that the rural community will be just as responsive. Examination shows whether the person is free of tuberculosis. There is nothing to be gained by avoiding it. If any person shows a sign of TB, he or she should be most interested in having the discovery made, so that action can be taken at once.

"The survey is one means, and an important one, in the continuing effort to wipe out this disease. There will be further announcement if the plan is proceeded with."

+ + +

HASTINGS JUNIOR QUEEN

Miss Marilyn Parks was chosen as Hastings County Junior Queen on her all-round activity and ability in Junior Work at Tweed on July 18. She was presented with a silver trophy by Don Martin, president of the Hastings County Junior Farmers' Association, as one of the events of the annual field day.

+ + +

WHEATLAND DAY

The annual Wheatland Day is to be held this year on July 31 at the Rural Youth and Agricultural Centre at Kohler, three miles south of Cayuga, under the joint sponsorship of the Ontario Agricultural College, the Ontario Crop Improvement Association, and the Haldimand County Crop Improvement Association.

The morning program, which gets under way at 10 o'clock, will feature a mammoth machinery display, and demonstration of irrigation, weed spraying, and grain cleaning. The formal program begins in the afternoon, when a panel of outstanding authorities will discuss "Highlights of Wheat Production" following the opening ceremonies conducted by W. H. Waddell, Wheat Specialist at the O.A.C. Guest speaker of the afternoon will be Dr. R. K. Larmour, Chief Cereal Chemist, Maple Leaf Milling Company.

+ + +

CROP IMPROVEMENT BOOKLET

Ontario farmers wanting information on crop production will find a useful reference book in the recently issued booklet giving the Addresses and Proceedings of the 1952 Convention of the Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association.

Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, in the foreword says: "This booklet gives a permanent record of information which is valuable to Ontario farmers. I commend it to them as a source for ideas which, when carried into practice, will assist them in improving their soils and crops."

Nearly 50 addresses given at the convention are reproduced in this publication and they cover a wide variety of subjects. Two leading contributors are American experts, Dr. W. M. Myers and Prof. Henry Giese with their articles on Grassland and Farm Buildings respectively.

Copies are now available at F. C. Paterson's office.

Average Wheat Yields In Ont. Corn Thriving

Grain crops in Bruce county will be about 2/3 of last year's yield . . . Lambton reports fall wheat averaging 35 to 55 bushels an acre in the weekly review of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Grey: "The permanent board of the Grey-Bruce Stock Co-Operative were elected last week at a meeting of 150 farmers at Wiarton. They are planning a sale of commercial cattle Oct. 2. Their yards provide accommodation for 73 car loads of cattle."

Rains have improved the prospects for the later phases of the harvest. Many farmers were cutting grain with binders last week. Since then combines have come into action.

In Middlesex winter barley went as high as 65 bus. an acre. The wheat yield in that county is generally average. A similar estimate comes from Northumberland. Their hay crop is reported excellent.

Brant says pullets are beginning to lay, and improved price of eggs is a grateful change to producers. "Yields of wheat and rye are better than average."

Army worm is doing extensive damage in Downie township, Perth county. A normal flow of live stock is going to market in Simcoe.

Wheat is a "very light crop" in Lennox-Addington . . . Grenville finds some farmers replacing grade cattle with purebreds . . . In Dundas farmers say that hay has been a poor crop, but its quality was never better. And in Stormont: "Even timothy at this late date is going into the barns in good condition."

Corn silage should be an excellent crop in Lanark. Spring grains are generally light throughout Ontario . . . Some of the wheat fields in Victoria "are thin".

RIPE FOR CUTTING—Fall wheat in the Peterborough district is receiving full attention by farmers. By now most of the Peterborough county farmers are cutting their wheat fields, and allowing it to dry thoroughly before threshing. In fact several farmers have started to thresh. Hazel McIntosh, Scott's Corners, looks over some of her dad's wheat which was cut on their family farm in North Monaghan this week.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Haldimand Township School Wins 4th Forestry Prize

For the fourth time since 1945, S.S. No. 12 in Haldimand Township, Northumberland, has won the $50 first prize in the school forestry competition sponsored by the Ontario Horticultural Association.

Their first award was in 1945, when the competition was begun. "No. 12" headed the provincial rural schools again in 1946 and 1949, and returned to the top this year. Their prize money has been spent on more land for their forestry project. Mrs. I. B. Nelson is teacher.

Second money this year went to U.S.S. No. 4, Collingwood and Edphrasia in Grey. In third place was S.S. No. 12-14, Thurlow Township, Hastings County.

Ninety-three schools took part in the competition this year.

New Classes For Plowmen At International Match

Several new classes, a revised layout for the "Tented City" and an excellent site, all combine to give promise of an even bigger and better International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Demonstration in 1952, so states, F. A. Lashley, the secretary-manager of the Ontario Plowmen's Association who sponsor this event.

With headquarters located on Carp Airport, a few miles from Ottawa, the local committee is working hard at the job of getting everything ready for the many guests who will visit the "International" in the week of October 7th.

Of the new classes which have been added to the prize list this year, possibly the "Mayor's Class" is receiving most public attention. Started by a challenge from Mayor Charlotte Whitton to the mayors of Ontario, this has developed to a full-fledged event which will be held on the afternoon of October 8, immediately following the official opening. Already the challenge has been taken up by Mayor Lamport of Toronto, Mayor Smith of Woodstock and Mayor MacKenzie of Beaverton. The latter two officials are both ladies but undoubtedly some more of the Ontario men holding this office will come forward to challenge the supremacy of the ladies at the art of plowing. The winner will receive a challenge cup which is being presented by J. D. Thomas, honorary president of the Ontario Conservation Association.

Two new classes for visitors — one for horse and the other for tractor plowing have been added to this year's list. These classes will be open only to plowmen from outside the Province of Ontario and it is expected there will be a number of American plowmen on hand to participate, in addition to competitors from other provinces.

The Junior Section

Another change in the prize list is to be found in the junior section. A tractor class, open to teams of two students from secondary schools throughout Ontario will replace what has been known as the Inter-County horse plowing class for juniors.

In addition to the new classes, the "Tented City" will have a "new look" this year. Instead of two streets as has been the case in the past there will be three streets with six rows of tents for exhibitors and caterers. This will make for shorter streets and a more compact layout. At the same time the Association is attempting to obtain a layout which will be advantageous to all concerned. As a result, they have set the deadline of September 6th for receiving applications for space. All who are planning to have an exhibit or to cater at the match should make their applications for space before that date to F. A. Lashley, secretary-manager, Ontario Plowmen's Association, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Cost-Of-Living Hitting Circuses Hard

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Running 15,000 miles across North America in a season, a circus probably can gauge current conditions as well as any business.

One of the biggest travelling shows hit Vancouver recently and reported: Gates off 35 per cent from 1951; operating costs up 33 1-3 per cent.

In 1946 this circus, Clyde Beatty's show, grossed $1,000,000, its all-time high. Last year it grossed $750,000.

"This year," says the circus' auditor, "high cost-of-living, high home rentals in the U.S. and the competition in election year will cut that by 35 per cent."

COSTS UP

Salaries for performers, food and repair costs are all up. Top performers under the Big Top get $100 to $350 a week for the 30-week season. Laborers get $25 a week. The circus gives them lodging, food and medical care free.

A circus needs top executives just as any big business. Besides an auditor, executives include the men who sell the tickets, manage the freaks, run the electrical plant and feed the employees and animals. To survive, circuses must be run with clock-like precision.

There is no drop in the elephant or tiger market. A good "pach" or "cat" is worth $5,000.

The lion market is glutted, though. The king of beasts is worth only $250.

Seven Widows Get Insurance

WINNIPEG (CP)—Widows of all seven victims of Monday's Manitoba Government Air Service plane crash will receive insurance which covers all government employees, a provincial spokesman said yesterday.

This is apart from workmen's compensation which covered all seven aboard the Norseman when it crashed 200 miles north of Winnipeg.

Widows of the two engineers—John G. Horsburgh and Arthur G. Hanson—will receive $20,000 each, while widows of the other five civil servants will receive $10,000 each.

Members of the Compensation Board said each of the widows will receive $50 a month for life and $12 a month for each child under 16 years.

All seven bodies have been removed from the wreckage and carried by helicopter and plane to Lac du Bonnet.

Recruiting Slow

OTTAWA (CP) — The armed forces are having a hard time reaching the 100,000-mark in manpower. The Defence Department announced yesterday that the overall strength at the end of June was 98,359, a net gain of only 500 men in the month, lowest of the year.

Howe Sails For Arctic

QUEBEC (CP)—The supply ship C. D. Howe passed Quebec yesterday as it resumed its annual Arctic patrol, interrupted earlier this month when a bow plate was damaged by icebergs off Labrador. She is almost a month late on her 22,000-mile voyage and will cut 25 days and 21 ports of call off her schedule.

Mrs. Laura Tilley Dies

32 Witnesses Ask Power Plant

OGDENSBURG, N.Y. (AP)—Thirty-two witnesses from northern New York yesterday urged the International Joint Commission to give New York state and the province of Ontario permission to build a big power plant on the St Lawrence River.

Representatives of dairymen stressed the need of farmers for additional power and industrial spokesmen said the project would bring new business to the area.

There was no testimony in opposition to the project.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the chairman of the United States section indicated he was optimistic that a plan could be worked out for construction of the power dam without further raising the high water level of Lake Ontario.

The proposed power dam would be built across the St. Lawrence between Massena, N.Y., and Cornwall, Ont.

Union Cancels Pullman Strike

CHICAGO (CP)—A threatened strike against the Pullman Company, which had been called for July 29 and would have affected major U.S. railroads, was cancelled yesterday.

The Pullman Company and the Order of Railway Conductors announced settlement of their wage dispute and cancellation of the walkout.

Pullman operates sleeping cars on U.S. railroads, and also on international runs of Canadian railways. The strike would have affected runs across the Canada-U.S. border.

A union spokesman said the settlement provided a 12½-cent hourly increase giving Pullman employees a boost of $26.25 a month. Earnings before the increase range from $1.53 an hour to a minimum of $1.69.

Gets Damages Of $18,358

TORONTO (CP) — Woodrow Hewitt of Brockville yesterday was awarded damages of $18,358 for injuries, including the loss of one leg, in a traffic accident near Brockville Dec. 26, 1950.

Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan, giving written judgment at Osgoode Hall, said Hewitt suffered "shocking injuries" to his legs and skull when the truck he was driving crashed into the rear of a car owned by Douglas Doxtator, of Point Anne, parked near the highway. Hewitt was held 25 per cent negligent and awarded 75 per cent of his total damages of $24,447.

Mr. Justice McLennan said Hewitt's loss of wages to the date of trial amounted to $2,900 and that he is permanently disabled.

"COOL CONTROL"

THE STANCE

1-Square Stance

Balance and control are 'musts.' There are three basic stances — first, the Square Stance, as above. This stance requires both feet to be placed square to the intended line of flight.

2—Open Stance

All stances require the club to be soled directly back of the ball so that the bottom of the club sits evenly on the turf. If toe of club sticks up, you are too far away. If toe is down, you are too close. In Open Stance, left foot is drawn back from line of flight, and body is turned slightly toward left. Use when slice or fade is desired.

3—Closed Stance

Opposite from Open Stance. Draw right foot back from line of flight. Use when hook from right to left is required. Recommended for driving because of overspin imparted to ball when hit.

It's control that counts, in golf as in every sport — control which brings the balance, the comfort and the extra quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Bishop And Wife Killed In B.C. Accident

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—Rt. Rev. J. B. Gibson, 72-year-old Anglican bishop of Caledonia, and his wife were killed in an automobile accident near here yesterday.

Miss Eileen Gibson, their daughter, and Rev. S. R. Deacon, a family friend and retired missionary, were injured.

The four had just left Prince Rupert for a holiday at the Gibsons' summer home at Kitwanga, 120 miles east of here, when their car brushed a truck heading in the same direction and swerved into a 20-foot ditch. The driver of the truck was not hurt.

Born at Armagh, Northern Ireland, Bishop Gibson entered the church missionary society and emigrated to Saskatchewan in 1906. He was ordained a priest in 1910 and his first parish was St. Cuthbert's at Perdue, Sask.

In 1920 he was appointed to Anyox in northern British Columbia. He came to St. Andrew's Cathedral here as rector in 1928 and was appointed dean the following year. He was elected Bishop of Caledonia June 13, 1945, upon the death of Bishop G. A. Rix.

Jackson Wins Dismissal Holdup Charge

TORONTO.—A charge against Joseph Wilfred Jackson, one of three Jacksons held in connection with a series of bank robberies, was dismissed for lack of evidence at a preliminary hearing Thursday.

However, he must stand trial in the fall for the armed robbery of another bank.

Jackson, 31, alias Kenneth Wilson, was freed on a charge that he, Edwin Alonzo Boyd and Steve Suchan, robbed the Kingston Rd. branch of the Bank of Toronto on Jan. 25 last of about $10,000.

Boyd and Suchan were committed for trial.

Boyd, Suchan, Leonard Jackson and William Russell Jackson were committed for trial on charges of armed robbery of the Bank of Toronto branch at Boustead and Roncesvalles on Nov. 20, 1951.

Joseph and William Russell Jackson, brothers, are not related to Leonard Jackson.

Suchan and Leonard Jackson are expected to appear next week for preliminary hearing on charges that they murdered Sgt. of Dets. Edmund Tong and attempted to murder Det.-Sgt. Roy Perry.

Joseph Jackson was committed with Edwin Boyd and Allister Gibson to stand trial for the $24,000 armed robbery of the College-Manning branch of the Bank of Montreal on March 11.

Two Glamor Girls Do Scene In Bathtub

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Riddle: What's better than a glamor girl in a bathtub? Answer: Two of 'em.

Rhonda Fleming and Jan Sterling were reported double-dipping for an epic called "Pony Express" at Paramount.

On the set, the tubs were emptier than a politician's promise. A guide found the film company on a western street.

Red-haired Rhonda explained how the big scene will be filmed.

COVERED CUTIES

"I'll be covered by a strapless bathing suit that has been dyed flesh color," she reported. "At least I think I'll be covered. The suit was shrunk since the dye job. See?" It resembled a pocket-sized magazine.

Jan Sterling said she also will wear a flesh-colored swim suit. She said she was willing to discard it for realism's sake, but that the studio wouldn't let her.

Director Jerry Hopper told why movie makers dote on bathtub scenes.

"I guess it's because audiences enjoy them," he replied. "People seem to think they're going to see more exposed flesh than they're supposed to."

The Fleming-Sterling scene takes place in a bathhouse in early day Sacramento, before hotels had plumbing. Hopper said he had to order extra-deep tubs since the pioneers didn't have soap suds to keep bathing beauties within censorship limits. "The water will have to cover the cleavage," he remarked academically.

Hilda Houghton Bride Of George Foster

A pretty wedding took place in St. George's Anglican Church on Monday of this week as Hilda Houghton became the bride of Mr. George Birkett Foster. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Moore of Port Hope Anglican Church.

The bride is daughter of Mrs. Houghton and the late Mr. John Houghton of Peterborough. The groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Foster of Fleetwood, England.

Wedding attendants were Mrs. A. Corkery of Lakefield and Mrs. Austin Worr of Peterborough as bridesmaids, Mr. Austin Worr as groomsman and George Houghton, brother of the bride, and Thomas Brooks as ushers.

The bride chose a gown of white net over satin with a jacket of Chantilly lace finished with long sleeves and a Queen Anne collar. The bouffant skirt of double net fell to floor length. She wore an illusion shoulder veil caught to a becoming headdress and her bouquet was of roses and sweet peas in the shape of a horseshoe. Her attendants were in pastel blue frocks of net over satin and they wore crown headdresses to match. Each carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas similar to the bride's.

The reception was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's mother, 657 Orpington Road. Mrs. Houghton received, wearing navy flowered silk and a white hat and accessories and a corsage of red roses and sweet peas.

Leaving later on a wedding trip to points in the United States the bride was wearing a dress of navy linen with white accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster will live at 657 Orpington Road on their return.

National Girl Guide Camp Near Ottawa Great Success

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—The largest national Girl Guide camp ever held in Canada is described as a "huge success."

The 12-day camp, which attracted 1,200 Girl Guides between the ages of 13 and 16 to the Connaught Rifle Ranges near Ottawa for a stint at living under canvas, closes today and the girls will board trains for their homes across Canada.

Mrs. D. E. S. Wishart of Toronto, Chief Commissioner for Canada, said the camp was a bigger success than anyone had hoped.

"Every last one of those girls would love to spend another two weeks here," she said. "They have kept on the go so much that they haven't had time to be lonesome.

"The purpose of the camp was to teach the girls a few points in citizenship and to think as Canadians and not of any particular province.

PURPOSE ACHIEVED

"We didn't have to shove it down their throats. The girls camped with other girls from every province and our purpose was achieved."

The 26 international Guides from the United States, the Dutch East Indies, Jamaica, Bermuda, Britain, Guadaloupe and St. Pierre-Miquelon who were guests of the Canadian girls will remain in Ottawa for about a week in private homes.

At the closing ceremony last night, Mrs. Wishart presented Jean Wilde of Ottawa with the Silver Cross for gallantry for her quick action last October in jumping into a milk wagon to halt a runaway horse and save several children from being trampled.

What's Right?

You meet a friend and stop to have coffee or a soda together and the friend picks up the check for both of you.

WRONG: Insist that you pay for your own part of the check.

RIGHT: Say that you enjoyed the coffee—and let it go at that.

TASTY FISH

Save Your Heart

By observing a few DONT'S, the slightest impaired heart may be helped in carrying on its important job safely. DON'T run upstairs; walk and take the trip easily. DON'T fail to take at least ten minutes complete relaxation twice a day. DON'T run for trains or buses. DON'T allow the weight to increase beyond normal, DON'T get over excited or angry. DON'T worry about the heart—just treat it fairly and give it a chance.

GATHER IT EARLY

Then they carry the aromatic flowers in baskets to the essential oil factory where flower oils are extracted for use in all types of perfume.

Teacher Meets Descendant Of First Alta. Missionary

LONDON (CP)—An unexpected experience came to exchange teacher Elsie Luyter of Medicine Hat, Alta., during a year's teaching in a county primary school at Broadstone, Dorset.

Miss Luyter was invited to meet Mrs. H. Edmunds of Swanage, Dorset, granddaughter of Medicine Hat's first missionary, born in the southern Alberta town in 1886.

The Canadian teacher spent an interesting day listening to tales of early days in Medicine Hat. Mrs. Edmunds also recalled her nursing training days in Montreal and Victoria.

Miss Luyter was presented to Queen Mother Elizabeth at a garden party given recently for exchange teachers from five Commonwealth countries and the United States. She was one of more than 50 Canadians at the party, at historic Lambeth Palace, home of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

All present had spent a year in Britain and were scheduled to return home—unless they preferred to remain in Britain. Miss Luyter said she had had "such a wonderful time" she wanted to stay. But she had been given a promotion that was hard to turn down, so she is returning to Canada.

Speaking of Britain, Miss Luyter said the thing that surprised her most was the smallness of everything. "Even the Thames is small compared to the South Saskatchewan," she said with a grin.

A Good Lunch Important Too

Next to a good breakfast, nutritionists say that a good lunch is all-important for health.

Many workers these days find home-made lunches practical because they may be eaten out-of-doors if the weather is good and there's a park or grassy spot within walking distance of work.

Sandwiches can be made the night before and placed in the refrigerator. Peanut butter with banada, minced ham and pickle, are just two of many good sandwich fillings.

A couple of crisp pieces of celery, carrot curls, one or two radishes, complete the "main" course.

For dessert, fill a small jar with fresh berries, or take an orange or banana.

Here is a recipe for old-fashioned "teeny" cookies:

Ingredients: three-quarters cup sifted pastry flour; one-eighth teaspoon salt; one-eighth teaspoon baking-soda; one teaspoon baking-powder; three-eighths cup baking bran; one-quarter cup chopped nuts; three-quarter cup rolled oats; one-half cup shortening; one-half cup brown sugar; one egg slightly beaten.

Sift flour, salt, baking-soda, baking-powder. Add bran, chopped nuts and rolled oats. Blend well. Add shortening. Blend with fingers until mixture is crumbly. Combine sugar and lightly beaten egg. Beat until fluffy. Blend two mixtures. Chill batter.

Roll pieces of cookie dough into small round balls and place on oiled cookie-sheet. Press flat with fork. Bake in moderate oven. Yield: 48 small cookies.

WAX PROTECTS LUGGAGE

Vacationers who want to scuff-proof their cosmetic cases, beauty carreyettes, kits and other leather luggage can benefit from this timely tip. Wax your leather cases with a creamy leather dressing, which keeps luggage supple, and "bruise"-resistant.

This protective coat makes luggage more resistant to the slamming and banging of travel. All that's required is a thin coat of wax applied with a cloth. Rub wax on a small area at a time, and polish until you work up a rull gleam.

CHOOSE YOUR COLOR

If a piece of furniture is light in color, it will stand out best against a dark wall; but if the furniture is dark, the background color should be light.

APSLEY (ENS).—On Sunday a Pioneer Memorial Thanksgiving Service was held at St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Chandos, in connection with the 75th anniversary of this church. DOROTHY DIX

Find Your Own Friends Advice To 14-Year-Old Girl

DEAR MISS DIX: I have an older sister who is 16; I am 14. She is very popular and when anything goes on in town, she is included. I am not! I'm considered "too young," but actually I feel more like 18 than 14. I look older too. I have a very nice boy friend who is 18, and when he was here everyone paid more attention to me. Now, however, he is in Korea and I am again left out of everything.

E. G. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Where are all the youngsters your own age? There's no need for you to go tagging after big sister and trying to crash her dates. Make some of your own, and get into activities with your own gang. Two years seems like a very short time, but when it's the difference between age 16 and age 14 it almost goes over to another generation—or so the 16-year-old thinks. Try looking at it from another angle. Pick out some 12-year-old of your acquaintance. If she were your sister, would you want her included in all your expeditions? Of course not; you'd be horrified at the idea of having such a child tag along. Your sister is entitled to her own friends, although it would be very nice if she invited you to her gatherings occasionally. For the most part, however, your friends should be of your age and school group, not your sister's.

✧ ✧ ✧

PLEASE, SIGN NAMES!

DEAR MISS DIX: In writing to you is it necessary to sign a correct name?

M. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is very impolite to refuse to sign any letter, whether to me or anyone else. As I remind my readers quite often, real names are never used in letters that appear in the column, but it is nice to know who sent them. Furthermore, sometimes a problem arises that cannot be answered here, and if I know the sender's name and address a personal reply may clear things up. So, please sign your name and address.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a fairly intelligent young man of 28, in love with a young woman who seems to take a special delight in provoking me. At first I decided this was a sign of love and was willing to endure it in the hope that things might turn out better. Unfortunately, they have gotten worse and she treats me like a discarded shoe. I know she is interested in me, but a relationship like this doesn't appeal to me.

BILL S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your young lady is trying to impress you with her superiority in the most childish, and usual, manner. By belittling you, she concludes that she is automatically elevating herself in your eyes, as well as in her own. This condition definitely will not improve, but will become much worse with marriage. Need I say more?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: At 29, I am a high school teacher, and have become very much interested in one of my pupils—a boy of 16. He comes to see me every chance he gets, so I conclude he is interested in me, too. It would be hard for me to stop seeing him, but do you advise such a course?

ANXIOUS.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are doing a most foolhardy thing, both from your own standpoint and from the boy's. No 16-year-old boy could be seriously interested in a woman almost twice his age. His feeling toward you is simply a form of schoolboy crush and will inevitably pass. Better treat it in the same way or serious trouble is in store for you. If knowledge of your attachment reaches the wrong quarters, it might mean the loss of your job.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been going with a nice boy but my mother does not approve of him as she claims he drinks too much. Actually, he doesn't take more than four or five drinks when he is with me. Because my father was a heavy drinker, mother has the same idea about any man who takes a drink.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Haven't you sense enough to profit from experience—even if the experience is that of someone else? Your mother is absolutely correct in her warnings. Four or five drinks is much too much for a young man to take, in fact, even one drink can often be too much. If you don't want to store up misery for yourself, follow mom's advice and let the young man go.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Since my mother-in-law died six months ago, my husband, who is in his forties, has been so grief stricken that he is losing all interest in his own home and family. I've never seen a situation like this before. He is acting almost childishly, and doesn't want us to have any pleasure in the house at all. He feels it's being disloyal to his mother's memory.

K. N.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: While grief over a parent's death is certainly understandable, your husband's attitude seems to verge on a guilt complex. Does he feel that perhaps he didn't do enough for his mother while she was alive? If he continues as he is now, he may become mentally ill, and I strongly advise you to have him see either a trusted physician or a minister. Either one could put his mind at rest and end the grief that is apparently due more to his own shortcomings than to the actual loss of his mother.

Plain Soda Paste Relieves "Cooked" Skin

Don't wait until the burn in your sunburn reaches a crisis before you start allaying its fiery sting.

Application of a wet soda paste—plain cooking soda will do as well as any — will alleviate a burn. Such a p[illegible] made by mixing enough soda with water to make a thin covering that should be spread over any "cooked" skin area.

As the heat from the skin dries the paste, re-moisten it again and again. This wet mixture, which although messy to apply, will be effective in taking the sting out of a burn and will help to arrest its burning action.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

More Vitamins Now In Bread To Boost Family Health

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Homemakers soon will be assured of purchasing the best bread simply by reading the bread wrapper.

Regulations concerning bread manfacture were approved recently by the National Council of the Baking Industry. Effective Jan. 1, 1953, major ingredients of a loaf will be required to be listed on the wrapper.

The Canadian Association of Consumers is pleased. For the last three years the 13,000-member organization has campaigned for improved bread standards.

Now the consumer has "a sporting chance" of knowing what kind of a loaf she is buying the C.A.C., says President Mrs. W. R. Walton Jr., of Oakville.

"Now it is up to the woman to read this information and to direct her purchasing to the type of loaf which will be best for the health of her family."

OTHER COUNTS

Canada-approved Vitamin B flour will be allowed, and a standard has been set for whole wheat bread which must contain 60 per cent or more whole wheat. Brown containing less must be classed as "colored" bread.

One of the regulations permits the baking industry to use "enriched" flour. Mrs. Walton said that the public should be aware that by the term "enriched" is meant a white flour from which natural vitamins have been milled and which are being replaced for the most part by synthetic vitamins.

"We in C.A.C. have always maintained that the natural vitamin is best and that it is a pity that consumers in the United States and Canada have encouraged use of a white flour which has had most of the vitamins milled out of it and that now, in the interest of a so-called 'improved' loaf it is necessary to put them back synthetically."

Mrs. Walton said that the original vitamins however might be obtained in the Canada-approved Vitamin B flower and the white and whole wheat bread made from it. She added that the Canada-approved Vitamin B flour had almost gone off the market because of the lack of consumer acceptance and the antipathy by millers and bakers to manufacture it.

"It did not receive the promotion by the industry that the other types of bread did and consequently consumers were not stimulated to buy it, she said.

"And when the public does not buy or ask for a certain product the manufacturer certainly is not going to produce it."

FROSTY GLASSES

A friend passes on her family recipe for lemon syrup, an excellent cold drink these hot-weather days.

Ingredients: Five pounds sugar; one ounce tartaric acid, two ounces citric acid, juice of six lemons and the grated rind of four of them; 12 cups water.

Add the sugar and the two acids to the water and bring to boil. Add lemon juice and rind and let stand two or three hours. Strain and bottle.

For a refreshing drink: Put one tablespoon depending on strength desired of the syrup in a glass of water and cracked ice. It's good.

QUESTION (Continued from Mrs. E. J. P. Riverside Dr.) . . . Please try this raspberry jam and tell me why it fades to almost greyish appearance at top . . .

RASPBERRY JAM
(Contributed by Mrs. E. J. P.)

4 qts. washed berries, 10 cups sugar, 1 box (pectin) crystals. Mix sugar and berries in heavy bottom kettle, stir until juice appears, to keep from sticking, try not to break too many of the berries. Boil 20 min. Add 1 box of (pectin) crystals and boil hard for 2 min. longer. Seal in sterile pint jars — makes 7 pints.—E.V.P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I made this jam according to the recipe. So far it has not faded. Fading is due to air. Jam should be boiling hot when poured into hot sterile jars and sealed at once. Be sure to work quickly with boiling hot jam and jars and filling jars to exclude air, and sealing at once. Let me know if you have any more trouble.

QUESTION: . . . Enjoy your articles . . . my daughter is getting married . . . could you give me some suggestions for a trousseau tea . . . and reception afterward following the wedding . . . I would like to make a good white cake and decoraated small cakes and cookies . . . I have made 4 chiffon cakes and they all fall out of the pan and are rubbery on the bottom . . . have you ever made a cookbook of your own for sale?—(Mrs.) A. J. L.

ANSWER: Whenever I am asked for my cookbook I am sorry to have to say "No". I hope some day to have time to work on one — if so I'll let you know.

Three and ¾ cups sifted cake flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon finely grated lemon rind, 1 teaspoon nutmeg (optional), 1¾ cups butter, 2¼ cups sugar, 8 eggs, yolks and whites separated. Sift together flour, baking powder 3 times. Add lemon rind and nutmeg if used to butter and cream until fluffy. Gradually beat in 1¾ cups of the sugar. Beat yolks until they are approximately trippled in volume. Add yolks to butter mixture and beat it with spoon. Beat whites until stiff enough to stand up in peaks but not dry. Add remaining ½ cup sugar to whites, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until just blended. Stir ½ of the flour mixture into the butter mixture ,then ½ of the egg whites, repeating until all is used, beating well with spoon between every addition. Bake in 2 greased and paper-lined pans 13 x 9 x 2 in. at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour or until cakes shrink from sides. Cool on cake racks. (for Petit Fours)

Two cups granulated sugar, ⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 cup hot water, confectioner's sugar. Combine granulated sugar, cream of tartar, and water in saucepan. Stir constantly over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Wipe down sides with damp cloth then cook gently to 226 deg. Fahr. Cool to lukewarm (110 deg. Pour glaze over each row moving steadily to end of row and back again to cover tops and sides. Let glaze set for 5 minutes then repeat. If glaze hardens while working, reheat over hot water. Decorate glazed cakes with slivered almonds, candied fruit, etc. Tint glaze different pale shades if desired, with liquid vegetable coloring.

Jamaican Stars Win Semi-Finals

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Helsinki (CP)—Two Jamaican stars, Arthur Wint and Herb McKenley, won the semi-final heats of the Olympic 400-metre event today in which two Canadians were eliminated.

Jack Carroll of Verdun, Que., placed fifth in the heat won by McKenley.

Jim Lavery of Calgary was sixth in the heat won by Wint.

The sensational nature of the 400-metre field was shown by the fact every man had to run under 47 seconds to qualify.

Carroll's time was 47.4 and Lavery's 47.7.

McKenley is the former world record holder. In the 1948 games at London he was second to Wint.

Takes Three Weeks Before Plant Operating

WINDSOR (CP)—Production operations at Chrysler of Canada will not be resumed until about three weeks after the United States steel plants are reopened, company officials said today.

Chrysler suspended production operations July 11 because of the U.S. steel strike. The company advanced an annual two-week vacation shutdown to the weeks of July 13 and July 30.

Some 3,700 Chrysler workers are affected.

Ford of Canada officials have as yet made no comment in connection with the ending yesterday of the steel strike. They said earlier the company would remain in production until an annual two-week vacation shutdown Aug. 1.

Red Wings Edge Springfield In 4-3 Duel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester continues to put pressure on the first-place Montreal Royals in the International League, with Rip Repulski leading the attack.

Repulski hit his eighth homer in the fifth inning and singled home the winning run in the ninth last night for a 4-3 win over Springfield. Jack Faszholz allowed 12 hits but registered his sixth win against one loss.

Rochester's victory left the Red Wings 2½ games behind the idle Royals.

Syracuse moved within four games of the top by scoring six runs in the seventh to swamp last-place Ottawa 7-2. It was a tense 0-0 duel between Syracuse's Jack Griffore and Ottawa's Vince Gohl when a walk, five singles and a double broke the spell in the seventh. Griffore went all the way for his ninth win.

Buffalo squeezed past Baltimore into fifth place by topping the Orioles 4-3.

Montreal and Toronto were not scheduled.

High Percentage Puzzled Teachers

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Eng. (Reuters)—Education authorities were puzzled by the high percentage of students who passed recent examinations with flying colors—until they learned that many of the kids saw the questions before taking the tests.

The mystery broke last night when it was revealed that a printer's apprentice gave a couple of reject papers to a 16-year-old school chum. The chum passed them on to some of his friends, who in turn circulated the papers to pals of theirs—in five other schools.

"I gave the papers to my friend because I thought they would help him," confessed Douglas Wallace, 16.

Results of Doug's little gesture of goodwill: He's been fired, his friend has been suspended from school, many of the 500 boys and girls who took the exams have been told they'll automatically be failed.

Church Of England Rejects Name Change

TORONTO (CP)—The general synod of the Church of England in Canada today rejected a plea to change the name of the denomination to "The Anglican Church of Canada."

The recommendation against the new name will be presented to the court of the Church to be held in London, Ont., in September.

The synod decided that suggestions that the present name is keeping non-Anglo Saxons from joining the Church are not founded in fact.

Man Fined $50

John King, 53, no fixed address, was convicted of being drunk and fined $50 and $2.50 costs or one month in jail, by Magistrate R. B. Baxter in police court today. He admitted a previous conviction on a liquor charge in April, when he pleaded guilty to consuming rubbing alcohol.

Never A Dull Moment

GODERICH (CP)—David Evans, son of F. P. Evans, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is finding work on the railway can be rough. Last week while swinging a sledge hammer he gashed his forehead with a sliver of steel. . .The next day he dropped a 50-pound cake of ice on his foot. During the week-end he washed his trousers and returned to find a wren had built a nest in his hip pocket.

Hungary Winner

HELSINKI (CP)—The favored Hungarians today won the opening game of the Olympic water polo competition, defeating Mexico 10-4.

Germany defeated Romania 8-1 and Egypt crushed Portugal 10-0.

Commute By Boat

OAKVILLE (CP)—Three Toronto business executives who live in Oakville have turned to commuting by boat to beat crowded road conditions. They make the 16-mile run in 45 minutes in a launch.

Making Hay Profitable

Sales Realize $200

TRENT RIVER (ENS)—Groups one, three and four of the Trent River Women's Association of the United Church have held a bake sale and bazaar and pot luck dinner recently, realizing more than $200.

Fall Wheat

GOOD QUALITY

"The wheat is good quality," Mr. McWilliam said. "Deliveries began July 23 from the area indicated by Campbellford, Stirling, Port Hope and so on around the Peterborough fringe, and chiefly from the grain growing townships."

Quaker Oats has already bought more than 100 cars of wheat from the Chatham area. Scanning the provincial reports, Mr. Lockington said: "The first wheat of the season came off No. 1 at 62 to 63 pounds to the bushel.

"During the last week or so, rains have been rather frequent from London to Goderich, a shower about every 12 hours. A sprouting condition has developed in the moist and hot weather conditions, and grading tests are lower.

"The chief grain inspector said that 50 to 60 per cent of the wheat in stook and also in the field show signs of sprouting."

At the Dewart mill grain is coming from combines and also from the fields that have been in stooks.

Mr. McWilliam said he was not offering any advice as to selling vs. storing to farmers. "We might be wrong," he remarked, "and it would be sure to bounce back at us."

Wind Up Hearing On Power Plan

CORNWALL — (AP) — The International Joint Commission today winds up three days of hearings on plans to harness the water power of the St. Lawrence River.

The province of Ontario is asking the commission's authority to build a huge power plant. New York State later may seek to join the project.

The idea got a big boost at the I.J.C's hearing yesterday in Ogdensburg, N.Y., where 32 spokesmen from northern New York urged construction of the power complex. None opposed it.

The power hearings started Wednesday in Toronto with the high-water level of the Great Lakes a companion subject.

At yesterday's session the chairman of the U.S. commissioners said he hoped the power dam could be built without raising the level of Lake Ontario.

The proposed dam would cross the St. Lawrence between Massena N.Y., and Cornwall.

JOHNNY BRATTON, Chicago big-name fighter, who fights Laurent Dauthuille, world's middleweight title contender, in the Montreal Forum ring Monday night is being given a physical check-up by Dr. Thomas of the Montreal Athletic Commission as Dauthuille cocks an ear and listens in.

U.S. Champions Entertained At Dinner By Russians

HELSINKI (AP)—The U.S. eight-oar Olympic rowing champions were wined and dined by the Russians yesterday.

The young midshipmen from the U.S. Naval Academy drank vodka, ate caviar, hugged pretty Russian girls and together toasted international friendship.

The Americans came loaded with gifts—chewing gum, candy, Olympic buttons and crew shirts.

They came back with boxes of Russian cigarets, bottles of cognac and pockets jingling with kopeks.

They were presented with a handsome red velvet banner inscribed: "From the Russian rowing team in the XV Olympics."

The unbeaten U.S. crew won the eight-oar championship Wednesday with Russia a surprisingly strong second.

HALL DECORATED

The dinner was in a spacious hall decorated with Red flags bearing the hammer and sickle. On one wall were hung pictures of Stalin, Molotov and members of the Politburo—mammoth paintings in color.

In one corner was a display of huge cakes, reserved for Russian gold-medal winners. One weighed at least 20 pounds, made up to look like a fruit basket. Another was a model of the Kremlin.

There was caviar, rich tomato salads, fresh vegetables, fish and cheese. Waiters in full dress kept two glasses at each plate filled with strong cognac and vodka.

Then came the main dish—an inch-thick filet mignon, potatoes and peas.

Russia Now Leading In Points Minor Event May Decide Winner

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The great duel between the United States and Russia for point-winning team supremacy in the Olympic Games may well be decided by a comparatively minor event.

So far the United States has scored heavily in track and field competition although championships yesterday were well distributed nationally. Russia's men and women have rolled up points by the score in gymnastics.

But an indication of things to come was seen when first-round matches in Greco-Roman wrestling—the style where any hold below the waist is barred—ended last night. Russia won all eight first-round matches. The United States has no entrants in the event.

Going into the sixth day of competition today, Russia had piled up 323½ points in all sports against 221 by the United States. Hungary was a distant third with 87, followed by Sweden with 67½, Switzerland with 58 and Cechoslovakia with 56½.

MANY RECORDS FALL

Popular attraction, however, was still focussed on the glamorous track and field events in Helsinki's Olympic Stadium. With 20 events completed, 18 Olympic records have been broken. Twelve events still are to be decided before this division of the games ends.

Record-breaking went on yesterday, a daily pattern now in track and field.

A husband-and-wife combination broke two records. Emil Zatopek, the durable Czech, ran his opposition into the ground in the home stretch to win the 5,000-metre run in record time. His attractive wife, Dana, broke the record in the women's javelin throw. Her last name, in the Czech spelling for females, is Zatopekova.

Their duel accomplishment marked the first time a husband and wife have received Olympic medals on the same day.

Shirley Strickland de la Hunty of Australia clipped both world and Olympic records in winning the women's 80-metre hurdles in 10.9 seconds. The old world mark was 11.0; the Olympic mark 11.2.

World and Olympic records were broken again when Jozsef Csermak of Hungary won the hammer throw championship with a toss of 197 feet, 11.67 inches.

U.S. SLAM IN HURDLES

Harrison Dillard of the United States won his specialty—the 110-metre hurdles—in 13.7 seconds, lowering the old Olympic record by two-tenths of a second. Four years ago at London he won the 110-metre spring championship.

Two other Americans, Jack Davis and Arthur Barnard, followed Dillard to the tape to give the United States a slam. Another Olympic record fell when Bruno Junk of Russia won a heat in the 10,000-metre walk.

Canada's hopes for an end to the point-scoring famine were given a lift when four runners battled their way into semi-finals.

Bill Parnell of North Vancouver, B.C., and John Ross of Oakville, Ont., each placed fourth in qualifying heats for the 1,500-metre run.

Jim Lavery of Calgary and Jack Carroll of Verdun, Que., survived two preliminary heats to qualify in the 400-metre semi-final. Lavery was first in one heat and second in another. Carroll placed second and third in his heats.

RUSSIA TOPS GYMNASTICS

Here's how other events stacked up yesterday:

Gymnastics — Russian women won four gold medals; Hungary won two and Sweden one in the wind-up of the event.

Fencing — France took three of the first six places in the men's individual foils competition.

Soccer — Germany eliminated Brazil and Hungary ousted Turkey in second-round matches.

Field Hockey — India came through, as expected, to win the Olympic tournament, defeating Holland in the finals. Great Britain was third and Pakistan fourth.

Modern pentathlon—Hungary still led at the end of swimming—second event of the five-sport competition which ends today with cross-country running. Sweden was second and the United States third.

Democrats Using Same Weapons As Four Years Ago

CHICAGO (AP)—Democrats have dusted off and polished the same weapons they used four years ago to win an upset victory over the Republicans.

These weapons include: claims that their party has built prosperity on the "economic ruins of Republican bungling" and that it is leading the world to an eventual "peace with honor."

The party expressed confidence, in a bulky platform heavy with self-praise, that these tools would forge another victory next November. The platform was adopted by the party's national convention yesterday.

ANTICIPATED ARGUMENTS

Republicans, in their national convention here two weeks ago, anticipated the Democratic arguments.

"They (Democrats) claim prosperity," the Republican platform said, "but the appearance of economic health is created by war expenditures, waste and extravagance, planned emergencies, and war crises."

As to Democratic peace claims, the Republicans had this to say:

"We charge that the leaders of the administration in power lost the peace so dearly earned in World War II."

In 1948, the Democrats campaigned on a platform that boasted they had led the country to the "broadest" prosperity in history. Then, as now, the Republicans contended prosperity had a "false" basis provided by government spending.

FARMERS TIPPED SCALES

The outcome of the 1948 ballot battle turned largely on the economic issue, with farmers in the normally-Republican midwest tipping the scales in favor of President Truman over Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

So, it's most likely that this year's Democratic campaign will be pitched on this 1952 platform declaration:

"An objective appraisal of the past record clearly demonstrates that the Democratic party has been the chosen American instrument to achieve prosperity, build a stronger democracy, erect the structure of world peace, and continue on the path of progress."

The Democrats, like the Republicans, escaped a threatened convention floor battle this year between northern and southern delegates over the civil rights issue.

The Democrats pledged federal legislation to "effectively secure" for Negroes and other racial groups equal opportunities to vote and work and security of person. The Republicans declared this problem was largely one for the states to handle, but expressed belief that the federal government should take "supplemental" action.

MAJOR ISSUES

The stands taken by the Democratic and Republican platforms on other major issues included:

Foreign policy—Democrats endorsed Truman administration foreign policies, which they said, are designed to secure and maintain peace through co-operation with friendly nations. The Republicans would follow the same general policies, but would limit them to the "enlightened self-interest" of this country.

National defence—both pledged strong air, sea and land forces. The Republicans charged the administration has been lagging in achieving this goal.

WOULD REPEAL T-H LAW

Labor—the Democrats pledged repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. The Republicans promised such amendments as are found to be needed to safeguard rights of workers, employers and the public.

Charged With Assault Of Officer, Remanded

Charged with assaulting Constable Sherman Keliele when he was being arrested on a liquor charge Thursday night, Coleman P. Derraine, 50, 220 Brock St., was remanded without plea on bail of $500 until July 31 when he appeared before Magistrate R. B. Baxter today.

Derraine is also charged with consuming liquor while on the interdicted list. The charge alleges he was previously convicted of the same offence on March 24.

Dr. Roy D. Lindsay Dies In Halifax

HALIFAX (CP)—Dr. Roy D. Lindsay, 62, pensions medical examiner at Camp Hill hospital, died today at his home in nearby Windsor Junction.

Born at Caribou, N.S., he graduated from Dalhousie Medical school in 1917 and, following a stint in the army's medical corps, practised in New Germany, N.S., and St. Catharines.

Surviving are his widow, a son and a daughter, Mrs. John Leighton, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Births, Deaths Decrease

TORONTO (CP)—There were 979 fewer births in Ontario in June than in the corresponding month of 1951, with 10,086 compared to 11,065. Figures announced last night also showed fewer marriages with 4,995 compared to 5,065 and fewer deaths with 3,615 against 3,640. Heart disease caused most deaths, 1,235.

Eva Peron's Condition Reported Unchanged

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—The condition of Eva Peron has undergone no change in the last 24 hours, a bulletin issued late last night said.

The wife of the Argentine President has been seriously ill several months. The previous bulletin, issued Wednesday, said her condition is "delicate."

FLOWS 335 MILES

The Stikine River flows 335 miles from the Cassiar district of British Columbia to Alaska.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Ontario's nine junior A hockey teams are considering a plan calling for competition next season with the four clubs in Quebec.

The plan originated with Frank Selke, manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. It calls for each Quebec team to play each Ontario team twice during the season. A decision from the Ontario teams is expected at a meeting in August of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Council.

"I think it is a good idea," manager Harold Ballard of the Toronto Marlboros club said last night. "It'll give the public something different. Every week it'll be like an Eastern Canada playoff preview. What we need here is an injection of new blood and this could be it."

Jack Roxburgh of Simcoe, O.H.A. president, said he hadn't heard of the proposal but that was understandable as the Junior A council runs its own affairs. He said the O.H.A. would have to sanction the plan and it would require approval of 75 per cent of the Junior A teams.

DEKDEBRUN 'OUT'

President Bob Moran of Toronto Argonauts football team said yesterday that Al Dekdebrun is definitely "out" as Argos' 1952 quarterback, and may be traded to Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Moran and coach Frank Clair decided they'll stick to Nobby Wirkowski. Argos would like to trade Dekdebrun to Hamilton for backfielder Doug Gray, but coach Carl Voyles of the Cats said earlier that Gray is worth three Dekdebruns.

TO PLAY FOR CANADA

Bobby Locke of South Africa has accepted an invitation to play for the Canadian Golf team against the United States in the International golf match at Montreal Aug. 26 and 27, it was announced in Montreal last night. Locke, recent winner of the British and French Open tournaments, was a former holder of the Canadian Open.

HE LIKES TUNAS

A New Zealand doctor and sportsman may set a record for long distance fishing trips this summer. Dr. T. Harold Pettit of Auckland is preparing to travel 25,000 miles to Wedgeport, N.S., and back just to take a crack at the giant bluefin tuna for which Wedgeport is famous. The doctor will represent his country on the British Commonwealth angling team in the annual international tuna cup match Sept. 10-12.

WALCOTT SAYS NO

Promoter Sam Becker's efforts to arrange another heavyweight boxing championship between Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles blew up yesterday when Walcott's manager said "not interested." Becker had telegraphed an offer of a $200,000 guarantee for Walcott, heavyweight king, to meet Charles at Cincinnati in September. Walcott won the title from Charles and then beat him in a return match.

Protest Transfer

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—The Fort William Liberal Association yesterday protested a proposal to transfer the statisticians office of the Board of Grain Commissioners to Winnipeg. The association told Trade Minister Howe, Liberal Member of Parliament for neighboring Port Arthur, the move would compel 17 families long established in Fort William to move to a contract area.

Failed To Report Crash, Fined

Donald Brant, 21, R.R. 3 Peterborough, was fined $25 and $10.25 costs for failing to report an accident when he pleaded guilty to the charge in police court Thursday.

Brant admitted to police he was the driver of an old model car which knocked over a railway crossing sign and snapped off a telephone pole on the night of July 11 on Park Hill Road.

A second charge of drunk driving against Brant was dismissed when part of the crown's evidence was in, at the request of crown attorney John A. Bradshaw.

The evidence of crown witness Lloyd Peacock who was injured in the accident, that Brant was not drunk and appeared normal to him before the accident, conflicted with that of constable Arthur Beardsmore.

Constable Beardsmore said Brant "was drunk." He said his eyes were bloodshot, he swayed on his feet and his speech was thick.

Mr. Bradshaw asked that the drunk driving charge be dismissed when he learned that Ronald Greenly, another passenger in the car who was injured slightly and O.P.P. constable Harold Armstrong who assisted in the investigation were not available to testify for the crown.

Brant was defended by Gordon H. T. Farquharson.

4th Person Stands Trial In Vancouver Drug Case

VANCOUVER — (CP) — A fourth person was committed for trial yesterday on charges of distributing narcotics to Vancouver juveniles as police picked up three more surpected drug "pushers."

One of those arrested was a 36-year-old woman paraplegic in a wheel chair. Police battered down a door in a Skid Row hotel to arrest her and two male companions.

Robert Woods, 20, was committed for trial following the testimony of three teen-aged girls.

Patricia Findlay, 18, already sentenced to 18 months in prison for supplying narcotics to juveniles, testified:

"I met Bobby in a cafe after I ran away from girls' industrial school and he asked me if I wanted a fix.

"I went with him to his room, he cooked the cookings and I took it in the line."

(By this she meant he heated heroin and water in a spoon to make it soluble enough to go in a needle and then into a vein.)

Another 18-year-old girl told of a "hype" party in an east-end hotel during which she and three others took a number of fixes over a two-day period.

"The first afternoon Bobby cooked, gave me and Pat a fix and then took one himself. We lay on the bed and coasted (relaxed under the initial effect of the drug). Pat and myself then went shopping. We brought black hair dye because my boy friend said he liked that color. We returned to the room. Towards evening, Bobby came back with a capsule and we fixed again."

Justice Fails To Get Settlement In B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chief Justice Gordon Sloan announced today that he has been unable to get an "agreed settlement" in the strike of 32,000 British Columbia woodworkers.

The multi-million dollar industry has been idle since June 15 when the International Woodworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) called the strike to back pay increase demands.

2 WOMEN KILLED IN SPRINGVILLE CRASH

Cars Meet Headon On Hill Late In Evening, 4 Others Suffer Injury

Front of Both Vehicles Smashed To Scrap And Six Occupants Trapped; One Goes Through Windshield, Dies Instantly

Two young women were killed late Friday night in a head-on collision between two cars on the brow of a hill, seven miles southwest of Peterborough on Highway 28. Four other occupants of the two cars were injured, one critically and one seriously. One of the injured included a Peterborough girl, Miss Gertrude Hogan. Killed in the crash were 22-year-old Marion Clark of Port Perry, and Mrs. John D. McDonald, 21, of 1A Woodycrest Ave., Toronto. Both women died of fractured skulls and sustained other body injuries.

The four injured in Civic Hospital are: Clare Keown, 23, of Woodville, critically injured with a fractured skull, broken left leg, facial and other head injuries. He is unconscious and his condition is "poor."

Miss Hogan, 22, of 186 Lansdowne Street, head injuries, facial cuts and bruises. She is conscious and her condition is "fair."

Ross Clarke, 19, of Woodville but now working in Oshawa, concussion and possible fractured skull, and injuries to both legs, head and face. He is conscious and his condition is "fair."

John D. McDonald, 32, husband of Mrs. McDonald, undetermined head injuries and a possible fracture of the left leg. He is conscious and his condition is also "fair."

Mr. and Mrs. McDonald were in one car and the other four were in Clarke's car.

HOLD INQUEST

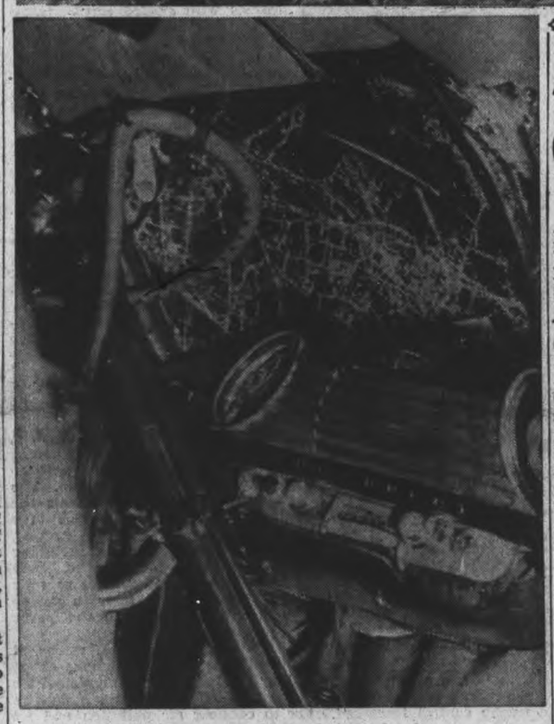
Coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton said today that both Miss Clark and Mrs. McDonald died as a result of fractured skulls. He said there will be an inquest.

The two new-model cars crashed headon with terrific force on the hill, located a mile south of Springville and 150 yards south of the Cavan creek. It was almost the identical spot where Gordon Ham, a Peterborough executive, was killed a little more than a year ago.

The impact was so great that the front end of both vehicles was reduced to so much torn scrap metal. Seats were torn loose, the steering column and wheel were crumpled on both.

Mrs. McDonald, who was killed almost instantly, was knocked partly through the windshield on the passenger's side of the northbound car.

CARS MEET (Continued on Page 2)



TWO YOUNG WOMEN DIED, one instantly, the other before she could be removed from the wreckage of this head-on collision on Highway 28 a mile south of Springville Friday night. Four others were injured. The cars collided with such force the front ends of both were jammed into a mass of mangled metal shown above. The interior of the front seat of the southbound car, driven by Ross Clarke of Woodville is seen in the lower photo. — Examiner Staff Photos.

U.N. Negotiators Walk Out On Truce Talks

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Allied negotiators today accused the Communists of "utter hypocrisy" and walked out of the Korean truce talks for a week.

Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., senior United Nations delegate, told the protesting Reds he would return Aug. 3.

"If you have anything worth saying (before Aug. 3) you can say it to our staff officers," Harrison said.

The walkout ended the first open session at Panmunjom in three weeks. Eighteen off-the-record meetings since July 4 failed to break the deadlock over how to exchange prisoners of war—key obstacle to an armistice.

In Tokyo, Gen. Mark Clark, supreme Allied commander, said the closed sessions failed to produce results because the Communists "refused to recognize the inescapable fact that a large percentage of Communist prisoners refused to go back to their former masters."

Before leaving the tent, Harrison agreed to a Red request for daily staff officer meetings "on the detailed wording of the draft armistice agreement."

Staff officers then met for 39 minutes and will meet again Sunday.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, the chief Communist negotiator, harangued the Allies for insisting that no prisoner be repatriated against his will.

"In these meetings," Harrison said, "we have been restrained in our statements and have tried to be accurately faithful. Your statements on the other hand, have demonstrated utter hypocrisy. You have said we want to retain your personnel. What we know, what the world knows as a fact, is that those prisoners are afraid to be returned as slaves to the tender mercies of Communist control."

Pair Fined $250 In Moose Death

HAILEYBURY (CP)—Magistrate S. Atkinson yesterday fined two men $250 and costs on charges of molesting a female moose for taking photographs. The animal, pursued about Lake Timiskaming for more than three hours, died of exhaustion.

The magistrate, who described the incident as "quite horrible," fined Ronald Manson, chief engineer on a lumbering tug, and Roland Lebrun, a deckhand. A similar charge against Andre Emery, another deckhand, was dismissed when he was not positively identified as one of the occupants of the boat which pursued the moose.

Haileybury is 75 miles north of North Bay.

Hear Teen-Agers Drug Evidence

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two teenaged girls yesterday told a police court how they and a 19-year-old youth sneaked, one by one, into the bathroom of the boy's house to take narcotics while his parents sat in the kitchen ignorant of what was going on.

After the testimony, the youth, Max Hurlburt, was committed for trial on a charge of giving juveniles a substance purported to be a drug.

Hurlburt is the fifth person to be committed on such a charge in Vancouver's juvenile narcotics probe, launched June 26. Nearly a score of persons have been arrested as "pushers."

Trenton RCAF Search Party Renews Hunt In Quebec

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP)—An R.C.A.F. search party from Trenton is scheduled to enter the hilly bush country near this northeastern Quebec community today to try to determine the fate of two men missing after the crash of a Lancaster bomber and a Vampire jet jet fighter.

The bodies of four of the bomber's crew and the body of the jet fighter pilot have been taken out of the bush.

It was thought earlier that the body of one of the missing men had been found crushed and burned under an engine, but further examination showed it was burned material.

REPORT PARACHUTES SEEN

No bodies were found in the comparatively undamaged tail section of the aircraft which fell some distance from the main, forward section of the fuselage.

While not denying the possibility the two men might be found alive, R.C.A.F. officials were not putting too much faith in unconfirmed reports that parachutes were seen in the air and on the ground shortly after the crash.

When an R.C.A.F. medical officer, a para-rescue nurse and a para-rescue sergeant came out of the bush Wednesday night, they reported finding the bodies of five

Begin Inspection Of St. Lawrence

CORNWALL (CP)—Members of the International Joint Commission left here today for an inspection of the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River, site of a proposed power development.

The committee yesterday completed a series of four one-day hearings dealing with the power project and the damaging higher levels of the Great Lakes. The inspection tour ends at Gut Dam near Prescott, Ont. Some United States officials have blamed Gut Dam for Lake Ontario's high water level.

Adlai Stevenson Nominated On 3rd Ballot By Democrats

CHICAGO (AP)—Governor Adlai Stevenson, the Democrats' choice for United States president, today picks a running mate to help him "talk sense to the American people" in the campaign to keep the presidency in Democratic hands. The 52-year-old governor of Illinois, nominated on the third ballot in what President Truman described as " a real, honest-to-goodness draft," was reported as having chosen Senator John Sparkman of Alabama for vice-presidential candidate. Aides said this choice was in line with the governor's determination to have a southerner "to strengthen me and our party immeasurably in the hard, implacable work that lies ahead for all of us."

Passed over in this reported decision were:

Senator Richard Russell of Georgia, who ran third to Stevenson in the final balloting but who says he is "uninterested" in the vice-presidency;

Senator Estes Kefauver, who had to give up his immediate dream of the White House on his 49th birthday. Said Kefauver: "I have never considered the vice-presidency and will not now," and

Vice-President Alben Barkley, who at 74 was called too old by some labor union leaders for the presidential nomination and withdrew, but whose name still was entered in the contest.

Leaders called delegates back (11 a.m. EDT) after an eight-hour rest from their roaring reception of the party's new nominee in this smoke-hazed convention hall early this morning.

All the delegates had to do was to formalize Stevenson's choice of his running mate.

In Sparkman Stevenson would be getting as his helper a man with somewhat comparable experience in United Nations affairs and the same stand on foreign and most domestic policies—but with widely different views on civil-rights issues.

Sparkman, 52, would give the deep south a place on the ticket for the first time in modern politics. This new accent-on-youth

ADLAI STEVENSON (Continued on Page 2)

CHICAGO — (AP).—Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama said today that "word has come to me" that Adlai E. Stevenson wants him as his running mate for vice-president, and that "I will accept" if the convention nominates him.

Training Plane Crashes Student Pilot 18, Killed

COLBORNE (Special)—An 18-year-old flight cadet was killed Friday afternoon when his Texan trainer crashed in a field nine miles northwest of here. Cause of the crash is unknown. Allan Jackson of Newmarket, a second-year engineering student at the University of Toronto, was making a solo training flight as part of his course at the R.C.A.F. flying instructors' school at Trenton.

Witnesses said the aircraft plummetted to the earth at a sharp angle from the northeast and buried itself almost to the cockpit. Jackson's plane crashed about 90 feet from a township road.

SEND HELP

The farmer who owned the field, Frank Blackwell, telephoned the Trenton station to tell them that the aircraft had crashed and was burning. The air force rushed a para-resuce team by air, and sent an ambulance and fire truck.

By the time the aircraft arrived over the scene of the crash, a crowd of about 50 people had gathered and it was obvious nothing could be done by the para-rescue team. They returned to their base.

The ambulance and fire truck sent by the R.C.A.F. were likewise too late, as a doctor was already on the scene and the Colborne fire department, under Chief Bud Irish, had quenched the flames with water and chemicals. Weeds and grass around the plane in the two-acre field had been set on fire by the flames from the aircraft.

NO PHOTOGRAPHS

Coroner Dr. F. M. Dure of Brighton was on the scene and ordered photographers and reporters, under penalty of arrest, to stay away and take no photographs.

The aircraft, similar to the Harvard trainer used by the R.C.A.F., is on loan to the air force from the United States Air Force and still bears U.S.A.F. markings.

R.C.A.F. officials believe Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jackson of Newmarket, was killed instantly.

The crash occurred in an area used by the air force for training flights, and where there were several crashes during wartime.

ON THIRD BALLOT— Adlai Stevenson was nominated for president by the Democratic Party on the third ballot Friday night.

At Least 25 Prisoners Will Be Strapped

TORONTO (CP)—More than 150 prisoners at Guelph Reformatory will be disciplined for their part in a riot at the prison July 5, it was learned yesterday at Ontario government offices.

It was reported that probably 35 or more will be strapped and the others disciplined in other ways for the 12-hour demonstration.

Condition Satisfactory For Frankford Girl

TORONTO (CP)—Condition of Helen Bonisteel, 5-year-old Frankford girl injured in an automobile accident Thursday, was reported by hospital authorities to be satisfactory this morning although she was still on the serious list.

She underwent surgery for a depressed fracture of the skull yesterday.

3 Big Training Exercises Ahead For 27th Brigade

HANNOER, Germany (CP)—A series of three large-scale training exercises culminating in mock war manoeuvres with the British Army of the Rhine lie immediately ahead for the 27th Canadian brigade.

Brig. Geoffrey Walsh's formation will launch this rugged spell of training next Thursday as part of a general toughening of the whole Atlantic Pact ground force in Germany.

It will be the most important period of training in the brigade's first year in Germany.

The first exercise, involving only the brigade itself, will take place in the so-called Sennelager area about 60 miles south of Hannover and in one of the traditional German training areas used to season Hitler's Wehrmacht.

Every type of weapon the brigade has will be used and they will use live ammunition. For two weeks the men will live in tents, bivouacs, slit trenches and weapon pits.

Fololwing the Sennelager brigade concentration, units will return to their barracks from Aug. 15 to 20. On Aug. 20 the brigade will move into the field again to take part in a 10-day corps exercise with British forces.

At the end of a short refit period during the first two weeks of September, Canada's brigade is slated to join other Pact forces in British Army of the Rhine manoeuvres.

Pickets Still On Duty

Steel Mills Idle Despite Strike End

WASHINGTON (AP)—Steel mills in the United States were still idle today, despite a strike-end agreement reached at the White House and ratified last night by the union's policy committee.

C.I.O. President Philip Murray and the executives of six major steel producers signed the White House memorandum of agreement which stated unequiyocally that the strike "will end" upon ratification by the steel-workers' 175-man policy committee.

Yet the day after that unanimous ratification, striking C.I.O. steelworkers still manned picket lines. Banked blast furnaces which the industry had said would be fired last night were still cool. And the strike, already the longest in the country's steel history, entered its 55th day.

Neither side, however, expected the impasse to continue long. Circumstances surrounding the Thursday agreement indicated eagerness on both sides to restore production as soon as possible.

But industry officials said they were "amazed and disillusioned" at the unexpected development.

The fly in the ointment was not the critical dispute which set off the steel strike on June 2. It was, rather, a companion strike of 23,000 iron-ore workers in Minnesota. These workers, members of the Steelworkers' Union, walked off the job a few hours after the steelworkers struck. They demanded the same wage and other concessions asked by the steelworkers, together with elimination of wage differentials between themselves and the steelworkers, whose pay rates are considerably higher.

TWO-PART AGREEMENT

The agreement signed at the White House had two parts: one between the union and the Big Six; the other between the union and the Oliver Iron Mining Division of U.S. Steel.

The latter pact included nearly all the terms in the basic steel agreement, plus a separate condition which committed the industry to eliminate "in part" the wage differential "as of the end of the strike" and the balance next July 1.

The industry and the union late last night were in total disagreement over a snag in the ore situation. The union said ore companies which did not sign the agreement were holding out for terms unacceptable to the union.

ies which did not sign the agreement were holding out for terms ies which did not sign the agreement were holding out for terms unacceptable to the union The mining companies said the union was insisting on working out fairly complete contract language before sending out back-to-work notices, not only in the ore mines, but in the steel mills too.

Federal officials said actual contract writing with the various companies was not intended to hold up the strike's end.

Pension Fund 100 Million In Red Now

Tax Contributions Cover Less Than Half The Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's old-age security fund, now six months old, is more than $100,000,000 in the red. The fund was established Jan. 1, 1952, to finance pensions of $40 a month to all Canadians 70 and over regardless of means.

More than 660,000 Canadians are receiving the pension. Tax contributions into the fund so far have covered less than half of the cost of the pensions and the Treasury has had to lend the fund approximately $104,000,000 up to June 30.

BIG SURPLUS REPORTED

The latest report on the fund's operations was released yesterday by the Finance Department. At the same time, the department released figures showing that the federal surplus totalled $262,475,000 in the first three months of the current fiscal year—almost 30 times more than the surplus forecast for the whole year.

The report showed that old-age security payments in the three-month period totalled $78,921,000. Tax collections for the pension fund totalled only $29,762,000. A government loan of $49,159,000 was needed to cover the deficit.

From Jan. 1 to March 31, the fund had a deficit of approximately $55,000,000.

The fund is to be built up from the receipts from three special taxes—a two-per-cent sales tax, a two-per-cent individual income tax and a two-per-cent corporation tax.

The collection of the sales and corporation taxes started from Jan. 1. The two-per-cent tax on personal incomes did not come into effect until July 1. It is expected to reduce the fund's deficit.

However, no estimate has been made as to when the fund will be operating on a self-supporting basis. Operations of the fund are scheduled for review at the end of the year.

No one in all income tax brackets will contribute more than $30 to the fund this year. A ceiling of $60 has been placed on contributions through personal income tax. Since collections did not start this year until July 1, they will be only half of what they would be in a full year.

Die-Hard Stand Made By U.N.

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A United States general today indicated that his troops would make a die-hard stand against any Communist drive to control Old Baldy and T-bone, Koreah western-front hills.

Maj.-Gen. James Clyde Fry, commander of the U.S. 2nd Division, said he could not let the Chinese win more ground on the two heights.

"You let him push you off one hill," Fry said, "tomorrow he pushes you off another. It may be the preamble to a very costly campaign."

Fighting around the two hills slacked off, but throughout the night U.N. artillery roared to keep the Communists "buttoned up."

Communist return fire was light. There was no ground fighting along the ridges west of Chorwon.

The Chinese hold the crest of Old Baldy. American foot soldiers have a foothold on its southeast tip.

Elsewhere, only three patrol skirmishes were reported.

Fifth Air Force headquarters Saturday reported the loss of eight Allied planes during the week ending Friday—none in aerial combat. Five were downed by Communist ground fire and the other three were lost to unknown causes. Allied pilots reported three MIG-15 jets damaged during the week.

Milked By Two People Cow Sets Record

BRANTFORD (CP)—A Holstein cow, milked simultaneously by two persons, turned in the best record ever reported in Bruce county for either milk or butterfat on twice-a-day milking.

Officials at the head ofiee of the Holstein-Friesian Association here said the four-handed milking was unusual. Marion and Gladys Reid of Ripley milked the cow, Maple Lea Fern Buttergirl, one on each side. Normally a cow is milked by one person from the left side.

The cow, owned by Lorne B. Reid, father of the girls, produced 26,038 pounds of milk containing 1,014 pounds of butterfat in 365 days.

11 Fatalities Reported On Friday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eleven persons were killed in accidents in Ontario yesterday on the eve of a mid-summer week-end when the fatality rate usually soars. A 12th died of injuries in an accident last week-end.

Double fatalities in two accidents ran yesterday's traffic toll to seven.

Near Simcoe in southwestern Ontario, two Detroit residents were killed when their car collided with a transport truck. The dead are Walter Semeniuk, 30, and Bohdan Marciniw, 4. The boy's mother, Mrs. E. H. Henia Marciniw, was seriously injured.

HEAD-ON CRASH

Marion Clark, 20, of Port Perry and Mrs. John T. McDonald, 21, of Toronto were killed on Highway 28 some seven miles southwest of Peterborough in a head-on collision between two cars.

At Clarkson, near Toronto, Arthur Thomas, 60, of Hamilton was killed when struck by a car as he walked across the highway. Doris Christenson, 18, of Hamilton, was killed on the Queen Elizabeth Way near Clarkson early in the day when struck by a transport truck. Her identity was not learned by police until late last night.

Nine-year-old Judy Weldon of Kirkland Lake was killed near Matheson in Northern Ontario in a crash between a truck and a car driven by Mrs. Karl Eyre of Timmins, wife of the Liberal member of parliament for Timmins. Mrs. Eyre was not seriously hurt. R. A. Bastian, driver of the truck in which the Weldon girl was riding, was taken to hospital at Matheson. Mrs. Angus McNevan of Toronto, a passenger in the Eyre car, was shaken up slightly.

FLIGHT CADET KILLED

Allan Robert Jackson, an 18-year-old university student from Newmarket, was killed near Colborne in eastern Ontario in the crash of an R.C.A.F. plane.

Gordon Sheppy, 16-year-old farm boy from the Blenheim district, was killed near West Lorne when struck by a log racing down a chute. At Owen Sound, Mrs. Annie Cass, 65, was killed in a fall in a hotel.

KILLED WHEN THIS PLANE CRASHED was Flight Cadet Allan Jackson, 18, of Newmarket, on a solo training flight from Trenton R.C.A.F. station. Cause of the crash is unknown. Witnesses said the plane plummeted at a sharp angle into a field nine miles northwest of Colborne. The aircraft is a Texan trainer similar to the R.C.A.F.'s Harvard, on loan from the United Sates Air Force. The U.S. markings are still clear on the wing.—(Aerial Photo by Oakman).

Long Way To Go To Clear Air Of Smoke Pollution

By MICHAEL KEARNEY

CLEVELAND (NEA). — Long the fodder for comedians' jokes, smog is being taken more and more seriously by those who put the smoke into the fog.

Industry's one-time "public-be-damned" attitude is out the window.

Authorities estimate that more than $100 million a year is now being spent by industry and government on equipment to control air pollution.

As staggering as the amount spent on control may be, projected estimates of damages from air pollution are about 10 times greater.

Direct economic loss — damage to crops, farm animals, and buildings, plus clean-up bills — may soon soar to $1,050,000,000 a year.

Egged on by an aroused public, by newspapers' anti-smoke campaigns and by a desire to be good neighbors, most of industry is participating wholeheartedly in the efforts of the Air Pollution and Smoke Prevention Association of America.

Its first meeting, at Chicago in 1907, saw only 13 in attendance. Public interest was low and industrial representatives stayed away in droves. People regarded smoggy cities as the price we must pay for our tremendous industrial expansion.

KILLED 20

In October, 1948, came the tragedy at Donora, Pa. Five days of all-eneveloping smog closed in on the steel town, situated in a valley on the Monongahela River. When it finally lifted there were 20 dead and nearly 6,000 others—43 per cent of the population — had been made ill. Donora was the worst air pollution disaster in the United States.

SMOKE from factories makes a million dollar bill.

With Donora and potential Donoras lending impetus, interest in smoke control increased. For the 45th convention in Cleveland this year, some 600 engineers were on hand — half from industry and half from government. The turnout was the largest in the association's history.

The uppermost question at these meetings is: What can be done to control this byproduct of production that chokes off life and blights property?

Stephen Vajda, scientist for Pittsburgh's Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., gave one answer. He told of an ultra-sonic siren which does much in eliminating one of the many air pollution hazards.

The device emits sound waves beyond the range of human hearing, which shriek through dust chambers at steel mill open hearth installations and bind the particles into larger pieces for easy collection and disposal. Vajda reports that certain fumes already have been controlled by this unique method.

Another warrior in the battle for cleaner air is the Aerodyne, which utilizes conical shaped gimmicks with slotted sides. Gases pass through the larger ends of the cones and sharp changes of direction taken by the gases through thousands of slots prevent particles of impurities from reaching the outside. They pass through the small ends of the cones and into collecting traps.

50 TONS A DAY

At its Hell Gate plant in New York City Consolidated Edison Co. traps 50 tons of impurities a day. When the job of installing Aerodyne s at Ford's River Rouge, Mich., plant is completed, about 500 tons of contaminants are expected to be caught a day.

Dieselization program is rapidly taking railroads out of the running as major air pollution offenders.

Aiding in the onslaught against air pollution are after-burners equipped with electric eyes. The burner, located atop a chimney, consumes volatile substances which otherwise would be discharged into the atmosphere. The delicate electric eye detects the impurities and activates the burner.

Many other devices, including various types of washers, some of which wet impurities so they can be collected later in sludge form, are helping in the purer air campaign.

But, as A.P.S.P.A.A. warns, it will take long, continuous effort by the industrialist, municipal air control official, and the housewife to conquer air pollution and let the sun back into our industrial cities.

AERODYNE traps impurities of smoke in slotted cones.

Hannover Has Canadian Town Major

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—Hannover has a Canadian "Town Major."

The office of Town Major, known to Canadian troops in cities and towns they occupied during the war, has been re-established in Hannover by the 27th brigade. The Town Major's job is to control after-duty discipline in co-operation with the army and civil police.

Following re-establishment of the office, Maj. George Baldwin, M.B.E., of Belleville, Ont., a company commander with the 1st Canadian infantry battalion, became Hannover's first town major.

Each week a new town major is appointed from the duty battalion. In addition to close liaison with Canadian military police he orders Provost Corps assistance when there is trouble involving Canadians in town.

German police authorities termed the town-major system as "another good example of your desire to keep good Canadian-German relations."

Find Unemployment Drops By 16,000 During June

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's employment picture has a dark spot here and there but shows general improvement on the crest of a seasonal upswing, increasing defence production and a buoyant economy. The Labor Department reported yesterday that unemployment decreased by 16,000 during June. However, most of the decrease came in first three weeks of the month. After that it levelled off because of the heavy registration of students and rapid deterioration of the labor market on the strike-ridden Pacific coast.

Job applicants registered at National Employment Service offices at July 3 totalled 196,200 compared with 212,600 at June 5. The latest figure is still about 55,000 greater than the comparative 1951 level and 1,000 higher than at the beginning of July, 1950.

The department said recruiting for work on defence projects in Newfoundland and Labrador has been absorbing large number of surplus construction workers. Production in electronics, aircraft and shipbuilding plants has been steadily increasing, while a pick-up in sales of consumer durable goods has been reflected in increased employment in furniture, radio, electrical appliance and automobile industries.

MAY CAUSE REDUCTION

The department said, however, that the effects of the United States steel strike, now settled, "may cause some reduction in manufacturing employment this month, but most plants are trying to continue operations at a slightly reduced rate until they close for holidays."

The Ontario region registered a drop of more than 6,000 in unemployment rolls due to heavy hirings in the agricultural, construction and tourist resort industries. A heavy demand for farm workers has been partially alleviated by arrival of European immigrants and movement of farm workers from the Maritimes. The U.S. steel strike caused some production cutbacks and more may be necessary.

ticket promised to give the Democratic party a new look. Stevenson may start revamping its organization today by naming a new national chairman to replace Frank E. McKinney.

KEYNOTES CAMPAIGN

The Illinois governor, whose bandwagon rolled over Kefauver and Russell in tense convention balloting after W. Averell Harriman of New York had withdrawn, keynoted his own campaign in his acceptance speech early today.

"More important than winning the election is governing the nation," he told the Democrats. "That is the test of a political party—the acid, final test.

"When the tumult and the shouting die. . .there is the stark reality of responsibility in an hour haunted by those gaunt, grim spectres of strife, dissension and materialism at home and ruthless, inscrutable and hostile power abroad."

Asserting that the "bloodiest, most turbulent age of the Christian era is far from over," Stevenson said:

"Sacrifice, patience, understanding and implacable purpose may be our lot for years to come. Let's face it. Let's talk sense to the American people."

NOT USUAL RECITAL

It was not the usual recital of glowing promises of the future and laudatory references to the party's past record expected from most nominees.

Stevenson said he expects the Republicans will call the Democrats appeasers, the war party, reactionary and socialistic.

"I am not too much concerned with partisan denunciation, epithets and abuse," he said, "because the working man, the farmer the thoughtful business man, all know they are better off than ever before. . ."

Without naming the general directly, Stevenson said that Dwight D. Eisenhower is "a leader whom we all respect, but who has been called upon to minister to a helpless case of political schizophrenia (split personality)" in attempting to hold the Republican party together. Eisenhower is the Republican nominee.

ASSAILS REPUBLICANS

Stevenson's talk contrasted sharply with the "give-'em-hell" speech with which Truman assailed the Republicans in introducing the new standard bearer formally to the convention.

Truman said the Republicans had tried to stop progress and they are at it again this year. Praising the Democratic platform, the President said his party is going to win again this year.

Applauding the choice of Stevenson, whom he helped along toward the nomination by getting Harriman to withdraw, Truman said he is going to "take my coat off and do everything I can" to help him."

"FIGHT TO WIN"

Stevenson, who said he had accepted the nomination humbly in the belief that a better man could have been found for it, promised that "I will fight to win. . . with all my heart and soul."

Stevenson's nomination climaxed a day of slow and painful balloting during which Kefauver's fortunes rose only to crash in a third ballot last night.

Kefauver rolled to a high tide mark of 362½ votes on the second ballot. At that point, Stevenson had reached 324½ votes, Russell had 2-4 and Harriman brought up the rear with 121.

A two-hour recess gave Truman and other Stevenson backers time to bring up their heavy guns. Harriman went out of the race and broke open the New York delegation. That started things.

Governor Paul Dever of Massachusetts turned loose his state's delegation.

The handwriting was on the wall for all to see and members of the "Fair-Deal" wing of the party hurried to Kefauver to get him to withdraw in Stevenson's favor. Kefauver consented to go to the convention hall. But instead of withdrawing in favor of Stevenson, he wanted to pull out of the race with an endorsement of Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois. Douglas then would say he couldn't run and urge Stevenson's selection.

Their plan was balked, however, when House Speaker Sam Rayburn chairman of the convention, told Kefauver he would have to wait until the third ballot roll call was completed before he could be heard.

When New York and Michigan fell to Stevenson, the Illinois governor rolled up 613 votes—only 2½ short of the necessary majority—by the end of the balloting.

It was then only a formality when Kefauver stepped up to the microphone to tell the delegates—without actually moving to give Tennessee's votes to Stevenson—that they had nominated "a very great man" and to pledge his help in the general election campaign.

Mrs. Truman Very Happy Husband's Term Finished

By RUTH COWAN

CHICAGO (AP)—MRS. Harry S. Truman undoubtedly is the happiest of all women who played leading roles in the tense political drama of the Democratic national convention.

Relaxed and smiling, she accompanied President Truman in a "hail-and-farewell" appearance before last night's session of the convention.

She has known the pride of a wife whose husband has been nominated in such conventions and elected, first to the vice-presidency then to the highest office in the United States.

HEAVY BURDENS

She didn't want her husband to carry on any longer the heavy burdens of the presidency.

But she understands well the apprehension of womenfolk in the families of men who are aspiring to the top places on a party ticket.

Custom has it that candidates should not be in the convention hall during the voting. But their womenfolk can be there, as spectators.

So tired she could hardly stand, Nancy Kefauver, who had campaigned beside her husband, Senator Estes Kefauver, since February, was in the hall regularly.

Mrs. Averell Harriman could be seen in the Harriman box.

In the Stevenson box during nearly every session was Governor Stevenson's sister, Mrs. Ernest Ives. With her, was the governor's 72-year-old aunt, Miss Lettitia Stevenson of St. Louis, daughter of the Adlai Stevenson who was vice-president in the Cleveland administration.

CALMEST OF GROUP

Probably the calmest of all was Mrs. Robert Kerr. The Oklahoma senator's tall, blonde wife is by nature calm, and has a quick sense of humor valuable in hours of frayed tempers.

Senator Richard Russell of Georgia is a bachelor. But cheering him on was "big sister"—she is about five feet tall—Mrs. J.K. Stacy of Washington, D.C.

Also looking proud at the convention hall were Mrs. John Sparkman, wife of the senator from Alabama, and Mrs. William Fulbright, whose husband is senator from Arkansas.

Cars Meet

All six occupants were trapped temporarily as the impact threw the doors out of alignment. They had to be sprung open by rescuers.

SOUND ECHOED

Local residents said the sound of the crash echoed throughout the valley. As the fatal accident occurred when it was dark, traffic was snarled nearly an hour. Transport drivers stopped their trucks on the hill and, before provincial police arrived from Peterborough, set out flares and directed traffic.

The collision was on the west side of the highway, just on the brow of a treacherous hill. To a northbound driver the approach seems level and straight-away, but the valley leading down to the Cavan creek falls away suddenly, hiding oncoming traffic.

SWERVES SHARPLY

Witnesses say that the northbound car, driven by McDonald, was on the west side of the road having just passed a red panel truck, driven by Frederick Reilly of Toronto. McDonald apparently didn't see Clarke's southbound car coming up the grade and the two vehicles hit headon on the west side of the highway.

Reilly, to avoid becoming involved, swerved sharply to his right and ran into the east ditch.

Mr. and Mrs. McDonald were on their way to Douglas, near Smiths Falls, for a weekend with her relations, when the accident occurred.

Traffic was held up both ways on Highway 28, but passing motorists who first arrived on the scene were apparently paralyzed into inaction by the grim sight of the two cars welded together and the six victims pinned inside.

It was several minutes before any of them were pried loose. Al Stevens, who lives several hundred yards north of the scene walked to the accident when he saw traffic piling up past his home.

TRAPPED IN CARS

Mr. Stevens said he was "amazed" that no one was doing anything to help get the injured people out when he arrived with his brother Frank.

He said there were several people standing around, some were directing traffic, but no one was doing anything for the injured.

The doors on both cars were jammed shut so tightly that considerable difficulty was experienced in prying them open. As soon as they arrived, the two Stevens brothers and Arthur Robertson, (who lives just north of the Cavan Creek at the foot of the hill) began trying to get the victims out.

They concentrated their efforts on the south-bound car first. When the door on the driver's side was opened, the driver, Ross Clark, who was slumped over the twisted steering wheel, fell into the arms of Stevens and a passing motorist who assisted them.

Mr. Robertson stayed with Clarke who was rolling about in agony on the pavement when he was first released, until an ambulance arrived and then accompanied him into Civic Hospital.

GETS FIRST CLUE

Clarke was conscious on the way into the hospital and it was Mr. Robertson who provided the first clue as to the identity of any of the victims, as he learned his name on the way to the hospital.

Miss Clark, who lived for some time after the crash and died while being attended by a doctor, was wedged tightly in the front seat and the rescuers worked for several minutes trying to make her position more comfortable before getting her out, as they knew she was critically injured.

Someone took Mrs. MacDonald's pulse and she apparently died almost instantly as there was no sign of life a few minutes after. Mrs. MacDonald and her husband who were in the northbound car were the last to be removed from the wreckage according to witnesses.

The two passengers in the rear of the southbound car, Miss Gertrude Hogan and Clare Keown were both unconscious and pinned in the jumbled wreckage of the interior. Efforts to pry them free were hampered by the body of Miss Clark in the front seat. It was nearly half an hour after the fatal crash before the last of the victims was pulled out of the wreckage according to witnesses.

Motor traffic slowed as ambulances from Kaye's Nisbett's and Comstock's raced down the highway taking the injured to Civic Hospital.

The two cars were pulled away from the scene by a tow truck from Kawartha Motors.

In charge of investigation were O.P.P. Corporal Fred Rawlings and Constable Wallace Mohns.

Suing Studios To Force TV Film Release

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The United States government this week was suing to force studios to release their pictures to television. But the major companies still presented a strong front against the new medium.

Still holding firm was conservative M-G-M, which has made no attempt to release its stars or pictures to TV. This week M-G-M boss Dore Schary told the Hollywood Advertising Club why the studio will not allow its contract players to appear on the home screens.

STARS FADE

"First of all, there are legal problems involved," the executive said. "We do not know what the attitude of the talent guilds will be. Secondly, we want control of a star's performance. We have built up the reputation, prestige and power of our star list because we have protected our stars.

"The lighting, cutting and camera angles on TV are not up to movie standards. We cannot afford to have a star make a poor appearance on TV.

"Also, we think stars would wear out their welcome if they appeared too often on TV. We have proven in the movie business that stars like Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy cannot remain popular if they appear in five or six pictures every year."

SIGN OF THE TIMES

The M-G-M production chart lists 39 feature pictures being made. But six are shooting in London, and one apiece in the Fiji Islands, Paris, New York, Rome, Mexico, Kanab, Utah, and Fort Lee, Va. Thus one-third of the films are on location, mostly out of the country. Is it any wonder film workers are groaning?

Ladies' Auxiliary Holds Meeting

APSLEY (ENS).—Members of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion Thursday held a quilting in the public library when a large piece-work quilt was quilted.

A pot-luck dinner was served at noon and afternoon tea was served during the afternoon.

Tickets will be sold on this quilt and a draw made at a later date.

Ladies who attended and assisted in the quilting included Mesdames R. Scott, O. Montgomery, C. Smith, N. Doxsee, W. Peters, M. Colby, Norman Reddick, Martin Reddick, V. Brundage and B. McIlmoyle.

The first dance in the new Legion Hall was held Saturday night. The hall will be officially opened in the near future and will provide a first class large dance floor and good stage for musicians.

MILITARY UNIT

Development of the regiment as a military unit dates from the 16th century when British armies were permanently organized.

UNEMPLOYMENT, DUE TO LAYOFFS caused by the steel strike, slowly creeps across the nation as more and more factories are forced to shut down for lack of steel. As seen on Newsmap, among the hardest hit are the auto and auto parts industries, many of which are also engaged in defence work. The Army announced the shutdown of its largest shell-making plant, at St. Louis, Mo., for lack of steel. Railroads and producers of heavy industrial equipment and tractors are also badly pinched. However, with the strike now settled, unemployment is expected to drop off again shortly.

Journalistic Woods Full Of "Interesting" Characters

Almost everybody says to a reporter, sometime or another: "You must meet some interesting people."

Well, reporters do meet interesting people. There's no doubt of it. But the gimmick is that the interesting people — characters, that is—are almost all newspapermen.

Mind you, reporters aren't all characters. Neither are their bosses, the editors, city editors and managing editors. But there is also no doubt that the profession attracts more screwballs than its rightful share.

There was one man who worked for a Toronto newspaper. He was night editor for a time, and his boss, the managing editor, was critical of some of his efforts, so critical that the hero screamed like a wounded panther and threw a pair of long, sharp copy shears at the boss.

TAKE A HOLIDAY

Instead of firing him on the spot, the boss told him to cool down, because he was going to send him to Europe on a holiday. He didn't have to write an inch of copy, just take a rest. If he felt like writing, fine, but if he didn't, that was all right, too.

Our hero said he'd love to go to Europe, and they shipped him away the next week to the Continent. He spent six weeks touring, didn't write an inch of copy, came back and told his boss he was quitting. And he did.

Still another Toronto newspaperman, a character who talked like a refugee from a Damon Runyon story, was hired through the classified ad columns. His ad was an eye-catcher, and probably the only one of its kind. It read like this:

"Newspaper's trained seal:
Borne in Nova Scotia,
Bred in Boston,
Tempered in Louisiana,
Cooled off in the Yukon,
And browned off with the Red Sox.

Please write Box ——. Would prefer Canadian daily.

The cooling off in the Yukon was achieved by some time spent in the R.C.A.F. as editor of a station newspaper. The reference to the Red Sox was another of the reporter's sore spots. Just discharged from the air force, he had wagered every cent of his gratuities on the Boston Red Sox to win the World's Series. The Sox haven't won a World's Series for years, and they didn't then.

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY

Toronto newspapermen aren't all crazy, but some of them were a pretty happy-go-lucky crew.

There was another who was covering the police beat on the day that the Toronto cops cracked down on dozens of gaming houses in the Queen City. He worked for an afternoon newspaper, and when the opposition hit the street with all kinds of stories and pictures about the raid, his city editor looked around the newsroom.

Finally he spotted his police reporter, who had no story at all about gaming house raids. The reporter was playing cribbage with a friend.

"See this?" the city editor screamed.

"Yep," said the reporter.

"Come here, you so-and-so idiot!"

"Wait until I finish this hand."

And so the city editor waited all of two minutes, patiently tearing his hair out—what was left of it—until the reporter came to the desk.

"See this?" the city editor repeated, in a restrained, trembling voice.

"Yep."

"Why the so-and-so didn't we have this? Didn't you know about it?"

"Sure I knew about it."

If ever a top was blown in a newsroom, it was blown that day. The city editor was so mad he could have torn the reporter into little bits and filed him anatomically.

"Well, why the blue everlasting blasted blazes didn't you tell me?"

"I'm no stool pigeon."

So help me, the reporter wasn't even fired.

The cortege left the home of his parents for St. Paul's Anglican Church where service was conducted by Canon J. M. Brownlie.

Burial took place in Fox's Cemetery, Eldorado.

The pall-bearers were Delbert McGarvey, Earl Lucas, Lionel Brown, Ralph Gray, Douglas Vilneff and Keith McCoy.

Canny Sailors

OSLO (CP)—Thirty-one crew members of the freighter Ferngulf have formed an aboard-ship stock company to buy a movie projector. Each chipped in $10 toward the projector. Crew members who are not stockholders have to pay 40 cents admission for each show and the same goes for passengers.

Fined For Erroneous Ad

TORONTO (CP) — Vitamineral Laboratories Limited of Toronto yesterday was fined $350 and costs of $74 for using "misleading" and "erroneous" advertisements of its vitamin compound. The firm pleaded guilty. The federal health department said the firm's statement that "it's 100 to one you're not getting enough vitamins in your diet" was misleading.

Proposes Boycott Of Bricklayers

TORONTO (CP)—J. M. Soules, president of the Ontario General Contractors Association, last night proposed a boycott of bricklayers by the construction industry unless the A.F.L. Bricklayers Union becomes more co-operative.

Mr. Soules, commenting on the union's refusal to lay bricks on a job at nearby Oakville because they were asked to punch a time clock, said: "There is a real possibility that owners, architects and general contractors will avoid the use of masonry in construction of new buildings unless the bricklayers' union comes to its senses."

At Oakville, the contracting firm of Anglin-Norcross, working on a new Ford of Canada assembly plant, is preparing to construct walls of poured concrete instead of brick.

Police Are Sorry

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Police last night collared a suspect in a bicycle theft but almost wished they hadn't when they tried to enter his name on the occurrence sheet. Charged with theft was Artominonarium Maergeneonu, 50, of New Glasgow, a native of Romania who said he was looking for work on district tobacco farms.

Adventists Elect Head

OSHAWA (CP)—G. Eric Jones yesterday was re-elected president of the Ontario-Quebec Conference of the Seventh Day Adventist Church. Delegates from 34 churches in the two provinces attended the convention. Members elected to the executive committee included William J. Pincombe, St. Thomas.

Defence Dept. Swamped With College Applications

OTTAWA (CP)—The Defence Department is being swamped with applications by young men of both language groups who want to go to Canada's first officer-training school designed primarily French-speaking Canadians.

Applications for entry to College Militaire Royal de St. Jean, opening this September, started Monday. By the end of the first week there were more than 400 applicants and army officials were predicting the total will hit 1,000 before the deadline, July 31.

Authorities say the reaction is far beyond expectations.

ROOM FOR 100

There is room for only 100 candidates at the school this fall and reviewing boards next month will decide which men should be selected.

One surprising feature of the first-week flood is that about half the applicants are English-speaking.

It has been stressed that the St. Johns, Que., school will be primarily but not exclusively designed to train French-speaking officers. Emphasis will be placed on helping the cadets learn the language which is not their mother tongue. Fort St. John—apparently that ir to be the short name for the school—is the third services college to open. The others are Royal Military College at Kingston and Royal Roads on Vancouver Island.

Officials say about 1,000 applications have been received for entry to R.M.C. and Royal Roads this fall and that reviewing boards will go to work soon to select the 200 who can be accommodated there.

Under a new system, a young man who agrees to join the regular forces for three years after graduation can have his way paid through the three schools.

Traders Feel Confidence On Exchange

By DICK BAIDEN.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Canadian stock market traders felt renewed confidence this week as cautious buying pushed prices steadily higher.

The market's advance, however was neither general nor broad. Selected industrials, base metals, and western oils fared best while golds drifted in desultory trading.

The current selectivity, Toronto professionals said, would probably characterize any market advance within the next few months. But the week's gain was seen by many as proof that the predicetd summer advance had begun.

MOST STRIKE REACTION

Solution Thursday of the United States steel strike produced little reaction on Canadian Markets yesterday. Observers pointed out that the strike's end had been anticiputed for weeks and the steady rise of New York steel prices showed that investors there had largely discounted the effects of they added, followed New York's lead.

Toronto opened the week Monday with a mild decline as western oils slipped in sporadic profit-taking. Industrials and metals, however, were steady. Papers and industrials made little headway in Montreal.

Sporadic selling Tuesday depressed selected gold issues but other sections showed little change. Papers and industrials remained steady in Montreal.

Industrials and metals turned upward in Toronto Wednesday while golds and oils drifted. Papers and industrials edged higher in Montreal.

OILS MOVE UP

Oils replaced metals in Toronto Thursday to join industrials in a steady advance. Metals and golds made little headway. In Montreal, papers and industrials extended a slow advance.

Metals and industrials pushed the market's advance through its third consecutive session in Toronto yesterday while golds and oils drifted. Papers and industrials again edged upward.

New York prices climbed cautiously Monday in light trading. Prices gained again Tuesday and pushed the advance through Wednesday as oils and rails improved.

The rally continued Thursday as the volume swelled. Mild profit-taking yesterday, however, skimmed gains.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials up 3.22 at 322.86, golds down 1.87 at 92.65, base metals up 3.64 at 195.14 and western oils down .49 at 137.77.

In the Montreal averages, banks were up .09 at 30.39, utilities up .7 a5 86.7, industrials up 4.4 at 214.1, combined up 3.1 at 171.6 papers up 10.50 at 715.56 and golds up 0.08 at 64.95.

In New York, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks jumped $1.40 to $107.80.

May Be Four-Six Weeks Before Production Normal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian business, which depends on the United States for about 30 per cent of its steel supply, welcomed the end of the 54-day U.S. steel strike yesterday. But its enthusiasm was tempered by the knowledge that it may be four to six weeks before production gets back to capacity and shipments to Canada are resumed.

Automotive and other heavy industries, along with the oil industry in Alberta, suffered most from the lack of steel during the strike. There were indications that they might not get back normal supplies until the end of the summer.

SHIPPING TO BENEFIT

Shipping on the Great Lakes may be the first to benefit once the steel workers and ore miners go back to work. Iron ore shipments from the Mesabi Range in Minnesota halted during the walkout and shipping dwindled to a trickle. Canadian vessels turned from the ore to the grain trade.

The end of the strike came in time for one of Canada's biggest steel plants to avert a possible curtailment of operations next year. The Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton said it would be able to bring in enough ore before the end of the shipping season to avert a shortage during the winter.

In Alberta, oil men do not expect they will get needed steel for another two or three months. Ninety of 250 oil-drilling rigs are reported idle this week because the owners cannot get the steel they needed to fulfil present contracts or take new ones. Meantime, some plan to rely on shipments of steel pipe from Japan, France, Germany, The Netherlands and Belgium.

At Hamilton an official of the Studebaker Corporation of Canada said the end of the strike had not come in time to enable the company to resume production after a two-week shutdown which began yesterday.

G.M. PLANS UNCERTAIN

At Oshawa, General Motors of Canada also started a two-week holiday. It notified most of its employees to report for work Aug. 11. Others were told they will be notified to return if work is available. Several hundred employees have been idle for weeks and President W.A. Wecker said it is "too soon to predict when the supply situation will be back to normal."

Chrysler of Canada officials at Windsor estimated it will be at least three more weeks before it is able to resume operations. Its plant has been closed since July 11.

Ford of Canada at Windsor declined comment. Earlier its officials said the company would continue production until its annual two-week vacation shutdown begins Aug. 1.

To Fly Dieppe Vets

OTTAWA (CP)—A party of 36 Canadians veterans of the Dieppe raid of 1942 will observe the 10th anniversary of the one-day attack in Dieppe itself, the army said yesterday. The men, representing units which took part in the assault, will fly by R.C.A.F. from Montreal Aug. 14 and will return Aug. 23. The anniversary is Aug. 19.

Unearth Stones Believed 6,000 Years Old

LONDON (CP)—Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Rudge of West Ham, two Essex archaeologists, have unearthed the course of an early Stone Age track thought to be about 6,000 years old.

It leads from the neolithic flint mines of Norfolk to a point southwest of the Thames and beyond—a distance of about 130 miles.

The discovery, experts say, is important if for no other reason than it shows that scores of flint and silica boulders, known as "pudding stones," in East Anglia are apparently Stone Age track markers. If this is confirmed the "Tradenoisian" Road, as it is known, is probably the oldest marked highway in the world.

NOT DISTURBED

The stones, neither in keeping with the geology of the area nor the remains of glacial action, were held in veneration at one time. Pope Gregory told his missionaries not to destroy them in 601 A.D. Even today, villagers call them "breeding stones," or "mother stones," and they are not built-over or disturbed.

Dr. Rudge and his wife, who began the investigation about three years ago, believe the track was made by men of a grave-dwelling culture in one of the drier cycles of the boreal period, some 6,000 years ago.

The western end of the neolithic highway remains to be discovered. The track curves due west along the northern bank of the Thames. It crosses the upper waters and then becomes submerged in Berkshire.

Dr. Rudge believes this ancient trade route will be traced into the cultural remains of Dorset.

Canadian TV Makes Debut

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian television made an informal debut last night as the CBC experimentally produced its first live TV program by telecasting the nightcap of a double-header between Montreal Royals and Springfield Cubs of the International Baseball League.

Despite the fact that CBFT, Canada's first television station, was transmitting on only about one-quarter of its eventual power, reception was good and won the approval of throngs who crowded 2½-hour performance.

In suburban Verdun, furniture stores set chesterfields before their sets and served tea and cakes to the customers.

Steel Strike Ended

Whatever the merits of the settlement conditions, Canadians must hail with relief the ending of the steel workers' strike in the United States, the longest and costliest in that country's history. The strike came very near to dislocating Canadian industry of many, many kinds, cutting off essential supplies and forcing into unemployment tens of thousands of Canadian workers.

* * *

The settlement resulted from a bold demand by President Truman, whose intervention earlier had been thrown out of court. The President's stature is greatly enhanced. There must also have been some political dealing to achieve the return to work, for certainly the Democratic Party in convention this week to nominate a presidential candidate had an accession of strength because of the strike's end; or rather, the end prevented the opposition camp, the Republicans, from making political hay out of the continuance of the strike, and of accusing the Democratic administration of ineffective handling of the situation. The Democrats needed a settlement before their convention ended. Its coming gave them a new hold on the Labour vote.

The Festival Idea

A few weeks ago we commented in these columns on the enterprise of the people of Stratford, Ont., who have been investigating the possibility of holding an annual Shakespeare festival in their city. Since that time they have taken the advice of Mr. Tyrone Guthrie, who is internationally known as a theatre director, and whose association with the Edinburgh Festival has contributed greatly to the success of that venture. What Mr. Guthrie said about Stratford has significance for Canada as a whole.

* * *

He warned against any festival which was organized solely as a money-maker. Such advice must be unwelcome in the ears of many Canadians who feel, quite honestly and sincerely, that the chief aim of a festival is to attract tourists and charm money out of their pockets. But a festival, as Mr. Guthrie pointed out, may have another and greater purpose; it may be an expression of what is finest in the life and aspiration of a country. That is what the Edinburgh Festival has become. If it were organized solely to make money, it could be done comparatively cheaply by arranging some Highland games and some parades of Highland regiments; instead, it recruits the finest musical and dramatic ability in the world, and that costs vast sums of money. The Edinburgh Festival makes money, certainly, because it brings money to the Edinburgh hotelkeepers and shopkeepers, but the festival itself is not organized with the making of money as its chief aim. What the Edinburgh Festival does do is to direct the attention of the whole civilized world toward Scotland, and to raise Scottish prestige everywhere.

* * *

In the world of art Canada has no prestige whatever; in the eyes of the world we are a nation of wealthy, lawabiding, hard-working, lucky savages. If we want prestige other than the kind which comes from having the best dollar in the world (and it may be that we do not) we must gain it by showing the world that we can do something which cannot be duplicated elsewhere. If Stratford wishes to have a Shakespeare festival it must not be an imitation of the festival at Stratford in England; it must be something different and something first-rate in its own way. The organization of such a festival, says Mr. Guthrie, will cost a great deal of money, and we are certain he is right. But it would present Canada to the world in an entirely new and flattering light, he continues, and we believe that, also.

* * *

The advice that Stratford has received is valid for the rest of Canada, as well. This is now a rich and important country, and the seedy amateurism which has afflicted the arts here for so long is not good enough for our new place in the world. A majority of Canadians, having no interest in the arts, and no suspicion that the arts are important, do not recognize this situation as yet, but that is not a matter of consequence: a majority of Canadians have never yet recognized the importance of any great forward movement in our country's history until a minority of alert and perceptive people had completed it. If any development in the festival line is to take place in Canada it can only succeed on the highest level; it must not be organized to make money, but to be the best thing of its kind in the world; if it makes money, well and good, but its first task is to be good, and to bring honour to Canada.

Canada To Present A New Pattern Of Power?

Addressing the Spring Congregation of the University of British Columbia, the Canadian writer Roderick Haig-Brown said that if he could have one wish for Canada today, it would be that she shall never become a great power. "It seems to be in the history of all great nations that their strength begins to fade almost in the moment of its realization. The very fact of power forces them on to exhaustion, so that the early strength dies in them even as they reach for the last iota of power that would make them all-powerful. For power breeds a hatred in others that makes more power always necessary to defend power."

Mr. Haig-Brown may have been referring to the Roman Empire, or to the Holy Roman Empire, or even to the briefer Napoleonic Empire. Could he also have meant the British Empire and the American? It seems to us that in these last two, power does not corrupt as it had done, and the staying strength of British imperialism and American imperialism is greater for the reason that their use of power is enlightened, their abuse of it is small. While power does breed a hatred in others (as Englishmen were hated before the Great War, as Americans are now hated, not only by Russia, but in so-called friendly countries) and power allied to wealth rouses the envy and animosity of the less-powerful, the less wealthy, whether they be individual persons or a whole race, Britain of this century and now the United States may have learnt enough about the pitfalls of power to avert its age-old potential to self-destruction.

This thesis is not easily maintained in the face of the weakening of the British Commonwealth and the two wars which bled Britain of her power. Nor when one sees the terrible cost to the United States of her power now—the billions of dollars for defence, the other billions to aid other nations willing to pool their resources in the defence of Western and American policy — can one avoid a suspicion that even the great, wealthy and powerful United States may be spending herself, undermining her strength in an agonizing effort to be strong enough to bear the power she has gained. Even in a material sense, is the U.S.A. not exhausting her resources, her raw materials?

Canadians must hope that both Britain and the United States are formulating a new pattern of power, a use of it which does not destroy; for Canada herself cannot avoid becoming a great power, no matter how fervently Canadians may wish that she does not become one. If the United States and Britain before her have pointed the way to power which is not destructive and self-destroying, Canada may achieve full power (for she is not yet a Great Power) just as a new philosophy of power is matured.

Mr. Haig-Brown says that despite his dearest wish, nothing is going to keep Canada from becoming a great power. Perhaps by taking thought now, we can avoid the "dreary pattern" of history. He believes that this can be done. "We are a young people, not yet rigidly bound by old habits of thought. We have never been forced into an intense and narrow nationalism; and we have been learning to think internationally almost from the start of our own nationhood."

It is a reasonable hope. Britain's power has waned—but she is not a nation destroyed. The dismemberment of the old British Empire came about because of, not in spite of, Britain, since Britain deliberately condoned and assisted in the process. Britain has used her power to preserve herself, while shedding some of it. The United States is employing her imperial power with "enlightened self-interest"; and if enough Americans listen to voices like that of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt who this week at the Democratic Party convention made a moving plea for international co-operation, then the United States may be saved from the fate of ancient and mediaeval empires. ("Assyria, Greece, Rome, Carthage, what are they?" Byron observed).

So a new concept of power may be developing, and when Canada comes to the fullness of her own time, power may have preservative rather than destructive uses, and a new philosophy of power may be given real expression in Canada's bearing as a great nation.

Most Terrible Instrument

"Perhaps the most terrible implement of destruction ever delivered into human hands," said the London Times. Generals seeing the new weapon, its startling speed and its great penetration, believed that it made all others of its kind obsolete. But this is not some new instrument of destruction to succeed the A-bomb. The excitement and fright and grave words of the Times are a century old. The weapon was the latest repeating pistol brought to England in 1851 by Samuel Colt. The public mind then was agitated by its "terrible celerity", powerfully impressed by its penetration of seven inches of board, and speculative of the dire possibilities of the repeater and the "automatics" which followed it. Did not the Colt revolvers, in the hands of eight American marine demonstrators, discharge in five minutes no fewer than 184 balls all told? Perhaps it is consolation today to realize that in other ages, too, men have stood in awe of their own inventions.

Why They Chose The Man Not Wanting It

By KENNETH HARRIS

WHY HAVE the leaders of the Democratic Party (chosen) Adlai Stevenson, Governor of Illinois, as Democratic candidate in the Presidential election in November, in spite of the fact that ever since he was seriously considered for the job last March he has said that he did not want it?

First, because they have seen that he is a first-class vote-getter. This was proved by the results of the elections in 1948. In that year, Adlai Stevenson, who had never taken any part in politics and was known to only comparatively few members of the administration in Washington as a part-time diplomat and United Nations delegate, was entered as Democrat candidate in the contest for the Governorship of Illinois. He had no record to run on, having never been in politics before.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN A COMPARATIVELY isolationist State like Illinois—Stevenson's chief supporter was very worried when he heard that Stevenson had been educated at Oxford University and was reassured only when Stevenson wired him to say that he had not even been to school at Eton—his career as diplomat would have told against rather than for him. Nevertheless, in a year when the Republicans were confident of getting their candidate elected, Stevenson won the election by the greatest majority ever reigstered in the State of Illinois. It was a result which was discussed from one end of the country to the other. Everybody knew that Stevenson must have won because his fresh, open, friendly personality, pronounced speaking ability, good humour and obviously superior mind and outlook placed him well above the usual run of men who seek the Governorship of Illinois.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE SECOND THING about Stevenson is that in view of his record as Governor of Illinois, he has become on that record alone a really outstanding Presidential candidate. For several great Presidential candidates—and great Presidents — a successful governorship of a big State was the basic qualification which introduced them to the Presidential scene. Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt are outstanding examples. Stevenson's record, in the four years in which he has held office in Illinois, compared favourably even with the splendid first-term achievements of these great governors.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE ARE TWO additional—circumstancial—reasons why as Governor of Illinois Stevenson makes an outstanding Presidential candidate. Illinois, as far as national elections are concerned, is the fourth most powerful vote-carrying state of the whole forty-eight. In 1948 President Truman only just managed to carry it for the Democratic camp. With Stevenson as their Presidential candidate, the Democrats can be certain of carrying it this year and carrying Illinois may make the difference to them between winning or losing the election. The other circumstantial benefit which being Governor of Illinois confers on Stevenson as Presidential candidate is the fact that nearly the whole of his great four years' work in Illinois has been devoted to breaking up the alliance between gangsters and gamblers and certain crooked politicians which had reduced government in Illinois to a dangerously low level of public morality. In a year in which the main issue of the elections will be the Republican charge that Democratic leaders all over the country and in Washington have been involved in income-tax scandals, the fact that the Democratic candidate is a man known for his brilliant record in cleaning up crime and corruption in his own State— not just talking about it in front of a television camera like Senator Kefauver —will be the greatest asset the Democratic Party could hope to have.

✧ ✧ ✧

ABOVE ALL, the fact that the Democratic candidate is a man of administrative and practical political experience who has daily been face to face with the ordinary humdrum domestic issues confronting the nine million white and coloured folk who live in Illinois —some in the great industrial city of Chicago, others in little farm towns and villages —will help the Democrats tremendously in their battle against General Eisenhower whose practical political experience and contact with domestic affairs is still very limited.

✧ ✧ ✧

ODD AS IT may seem, the third thing which has made the political leaders anxious to have Stevenson is that he has not wished to take the job of Presidency this year, preferring, as he has said on an average once a week since early April, to carry on with his work in Illinois. For several months the Republicans, who always sought Eisenhower as their candidate, have been explaining that they wanted a man who had never had any political ambition, was above politics and who could be persuaded to become a Presidential candidate only if he felt he had been called to duty by the American people. Whatever his motives in so doing, by his repeated pleas that he be left alone to get on with his work in Illinois, Stevenson has by now put himself with the same class as General Eisenhower.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN FACT, Stevenson is in this respect in even more exclusive class than Eisenhower. The General said early this year that he would never campaign for the Republican nomination, and then was told that he would have to campaign, and campaign vigorously, to get it. For the last five weeks before the Republican Convention he threw himself whole-heartedly into politics, making, for a man who had claimed always to be above them, a remarkably energetic and down-to-earth fight. Stevenson, on the other hand, stayed out till the final crisis of the Convention, and refused to lift a finger to further his nomination or to encourage his friends to do so.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FOURTH REASON making for Stevenson's nomination has been that on the great domestic issue which every year threatens to split the Democratic Party—the civil rights, or treatment of the Negro issue — Stevenson's position is one which is tolerable to both sides. The Northern Democrats, who on the whole are liberal Democrats, know that Stevenson is at heart a liberal who will always try to steer the ship of state, whether it be Illinois or America, in a liberal direction. On the other hand, the Southern Democrats, who are Conservative in their attitude towards the Negro question, know that as a statesman of Illinois he inherits a tradition of leaving individual States to settle their Negro problems as best they can.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS YEAR the customary fight on civil rights—again on the question of whether to include in the party platform a plank demanding that Congress enact legislation compelling all States to give the Negro full political and economic rights—has been bitter. All the major Democratic candidates looked like increasing rather than reducing the bitterness, having taken strong stands on one side or the other. Stevenson, quite apart from his other qualifications, has proved the ideal compromise candidate. And all the more an attractive compromise candidate, in view of the fact that, on individual merit, personality and mental ability he is generally regarded as superior to all those who were officially entered for the party's nomination.

MODERN CANTERBURY TALES

Cycling Round The Zuyderzee

(NETHERLANDS TRAVEL NEWS)

The Netherlands National Tourist Office (A.N.V.V.) has this year planned something completely new in the field of tourism together with the Koninklijke Nederlandse Touristenbond A.N.W.B. (Royal Netherlands Tourist Association).

Holland has for long been known as the country of the bicycle. Nearly everyone in Holland possesses such a means of transport, so it is not surprising that Holland has an extensive network of cycle paths in excellent condition, reaching out to all parts of the country and lending itself to the making of attractive trips.

As part of the campaign to promote youth tourism, both the above organizations want to arouse interest, outside as well as inside the country, in the opportunities which the Netherlands provide for the cycling tourist. They have therefore planned an attractive trip, known as the "pennant trip", which runs round the IJssel Lake and can be completed without difficulty in ten days with a daily average of not more than 40 to 50 kilometres.

The trip can be made during the whole of the summer season, from June to August inclusive, and even in September and the cyclist can start on any day he wishes.

Those completing the round trip will be given an attractive pennant with a picture of the monument erected in Spaarndam in memory of legendary Dutch boy Pieter who, according to an American nursery story, once saved Haarlem from being flooded by plugging a hole in the dyke with his finger all night.

The trip is open particularly to camping, hiking and tourist youth organisations.

Before starting participants should report to the V.V.V. (Local Tourist Enquiry Office) in Amsterdam, Zwolle, Utrecht, or Arnhem. They can have their route book stamped at V.V.V. offices in Amsterdam, Alkmaar, Steenwijk, Kampen, Utrecht or at a post in the national park "De Hooge Veluwe". The trip runs from Amsterdam to Haarlem-IJmuiden, through the dunes to Alkmaar, through the Beemster polder to Volendam, along the IJssel Lake via Hoorn to Enkhuizen, by boat to Staveren, over Steenwijk, Giethoorn and through the North East Polder to Kampen, over Nunspeet to the "Hooge Veluwe", via Harskamp to Amersfoort, over Spakenburg, Hilversum to Utrecht, along the River Vecht back to Amsterdam.

Accents Of Canada

(Ottawa Journal)

We noticed that Angus Maclean, 38, was born in Prince Edward Island, and Davie Fulton, 36, was born in British Columbia. Listening to them in the House of Commons we once more stirred to the thought that before long we will identify Canadians by their accents, just as the Texan and Virginian can be spotted in the United States.

Mr. Maclean, as might be expected from a man with a good Scottish name, has a slight burr and Mr. Fulton, as is the case with many a British Columbian, could pass for an Englishman who had spent a good many years abroad.

Even the English-speaking people in Quebec, we suspect, have gathered a fragment of the French enunciation. We readily confess to difficulty in locating in Ontario where we hear the Irish twang of the Ottawa Valley, the slightly-patronizing note of Toronto and the gruff voice of the Northern Ontario prospector and frontiersman.

The Prairies we group together in a common tone, noting in passing that the Icelanders appear to have imposed some of their accents on their neighbours, and we suspect that the people of the plains, more than any others in Canada, have adopted the voice of their neighbours across the border. An acute ear is needed to differentiate between a man from Montana and his friend from Alberta, but the tourist from Oregon in Victoria, B. C., must feel the English are still there.

This confusion of accents, according to our argument, is good for Canada. We all like being Canadians but we don't want to be the same. A bit of individuality in accent seems to us as attractive as a cowboy hat on a man from Calgary or the lively gestures with which a French-Canadian accompanies his words. Jack Canuck would be a dull boy indeed if the Newfoundlander (there's a real accent), the lad from Lake Winnipeg and the Vancouver Island logger spoke alike, dressed alike and thought alike. All for variety, we say.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Moses called all Israel, and said unto them, Hear, O Isreal, the statutes and judgements which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and keep, and do them. (Deut. 5: 1.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lord did not set his love upon you nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people; for ye were the fewest of all people: but because the Lord loved you, and because he would keep the oath which he had sworn unto your fathers, hath the Lord brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondmen, from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt.

Know therefore that the Lord thy God, he is God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments to a thousand generations. (Deut. 7: 7-9.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For the Lord's portion is his people; Jacob is the lot of his inheritance. He found him in a desert land, and in the waste howling wilderness; he led him about, he instructed him, he kept him as the apple of his eye. As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings: so the Lord alone did lead him, and there was no strange god with him. (Deut. 32: 9-12.)

✧ ✧ ✧

O God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee, my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is; to see thy power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary. Because thy lovingkindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee. (Ps. 63: 1-3.)

Costly Parking

(Edmonton Journal)

Curious are the things that happen when coin boxes of one kind or another are put up in public places and passers-by are invited or commanded to contribute to them.

The City of Edmonton, for example, has built up quite a collection of exotic objects found in parking meters. They include foreign coins of many lands — pesos, annas, guilders, shillings and yen. Also on hand are the inevitable slugs, used by the thrifty to save a couple of cents. A variant on these was a nickel with a string attached, which some motorist vainly hoped to pull out of the meter when his hour was up.

But the strangest object found was a $25 American gold piece which someone absently-mindedly dropped in for the most expensive parking in history.

Police With Rats

(Ottawa Citizen)

As far back as October, 1927, Ottawa's Board of Control decided to recommend to City Council construction of a new police headquarters, at an estimated cost of $300,000. The project came to nothing. Those who rejected it hardly performed a public service. They saved the rate-payers of the day the cost of a new station. But they left an expensive legacy to the succeeding generation of taxpayers. For a new headquarters must be built anyway, and at far higher prices than was possible in 1927. In the meantime, opponents of the scheme condemned policemen and prisoners to a rat-infested building that most people would consider unfit for their pet animals.

Two of Canada's Race of Giants Felled By Their Own Deeds of Strength Century Ago; Queen Victoria Amazed

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

"There were giants in the earth in those days".

And dwarfs, too.

The "days" to which reference is made here in the words of Genesis were those about a century ago. In the middle Eighteen-eighties Canadian (especially Scottish - Canadian) fecundity seems to have been in high-gear, bringing forth an inordinate crop of neo-Samsons of heroic mould in both frontal elevation and avoirdupois.

Local people are familiar with the story of Peterborough's own giant, Daniel Macdonald, who lifted 1,600 pounds and passed on to his long rest in the Little Lake cemetery in 1871, untroubled further by hylomorphic tables of weights and measures.

But Peterborough people are not so familiar with the history of other Canadian Strong Men who waxed and waned in Daniel Macdonald's day, particularly the life story of Angus MacAskill, the Cape Breton giant.

GIGANTIC GIANT

MacAskill, a more gigantic giant than Macdonald in stature and physical power, came to world-celebrity in the course of a colorful career. A glance at the life-spans of the contemporary Big Men reveals many interesting similarities. A common fate, indeed, dogged the two along their parallel paths. Both were victims of their own strength, and both came to tragic untimely ends.

A letter published in the Examiner not long since recalls to mind some of the moving incidents and associations which marked the heyday of MacAskill's career, at the time when Macdonald was at the Zenith of his powers, a few years before his death.

The writer of the Examiner letter, G. A. Cleveland Shrigley, of Buffalo, N.Y. appeals to Peterborough readers for data or personal recollections relating to the world-celebrated midget, "General Tom Thumb" (Charles S. Stratton, 1838-1863) for use in a biography he is writing.

Notwithstanding the violent contrast of the giant and the dwarf, of the macroscopic and the microscopic Angus MacAskill and Tom Thumb were close friends, having toured together Old and New Worlds. Tom Thumb was the protege of the illustrious showman, P. T. Barnum. It is not improbable that Macdonald saw them both on their visits to Peterborough.

SCHOOL TEACHER'S STORY

The story of MacAskill has been told in inimitable fashion by the Maritime school teacher, James D. Gillis, in his book "The Cape Breton Giant; a Truthful Memoir" (published by T. C. Allen & Co., Halifax). Gillis, who wrote books in both prose and verse, a text book on grammar, and prepared a simplified map of the world, is the dominant figure in the quartette of Canadian poets dealt with by William Arthur Deacon in one of his earlier works, "The Four Jameses," the other versifiers being James Gay, "Poet Laureate of Canada and Master of All Poets"; James McIntyre, "The Cheese Poet," and James McRae "The Man From Glengarry."

The Toronto library critic finds much to praise in Gillis's prose style; his "fluent English and stately, philosophic reflections by the way". He adds: "Cultivating a nheroic style to harmonize with the dimensions of MacAskill, Gillis let his genius have free play, with the result that he produced the most remarkable prose work ever composed on Canadian soil". A notable judgment, to be sure. Its meaning becomes clearer when it is read with its context: "Just as we read 'The French Revolution' for the flavor of Carlyle, regardless of how interesting his facts may be in themselves, so we read 'The Cape Breton Giant' for Gillis rather than MacAskill, and are richly repaid".

In the mind of Gillis, MacAskill loomed as a hero, towering among the Great Ones of earth who flourished in song, story or fable. Hearken to the description of "the man whose size, strength, kindness, virtues and exploits will long be remembered. In his own realm he was the Bonnie Charlie, the Wallace, thhe Bruce, the Napoleon Bonaparte, the Marshal Ney, the Wellington, the Nelson, the O'Connell, the Robert Burns, or the Washington of his countless friends, according as they happened to be impressed by the different phases of his greatness."

BORN IN HEBRIDES

On the island of Lewis, in the Outer Hebrides, MacAskill was born in 1825, 13 years before Peterborough's Macdonald, another son of Scotland. As an infant, MacAskill was small, sickly and not expected to live. At the age of six he went with his family to St. Ann's, in Cape Breton. Gillis notes that the Cape Breton climate is "exceptionally conducive to the growth of humanity" but gives no reason for MacAskill's abnormal size save in a remark that "he always ate a bowl of palatable mixture of cream and oatmeal, sometimes called crowdie, after each meal." (Quaker Oats: Please note free advt. offered with true Scottish liberality).

MacAskill and Tom Thumb, in the course of their world travels, were warm friends. The midget, who is said to have been "the smallest full-grown man that ever lived," had a lively sense of humor and was clever in repartee. He could sing well. MacAskill was wont to lift Tom to the palm of his right hand where the little fellow would dance merrily. Thereupon the giant would drop him into his pocket. Sometimes Tom would throw himself into a boxing attitude, challenging MacAskill to fight, to the Strong Man's vast amusement. Tom Thumb hailed the day he met MacAskill as "the red-letter day in my life; he is such good company." Frequently it was necessary then to travel by coach in visiting provincial towns.

GREAT AND LITTLE GENERAL

Barnum's own autobiography tells the story of the acclaim with which Tom Thumb was welcomed in London. He became a favorite of Queen Victoria, others of the Royal Family, and the nobility in general. The Duke of Wellington called frequently to see the little General at his public levees. At the first meeting Tom Thumb was wearing the uniform of Napoleon Bonaparte, marching to and fro, seemingly taking snuff in deep thought. The "Iron Duke" inquired as to the subject of his meditations. "I was thinking of the loss of the battle of Waterloo" was the quick, mirth-provoking rejoinder. In Paris, "General Tom Pouce" was welcomed similarly at the court of Louis Philippe and by the public.

Queen Victoria invited MacAskill to Windsor Castle and after a lengthy chat gave him two gold rings, saying afterward that he was the tallest, stoutest and strongest man who ever entered the palace. Gillis reports that the giant, regretting that there was no means of showing his power of lifting, contrived to leave a token of his strength on the sly. As he walked back and forth before Her Majesty he secretly pressed the thick carpet with his heels. When he left it was cut in breadcutter fashion.

Gillis tells of his hero's enjoyment of his journeys abroad. A chapter on the giant's visit to Edinburgh is typical of the "grand manner" of the writer. Only two sentences are devoted to MasAskill. The remainder is given over to exploits of Sir William Wallace from the days in which he laid low armed English warriors, his sole weapon being a fishing rod. Wallace's sword is ranked among the wonders of the world. It was seven feet lond, and weighed 40 pounds, nine inches having been broken off. "Now, gentle reader", remarks Gillis, "think of the man who could wield it as easily as you could a bayonet."

A FOOT HAND

MacAskill's height was seven and three-fourths feet. He was three feet, eight inches, across the shoulders. The palm of his hand was six inches wide and 12 inches long. One of his boots still extant, is 18 inches long. His coat and vest can be buttoned about two good-sized men. He weighed more than 500 pounds. His face was beardless. His "massive wind organism" imparted to his musical voice a resonance like that of an ordinary man sitting in an empty puncheon.

Gillis, a teetotaller and foe of the liquor traffic, faces his supreme test as a truthful biographer in his mode of justifying his hero's use of tobacco and whisky. Tobacco, an ill-smelling weed, does no good as it is usually taken, so why not leave it alone? But, adds the writer, "applied to cuts or snake-bites, it is a valuable medicine." Despite his own predilections, the biographer is driven in the end to the view that MacAskill was "so robust and able" that it would take tobacco half a century to make the least impression on him. So a cherry-wood pipe which held one-sixth of a pound was not, perhaps, altogether an instrument of evil.

MacAskill was "no niggard in a liquor store," testifies Gillis. He would call for a drink for all hands at once upon entering. He took a glass occasionally. "Did I say glass?" the biographer asks. "Well, 'twas a mistake. He used to drink out of a wooden dish called a tub. The tub would hold three glasses."

HIS PROWESS

Gillis is sure, too, that if he were to chronicle truthfully and fully the exploits of MacAskill he would be classed among the great liars of his time. But he does not hesitate to set forth a good many examples of the giant's prowess. It was a mere commonplace for his hero to walk with a barrel of salt pork under each arm, or to lift a hundredweight with two fingers and hold it for 10 minutes with outstretched arm.

Then, too, there was the case of the powerful, burly pugilist from afar, who on a visit to peaceful St. Ann's challenged MacAskill to fight him. The local giant remonstrated, saying pugilism was an abomination. The stranger grew more persistent, throwing out at length a taunt of cowardice. "All right, my friend," replied MacAskill, "but let us shake hands." Gillis adds: "Well, dear reader, they did shake hands. Alas, for the stranger. I suppose he never smiled again. For MacAskill squeezed his hand, causing the blood to flow freely through the tips of his fingers."

On one occasion at a wholesale liquor store a group of visiting Americans sought to cast doubt on the accounts of MacAskill's deeds of strength. Calling for a drink for all hands, he stepped over to a puncheon of Scotch whiskey containing 140 gallons. Lifting it on one end, he rapped the head with his knuckles. The bung flew out, skyward. Raising the puncheon as if it were a jar he drank to the health of the bystanders. The abashed Americans were convinced that he ought to run for Congress.

MacASKILL PLOUGHED

Gillis records that while MacAskill and his father were ploughing he bet ten dollars with a neighbour that the field would be finished that evening. One of the horses, alas, became sick, whereupon the Strong Man took its place. Holding the traces, he was more than a match for the remaining horse, and carried on successfully for two hours.

Speaking of Cape Breton stalwarts, Gillis recalls that "The late Mr. Brussard (Jno. Brussard's father) of Margaree Forks had few equals. One day he hauled a plough by the side of an ox for six hours." Indeed, he adds, there were in the Nova Scotia peninsula scores of giants, though none comparing with MacAskill. He mentions by name some 20 who were titans either of, size or strength, or both, and cites some of their prodigious feats.

LOCAL STRONG MEN

But a glance at the records of the Kawartha district stalwarts of a comparable period suggests that had they been pitted against the "giants" of Cape Breton in a tug-of-war, the Bluenoses might not have walked away with a margin of honors. Peterborough's first miller, Adam Scott, was a man of great physical strength, as witness his carrying of his iron mill crank weighing 250 pounds through the snow of the wilderness trail, from Scott's Plains to Port Hope, for repairs. And back again a few days later. Similar prowess was shown by Robert Reid who had to drag from his house in Douro to Port Hope, a logging chain one link of which had been broken. Such instances might be multiplied at length, though MacAskill doubtless towered individually above any of his fellows.

Among the Kawartha Strong Men who were known far and wide in the roistering days of the lumber camps was "Bill" Montgomery. He was a fighting man, sometimes called a "bruiser." He frequently exhibited his powers as a weight-lifter, sometimes on wagers.

In 1878 Montgomery was shot and killed by R. N. (Bob) Roddy in Roddy's saloon on George St. Montgomery seems to have gone behind the bar threatening the smallish Roddy when the latter fired a revolver. The jury, having heard the plea of self-defence, disagreed and Roddy was set free. Tales of Montgomery's deeds of strength provide purple patches which stand out even among the colorful legends of the lumber or Cavan Blazer days.

The scene of one of his exploits was a Peterborough hotel wherein the treatment he was receiving was not to his liking and he was moved to show his displeasure. Lifting a large and glowing box-stove of great weight he is said to have carried it to the door and pitched it into a backyard snowdrift.

Although Montgomery's mortal wound was inflicted externally he was clearly a victim of his own strength, like the other men mentioned. An illusory sense of his puissance led him into the encounter which brought him to his violent end.

ANCHOR UNDOING

In the sad chapter which describes MacAskill's tragic undoing, Gillis tells how his hero was walking on a New York pier one evening and remarks that "Little did he know that soon, too soon, his blooming constitution was going to be blighted forever."

Taunted, according to one account, by French sailors, the Cape Breton giant lifted to his shoulder an anchor variously estimated to weigh 2,200 to 2,700 pounds. Peterborough's MacDonald lifted 1,600. Walking a short distance, MacAskill tossed the anchor aside but as he did so one of the flukes caught in his shoulder. He was so crippled that he never recovered permanently. Gillis suggests that his injury was spinal as afterwards he could never stand erect.

Possessed by this time of a "snug fortune" MacAskill lived some years after the accident, engaged in milling until his shattered frame was overborne by an attack of brain fever.

HIS COFFIN

Gillis devotes his most moving chapter to an account of "The Coffin." Coffins then were not imported and two "reputable carpenters made one of native pine boards, which then were plentiful, in six hours. The cover was one-fourth glass. In size, the coffin was "the sight of a lifetime." It was "costly lined with white cloth." So finely proportioned was it that it gave no suggestion of the "uncouth."

The minister's "Christian and modest eulogy of our hero will long be remembered," wrote Gillis. "But ere he had neared the end the mists of sadness began to dissolve 'like the dim fabric of a vision' and when the moment of benediction arrived there was not a sad heart in the crowd."

The actual dimensions of the coffin need not be given, the biographer feels. Figures are easily forgotten but not so the following disclosure: "When the woodwork of the coffin was finished it was found to be sufficient to bear or float three men across the Bay of St. Ann's."

"On the upper level of the cemetery," Gillis concludes, "a mound of earth 12 feet in length, artistically set off with gravel and a respectable gravestone, mark the earthly resting-place of our hero."

L'ENVOI

Perhaps Peterborough people as they pause to read the epitaph on the gravestone of Daniel Macdonald will be reminded by the histories of Angus MacAskill and his pocket edition General Tom Thumb, of the social milieu in which their own local giant lived and worked a century ago. May there not pass before their eyes the spectral file of a Race of Giants whose memories will all be honored in a silent word of benediction, "Requiescat in Pace"?

Beyond The Old Brick Wall

By VERILY ANDERSON

The old brick wall is matured by the sun of southern England to the colours of the fruit it guards from the east and north winds. The door in it must be lifted slightly before it swings back with a soft groan against the lemon thyme. And then, how good to inhale again the strong fresh smells of growing vegetables blended with the lighter scents of ripening fruit!

The centurion apple tree still stretches out arms long enough to encompass all the potato rows; the low box hedge still borders the path, wheel-barrow wide, which leads us south. Little hard peaches cling together along the walls like green babies snuggling cheek to cheek. Mulberries, green and thin as caterpillars, hide beneath their shady leaves. Medlars, on their bent old tree, have not yet begun to swell. Only the asparagus has passed its prime in a forest of green spray.

We reach the wire fruit cage which dominates the kitchen garden, and push back the sweet-peas clambering about the netted gate. We carry dishes, although our intentions are to feast on the spot. This is the season's of the widow's cruse. However much we eat there will still be more to pick.

* * * * * *

A blackbird squawks out through the hole at the other end as we take up our positions along the raspberry canes. There was always a hole at that end and always a blackbird squawking through it. The only change that I notice is that now I must bend down to reach the fruit whereas before I often had to stand on tip-toe. (This bending down slightly reduces the intake, for gravity seems to interfere with swallowing.)

The sweetest berries still lurk deepest under the leaves. Convolvulus still creeps innocently about one's feet, occasionally venturing up a cage-prop. The nearby gooseberry bushes try to compete with their homely fruit, the smooth green Heart of Oak, and the little rosy Conquering Hero, as bristly as a baby hedgehog.

Shy red currants hide their scarlet blushes behind old lace curtains for extra protection against that blackbird, for they must hang until September to reach perfection. Once I experienced the horror of mistaking a currant bush, thus draped, for the back of my governess. She seemed to my alarmed eyes (for I was in pyjamas and supposedly asleep) to be bending over to help herself to the fruit. It was bad enough, I thought, to be caught out of hours among the raspberries myself, but worse to suffer the embarrassment of catching so dignified a person literally stooping to sin. The fright I had sent me scampering back to bed, still unreplete.

* * * * * *

The busy black currant, with its strangely lingering taste, waits to be hurried to the kitchen for tarts and pies and dark saturnine summer pudding. Aloof and barbed, the disdainful loganberry keeps itself to itself along the wire walls of the cage, permitting its fruit to turn the inevitable deep purple only one at a time. And yet how melting is that one sophisticated berry, with its contradictory cottage-garden flavour! The raspberries near it are large and dark and long and, like the loganberries, retain their core when picked.

With the fertility of an Old Testament patriarch, it seems, the loganberry spreads its seed among the neighbouring tribes. Paternal influence is noticeable in ever-diminishing circles. Such cross-breeding is really not surprising, for the loganberry is only returning to its own, it forbears having themselves been raspberries weeded out of the garden with the common bramble.

The luxurious low-lying strawberry, pampered with manure and cloches and straw to keep the soil from its fruit, offers up the last of its smooth-tasting crop. But for me the darling of them all is still the sweet, generous little raspberry which so gladly yields up its fairy food, recalling all the subtleties of the old walled garden.

* * * * * *

Can there really be so little change in two decades? There was always a younger member of the family there, dragging some ancient wheeled vehicle over the sun-baked earth as he crammed his mouth with fruit, smearing the juice across his face right to the ears. He is there beside me now, completing the movement in a sweeping wipe of his stout hand on the seat of his trousers. Only now it is my boy. My baby picks on the cushion in the same apple basket that we used to be brought in out here by my mother. And my girl, little ghosts of my sisters and me, use the old route from one line of raspberries to the next by climbing up into the musky fig tree to swing down again from its powdery grey-green branches.

And now the only reason to stop feasting is that it must be nearly tea-time. Quickly we fill the dishes we brought for the tea-table, though what an inferior way to enjoy the precious fruit! We heave the wire gate back into its place among the sweet-peas. But listen! We are almost late for tea. The four o'clock Paris plane rumbles over, high up above the raspberry canes . . .

Renovating The Royal Mile

By IAN FINLAY

Summer visitors are seeing an interesting new phase in Edinburgh's development.

The Scottish Craft Centre and the Canongate Church are two of the earliest pieces of rehabilitation in what may prove to be a general renewal of life in the ancient Royal Mile. For nearly two centuries this fine street has lapsed into a museum piece. Latterly its inhabitants have been drafted away to new settlements on the fringes of the city, as one building after another was condemned, and the echoes of their noisy but cheerful life have died away in the wynds and closes. But the enterprise which has stirred in the Scottish capital since the war has brought new hope for what should be one of her greatest assets.

Definite plans are in being for the restoration of the Canongate, the section of the Royal Mile nearest to the Palace of Holyrood House, and Robert Hurd's colourful scheme for its buildings may be seen in this year's Royal Scottish Academy. Some have thought the scheme too colourful. To them, conditioned by the dismal, shuttered house-fronts and air of decrepit antiquity, Mr. Hurd's vision of colour-washes and brilliantly-coloured doors and windows comes like laughter in a churchyard. But Mr. Hurd is a scholar. The gaiety is correct, not fanciful. In its heyday the Royal Mile was a bright and cheerful if rather insanitary place.

The renovation is not all a question of paint and plaster. Scottish vernacular architecture is essentially organic. In the past it has been modified to suit the

Sprinkle the Garden, Don't Just Squirt It

By HENRY PREE

Watering the garden seems a simple task, but actually it is all too often done improperly. Overwatering can be injurious. Plants yellow and die in a water-logged soil. Under-watering, typified by frequent light sprinklings, can harm plants and lawns.

Watering should not be started until the soil is dry—not powdery dry, but dry to the feel. Then soak thoroughly so that it is moist to a depth of six inches to a foot. A trowel will show the penetration.

Such watering will take care of the garden, even under drouth conditions, for a week or 10 days. It may take a half hour or more perhaps as much as three hours, to apply sufficient water.

Light, frequent sprinklings wet only the surface and are more beneficial to weeds than to vegetables. Usually, where light sprinklings are given regularly, the plant roots grow towards the surface—become really shallow-rooted. A few days of drouth under such conditions could be fatal.

The summer is now settled and garden work, except for succession planting, is reduced to maintenance operations. To make this job easier, use of a mulch in the vegetable garden is recommended. Mulch reduces labor of cultivating because it keeps down weeds.

It helps retain a uniform moisture condition throughout the soil. It keeps the soil cool and roots of many plants function better when not in a baked soil. Mulch also prevents splashing of soil on the plant, thus avoiding, in some cases, transfer of disease.

Practically any form of organic material can be used as a mulch if it is deep enough to exclude light from the soil and open enough to admit air. If commercial humus, peat moss, sawdust or buckwheat hulls are used, the layer can be one or two inches thick. But if straw, salt marsh hay, cranberry runners, chopped corn cobs, peanut shells or unshredded leaves are used, the mulch may be as deep as six inches when applied.

Mulching benefits plants and at the same time saves much back-breaking labor. Since most mulch materials in process of decaying are bound to absorb nitrogen from spread a 10-6-4 or similar fertilizer the soil, the wise gardener will over the soil before mulcing, thus suppyling both plants and mulch with nitrogen.

Grow more, preserve more and use more vegetables—that's the advice of the Department of Agriculture.

This may be because food prices will continue to climb—and it may be that the experts want to acquaint the home gardener with the high quality of vine-fresh red tomatoes, crisp snapbeans, tree-ripened peaches and plump tender corn.

Water garden plants as illustrated above to provide enough moisture to last from a week to 10 days.

Gardening Questions

Q — When, should established clumps of Bearded Iris be dug up, divided and replanted?

A—Iris should be dug up and replanted soon after flowering to insure root growth before winter.

Q—What should one do to get rip of aphids on nasturtiums?

A—The only cure for aphids is to spray with a nicotine-sulphate (Black Leaf 40) soapy water solution. It also helps to cut off the older leaves that are most infested.

Q—What are good evergreen shrubs to plant about a home which receives little sunshine?

A—Japanese Yew and Japanese Holly are probably the best all-rounds shrubs for this purpose, although Mountain Laurel, Leucothoe, Mahonia, Pieris and Rhododendrons will also grow in the shade.

Q—Small green insects, that hop when disturbed are infesting our potato foliage. What are they and what should we do?

A—The insects are undoubtedly Leafhoppers and they damage the leaves by sucking the sap. Spray or dust when you first notice the insects and repeat at 10-day intervals as long as the plants are green. A good commercial potato dust includes DDT for insects and fixed copper for diseases.

Buffalo Wins Four Finals At Regatta

By CRAIG SWAYZE

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Thirteen North American rowing championships will be decided here today as the 70th Royal Canadian Henley regatta draws to a close on the Old Welland Canal.

Headlining the display of United States and Canadian rowing talent will be three-way battles in the championship singles, the senior eights and the high school eights. With Buffalo West Sides and St. Catharines vieing for regatta supremacy and St. Catharines Collegiate seeking to retain its schoolboy eight title, competition should be keen.

BUFFALO ON TOP

Yesterday, Buffalo West Sides won four finals while finishing second in two and earning a third in another. It was enough to move them into top spot in the aggregate standings for the Maple Leaf trophy, emblematic of the Henley championship.

The West Sides have amassed 185 points in the first three days of competition, 72 better than the host St. Catharines club, runner-up with 113. Toronto Argonauts gained a first and a fourth yesterday to move into third spot while the New York Athletic Club is fourth with 47½.

Don Platt of Toronto Dons provided yesterday's singles highlight with a three-length victory over Eugene Loveless of the New York A.C. in the association singles final.

THREE-WAY FINAL

Platt's victory over four United States scullers qualified him for today's championship singles. He will meet Gabby Beaudry of the Lachine Rowing Club and Joe Angyl of the New York A.C. in a three-way fight for the regatta's singles title.

A smooth-stroking St. Catharines crew set a Henley course record in the junior eight final when they pounded home ahead of Chicago Lincoln Park in 6:19 for the mile, 550-yard distance. A Buffalo West Side eight placed third.

The previous record was 6:19.4, set by a Toronto Argonaut crew in the 1914 senior eight final.

Buffalo's quartette of victories came in the junior 155-pound eight final, the senior pair-oars, the junior doubles and the junior 135-pound eights. All were keenly contested races with the exception of the senior pair-oars which was a row-over, the West Side entry being the only crew in the race.

Allen Park high school of Ecorse, Mich., took the high school four final over Mount Carmel of Wyandotte, Mich. Detroit Boat Club rallied to win the senior coxswain fours from Buffalo after trailing a field of five for the first half-mile.

ARGOS WIN EASILY

The Argonaut win came in the junior 145-pound eights, the opening race of the day. The Toronto crew romped home a good four lengths in front of Buffalo and Toronto Dons in that order. It was the first double-blue victory of the regatta.

Bill Lang of the Minnesota Boat Club won the only other singles event yesterday, the junior 145-pound competition. He edged Tom Walsh of the New York A.C. and Jim Albon of St. Catharines.

Don Guest and Len Stephan captured the high schools doubles title in a row-over. They were the only pair entered in the event.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Executive of the C.O.B.L. has a Sunday meeting down Bella Villa way to discuss playoffs next month. Probably all three clubs in the abbreviated loop will get into 'em but whether on a straight elimination basis or a round-robin setup remains to be seen. Kingston did not affiliate with the O.B.A. for playdowns, nor did the league, but the Petes affiliated early. Then Belleville decided just ere the July 1 deadline that they would take a crack at provincial playdowns when the C.O.B.L. sawoffs are settled. The Petes play again this e'en. Then they take on the Redmen at home next Friday night and plans are already afoot to make this one of the biggest events of the season.

* * * * * *

Port Hope scribe has much praise for the Young Petes after their recent win in Cobourg. Says Jerry Frizzelle, out of ball last year for lack of competition, pitched a dandy game and is one of the best young hurlers seen in the lakeshore town this summer. He adds "Backing up Jerry was a vastly improved kid team that played baseball like the good junior clubs of yesteryear used to do. A fast first baseman named Cupoli impressed, so did a rangy free-running centre fielder called Bus Jensen (no, it wasn't the Notre Dame football club with all those Irish names), and Don Bigford, a smart catcher, was right in there, too. Good umpiring by Wimpy Borland and Bus Cane was a pleasant change also in Cobourg."

* * * * * *

Give The Pilots Credit

Yes, the local juniors are a good bunch and making a real show lately in intermediate ranks. They'll give the Cobourg Legion crew a stiff scrap right here Monday eve, after playing away tonight in Whitby. Manager Al Menzies was always rated a smart handler of pitchers as he is a topnotch catcher. He is showing the juniors' battery plenty. And Coach Shockey Mein was one of the canniest infielders for years in the good E.P.L., so he can teach the boys lots, also. The Young Petes make few mistakes now, and the board of strategy rarely slips in a tight spot. Few if any of the intermediate clubs in the Lakeshore League have better managing or coaching.

* * * * * *

Scribe Gordon Campbell of Toronto Star wrote after the Petes' loss in Mimico "Could it be that the Canadian senior lacrosse champions, Peterborough Timbermen, are slipping? Has success removed some of the terrific team spirit from the 1951 Mann Cup holders? To say the Petes were miffed after bowing to Mimico 10-5 is a slight understatement. 'We've got injuries and guys not showing up,' gloomed playing coach Bob Thorpe, 'but then you always have excuses when you lose.' The Petes were blaming each other for the loss, their second straight to the league-leading Mounties. Thorpe was annoyed at Jerry Fitzgerald, who flew the coop to try out with Hamilton's Big Four gridders." Those Toronto writers love to see Petes lose, being all for Toronto Yorks first, and Mimico next.

* * * * * *

Came Back Like Champs

A lot of fingernails were chomped during the first three quarters of last night's hot O.L.A. senior scrap here ere the Timbermen took Mimico 11-5. The champs trailed 4-2 at the half and it was 5-all going into the fourth, but Coach Bob Thorpe must have tossed a few fire-crackers into the Petes' pants between the third and fourth. They came out all hot and bothered to wham in six goals without a return, and that was that. It put 'em in a tie for second with Toronto, two tilts back of the speedy Mounties, and it kept intact their undefeated home record this semester. They've now won and lost two in matches with Mimico. Fergus comes here Wednesday.

* * * * * *

Moon Wootton came up with another nifty netminding chore, and Nit O'Hearn was potent on the attack for five points. Curly Mason, Don Ashbee, Lou Nickle, Bob Thorpe and Russ Slater also caught the eye with some nifty work going in. Red Hartley was hard to beat in the visitors' cage and the free-wheeling Mounties really made it a game for the hefty crowd, despite holiday absentees. Each club was minus two of their better players, Peterson and Ken Dixon for them, and Hildebrand and Fitzgerald for the locals. The Petes drew one more penalty, but Chard of Mounties was chucked out for keeps to end the third stanza for pushing Ref Joe Murphy, who is plenty quick on the trigger himself. 'Twas a nice number to win.

Fergus Clips Hamilton 21-12

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Timbermen with one blow last night chopped their way into a tie for second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series and pared the first-place Mimico Mountaineers' lead.

Fergus Thistles trampled Hamilton Tigers 21-12 in Fergus

Bob Dobbie was the top scorer for Fergus as he piled up six goals. Don Gear contributed four and Len Caruso and Stan Abbott two each.

Mounties Beaten, 11 To 5 By The Timbermen In Keen Lacrosse Contest

Catching fire in the fourth quarter here last night before more than 2,000 lacrosse fans, the Petes' Timbermen trounced Mimico Mounties 11-5 to pull up into a second-place senior O.L.A. tie with Toronto Yorks. Both clubs are two games behind the leading Mounties. Injuries kept Kenny Dixon and Denny Peterson out of the Mimico lineup, and they lost Pop Chard at the end of the third quarter when he drew a match misconduct for pushing Referee Joe Murphy in an argument. The Thorpe team was without Ike Hildebrand and Jerry Fitzgerald in this game, but bolstered with juniors.

IT LOOKED BAD

It looked like the locals' first home defeat of the season until the fourth frame Friday night. They trailed 2-1 in the first heat and 4-2 at the half. The score was tied 5-all going into the fourth when the Mann Cup champs roared in for six goals without a reply, though they drew eight of the 15 penalties of the tussle. They had another goal by Ross Powless called back for being in the crease.

Moon Wootton, after missing one long shot early, turned in a sensational display in the home cage, as the speedy Mountaineers tore in repeatedly for hot stabs at him. Red Hartley was good, too, at the other end in turning aside plenty of hard drives from the Timbermen's sticks. It was a fast fray most of the way, and pretty rugged in spots as the rivals laid it on in stiff checking, and a lot of smart lacrosse was seen.

O'HEARN STARRED

Nit O'Hearn led the Petes' attack with three goals and two assists in a neat showing. Two goals each went to Don Ashbee, Lou Nickle and Curly Mason, the latter also helping on one. Ross Powless and Harry Wipper counted singles. Bob Thorpe aided on three in good going and Rus Slater was in on two, as Dootch Vitarelli helped on one. For Mimico, Pop Chard tallied once and helped on another, singles being marked up by Fred Sandford, Bill Horwood, Bob Blakely and Bert Barager, an assist going to Bud Stocks.

Several fights threatened, especially by Moon Wootton and Horwood early in the hot encounter, and by Curly Mason and Sandford toward the tail end of the tussle. The referees kept a close eye on play and cooled them out fast when fisticuffs appeared imminent. The local win meant their second in four starts against the Mounties this year. Teams:

Mimico: Goal, Hartley; defence, A. Dixon and Downer; centre, Horwood; wings, Blakely and Stocks; rover, Chard; alternates, Simpson, Davies, Sandford, Barager and McIntyre.

Petes: Goal, Wootton; defence, Wipper and Vitarelli; centre, Nickle; wings, O'Hearn and Powless; rover, Thorpe, alternates, Killingbeck, Ashbee, Brioux, Burns, Slater, Robinson and Mason.

Referees, L. Vipond and J. Murphy.

SETS TWO RECORDS

States Attorney, six-year-old bay horse owned by Andrew Reese, Jr., of Hamburg, N.Y., dazzled his rivals at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway yesterday as he set two season's records in winning both heats of the Grattan Bars Stake. In the first, States Attorney, guided by Marcel Dostie, paced a mile in 2:06 2-5, fastest of the year at Toronto. In the second, he travelled 1 1-16 miles in 2:15, also the fastest time for that distance this year.

3 Americans Widen Lead In Decathlon

HELSINKI (AP)—Three Americans today widened their lead in the Olympic decathlon by swift runs in the 110-metre hurdles, first event of the final day in the gruelling all-around test.

Bob Mathias, defending Olympic champion from Tubare, Calif., held on to first place. He ran the hurdles in 14.7 seconds to earn 894 points. This gave him an unofficial total of 5,261 for six events.

Saskatoon's Bob Adams was timed in 16.6 seconds, adding 489 points to brings his six-event total to 3,515 points. He was in 20th place at the end of yesterday's five events.

IN 21ST PLACE

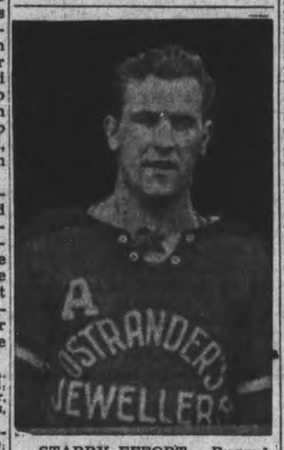
Today's performance dropped the 27-year-old school teacher to 21st place.

Milton Campbell, 18-year-old Plaintfield, N.J., high school boy, stayed in second place with 14.5 seconds, good for 953 points and an unofficial total for six events of 5,064.

Floyd Simmons, Pasadena, Calif., ran 15.0 seconds in the hurdles, picking up 813 points for an unofficial total of 4,737.



STARRY EFFORT — Rugged Nit O'Hearn of the Petes turned in a stellar showing in the senior O.L.A. game here last night as he scored three goals and aided on two more as Timbermen trimmed Mimico 11-5 before more than 2,000 excited fans.

HELSINKI (CP)—Lucien Beaumont of Quebec City today placed second in his trial heat of the men's 100-metre free-style event which opened the Olympic swimming competition.

John Wardrop of Britain was an easy first in the same heat—one of many groupings preliminary to the main competition.

Beaumont's time was 1:00.4 and Wardrop's :58.9.

Peter Salmon of Vancouver was fourth in the ninth heat in 1:01.0.

Canada Facing Prospect Of No Points

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP) — While the Americans and athletes from some Commonwealth countries are breaking records and collecting scoring points, Canada is faced with the humiliating prospect of finishing the Olympic track and field program without a point for the first time.

The Americans were expected to be powerful in track and field. They have been.

The Russians didn't turn loose any supermen and superwomen on the cinder path and grass infield at Olympic Stadium. But they've picked up points. In other sports, particularly gymnastics and Greco-Roman-style wrestling, the Russians have collected gold medals with both hands.

So far as the Commonwealth track and field performers are concerned, yesterday's display before 70,000 persons is an example, a rather startling one, perhaps, but there it is.

AUSSIE LOWERS RECORD

Twenty-one-year-old Marjorie Jackson of Australia ran so fast in the women's 200-metre semi-final, an entry in the world-record book was torn out and fluttered away.

Big George Rhoden of Jamaica broke the Olympic record of 46.2 seconds in winning the 400-metre championship in 45.9. It was one-two for Jamaica when Herb McKenley placed second in a hair-raising finish. What's more, Arthur Wint of Jamaica was fifth.

Horancee Ashenfelter of New York, who works for the F.B.I. was considered something of an outsider in the gruelling 3,000-metre steeplechase with its hazards or hurdles and water jump. But he outlasted Russia's Vladimir Kazantsev in a brilliant finish and set an Olympic record in winning the championship.

Canada had some hopefuls going into semi-final brackets in the 400-metre run, the 1,500-metre run and the women's 200-metre dash.

NONE OUTSTANDING

It was hardly to be expected there would suddenly appear another Percy Williams, Jimmy Ball, Phil Edwards, Johnny Loaring or Alex Wilson.

It was unbelievable, but when the semi-final heats ended the men of Canada were last, each in his own heat. Jim Lavery of Calgary was sixth; Jack Carroll of Verdun, Que., fifth in a five-man heat, in the 400. Bill Parnell of North Vancouver trailed in 10th in his 1,500-metre semi-final and John Ross of Oakville, Ont., 12th in the other semi-final.

In the girls' division, Eleanor McKenzie and Luella Law of Vancouver placed second in 200-metre preliminary heats. Tiny O'Halloran of Toronto was fourth and was eliminated. In the semi-finals Misses McKenzie and Law were sixth.

That was the occasion Marjorie Jackson selected to smash the world record with a mark of 23.4 seconds. The old mark was 23.6, held by the sensational Polish-American star Stella Walsh.

The decathlon event—10 different track and field performances—will conclude today. At the halfway mark defending champion Bob Mathias of the United States was well out in front on points. Bob Adams of Saskatoon was in 20th place.

GENEREUX HAS CHANCE

But Saskatoon had a chance to bring Canada the first gold medal since 1932. This chance was left to the capable shooting eye of 17-year-old George Genereux. The youngster concluded yesterday's first half of the clay-pigeon trap-shooting competition with 95 points, in a three-way tie behind Hans Aasnaes of Norway and Hans Liljedahl of Sweden.

Canada's last gold medallist was Duncan McNaughton, high jump winner in 1932.

Huelet Benner, a United States army master sergeant, won the pistol-shooting championship yesterday. Canada had no entry in that event.

A Russian, Ivan Udodov, won the Bantamweight-class championship in the weightlifting tournament. Little Rosaire Smith of Drummondville, Que., placed ninth.

In soccer Yugoslavia yesterday defeated Denmark 5-3 and qualified for semi-finals along with Germany Sweden and Hungary.

In fencing, France's epee team, world and Olympic champions, failed to qualify for a semi-final round and the Italian team remained a strong favorite. Canada is not entered in team competition.

Canada Drops 57-55 Game To Brazil Basketball Team

HELSINKI (CP)—Canada dropped a hairbreadth 57-55 decision to Brazil and the United States and Russia gained easy victories in the opening round of the Olympic basketball tournament yesterday.

The South Americans broke a last-seconds tie to enter the winners' circle after holding off a second-half comeback by the Canadians. Canada has another chance at supremacy in its group by taking on Argentina today.

Although the highly-favored U.S. and Russia won their first-round matches, the Russians were more impressive.

POOR U.S. SHOW

The Americans gave the impression of being stale in punching out a listless 66-48 triumph over the outclassed team from Hungary while the Soviet five was all sparkle and ginger in racing by its Cominform partner, Bulgaria, 74-46.

The 16 teams went into action on the first of three day's play to cut the field down to eight by Sunday night. The survivors will play three days of semi-finals beginning Monday followed by three days of final matches to determine the championship.

In other results, Uruguay edged past Czechoslovakia in an overtime game 53-51; Mexico topped Finland 66-48; Argentina stopped the Philippines 85-59; Chile nipped Cuba 53-52; and France ran up the highest point total of the day in walloping Egypt 92-64.

Brazil led Canada 37-33 at half-time after sharp-shooting by Bob Pickel of Edmonton and Harry Wade of Tillsonburg, Ont., had kept the Canadians in the game.

After Brazil had gained a 42-33 advantage, the Canadians surged and deadlocked it 53-53 with three minutes left to play.

BRAZIL GOES AHEAD

Then Thermes da Fonseca sank a driving lay-up to send the South Americans ahead. The Brazilians tried to freeze the ball but Bill Coulthard again knotted the count.

The victory was won in the last five seconds with Angelo Bonfietta sank his arching set shot.

In the heated scramble of the last half, Brazil lost two of its best men. Rodriguas da Motta went out with four personal fouls midway through the half after scoring 10 points. Almir de Almeida went out a few seconds later. The loss of these clever floor men hampered the Brazilians' game.

Canada's late surge was sparked by George Wearing of Toronto who scored all his 10 points in the final half.

After the game, Brazilian officials and supporters stormed jubilantly on to the floor, gladhanding the players.

NO APOLOGIES

Eddie Bowering of Vancouver, the Canadians' manager, and coach Paul Thomas of Tillsonburg, took the result calmly.

"We only took 25 shots in the first half," Thomas said. "Normally, we shoot about 90 a game. Even when we were behind I thought we would win. I kept thinking that we will start to go. But we never did."

Canada's basketeers in the showers mostly agreed that while Canada might well have won, the defeat really was the team's own fault.

U.S. LEADS JAPAN

Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., and Vic Seixas of Philadelphia shot the United States into a 2-0 lead over Japan in the opening singles matches of the Davis Cup tennis elimination at Cincinnati yesterday. Larsen disposed of Jiro Kumamaru, 6-4, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4, and Seixas made short work of Atushi Migayi 6-3, 6-1, 6-0.

Montreal Blanks Cubs 5-0, Gain Half Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The front-running Montreal Royals last night gained one-half game over second-place Rochester, splitting an International League with Springfield Cubs.

Tom Lasorda shut out the Cubs 5-0 in the opener for his fifth victory of the season. He held the losers to three hits.

In the nightcap, Jack Wallaesa broke up a 3-3 battle with a two-run homer in the eighth to give the Cubs a 5-3 win.

ORIOLES GET DECISION

Rochester's Freddie Hahn held Baltimore Orioles hitless for seven innings, but the Orioles walked off with a 2-1 decision. Three safeties and an infield error gave the Red Wings their two runs in the seventh. The victory went to Paul Stuffel.

Buffalo Bisons slaughtered Syracuse Chiefs 14-7, clouting Bob Keegan for three home runs in the five innings he worked. rank Carswell, Harvey Zernia and Eddie Kozak tapped Keegan for round-trippers, while Don Lund added another in the ninth.

In the other game of the night, tail-end Ottawa defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 behind Bill George, who also drove in the winning run.

Bell Beats Kesco

Bell Telephone defeated Kesco 10-1 in their Civic Softball League fixture at Ashburnham Park. They counted a brace of runs in the first inning, scoring six in the third and one each in the fourth and seventh. The losers were limited to a run in the first. # Indians Knock Off Nats 4-2 As Yanks Bow To Tigers

By RALPH RODEN, Associated Press Sports Writer

When the league-leading New York Yankees dumped Cleveland 7½ games off the pace by sweeping a doubleheader Tuesday, it looked like curtains for the Tribe. But the Indians have bounced back. They knocked the Yanks off twice. Last night they whipped Washington 4-2 and took over third place from the Senators, 4½ games behind New York and only ½ back of second-place Boston.

The Yanks, meanwhile, suffered their third straight loss as they bowed to the Tigers in Detroit 2-1. The Red Sox remained four games astern of the Bombers by dropping a 3-2 squeaker to St. Louis Browns. Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago White Sox divided a doubleheader, the White Sox winning the opener 5-0 and the A's the second game 5-4.

DOWN CINCINNATI

In the National League, New York Giants defeated Cincinnati 3-1 in the majors' only day game and climbed to within 5½ games of Brooklyn's pace-setting Dodgers. St. Louis Cardinals trounced the Dodgers 8-4, while in other games, Pittsburgh shaded Boston 3-2 and Chicago belted Philadelphia 8-3.

Early Wynn allowed the Senators only six hits in besting Bob Porterfield. Wynn blanked Washington after the first inning in hanging up his 11th victory. Home runs by Jim Hegan and Larry Doby featured Cleveland's seven-hit attack.

Former Yankee Steve Souchock homered in the ninth on Bob Kuzava's first pitch to fracture a 1-1 tie and beat his old mates.

Jim Hearn was the whole show in the Giants' triumph over Cincinnati. Hearn limited the Reds to four hits and won his own game with a two-run homer.

TEMPERS HIGH

Tempers flew in the Cardinal-Dodger game. In the first inning Solly Hemus of the Cards and pitcher Chris Van Cuyk of the Dodgers exchanged punches after Hemus slid hard into third base, covered by Van Cuyk.

Later, Van Cuyk twice hit Hemus with pitched balls. Van Cuyk also was forced to bite the dust in the fourth when pitcher Joe Preski of the Cards threw a pitch high and inside. The Dodgers claimed Van Cuyk was hit by the pitch but umpire Frank Secory ruled the ball had struck his bat. The Dodgers protested violently and bench warmers Clem Labine, Ralph Branca and Roy Campanella were ejected. Van Cuyk suffered a contusion on his left index finger and was forced to retire.

NOT LIKE THE NILE.—Plowing through the water at Folkestone Pool, England, a team of Egyptian swimmers worked out before making an attempt to beat its own record of 11 hours and 11 minutes for the English Channel relay. The leader is Hassan Abdel Rahim, holder of the record and winner of the 1950 International Cross-Channel Swim.

Many Pilgrims Pay Visit To Quebec Shrine

STE. ANNE DE BEAUPRE, Que. (CP)—Pilgrims from many parts of Canada and the United States last night crowded this hillside village dedicated to "la Bonne Ste. Anne" 300 years ago by shipwrecked Breton sailors.

Hundreds of pilgrims holding lighted candles took part in the traditional night procession along the winding way of the cross set in a cliff.

The procession marks the closing of a novena—prayers daily for nine days—to Ste. Anne, mother of the Virgin Mary, whose liturgical feast is celebrated today.

Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec today will chant a pontifical high mass in the nearly-completed basilica built on the St. Lawrence River shore near where, tradition holds, Breton sailors were safely washed ashore after promising Ste. Anne they would build a chapel in her honor wherever their storm-tossed ship landed.

Object of special devotions at the shrine is a large painted wooden statue of Ste. Anne, saved from destruction in a fire that razed a temporary basilica in 1926. Close by on a wall are clusters of crutches, canes, wheelchairs and other objects left there by pilgrims as a mark of thanksgiving.

The present basilica, to be one of the largest religious buildings in Canada when completed, is the sixth shrine to be constructed since Ste. Anne became a centre of devotion.

Fail To Consider Hope Report

TORONTO (CP)—A report prepared by the Protestant-Roman Catholic relations committee of the Church of England in Canada today said the Ontario government had failed to consider the Hope report on education.

The government's attitude toward the report of a royal commission on education in Ontario, headed by Mr. Justice J.A. Hope, was "entirely contrary to the spirit and procedure of our democratic life."

The report was prepared for presentation to the general synod of the Church of England, to be held in London, Ont., in September.

The committee said it "did not believe our people would support the idea" of appointing a Canadian envoy to the Vatican.

"We believe communications with Italy can be maintained through the regular chanells."

The report said recent attempts by the Roman Catholic Church in British Columbia to obtain separate schools was another "illustration of the necessity of being on guard against the political power of the Roman Catholic Church."

Nicholas Towns Wins Roseneath Oats Prize

ROSENEATH (ENS)—Roseneath Fair Board with A. J. Campbell as president again sponsored a field crop competition.

Following are the prizewinners: 1, Nicholas Towns; 2, Ambrose Atkinson; 3, H. J. McCracken; 4, Earl Drope; 5, R. B. Nichol and Son; 6, Fred Broadworth; 7, Clarence Parker; 8, Hector Winkworth.

Canterbury MP Plans Petition Against Dean

WHITSTABLE, England (Reuters)—John Baker White, Member of Parliament for Canterbury, told a meeting here he hopes millions of persons will sign a petition asking the Queen to remove from office the "red" Dean of Canterbury.

White accused the dean, Hewlett Johnson, of speaking "words of hate against the people of the United States" in his sermon in Canterbury Cathedral last Sunday.

White said the dean, by repeating his allegations of germ warfare in Korea, had "praised evil, cruel men."

BOMBER CRASHED—Six bodies have been recovered and a seventh man is missing following a collision between an R.C.A.F. Lancaster bomber and a Vampire jet fighter high over Laurentide National Park 160 miles north of Quebec. Tail section of the bomber is seen on the tree-studded slope in this aerial shot. The crash occurred during air manoeuvres.

Bombed-Out London Site Used For Car Parking Lots

By ROBERT MARX

LONDON (Reuters)—London still bears the scars of war but they have been put to a practical use. Bombed-out sities have been turned into parking lots.

Yellow and black signs point to "shelter" in possible future air raids; signs hung on London's lamp posts mark past raids—"Bombed site: Car park."

When the bombs fell on London the rubble was cleared away almost immediately. Naturally no one wanted to start rebuilding right away, so the foundations or ruined buildings were scooped out, paved and lined with concrete and tar, and turned into water reservoirs.

When the city's water mains were destroyed fire brigades dropped a hose into the improvised reservoirs to fight blazes started by enemy bombers.

After the war these tanks were emptied and were a natural for parking spaces. In pre-war days there had been less of a traffic problem, but with more people owning cars and using them to commute to work from the suburbs the new lots became necessary.

The "ground rent" has to be paid anyway, but if there's no developed property there's no property tax.

Many of the original owners were compensated for bomb damage and the property itself reverted to the city or borough. The government and police encouraged development of the parking lot program, but did not take over control.

Usually the borough council arranged the leasing of the spaces.

The bombed sites dot the dusty areas of London and are intended for commuters only. They close from dusk to dawn. Residents have to find garages or take a chance on leaving their cars on the street all night.

Rates are low—averaging 15 cents for the first three hours, a quarter more for the rest of the day. Some of the lots, staffed by wounded veterans, are free, though car owners are expected to drop a tip to pay for the attendant's salary.

Some business firms run their own lots for their employees.

The parking spaces themselves are well kept, but there is usually a reminder of the war—a crumbling arch, a jagged stone outcropping where two walls once joined, a scorched smear of black from the wartime fire.

Springville News

Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Rowan, of Bancroft, spent the weekend with Mr. Ivan Rowan.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens and daughter Betty spent Sunday with their elder daughter, Doreen Stevens, at Canadian Keswick Camp at Lake Rosseau.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Whittington and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McIntosh and Miss Hazel McIntosh attended the wedding at Roseneath on Saturday of Miss Merla Braithwaite and Mr. John Ferguson. Miss Braithwaite taught for three years in S.S. No. 3 North Monaghan (Springville School).

The Rev. A. E. Larke is spending this week at the Moira Lake Summer School. He is in charge of a leadership course. Also at Moira Lake Summer School are Lila Seymour, Doreen Bowles, of Springville, and Sheila Petrie, of Otonabee.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bothwell and family visited friends in Belleville on Sunday.

SETTLE STEEL STRIKE—President Truman announces at the White House that the steel industry and the C.I.O. Steelworkers Union have reached agreement for settling the 53-day-old steel strike. With the President are union chief Philip Murray (left) and U.S. Steel President Benjamin Fairless.

3-Decker Plane For Freight In Sight In U.K.

LONDON (CP)—The Society of British Aircraft Constructors has announced new wrinkles in the fast-developing fields of passenger and freight aircraft.

Most outstanding is a design for a three-decker freight craft, the Blackburn Mark 2, four-engined, 55-ton "universal freighter." This ship is Europe's largest cargo aircraft with three decks connected by elevators.

Plans call for a capacity of 42 passengers, six or eight cars, crew, baggage and freight. It is thought the Mark 2s will be used between London and Paris, supplementing the cross-channel steamship service.

Cars will enter through two large doors at the back of the freighter and be pulled up the loading ramp by a winch. They are then moved up to the second deck by elevator, locked to running-rails, and fastened into position.

This version of the freighter is designed for both military and commercial use. Despite its huge load, it can use a much shorter landing field than many smaller aircraft and can land and take-off from a grass field.

Cruising speed will be about 180 miles per hour, the motor powered by four Centaurus piston engines.

25-Cycle 'Island' Cut

TORONTO (CP) — A total of 997,862 appliances owned by 219,698 southern Ontario customers were altered for 60-cycle operation in the second quarter of 1952, the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission announced yesterday. To date five of the 21 standardization areas have been switched, reducing the size of the "25-cycle island" by more than 4,800 square miles.

Story Of Samuel Reveals Destined For Greatness

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The story of Samuel, the little Jewish boy who grew up in the temple, the servant of Eli the High Priest, and destined for greatness as the successor of Eli and the leader of Israel in crucial and dangerous times, is not without thrilling interest.

Two long Books of the Old Testament are devoted to Samuel and his times. It is the story of a child, and in its earlier part, before the pages are stained with the bloodshed and tragedies of a war-stricken time, a story for children.

It is a story for wives and mothers, who must surely get a sympathetic thrill from the portrayal of Hannah, an apparently barren woman mocked by a fecund wife in a dual marriage, and praying so earnestly for a child that her passionate pleas and murmurings were mistaken for drunkenness by the High Priest who saw her.

It is a story for men, especially for husbands. Elkanah, even in a day when it was not uncommon for a man to have two wives, comforted the barren and forlorn Hannah with the assurance that he could not love her more than he did, if she had 10 children. There, in that crude age, was a man and an understanding mate; I am amazed that the pages of romance have not made more of his story. I think I have heard of only one modern man who has borne his honorable name...

Then, of course, it is a story of religion, of a mother's deep devotion and the consecration of her babe to the service of God.

In every respect it is a moving story, and as it moves toward greatness it moves also toward tragedy and the temporary, and terrible, defeat of Samuel's Israel, and the ruin and downfall of at least one strong man.

The boy, Samuel, came to manhood and leadership at a time when the condition of Israel was at about the lowest ebb that it had ever been since the people had emerged from the wilderness in their flight from Egypt.

Religiously, the situation was typified in Eli, a good and well-intentioned but weak man "whose sons made themselves vile, and he restrained them not." The depth of the corruption of these sons was marked, not only by evil in themselves, but by the foul perversion of the worship in the temple itself by acts of depravity and licentiousness.

Whether or not this religious condition was responsible for the lack of morale and the military weakness of the people, Samuel succeeded Eli at an hour of disaster. For Eli's death came in a fatal fall as a messenger from the battlefront reported the complete defeat of Israel, and the capture of the Ark of the Covenant by the enemy.

The strength and morale of Samuel himself became manifest as he now assumed the full responsibilities cast upon him. Would the child of love and devotion succeed, or fail? Would he be true to the consecration to which a devoted mother had committed him?

It is a mixed and intricate story, a part at least of which I shall seek to unravel, when I write again of Samuel: Success or Failure?

BASEBALL BOOSTER NIGHT

A television set is the top prize in an attendance draw at Riverside for the baseball game next Friday night. A booster group of fans are plugging for a big turnout. Everybody knows the team's splurge through the middle of the season to the point where they have a chance to get in the playoff.

TWO WEEKS EARLIER

Practically all early sown grain is fully headed out and in some district of Alberta swathing operations will begin in approximately 10 days, quoting the C.N.R. crop review from Winnipeg issued today. In the Prince Albert section of Saskatchewan the grain is two weeks ahead of last year. In that area all wheat is headed and a lot is beginning to ripen.

SPECIAL MEETING

Announcement of a special meeting of city council Monday at 4 p.m. is for the purpose of giving third reading to a bylaw authorizing the borrowing of $395,000 on debentures to pay the remainder of the cost of the new city hall. After the second reading the bylaw was sent to the Ontario Municipal Board for their approval.

C.P.R. PAVING JOB

Several aldermen felt like complimenting C.P.R. on paving the station plaza and the roadway to Wolfe St., but some recalled that urging was applied from the council. Another remark was that the bridge over the creek has not been widened. However, the paving job over that right of way has been noted with approval. Maybe the bridge will come later.

PETERBOROUGH AND KEENE

The second annual Peterborough Street Fair will be held Friday and Saturday August 1 and 2 at Peterborough, New Hampshire. Anybody going down that way will be welcomed if they announce they are from this Peterborough. Also on August 2 at nearby Keene, N.H. are the New England trapshooting championships and the fourth annual Cheshire kennel all breed dog show.

New store fronts on the village's main business section (left centre) are giving the village a big town look. Along Queen St., of Blairton (lower left), a thriving iron mining village on the west shore of Crowe Lake 70 years ago, only the Purdy House (centre), the village's leading hotel and the house at the right remain of the original village which had a peak population of 700. Marmora Reeve Vincent M. Lynch (top photo, above) sees a bright future for Marmora and the surrounding district, while old-timers Elias Vesterfelt, 87, (lower left) and William Ellis, 74, (lower right) recall when 300 miners were busy breaking iron ore out of Blairton's pits, and hope that with new mining methods it may be possible to re-open the Blairton pits and bring some revival of its former prosperity.—(Examiner Staff Photos)*

Youth, 19, Girl, 14, Hurt Thrown From Motorcycle In Collision With Car

Girl In Serious Condition With Concussion, Broken Left Leg, Cuts On Face; Delbert Hobart Less Seriously Injured

Injured Friday afternoon when the motorcycle on which she was riding and a station wagon collided on the Chemong Road, Joyce Youngs, 14, 621 Donegal St., is in Civic Hospital with severe concussion, a broken left leg, and multiple facial cuts and bruises. Her condition is described as serious today.

Delbert Hobart, 19, 118 Aylmer St., driver of the motorcycle, was also injured. His injuries were a chip fracture of his left leg and slight concussion. Hobart's condition is said to be satisfactory.

The accident occurred at Aberdeen Ave. and the Chemong Road when Burton Boomhower, 137 Benson Ave., started across the highway after stopping at the west side of the intersection. He was two-thirds of the way across the highway when his vehicle and the northbound motorcycle collided.

Mr. Boomhower told Constable Ted Stephen, who investigated, that he waited for several cars and another motorcycle to pass before starting across and saw no sign of the motorcycle before it was practically in front of him.

He jammed on the brakes and the station wagon left a skid mark of less than a foot on the highway. However, it struck the motorcycle broadside, sending it out of control.

The motorcycle veered sharply right, then left and went over the edge of a culvert at the north east corner of the intersection, ending up on a grassy bank right at the base of a tree.

THROWN MOTORCYCLES

Both Hobart and Miss Youngs were thrown through the air and hit the ground heavily. From Miss Youngs' injuries, it would appear that she landed on her head.

She did not lose consciousness at the scene and was in such pain that she cried hysterically until Nesbitt's ambulance arrived a few minutes after the accident. Three men who were among the first to arrive tried to calm her and prevented her from getting up off the ground. Her face was covered with blood from cuts and bruises.

Hydro Security Officer Archie Menzies, who was stopped at the east side of the intersection facing west on Aberdeen Ave., told police that Mr. Boomhower was stopped for "a minute or two waiting for traffic." He said neither the motorcycle nor the station wagon were going very fast before the impact and that he believed "neither one saw the other until it was too late."

Constables Don Mackay and Dennis Smith assisted in the investigation. Mr. Menzies, a former city policeman, ran to McWilliams Motor Sales a short distance from the accident to phone for an ambulance and the police. He returned and directed traffic until police arrived a few minutes later.

Boy On Bicycle Injured By Hit-Run Car

COBOURG (ENS)—Police are searching the Cobourg district today for a hit and run driver whose car or truck struck and seriously injured 14-year-old Robert Palmateer.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Palmateer of Grafton, had been riding his bicycle along Highway No. 2 near the Kingston level crossing, one mile east of Cobourg. Witnesses said the car smashed into the bicycle, knocked the lad to the pavement and continued on its way.

R.C.A.F. men, near the accident, found the boy and took him to Cobourg hospital, from where he was rushed to Toronto by ambulance and provincial escort.

Palmateer's injuries included a fractured skull, broken left leg, broken arm and severe cuts. His condition is considered critical.

O.P.P. Constables Stanley Judson and R. Trenmills investigated the accident and escorted the ambulance to Toronto.

Palmateer is the third Cobourg youngster rushed to Toronto this week. Three days ago Barbara and Linda Spears of Grafton were hit by a car and sent to Toronto hospital.

Accident Victim Dies In Hospital

PORT HOPE—William Howard 70, Toronto, who was critically injured in a car accident near Port Hope last Sunday, died Friday in Port Hope hospital. He was one of seven hospitalized.

The accident, a two-car head-on collision, occurred on No. 2 Highway east of Port Hope. Howard was a passenger in an eastbound car, driven by his son George, 44, who suffered minor injuries.

Police said the Howard car collided with a westbound car, driven by Herbert Johnson of Toronto. The Johnson car, according to police, swerved to avoid hitting a car preceding it and hit the Howard car.

CHARGES LAID

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman said that the results of a post-mortem, conducted Friday, will probably result in a charge of motor manslaughter being laid against Johnson. He was charged Monday with dangerous and reckless driving and driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

Johnson will likely appear in magistrate's court Monday, following a week's remand last week pending results of a blood test sent to Toronto for analysis.

George Howard received treatment for knee injuries this week in Port Hope hospital while an aunt, Mrs. Alice Arkwell, 124 Maplewood Avenue, Toronto, was taken to a Toronto hospital with jaw fractures. Others in the accident suffered minor injuries.

Tractor Falls Through Bridge Kills Farmer Instantly

COBOURG (ENS)—While taking a short cut along an abandoned right-of-way, a Cobourg district farmer was killed instantly when the tractor he was driving plunged through an old bridge and rolled on top of him. Harold Taylor, 56, of R.R. 5 Cobourg, was driving the tractor and a trailer, loaded with wheat along the old railway right-of-way, parallel to Highway No. 2, five miles east of Cobourg. He used that stretch rather than use the busy highway.

The tractor just as it passed over an old bridge, covering a six-foot ditch, crashed through, rolling over Taylor and pinning his head to the ground. He died instantly of a fractured skull.

BROTHER FINDS BODY

A brother, Geoffrey Taylor, wondering why his brother was taking so long with the load, walked along the right-of-way and found the bridge collapsed, his brother under the tractor.

Coroners, Dr. W. E. Wilkins and Dr. F. M. Blackwell, both of Cobourg answered calls. The accident was investigated by O.P.P. Constable Stanley Judson.

No inquest will be held.

Mr. Taylor is survived by his wife, brother Geoffrey, and two sisters.

Rammed Fist Into Mouth Of Trout

TRENTON (CP)—On Weslemkoon Lake near here Carl Austin yesterday landed a 17½-pound gray trout by plunging his left fist down the fish's throat and heaving it into the boat. He used his left hand because his right was in a cast from a recent ball game accident.

Without gaff or landing net, Austin said he figured it was the only way to land the whopper that had given him a 25-minute battle. He jammed his hand in when he saw the fish's mouth open.

Chemical Termites

VANCOUVER (CP)—The hull of Vancouver's one-year-old fire boat is quickly disappearing. It was discovered the $300,000 vessel's steel plates had been eaten one-third through by electrolysis, the chemical decomposition of metals by galvanic, or electric, action.

Iron Mines Bring Prosperity To Marmora; Blairton Has Only Dim Memories

Existence of iron ore in the Marmora district has been known for more than a century. In the late 1860's before high grade iron deposits were discovered in the Mesabi Range of northern Minnesota, iron ore from Blairton, on the west shore of Crowe Lake, fed Pittsburgh's steel mills.

The rich Mesabi ore was close to the surface and easily mined, and could be transported cheaply by water direct to the steel manufacturing centres of the United States.

It was no longer profitable to mine the low grade ore at Blairton and the once thriving village of 700 soon became a ghost town. Houses, stores and mine buildings were abandoned, fell into disrepair and were either burned or torn down. The last of the mine machinery was sold for scrap in 1914.

Only two deep craters, both filled with water, a few rotting mine timbers and ridges of rock tailings remain.

MODERN METHODS

Now nearly a century later, the Mesabi ore is almost exhausted, and with modern bulldozers and mining methods, the low grade ore of Hastings county can be mined profitably.

A mile and a half south of Marmora, three giant electric shovels of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation are taking six-ton bites out of the 100-foot deep limestone surface layer to get at the ore.

An estimated 15 or 20 million tons of limestone will have to be scraped off before the ore bed,

Tax Goes Out To Single Men Annual Call To Pay Roll

One of the annual gripes of single men in Peterborough is having to dig down in their pockets for the $5 poll tax. Adding to their discontent is the fact that their opposite number—the career girls—get off scot free

But as seen by A. Stanley Couper, city treasurer and tax collector, the poll tax is quite fair.

"The young fellow who doesn't rent or own a house has all the municipal services, the same as a taxpayer," said Mr. Couper. "It's only fair he should pay something toward their upkeep. That's why we have the poll tax."

Actually the poll tax isn't a levy on single men. It just happens that they are the largest group that comes under its provisions as laid down in the Municipal Act.

The tax is a "catch-all" device to make all men between 21 and 60—"not otherwise assessed"—pay something toward the upkeep of civic services. Mr. Couper estimates that there are nearly 2,000 men in Peterborough who are eligible for poll tax; if all pay up, that will bring $10,000 into the city coffers.

However as men in this category are almost constantly on the move it is hard to pin them down for taxation purposes. So receipts fall far short of the theoretical figure.

ON THE MOVE

"A lot of the young fellows don't take the right view of it," said Mr. Couper. "If they have a car, for instance, they drive along city streets that have to be paid for by the ratepayers and they have equal facilities. If their cars are stolen the city police get on the job.

"Then again there are the parks and recreational facilities — all these have to be maintained at public expense. Five dollars a year isn't very much to pay to have these services."

The poll tax form lays down five exceptions :

1. Any member of the Army, Navy or Air Force on active service or who has completed annual training in 1952. An active member of the Reserve who has been attending regularly and has a slip from his commanding officer.

2. Persons assessed as owner or tenants of property in Ontario for year 1952. Tenancy has nothing to do with married status. There must be at least two rooms together; a place to prepare meals and eat; and there must be sleeping accommodation.

The property can be anywhere in Ontario, not just in Peterborough.

3. Persons who can prove that they have paid poll tax in some other Ontario municipality during the year, or who have done statutory labor (at one time done in lieu of poll tax).

4. Students in attendance at an institution of learning in Ontario in 1952.

5. Persons under the age of 21 years or over 60 years.

Anybody claiming exemption must do so within 14 days of receiving the notice.

GET CONSIDERATION

James E. Moher, city assessor, said that appeals are given fair consideration. For example, often a man may be living in Peterborough and yet the sole support of his mother who either owns or rents a home in another municipality. Technically he is liable to pay (being himself neither owner nor tenant) but this is taken into consideration.

On the other hand a man who has a small business (for example a truck but no lands or buildings on which he can be assessed, yet he uses the boarding-house phone for business calls) can be assessed the minimum business assessment. This would be about $6.50 this year.

Because of this assessment he is exempt from poll tax.

Poll taxes may be anywhere from $1 to $10; but if the business assessment is less than the tax the city can demand the difference.

Under the Municipal Act (Statute Labor section) the municipality has authority to demand the employer deduct the poll tax from a defaulter's wages. This is the usual procedure in Peterborough.

"We're not trying to bear down on anybody," said Mr. Moher. "We want to be fair to everybody in the city, that's all."

APPLICATIONS WILL BE RECEIVED UP TO AUGUST 1ST, 1952, FOR THE POSITION OF FULL TIME JANITOR FOR THE NEW MASONIC TEMPLE, 415 RUBIDGE STREET. MUST BE A MEMBER OF THE CRAFT. ADDRESS APPLICATIONS TO L. F. DYER, SECRETARY, 312 FREDERICK AVE., CITY.

DESIGN - OF - THE - MONTH — Designed by Vancouver architects, Semmens and Simpson, and styled for convenient and comfortable indoor and outdoor living, this two-bedroom, basementless bungalow has a definite West Coast flavour. The car port and heating and storage rooms, each with its own outside entrance, may not appeal to those who must consider cold weather but close examination of the plan reveals many attractive living features in its 921 square feet of floor area.

The open planning of the living-dining kitchen space gives the effect of a much larger house while the window and door arrangement of the living room is ideal for the careful garden developer who seeks greater enjoyment of the outdoors.

There is a handy side entrance to the kitchen while the front entrance and the entrance to the heating room are protected by the car port roof.

The cubic measure of the house is 11,560 cubic feet and the exterior dimensions are 40 feet nine inches by 27 feet.

Working drawings for this plan, known as Design 121, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Your Awnings Big Aid To Home Comfort

From the times of the early Egyptian builder who used palm fronds at the windows of his house to the architect of today, awnings have been an important aid to home comfort. In modern home building with its increased use of the picture window, corner window, and the window wall, the part played by awnings is more important than ever before.

Large windows in today's homes furnish extra light, air, and view, but at the same time allow solar heat to flow freely into your rooms, an abvious advantage in winter but not summer. On hot sunny days, you will want your rooms to remain cool and the colors of interior furnishings fresh and unfaded.

By choosing awnings to compliment exterior walls, you can give your house a new look during the summer months. For example, sun shades in clear yellow will highlight gray stone, while rich chocolate canvas will increase the eye-appeal of white stucco. Picking up the color of the roof in your awnings will create harmony between the top of your hose and its body. You will want bold stripes on wide windows and solid colors on narrow openings.

Canvas is now available in almost any color under the sun, from kelly green to chartreuse, electric blue to gray, maroon to coral, and chocolate to beige. The choice depends upon you and your home, and you can have fun exploring the hundreds of decorative possibilities.

When you talk to the man who will make your awnings, you will be surprised at the wonders he can work with canvas, metal and tape. You can have him construct an awning to blend with any style architecture, to fit any window, protect any entrance, cover any terrace.

If your house is modern in design, canvas awnings can be shaped into interesting contours to match its structural personality. You can extend an inviting welcome to summer-tired guests with a brilliantly-colored canopy over an entrance bared to the blazing sun. With a canvas roof and pivotable sun screens, you can reclaim a terrace taken over by the midsummer heat and make your outdoor living an enjoyable all-day affair.

Whether you are the proud owner of a new five-room house in a treeless subdivision or you live in the home your grandparents built, canvas awnings offer practical and attractive solutions to your sun problems. And in the near future, they promise even more effective ways of making shade where and when you need it.

Keeping House In Good Repair

A family's investment in the home should be protected by keeping the house in first-class condition at all times.

This means constant attention to small details so that even with age and use there will be little impairment in value. The house should continue indefinitely to be as sturdy and attractive as when new.

Repairs should be made as soon as defects are discovered, to prevent small jobs becoming costly big ones. A split clapboard will quickly rot and damage the interior by admitting moisture. A few broken or displaced shingles will soon result in serious damage that may cost hundreds of dollars to repair. There should be frequent inspections of the house inside and out.

PAINT PRESERVES

One of the most economical factors in maintaining the value of a house is regular painting of both exterior and interior. Exterior paint should be renewed at least ever yfour years. Not only does this add beauty to the house, but more important is the fact that top-quality paint, properly applied, protects the wood and metal surfaces from rot, rust and corrosion. It is these enemies of wood and metal that cause the real damage to any structure. Where paint is kept in good condition, repair bills are kept down.

An attractive home with modern color treatment is always worth more than a drab house, although the drab house may be equally as sound structurally.

There is an open partition along one side of the living room giving an effect of spaciousness to the very compact arrangement of living space. Good natural lighting and plenty of fresh air is assured in all rooms. The exterior dimensions of the house are 34' 0" by 25' 10" and the floor area is 833 square feet. The cubic measure is 16,680 cubic feet. # Bible Balloons For Slave Lands

EDINBURGH (Reuters)—The International Council of Christian Churches announced plans yesterday to send a barrage of Bible-carrying balloons across the "iron curtain" into Communist Europe.

Council President Carl MacIntire, revealing the plan at the Council's British Isles regional conference here, also said that thousands of small Bibles and Testaments are being smuggled into eastern Europe from the Middle East.

In the conference's keynote address earlier yesterday, Dr. T. T. Shields of Toronto said the principal enemy of the Christian church today is not Communism but Roman Catholicism.

"The papacy is the headquarters for the greatest counterfeiting religious system the world has ever known," he said.

Milk Short In Bay Ports

MIDLAND (CP)—The combination of a heavier tourist trade and increased grain shipments to this Georgian Bay port and nearby Port McNicoll has caused a shortage of milk in district dairies. Some dairies have cut off supplies to the ships which arrive daily with grain.

Greece Thanks Canada For "Wonderful" Aid

TORONTO (CP)—Michael Pesmazoglu, chief Greek government delegate to the International Red Cross conference, said yesterday Canadian aid to Greece warranted the "everlasting gratitude" of his people.

Basil C. Salamis, Greek delegate, also paid tribute to the Canadian Red Cross Society for buying and shipping supplies provided by the Greek War Relief Fund of Canada.

HOUSE 61-59.—How to build a ranch-style home on a lot with only 45' frontage. We think the owner solved this entirely successfully in his modern white stucco and stone home in Regina. Rear windows enjoy a grand sweep of the Prairie landscape. Stone porch flower box and white fence help considerably in relieving the simple lines of the exterior. Green awnings add a nice splash of color. The plan is a model of simplicity, with three bedrooms all-in-a-row on one side, each provided with plenty of closet space. Living room, dining room and kitchen arrangement also merits a star. Living room picture window is 8' x 5'—side windows 5' x 4'. Bedroom and bathroom windows are placed high. Living room and hall are finished in grey — one bedroom in peach, one in white and blue, the third in grey. Contents: about 18,000 cubic feet.

How Modular Planning Can Reduce Building Costs

First, just what is a MODULE? A module is a unit measurement; it may be any number of inches, or feet, and may be applied to width ,depth and height.

Study committees widely representing the building industry including architects, builders, manufacturers, etc., after thorough analysis agreed that a 4-inch module is the most convenient basis for the standardization of building projects.

A 4-inch module was chosen because: (a) it is large enough for manufacturers to reduce the number of stock sizes and still satisfy consumer demand, (b) it is small enough for ample freedom in architectural design and for flexibility in equipment layout, (c) it coincides with the dimensions of a great many building materials already standardized and is applicable to present construction practices, (d) it is a unit measurement with which architects, builders, masons, and carpenters are already familiar, (e) it approximates 10 centimeters (3.9 inches), the basis proposed by metric system countries working on the same problem.

Building materials coordinated in 4" multiples can be assembled into a building with a minimum of cutting and waste and with consequent savings in cost providing the floor plan and the elevations of the building are laid out in multiples of 4".

JOINT THICKNESS

Most building materials when joined together require a certain joint thickness. Manufacturers therefore make their products smaller by the amount of the joint required for assembly; this way the controlling dimensions of the building will stay within multiples of 4".

Building is made easier. Materials in 4" multiples reduce cutting and waste, and can be fitted togther simply and orderly according to plan. Take a look at your own bathroom—in all probability you will find tiles that are cut around bathtub, door, medicine cabinet, etc., all laid out in multiples of 4" to save cutting and cost.

Lumber comes in standard lengths—a well coordinated house design takes advantage of these standard sizes and uses them with a minimum of cutting.

The installation of insulation—bat and blanket insulation between studs spaced 16" on centre-plasterboard, 16" x 48" plasterboards fit 16" or 24" stud spacing—wallboard, 4' x 8' sheets fit 16" or 24" stud spacing—as well as several other existing construction practices are already on the 4" modular basis.

BETTER QUALITY

Complete coordination of all building materials leds not only to easier design and construction methods but also results in better quality and lower cost.

Don't misunderstand—modular building products and modular plans do not necessarily result in standardized houses; the 4" module is a unit small enough to permit entire freedom as to layout and type of any building.

To summarize — the advantage of module coordination for each part of the construction industry:

(1)—to the manufacturer it means the elimination of many odd sizes, small inventories, lower cost,

(2)—to the materials dealer it means smaller inventories, speedier service, better customer satisfaction, lower cost,

(3)—to the architect it means less time spent on drafting, more time for improved design, lower cost,

(4)—to the constractor it means easier estimating, more efficient methods on the job, less construction time, lower cost.

Adding up these advantages and savings thus achieved, it becomes evident that module coordination helps to give the owner a better building at lower cost.

DESIGN-OF-THE-MONTH—Here's a six-room house with built-in garage in just about as compact an arrangement as possible. By using a well-proportioned dormer and split-level construction to allow for the garage, Architect E. I. Richmond, of Toronto, has transformed a conventional three-bedroom bungalow plan into a highly attractive and interesting house from the point of view of exterior appearance and interior living comfort.

A pleasing combination of brick and wood exterior finish, carefully designed window detail and front entrance with its off balance side-lighting, give the house eye appeal.

The house has a floor area of 1,163 square feet and a cubic measurement of 22,935 cubic feet, both exclusive of the garage which should be estimated separately since the construction must be fully fire-proof for safety. The exterior dimensions are 42 feet by 29 feet 11 inches.

Working drawings for this plan, known as Design 205, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Want Church Union Discussion Resumed

TORONTO (CP)—A report compiled for presentation in September to the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada recommends that church-union discussions with the United Church of Canada be continued.

The Church Union Committee also expressed hope that conversations with the Presbyterian Church in Canada and the Baptist churches in Canada will be resumed.

"Some meetings were held" with these latter churches, following an invitation from the General Synod session in Toronto in 1943, but "no definite progress was made."

War Stalemate Hard On Soldiers

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS in Korea (CP)—Wear on the nerves has replaced wear on the body in Korea.

While the truce talks go on at Panmunjom, the Korean war has become static, largely removing it from the world's headlines.

Canadian troops newly in the theatre feel they have come after the glory has been harvested.

I chatted with a group of 15 soldiers on their way to a swim parade in a stream near the front.

"The thing is, we feel the people at home just don't care," said one of them, whose home is in Toronto and who has been in Korea three months with the 1st battalion Royal Canadian Regiment.

JUST AS DEMANDING

Leaders and staff officers at 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade headquarters say the kind of war now being fought is at least as demanding as the one under way a year ago, and probably more so.

But the tension of waiting has replaced the satisfaction of advancing. Incessant patrolling has replaced the leap-frogging that brought companies the perils of assault. Troops sit and take it from the Communists' vastly-increased artillery and mortar bombardments.

The soldier, reading letters from home and glancing through newspapers reaching the front says he feels that only his relatives know Canadians still are here. He says Canada seems to think the fighting is over.

That thought, say staff officers, is confirmed by concert parties and other entertainers who arrive and say they want to perform "at the front."

Having no idea that it is a very warlike front, with daily and nightly visitations by enemy artillery, mortar and patrols, they suggest, when the point is made, that the companies be brought to a central area behind the front. That the Communists would like just that to happen, and would act upon it, seemingly hasn't occurred to them.

During the last year, soldiering as trying as ever has been out of the news. The need for replacements is as great as ever. Casualties from injury, exhaustion and disease continue at rates sometimes higher than an all-out war. .. But a static line has replaced one of movement. There are no changes of position to report.

MOST UNEVENTFUL

Patrols and raids keep both sides alert and maintain the flow of intelligence about the enemy's doings. However, most are uneventful.

The "settled down" atmosphere has transformed battalion areas into bunkered barracks. It's life by the book again. Red tape has returned.

The free-and-easy life of active campaigning has given way to a roughened version of soldiering at home, except that it's 8,000 miles away and takes its daily toll in sickness, injury and death.

Officers' formal mess dinners—previously great occasions when a battalion was in reserve—now are weekly institutions. Officers of two regiments turn out in serge "blues."

Such a war doesn't produce much news and the soldier knows it.

He asks, then, that when the day's communique reports "routine patrolling" or "enemy artillery activity" across the front, the people back home realize that someone out here is doing it and taking it.

"Back home we used to think this war was over-glamorized," said the man from Toronto.

"Now we know it is. But perhaps it's the only way to keep them remembering that Canadians are here."

No. TV For Quebec Bars

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Liquor Commission inspectors ruled yesterday that television shows in establishments selling alcoholic beverages are forbidden, unless permission is obtained from the commission. The regulation affected a number of local night clubs and taverns which had installed sets for the first live Canadian performance.

Catch Top Guerrilla

IPOH, Malaya (AP)—Police yesterday announced capture of a gun-toting Chinese woman said to be the highest-ranking female leader in Communist guerrilla forces. She was identified as Lee Meng, whose activities as a guerrilla leader in the tin-mining state of Perak resulted in the government offering $40,000 reward for her arrest.

No Sale To U.S.

LONDON (AP)—An offer by the Hilton Hotels group of the United States to buy London's swank Grosvenor House has been rejected. Directors said it would not be in the national interest to turn over the management to an United States organization.

Aerial Betting

WOLLSINGTON, England (CP)—Bookies had to study a strange form sheet at a meet here. The races were part of an air display by the Royal Aero Club with permission granted for public betting.

SELF CONFIDENCE forms an invisible armour for a child against a critical and sometimes hostile world. Every mother who measures her children's height knows they grow at differet rates . . . and so does their assurance of their own ability vary with each youngster.

FOR PARENTS ONLY:

Building Self Confidence In Children Parents Duty

By NANCY CLEAVER.

"Why can't you get on the ball team, Bill? When I was your age I was pitching for our school's first team every game."

✧ ✧ ✧

"Marion, I'm so sorry you tried to give your hair a home permanent. It is quite neat braided, and you've only made your head look queer."

✧ ✧ ✧

"Your older brother was always near the top of his class, John. Why are you always trailing along near the bottom? If you would only work hard like he did, you might get somewhere with your studies."

✧ ✧ ✧

The three parents who made these remarks would be very much annoeyd if anyone accused them of destroying their child's self-confidence. They certainly don't want to do that! But they have been so eager for their child to play on a team, or look attractive, or excell at school that they have forgotten their responsibility of building their child's self-confidence.

Self-esteem is important for the happiness and success of any child as well as any grown-up. We all need that inner glow of self assurance which accompanies it. Quiet poise of manner springs from a person's conviction of his own worth.

This essential character trait is easily hurt, or even destroyed. Bill's dad was damaging his boy's self-confidence by making an unflattering comparison with his own boyhood prowess. Marion's mother was harming her child by criticizing Marion's efforts at hairdressing, and of all things, suggesting her adolescent daughter looked "queer"! John's parents reproached the poor boy for his school standing by reminding him of his older brother's brilliant record. What surer ways can be found than these of pulling a child down—instead of—building him up?

There are other thoughless techniques for dissolving a child's self assurance such as too much protection as well as too much direction. A home atmosphere which is constantly tense and worried does not send well-poised children out into the word.

A child should not be allowed to withdraw from a situation which he should face, or leave a task unfinished which should be done. If a parent shuts his eyes, the child will not face a similar situation or complete the same kind of task with self-reliance the next time he meets them. The greatest stimulus to the growth of confidence is the personal satisfaction which follows an obstacle met and successfully overcome.

A parent should not substitute the desire for praise from mother or dad, for the child's own judgment that his action has been praiseworthy, whether or not anyone else thinks so. Encouragement is always welcome, and praise if it is sincere and deserved should be given to a boy or girl. But a child should not be trained to think that his goal is the commendation of his parents. Real achievement brings its own reward.

Thus it is the wise parent who from the child's earliest years, provides him with simple tasks he can do, and easy problems he can solve. As his knowledge and skill grows, he should be confronted with jobs and situations which demand more of him. At the same time, the child should not be tested with something which is so far beyond his powers that repeated failure will only bring discouragement.

A boy or girl needs an immediate goal. Parents forget their own public school days when they expect their child to save for a college education! At this stage a youngster is more apt to set aside a small amount for a definite purpose, like saving for a bicycle he can ride in a few months' time.

Mothers who measure their children's height know how they vary in their growth. All children are different in their inner development too. A mother can help her child who lacks self-confidence by showing him that she loves him and accepts him as he is. He may be very poor at reading, but look how smart he is in arithmetic! He may be quite dumb at throwing a ball but he certainly can roller-skate better than any other child in the block. He may benefit from extra help in places where he is weak, but his parents will not nag at him or make unfavorable comparisons.

Self-confidence is a sort of invisible armour which a child wears which repels the darts of an unfriendly or a hostile world. Dryden said truly: "They can conquer who believe they can." Have you given your child this self-protection which he needs now and which will stand him good stead in his adventures tomorrow as an adult?

Sunglass Case Of Brunette & Blonde

If you have light-colored eyes —blue, grey, or green—your are more defenceless against the bombardment of sun glare than your brown-eyed or hazel-eyed friends. The reason is that light-colored eyes are more senstitive to glare than eyes which Nature has endowed with more pigmentation. Hence, the greater need, usually, of blondes than brunettes for sunglasses, says Factor.

No matter how well equipped brunettes are, however, to resist ordinary glare, they still need to protect their eyes from intense sunglare: in particular from light radiations reflected from water, sandy white beaches, white walls, white tennis courts and from the highways' shimmering pavements.

Cool Tomato Dish

Six medium tomatoes, 2 cups (1 lb.) canned salmon, 2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped, 1 large green pepper, chopped, 6 lettuce cups, 3 cups potato salad.

Peel tomatoes and cut out stem ends. Cut each tomato into six sections, leaving sections joined together at bottom. Place in crisp iceberg lettuce cups and fill in between tomato sections with flaked salmon. Fill in centre with chopped green pepper mixed with the chopped, hard-cooked egg. Arrange side servings of potato salad. For garnish, use thinly-sliced radishes, lemon wedges or slices, green onions.

Bending The Twig

A child's fifth or sixth year is her most receptive to swimming lessons, says a noted Hollywood beauty authority. He urges more mothers to teach their daughters to swim while they have the least fear of water.

This Californian who believes that the shapeliest beauties are swimmers, says a mother can begin during infancy to overcome a child's fear. That can even begin in the bathtub, he says.

After she learns to splash daringly in the tub, she will take in stride dog-paddling or water games in the shallow end of the pool. After that, he predicts, teaching a child swimming strokes will be a cinch.

LEAVE THE DOUGH

There was an old Roman saying which goes, "Never think of leaving perfume or wine to your heir. Administer these yourself and let him have your money."

May Not Be Gold-But "Grooming" Makes It Glitter

All that glitters may not be gold in your summer jewellery collection, so you better give some thought to how you will keep your "gems" glistening and gleaming.

Fortunately, soap and water will go a long way in jewellery grooming. Start out with warm soapsuds, and avoid extreme water temperatures that may crack real or synthetic stones. Have a soft-bristled brush handy. Spread a thick towel on the wash basin edge to keep the jewellery from slipping off to the floor or cracking against the porcelain surface.

Check the settings to find out whether the jewellery can be plunged right in the suds. Stones held by prongs, for example, present no washing problem. For pieces that are cemented in place, however, you'll want to use the soft brush dipped in warm soapsuds. Rinse by brushing with clear water. Absorb moisture immediately with a bit of tissue.

Use the soapy brush on bib necklaces and on all porcelain jewellery. Even minute specks of dust show on pure white porcelain, so keep this type of costume jewellery spanking clean at all times.

Real or simulated pearls, especially the pastel-toned ones, should be swished through the soapsuds. Hold the necklace by the clasp. For soiled knots between pearls, lay the necklace on a towel and scrub the knots gently with the soaped-up soft brush. Dip the necklace in warm rinsing water and pat in a towel. Then, pin it to a towel to dry. The pins should go through the clasp halves and serve to hold the necklace taut.

Diamonds are sturdy enough to take hotter suds and rinses and can then be dipped in alcohol and left to dry. Pick a safe spot, of course.

Don't leave your jewellery grooming until your favorite piece has become dulled with dust and perspiration. Complement your crisp nylons and cottons with a "sparkle" of cleanliness.

Designers Neglect "Space Ship" Set

NEW YORK. — It's high time that designers of children's furniture took notice of the two-gun and space ship thinking of small fry.

So says Robert McKean, a member of the executive committee of the Industrial Designers' Institute.

McKean, speaking at the recent national juvenile exposition in New York, complained that designers still are in the "cute pie" stage, still producing pink and blue furniture, decorated with teddy bears or ducks.

"This is in the face of the fact," he added, "that today even two-year-olds are toting two guns a la Hopalong Cassidy and that three-and-four-year-olds are taking off for Mars in imaginary space ships."

McKean said most young parents today have furnished their houses in modern furniture and urgently need good, well-styled modern furniture for their children.

The designer pleaded for more adaptable furnishings for the younger set — chairs which could be expanded, tables with "telescope legs, and chests with pull-out steps which later become drawers.

Care For Carpets

All housewives know that a good carpet should be shifted around occasionally, to distribute the wear and tear, or alternatively the heavier furniture should be moved to different spots.

The tendency to "shading" in plain or light-colored carpets can be reduced if the new carpet is laid so that the pile leans away from the light.

WORST ENEMY

Worst enemy of carpets is grit, which, if allowed to remain and sink into the pile, causes gradual disintegration of the fabric. A carpet should be brushed towards the direction in which the pile lies. In other words when a sweeper or vacuum cleaner is used, the last stroke should be in this direction.

Dirt marks or stains should be removed as soon as they are noticerd — but not with soap, soda or ammonia. There are many soapless lather products sold for washing delicate fabrics, which will not harm a carpet.

Value Of Labor Bureau Questioned By Advisor

The need for a central source of government information on the women's labor market and allied matters similar to the Women's Bureau of the United States, has been questioned by Miss Ruth A. Hamilton, advisor on women's employment, Unemployment Insurance Commission, Ottawa.

Such organizations as the Federation of Business and Professional Women have been urging that such a centre be set up.

Miss Hamilton suggested that the promoters of this centre should familiarize themselves with information already available through existing government facilities before being too insistent on the matter.

Canadian women have access to a great deal of information about their place in the labor market through the Women's Division of the U.I.C., the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the legislative branch of the Department of Labor, she explained.

They have access to much of this information through publications of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, a large part of which is procured through operations of the National Employment Service and its more than 200 offices operated by the U.I.C. throughout Canada.

"With facilities provided by the National Employment Service there is already in existence a centre available to women and particularly women's organizations, upon which to base their thinking when matters relative to women wage earners come up," she said.

SUIT OF BROWN IMPORTED WOOL with beaded motifs and unusual scarf treatment (left). The scarf is of oyster tissue faille. The other two models, also from the same house, offer a contrast. The after-dark dress, centre, is of bronze iridescent taffeta with voluminous skirt hand-painted in bold design, while tiny embroidered French poodles are scattered over the anthracite wool dress at right. Black taffeta is inset at the midriff and also in the graceful pleat at the back of the skirt.

Charity Canning Turns To Business

SUMMERLAND, B.C. (CP)—Mrs. David Lingstone Milne, 65, who started canning for charity on a little machine fastened to her kitchen table 18 years ago, now is owner of a profitable business in this Okanagan Valley centre.

During depression years she canned peaches and sent them to relatives on the prairies and to Summerland hospital.

Soon she was supplying canned peaches, pears, apricots, prunes, carrots, tomatoes and corn and orders came in from many parts of Canada.

To keep pace with the demand, her sons, employed in a packing plant, built her a factory in their spare time. In the first year of its operation, she paid off $1,600 owing on her house and bought a refrigerator, an electric washer and a typewriter.

The next year the boys quit the packing house and went to work for their mother; so did Mr. Milne, a science teacher.

Word-of-mouth advertising worked wonders. Soon customers began arriving at the little building with boxes to be filled with Mrs. Milne's preserves and orders came from stores, too. The plant was extended and modernized and at the end of the 1951 packing season Mrs. Milne said she felt she could call herself a success.

"It's a sort of miracle," she said.

Mr. Milne died two years ago.

Summer Supper

This "Summer Supper Salad With Frosted Peaches" with some potato chips and crisp garden relishes will make a cool refreshing menu for the hottest day of summer. Make the salad with a can of spiced luncheon meat, some chopped celery and ripe olives. The frosted peaches are beautiful canned clings topped with a frozen minty mixture.

SALAD WITH FROSTED PEACHES

Six canned cling peach halves, 1 cup syrup from peaches, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon granulated sugar, drop minte extract, 1 (12-ounce) can spiced luncheon meat, 2 cups chopped celery, ½ cup chopped ripe olives, ½ cup mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, salad greens.

Drain and chill peaches. Combine syrup with lemon juice, sugar and mint. Pour into refrigerator tray. Place in freezing compartment with control set at lowest temperature. Freeze until barely firm. Stir thoroughly with a fork to break up ice crystals, and reset temperature control to normal. Dice meat and combine with celery and olives. Blend mayonnaise and mustard and toss lightly with meat-celery mixture. Serve on salad greens, accompanied by peach halves, heaped with frozen mixture. Serves 6.

URBANITES

More than 34 per cent of all Canadians live in urban places of 30,000 population and over.

Parade Of Women Without Hats Designers' Pain

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The number of distinguished women daily joining the "hatless parade" is one more headache for Britain's hat designers.

With the hat trade "a shadow of its pre-war self," manufacturers claim it is bad for trade when such women-in-the-news as Sarah Churchill, the Prime Minister's daughter, arrive in London—hatless.

Add to that such a prominent personality as Queen Mary attending a private showing of "Here's to the Memory"—a film scrapbook of the last 50 years—without one of her well-known toques and film star Ann Todd shopping in London's west end in black suit, pearls and no hat, and it may be admitted manufacturers have something to worry about.

Women who once would not dream of going without a hat, now are constantly seen without one.

SHOW OFF HAIR-DOS

Many society women, actresses and mannequins lend conviction to growing belief that a smart hair-do is best seen without a hat.

Teen-agers follow the lead of such fashion setters as film stars Jean Simmons and Elizabeth Taylor, both of whom like short cuts and no hats. This type of hair-style is perhaps the greatest enemy of hat salesmen. With hair-dressing prices rising and short cuts requiring constant attention, there is little money left for hat-buying, on most teen-age budgets.

The smooth line of such precision-cut coiffures as the Economy Cut, one of the latest styles by west end hair-dresser Raymond, almost makes a hat unnecessary. With centre parting, the hair waved gently over the ears to taper at the nape in short-cut swirl curls, this style remains smart in any weather.

Latest figures show that the hat trade has dwindled to half its pre-war strength. The output of summer straws has fallen to 69,000 dozen from 788,000 dozen in 1935.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Newcomers Often Irked By Authority Of Old-Timer

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a woman in sheep's clothing. No one wants woman, college educated and considered very competent as an executive's secretary. A very unfortunate situation has arisen in the office; it has resulted in the loss of some very capable employees and I am afraid we shall lose more. I know exactly where the trouble lies, and so do several other people.

We have in our department a woman office manager, a career woman, single. She is a very unhappy person, morose and generally sour. She has been here for a long, long time, surviving several upheavals. Our boss considers her the mother of the flock, but to the rest of us she is a wolf in her, but her general unpleasantness and proclivity for getting others into trouble is becoming more than we can bear. Should I tell my boss, or take the stand that it is none of my business? Am I being fair to him by holding my tongue? F. G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You aren't very specific as to the particular manner in which this woman makes trouble. Does she do it deliberately? Or is it simply a case of an older worker being resented by younger employees because she takes too much for granted on the basis of her seniority?

MUST HAVE SOMETHING

Since she is an old and trusted employee, she must have something in her favor. It is not at all unusual for an older worker to assume for herself a position of authority over younger workers. Her age and years of service are at the same time her source of prerogative and her shield against any inroads on her authority. Usually this attitude is taken by the lesser lights in a more or less joking manner. They make a token deference with tongue in cheek, and everyone is satisfied.

Occasionally the unwarranted assumption of authority is done in such an officious way that it does offend other workers and the resultant tension is detrimental to the employees individually and to the work of the organization as a whole.

When you consider that, in most cases, the offender is of such age that it would be impossible for her to secure another job, taking steps to have her fired becomes a most serious problem. I would certainly think twice before doing it, if I were you.

Perhaps the better plan would be to try to discover just what makes the lady morose and unhappy. She may have home responsibilities of a burdensome nature. She may be so dependent on the job that the very fear of losing it is, in fact, bringing on the very situation she dreads. Her own health may not be too good; in fact, at her age she should probably be retired. Consider these points in the light of your own youth, health and general well-being and see if you can't bring sympathetic understanding to help solve the problem for you. Perhaps if all you younger employees got together and decided to handle the older woman with more respect and consideration, she would lose much of her sourness and the difficulty would be automatically resolved.

Only as a last resort, and if things became too difficult to handle, or if you and all the other employees are convinced that the woman's attitude is the result of pure cussedness, and that alone, would I advise taking the case up with the higher echelon. There are two sides to every story, remember, and I know only one.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband has been married before and has a seven-year-old boy by his first wife. She is married again, to our cousin. My problem is: Do I have to give presents to them on their anniversaries, birthdays, and such? She has been giving us presents, wedding, Christmas, etc. I would like to get away from this as I want to remain friends only where the boy is concerned. I have always been one to be generous but I don't feel that it is my place to give them things under such circumstances. She recently gave my daughter, by a previous marriage, a dress for her birthday. M.G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You indeed have a delicate problem on your hands. Since the former wife is married to your own cousin, it complicates matters somewhat. If you feel uncomfortable in this present-giving dilemma, why not talk the matter over with your husband, and, if he agrees with you, let him make the suggestion to his former wife that the gifts cease.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: In our church we have a young pastor. His wife is a fine person. However, she calls all the women (between 25 and 35) by their first names, as we all do. But she wishes to be called by her last name. I think the same form should apply to all. Do you? A. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since your pastor's wife feels her dignity deserves the courtesy of last-name calling, you can only accede to her wishes. Perhaps when she becomes better acquainted with the other ladies, she will ask them to use her first name. She may come from a part of the country where etiquette in regard to first-name usage was more formal than it is in your town.

What's Right?

You would like to get a neighbor's maid to work for you part-time, after the hours of her regular job.

WRONG: Ask her about it, without mentioning it first to the neighbor who employs her.

RIGHT: First speak to the neighbor about the matter, so that she will not think you are trying to hire her maid away from her.

NICE WELCOME

Welcome guests to your home fragrantly by putting sachet powder or bath salts in a small bowl, and place it on a table in the foyer. A subtle scent fills the air.

On the campus this Fall, these are the hat styles that male students will favor most. For spectator sportswear (upper left), there's a tyrolean felt with contrasting narrow band and small feather. The wool cap stages a comeback (lower left) and is shown here in a checked design. It's styled with less brim. Deerstalker (above) is borrowed from Sherlock Holmes, looks well on a college student, too. The new, narrow brim appears (upper right) in a felt hat with center crease. Rough, tweedy mixture makes a second tyrolean hat (lower right), this one with rope band. It's ideal for wear with sports jacket and slacks.

Campus Fashions Feature Favourites This Fall

By GAILE DUGAS
(NEA Woman's Editor)

NEW YORK (NEA) — College men, returning to the campus this fall, will continue to wear the all-time favorite, the hat with the telescope crown. But they will also take to the new and narrow-brimmed hat with a centre-creased crown.

To the telescope crown, they'll add school or fraternity colors in the band trim. And the hat with the narrower brim will be reserved for dressier wear on and off the campus. It's a youthful style that avoids the look of too much hat.

Band decorations in the way of feathers, miniature golf clubs, tennis racquets, fishing rods and musical instruments, will appear on Tyrolean hats for college wear. These, of course, are designed to appear at football games and other spectator sports or at anything sufficiently casual to call for sports jackets and slacks.

The all-wool cap is back this year, this time with a smaller visor. It's shown in checks and plaids as well as solids. Added to this is the Sherlock Holmes deerstalker, to lend variety and interest to campus fashions and give the men a touch of mystery.

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: I have found your column very helpful . . . there was a recipe for a chocolate cake that I mislaid and would like to have. I believe it was called crazy cake . . . the dry ingredients were put in the pan it was to be cooked in and a number of holes made in this in which the vanilla (and other liquids) were put . . . I have trouble making white cake . . . they always fall . . . Mauriece M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER:

WACKY CAKE: Grease well a 9-inch pan. Sift into pan 1½ cups flour, 1 cup white sugar, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 1 teaspoon each each baking powder and soda, ¼ teaspoon salt. Make 3 holes and into them put 1 teaspoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 5 tablespoons melted butter. Over all pour 1 cup warm water and stir it in. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 or 35 minutes.

STANDARD WHITE CAKE (two 8-inch layers or 19-inch square pan).

Cream together until fluffy ½ cup mixed butter and shortening and 1½ cups sugar. Sift together 2¼ cups sifted cake flour, 2½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt. Stir these dry ingredients into the creamed mixture alternately with 1 cup milk mixed with 1½ teaspoons vanilla. Then fold in 3 stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased and floured pans or pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. . . . Bake layers for 30 to 35 minutes. Bake square or oblong cake 35 to 45 minutes.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: Once again writing for help . . . but first want to thank you for your help with my grille problem. The instruction book you mailed was the real answer. This time it is your Sour Cream cookies. I have just made a batch . . . there is no amount given for sour cream . . . I used a heaping tablespoon . . . they are delicious while warm but seemed dry when cool . . . so now I wonder about my judgment . . . I like so many others enjoy the informality of your writings and your family doings at times . . . (Mrs.) L. McI.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Both of my bairns will be away at school by next October, so I may not be so chipper either by then. Your letter was charming and certainly let me down easily about the ill-fated Sour Cream cookies . . . with hanging head I have to admit the amount was left out and it was my fault — can't foist it onto the old "typographical error." The amount for Sour Cream cookies, of sour cream is ½ cup. You may have seen this correction a couple of weeks ago.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: . . . Can you help me with a freezing problem? I know apples can be frozen, but can all apples, or just late ones or early ones? We have a tree of beautiful early ones that make delicious sauce and jelly but would they freeze successfully? I would also appreciate information on freezing late fruits . . . peaches and blueberries will (freeze) but will pears? Evelyn S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I have mailed you a copy of each of the columns I wrote for the paper for June 28 and July 3 on freezing fruits and vegetables. They do not mention early apples and do not give method of freezing pears. The pear varieties that freeze suitably under the heading of "good" (not excellent) are Keiffers and Baldwins. The apple varieties that freeze suitably under the heading of "good" (not excellent) are Baldwin, Greening, Northern Spy, Yellow Transparent; those four are good for sauce, and "any high acid variety" is "good" for pies. Because summer apples make delicious applesauce and because they are hard to keep it is advisable to freeze them in the form of applesauce.

FREEZING APPLESAUCE FROM FROM SUMMER APPLES

Peel and core apples, cut into 8ths. Place in saucepan with only sufficient water to start apples cooking. Bring to quick boil, reduce heat, and cook about 10 minutes until apples are mushy. Add minimum amount of sugar for your family's taste and stir until dissolved. If sauce is not fine enough force through strainer. Cool thoroughly. Package in heavy cellophane lined bags or cartons. Freeze at once.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: Your column contains good common sense recipes that the average person would find usable. Mind you I like good food, . . . but common sense forbids me to indulge . . . could you give me a recipe for plebian bread pudding. This my husband refused to eat. Perhaps a different recipe or two would make it more palatable. Mrs. Stuart M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I printed an excellent bread pudding recipe in last Wednesday's paper for you and hope you saw it and hope your husband is won over.

Salad In Place Of Honor Shadow Box Made At Home

Often in the place of honor on summer tables is a sparkling gelatin salad. Tomato-ham Buffet Salad is very bit worthy of such special attention. Make twin molds to serve a large group and the salad is a real attention getter.

Chopped ham and rosy tomato soup—the two main ingredients blend into a creamy pleasing flavor. Makes it a salad that men go for as well as women. The warm, rosy color of this salad contrasts attractively with the bright greens surrounding it.

Plan the salad for the centre-piece at a buffet dinner for guests. Or let your family enjoy it when you serve supper from the porch table. For good eating with the salad, serve a casserole of creamed green beans with brown slivered almonds, hot rolls, crisp celery and olives.

TOMATO-HAM BUFFET SALAD

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1¼ cups water
1 can (1¼cups) condensed tomato soup
1 3-ounce package cream cheese (or ½ cup cottage cheese)
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated onion
½ cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
2 cups ground cooked ham

Soften gelatin in ¼ cup water; set aside. Heat ¼ can soup; add gelatin and dissolve. Stir dissolved gelatin into remaining soup and 1 cup water. Add cheese and mix until smooth. Chill until slightly thick; add mayonnaise, mustard and ham. Rinse a 1½-quart mold with cold water; pour in mixture and chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce or other salad greens. Garnish with sliced cucumber or ripe olives. 6 to 8 servings.

SOUP SCOOPS

Beans with Hash Patties: Generous portions of pork and beans with crisp-browned patties of corned beef hash are a supper you'll savor on warm nights. It's a shelf-ready meal; just take one can of pork and beans, one of hash from your cupboard. While the beans heat, fix the hash this way: Push it out of the can and cut into inch-thick slices. Wrap a slice of bacon around each patty; brown these on both sides in a skillet. Accompany the beans and hash patties with relishes for nibbling—green pepper rings and cucumber chips.

Mushroom-Flavored Corn Meal Muffins: Little piping hot muffins give the joyous note to a meal. And they're no trick for a summer supper with a package of corn muffin mix plus a can of condensed cream of mushroom soup. Empty the mix into a bowl and stir until free of lumps. Stir the creamy soup into the dry ingredients; then add an egg and beat until well blended. Pour into muffin pans and bake as directed on package. Makes 12 muffins. Good and crunchy with a green salad or fruit plate.

Chilled Chicken - Cucumber Soup: A cold refreshing soup gives a pleasant start to warm-weather meals. Use condensed cream of chicken soup for the base. Cubes of cucumber taste good in this. Simmer 1 cup of the cucumber (cut in ½-inch cubes) in 1 cup of water until tender, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in the 1 can of cream of chicken soup. Chill in refrigerator for 4 hours. Makes 2 or 3 servings.

French Bikini Bathing Suits Now Tinier

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—Bikini bathing suits in France this year are tinier than ever.

In fact they are so skimpy, some of the wearers on the Riviera, to make sure they fit as they should, are having them specially tailored. Others—taking still fewer chances—are having them made by corset manufacturers, complete with stays to keep them in place.

In spite of trends toward one-piece bathing suits, the majority of suits worn at Cannes are still two-piece styles. But the briefer they are, the more they require good fitting. More and more women are choosing custom made bathing suits, beautifully boned and moulded by corsetiers.

Styles feature new high cuts, slanted up in a shape V over the hips. Bras are snugly boned, and usually strapless. A separate strap may be buttoned in for active swimming.

FOLLOW DRESS TRENDS

Colors follow many of the dress trends towards the light sand, wheat and biscuit shades, deepening into the spice and nutmeg tones which match a dark suntan.

One of the glamor girls of Cannes, a young French actress, appeared in a deep chocolate ensemble, especially effective with her bronzed skin.

A revoluntionary bathing suit, this time in one piece, was made of leopard printed, satin lastex. The wearer had matched her swim suit to her car, a convertible sports model, entirely upholstered in real leopard skin.

Another bathing suit acclaimed as one of the stars of the season, is Jacques Heim's brief two piece suit made of bands of fringed string. It comes in the natural shade of cord, and achieves two straight rows for the bra, with three tiers which form the panties. It is worn with a huge parasol hat, made of natural straw.

Large hats appear as frequently on the beach as gaily striped umbrellas. New trends feature amusing peaked bonnets, or beachcombers' hats made of woven palm leaves.

Beach robes are featured in heavy, absorbent terry cloth or one in emerald green, copied from an ancient Roman toga. It is a long straight piece of fabric, with a hole cut out for the head. The sides are completely open, but the robe is gathered in at the waist with a cord. Other beach robes, knee or hip length, are styled like artists smocks.

Shorts parade everywhere. The majority are straight cut and tailored, though a few are generously pleated, similar to a tennis dress.

A few slacks and pedal pushers lend contrast, with the Spanish influence seen in snugly fitted torreador trousers.

KEEPING COOL

When the small fry are just too hot, pat their moist bodies with dusting powder applied with a huge puff. The six-year-olds—and up — are more willing to take a bath if they are permitted to "play" with the puff themselves when they pop out of the tub. The powder absorbs perspiration, so helps to cool them.

6—In Memoriam

EALES—In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Gladys Eales.
The depths of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one we loved so well,
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Ever remembered by Aub, Rene and granddaughters.

HAMILTON—In loving memory of Mother, Mary Chambo Hamilton, who passed away July 27, 1946.
May God be as good to her as she was to us.
—Ever remembered by daughter Shirley, Harold and Kenneth.

HOUGHTON — In loving memory of my dear husband, Charles Houghton, who passed away July 26th, 1950.
Short and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near.
Only those who have parting can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
—Ever remembered by wife and family, Mrs. Mary Houghton, and son Fred, daughter Mrs. Jack Althouse.

MULLEN—In loving memory of a dear father, George E. Mullen, who passed away July 27, 1951.
One year today our father was called,
To his eternal rest,
Gone where the angels sing so sweet,
And taken when God knew best.
We miss him here so very much,
His presence oft seems nigh,
But we all hope in heaven to meet
Where no one says good-bye.
—Ever remembered by Harold, Roy and family.

OAKLEY—In loving memory of our dear little boy, Bruce Oakley, who passed away July 26, 1949.
God knew that he was suffering,
The hills were hard to climb,
So He closed his weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace be thine."
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Sometime, someday we know not when
We will meet our little boy there.
—To dearly loved to ever be forgotten, Mummy and Daddy.

RICHARDSON—In loving memory of James Richardson, who passed away July 26, 1943.
No pen can write, no tongue can tell
My sad and bitter loss;
But God alone has help so well
To bear my heavy cross.
—Always remembered by his loving wife, Edith.

Valuable Citizen William G. Ovens Lost To City

Trinity United Church was filled Friday afternoon for the funeral service of former mayor William Ovens. Mr. Ovens, whose 46th birthday would have been today, died Tuesday while on a fishing trip north of Lake of Bays.

Tributes were paid to him by the two ministers who conducted the service, the Rev. Dr. Bruce Gordon of Trinity, and the Rev. Ivan Morgan of Murray St. Baptist Church.

Dr. Gordon said "We have lost a friend . . . and we have lost the cheerfulness that was so much a part of him. He was a man who had found the secret of happiness. A happy life is a life of service, and that was the kind of life that Bill Ovens led."

Behind him, said Dr. Gordon, he leaves a call to service to others. The example had been set, it was for those who are left to carry it further.

Mr. Ovens was a man whose cheerfulness of spirit and whose sincerity of mind had been apparent to all who knew him. He had spent a life of "self giving, an element that lifted him high in the affection of his friends."

It could be truly said of Bill Ovens: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Mr. Morgan gave the Bible readings, and included the 23rd Psalm, and "Let not your heart be troubled . . ."

FORMER MAYORS

Both city council and the Kiwanis Club attended the service in the body, as well as the Local Council of Women and the Queen Mary Home and School Association. Six former mayors of the city were present: Max J. Swanston, James Hamilton, George A. MacDonald, Archie McIntyre, J. J. Duffus, and William Taylor.

The Hon. Harold R. Scott, former minister of Lands and Forests, and the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, attended. Mr. Goodfellow was an honorary pallbearer.

Honorary pallbearers were Ian McRae, Gordon K. Fraser, Cecil Upper, R. F. Downey, Walter Fitzgerald, Dr. C. M. Scott, Clarence Neal, Hugh Waddell, the Hon. Mr. Goodfellow, Mr. Swanston, Mr. Hamilton, Mr. MacDonald, Mr. McIntyre, Senator Duffus, and Mr. Taylor.

Find Tea Imports Down In 1951

LONDON (CP)—The annual report of the International Tea Commission says that while tea imports into the United Kingdom in 1951 increased from 89,000,000 pounds to 448,000,000 pounds, imports into Canada and the United States dropped 41,000,000 pounds to a total of 127,000,000.

Trade sources in London say the explanation may be that Canada, Australia and the United States stockpiled tea at the outbreak of the Korean war in 1950. In 1951, they have been using stocks on hand, hence the drop in imports.

These sources say it is expected Canada will import much more tea during 1952.

VON Nurses Help In Small Plants

A new type of industrial nursing service will be offered to smaller Peterborough industries for the first time in the next few months.

The Peterborough Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses is planning a part-time nursing service which will be made available to industries in the city with 35 to 200 employees. It is expected that the final plans for the service will be completed by Sept. 1.

The idea behind this report is to make a nursing service available to industries who don't have a sufficient number of employees to warrant a full-time nursing service.

The Victorian Order have introduced and successfully operated this type of service in Windsor, Hamilton and several centres in the Maritime industries for a number of years. In these centres it was found that such services helped to create better employer-employee relations and increased plant efficiency and production.

The service will constitute regular visits to the industry by a V.O.N. nurse. During these visits, the nurse will give counselling to employees with health problems, as well as carry out a general public health education program. She will also assist plant physicians in physical examinations.

The cost of this service will be based on the regular cost per visit now charged by the branch plus a small fee for appointment service. This additional charge is made because the service makes it necessary for a nurse to be at the plant at a certin regular time.

There are approximately 22 factories in Peterborough with an employee range of 35 to 200—the range in which this type of service has been found to operate most successfully.

Democrats' Choice

Stevenson Modest, Sets Standards High For Himself

By WADE JONES

CHICAGO (NEA) — When Adlai E. Stevenson was just a little tot he yanked the table cloth one day, as little tots will, and considerable china got broken.

Whereupon, in what has come to be a characteristic Stevenson gesture, young Adlai betook himself out to the dog kennel, where his worried parents found him several hours later sleeping on the straw.

From that day to this the modest, self-doubting Democratic presidential nominee has been casting himself in so many figurative doghouses for his imaginary shortcomings that some people are wondering how he would bear up under the many woes of the White House.

Adlai (rhyme it with "gladly") has wondered, too. After declining last spring a Democratic nomination which was virtually assured, he said in explaining his decision:

". . . I just didn't feel that I had any God-given powers to figure out the solution to co-existence with the Soviet Union and all our other problems."

"I had no such self-confidence at all but yet I didn't want to seem to shrink from the job out of fear. I didn't want it — it seemed to me to mean honor, yes, but also misery."

That kind of talk had an odd sound indeed in a season when presidential hopefuls, with no apparent self-doubt whatsoever, were confidently prescribing the world's ills and all sorts of remarkable cure-alls.

Then there was the time back in 1948 when Stevenson, plucked from political nowhere, had just received the Democratic nomination for governor of Illinois.

Troubled by characteristic doubt as to his worthiness, Stevenson was on his way to Springfield by train to receive the nomination formally from the state committee.

Stevenson asked Jake Arvey, the Chicago Democratic biggie, whether he should give the committee a speech of acceptance. Arvey explained that under the circumstances such a speech was in order.

So Stevenson started back to the club car to write out a little talk, saying, "I suppose I'll make a mess of it, as usual, but still I'll try to work something out."

"He was back in the club car about an hour," Arvey relates, "and when he came back he had a speech that would take about eight minutes to deliver. I read it over and then said, 'Don't ever let anyone change a word of it, or of any speech you ever write. You've got a new approach to politics."

What he had written was short, pointed, and exactly what he felt. It carried conviction and it was spiced with wit and it went over great with the committee.

It was to be the keynote of one of the most remarkable political careers in Illinois history and it revealed a great deal about Adlai Stevenson, the man.

When Stevenson began campaigning for governor in 1948 he'd never campigned for office before and had little help in getting started.

"I just had to start out on my own," he says, "learning by doing, sweating it out on every street corner all over the state. Money was so short I got out my own press releases and drove the car.

"At first I wasn't sure of myself, so I worried all the time when the political veterans told me, 'Say this, don't say that, straddle on the other.'

"Then I realized I was being all sorts of dishonest characters I really wasn't, so I began to say what was in my heart and mind. The voters seemed to like that."

They did. In the election, Stevenson polled a 572,000 majority, the biggest any Illinois governor ever got. He carried downstate Illinois for the Democrats for the first time in history. And that was only the beginning.

When Adlai Stevenson became governor of Illinois, he started out to clean house in a state where corruption was almost the rule instead of the exception. And he succeeded, despite the fact he was working half the time with a Republican legislature.

The Commerce Commission, which regulates public utilities, had become heavily bogged down in graft. He shook it up and put it on a non-political basis.

The school system was virtually starving for lack of state help. He gave it a big boost by doubling its aid from about $30,000,000 to $60,000,000.

When he came into office, Illinois' once fine highway system had lapsed into what the Federal Bureau of Roads called the worst in any major state. He pushed through gas taxes and truck-license fees, despite heavy opposition of the gas and truckling lobbies, and set out on a road-building program that will put Illinois up with the best in a few years.

The state police, which had become soft and ineffectual because it was full of political appointees, was shaken up and put on a merit system.

The state hospitals had reached a notoriously low level. But changes were made and they now rank among the top 25 per cent in the country.

The recent horse-meat scandal rose up to muddy this record of solid accomplishment. But to Stevenson's credit, he dealt with the situation quickly and firmly, firing an old friend who was one of the top state officials involved, as well as several others.

These increased services cost money, but the new governor cut a lot of fiscal corners where he could and the result is that the annual budget of Illinois is now only a little over $600,000,000. And that's still below what it was in 1949.

As a great admirer of the balanced budget—"the country can spend and tax itself into collapse"—Stevenson is proud of the financial accomplishments of his administration.

Stevenson's modesty comes to the fore when he's asked other reasons for his accomplishments in Illinois. He gives a big share of the credit to the people he picked to help him.

He got some top flight ones like Carl Kresl, chief purchaser for Illinois, who formerly was Sears Roebuck purchasing director, and George W. Mitchell, former Federal Reserve Bank president, who as Stevenson's first finance Department director, was chief whittler on the state budget.

It was largely because he didn't want to run off and leave such people after persuading them to give up high-paying jobs to work for the state that Stevenson was so reluctant to accept the Democratic nomination for President.

In appearance Adlai Stevenson is more interesting than imposing. At 52, he is getting a little hefty around the middle. He stands 5 feet, 9½ inches and wears good clothes and wears them well, with the exception of an old pair of spikeless golf shoes and very old hat which he often bursts forth in. His manner is earnest and his dark eyes alert.

He eats grilled tomatoes for breakfast and drives an ancient Cadillac with some 300,000 miles on it, works hard and does little socializing. He and his wife, the former Ellen Borden, were divorced in 1949. They have three sons, John, Borden, and Adlai, Jr.

Stevenson's great-grandfather on his mother's side, Jesse W. Fell, an Illinois lawyer, was a friend of Lincoln and laid the groundwork for the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates. His other great-grandfather, the first Adlai Stevenson, also an Illinoisan, knew both Fell and Lincoln and was Grover Cleveland's vice-president for one term.

The present Adlai's father was Lewis Green Stevenson, a newspaper executive and one-time secretary of state of Illinois.

Stevenson attended State Normal University, at Normal, Ill., which had been founded by his great-grandfather Fell.

Then he went to Princeton, from there into a Navy reserve unit during World War 1, and after that to Harvard Law School. He didn't like Harvard and transferred to Northwestern University, in Evanston, Ill., where he got his law degree in 1926.

His family owned a newspaper and he took a trip to Russia as a newspaper correspondent, but returned shortly to settle down to the practice of law in Chicago and marry Ellen Borden in one of the top events of the 1928 Chicago social season.

Stevenson first went to Washington in 1933 as special counsel to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Later, he shifted over to the Federal Alcohol Contral Administration which had been established to handle the problems arising from the repeal of Prohibition. Then back to Chicago to rejoin the law firm of Sidley, McPherson, Austin and Burgess, in which he was soon to become a partner.

Stevenson has always been a good writer. He has written frequently for national magazines and always prepares his own speeches. But he learned his gift of public speaking largely as president of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations.

It was also the Council which indirectly gave him his first big job in Washington. While working with the Council he became friends with the late Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

When President Roosevelt was forming his World War II coalition cabinet he asked Knox to be Secretary of the Navy, and Knox asked Stevenson to go with him. He did, and became Knox's right hand man.

He wrote speeches, had a large hand in smoothing out the Navy's race and labor relations problems, and flew virtually all over the world. Somebody said he travelled about as much as anybody in the war except Ernie Pyle and Kilroy.

Stevenson was pulled into the United Nations Conference in San Francisco in 1945 when a jam occurred in the releasing of news to the press and radio. He began attending the U.S. delegation's meetings and afterward would set himself up in a hotel room and begin dishing out information to the newshungry reporters.

He did the job so well that after the San Francisco Conference ended, he was named deputy to Edward Stettinius, head of American delegation to the UN Preparatory Commission meeting in London. He succeeded Stettinius when the latter became sick and had to return to the States.

When he returned to the United States, Stevenson was offered several State Department posts, including the ambassadorships to both Argentina and Brazil. But he turned them down because he didn't have the necessary private fortune.

So, in 1947, Stevenson felt that if he was going to take the plunge into political life, now was the time to do it. But he didn't know just how to get started.

Luckily, a luncheon of Democratic bigwigs took place in Chicago at about that time, and out of it came the break Stevenson needed.

Among those present were Secretary of State James Byrnes, Senator Tom Connolly, Lest Biffle, Senate secretary, and Jake Arvey, the big wheel of Chicago Democratic politics. Byrnes suggested that Stevenson and Arvey get together. They did. Arvey shot Stevenson a lot of questions on a lot of subjects, and he liked the answers he got.

He like them so much he began thinking about Stevenson for governor. Stevenson didn't think his talents ("if any") lay along governorship lines and he withheld his decision on running until the last minute.

He was almost as late and almost as reluctant as he was in accepting the Democratic nomination for President of the United States.

RELUCTANT ADLAI STEVENSON, governor of Illinois, was nominated Friday as Democratic candidate for president of the United States. Stevenson, who as late as Friday morning would not say whether he would accept a draft, won the nomination when Senator Estes Kefauver and Averill Harriman switched their delegates' votes to his favor.

Iron Mines Bring Prosperity

which is expected to last 30 years, can be reached.

HAVING EFFECT

It will be several months before the open pit mines will be in operation, but already the development is having a noticeable effect on the village.

Business is really booming. In June, the Dominion Bank moved into its ultra-modern offices that provides three times the floor space of its former quarters. Eight new businesses which include two jewellery stores, a men's and a ladies' wear store, a restaurant, a Belleville tire firm, an electrical store, and a service station have opened within the last month.

There is no unemployment; 150 men are employed at the mine, and every able-bodied man has a job. The numerous glistening new store fronts on Forsyth Street, the main business section, are proof that the village is flexing its muscles and getting ready for an era of expansion and prosperity.

Obviously not a man inclined to make extravagant statements, Howard Sabine, veteran publisher of the weekly Marmora Herald, said this week: "It should double the population in five years."

The population is now slightly more than 1,100, and Mr. Sabine backed up his prediction by pointing out that this is what has happened as a result of the employment created and the business which has followed in other centres where Bethlehem has opened up new mines.

It was a Wednesday afternoon, and all stores except the drug stores were closed, but both sides of the street were lined with cars and trucks. Mr. Sabine, who has operated the Herald for 46 years, said that a year or so ago the street was practically deserted on Wednesday afternoons and that there were as many cars in town as there used to be on a Saturday night.

LOOKS BRIGHT

"The future looks very bright, not only for Marmora but for the whole district," was the optimistic comment of Victor M. Lynch, who has served five terms as Reeve of the village. "It can't help but bring prosperity," he added, and the expansion of the Deloro cobalt refinery just east of the village will mean more men on the payroll there.

Like all expanding municipalities, Marmora is beginning to have growing pains. There is a housing shortage and a house which could be rented for $15 a month a year ago is now renting for as much as $40.

However, Mr. Lynch says the village is "definitely interested in attracting those who are coming 20 and 30 miles to work at the mine." A new high school was opened last fall, but Mr. Lynch expects that the problem of lack of public school accommodation will have to be faced soon.

A new police chief was hired last week. Melville Dunbar, formerly of the traffic division of the Toronto Police Department, will be taking over from the present chief Calvin McKenzie August 1. A new fire hall was built recently and the volunteer fire brigade has been reorganized with more younger men on the roster who can be depended on to respond quickly to fire alarms.

WATERWORKS BLACK

There are no waterworks in the village at present, but Reeve Lynch hopes that in a year or two it may be possible to get approval of the Ontario Municipal Board to provide this service to the community.

One of the difficulties Marmora faces is the fact that the mine property is outside the village and cannot be taxed by the village to help pay for the expansion.

Consequently, Marmora is liable to find itself in the same position as Timmins. There, the mine is also outside the city but the majority of workers live in the town.

However, Mr. Lynch points out that the provincial government has worked out a system whereby the municipality is reimbursed for being a "dormitory" for the workers who are employed in the mine which pays taxes in another municipality. He is confident that a similar arrangement can be worked out between Marmora, the Bethlehem Mines Corporation, and the township.

With an eye on future expansion, a three municipality planning board has been set up. Representatives of Marmora and Marmora and Lake townships sit on the joint planning board which is presently engaged in preparing a report on zoning the village and parts of the townships. The board intends to prevent undesirable shack towns from springing up such as have blighted mining communities in other parts of Canada.

TIMBER AND TOURISTS

Unlike Blairton, which was entirely dependent on iron mining for its prosperity, Marmora does not have all its economic eggs in one basket. It is still the centre of a big lumbering area. There are three big lumber companies operating just north of the village.

Then, too, there is the tourist industry, which means a lot to Marmora every summer.

Bank accountant Roy C. Moss, who has been with the Dominion Bank in Marmora for six years, says that business started to pick up about two years ago when a government liquor store and a new theatre opened. "It has been increasing all the time," he adds. Mr. Moss says the number of tourists passing through the town boosts business during the summer months but even taking this into consideration there has been a noticeable picking up in the tempo of business the last few months.

In many villages like Marmora, there is a considerable core of retired farmers and elderly people, who live on fixed incomes and are reluctant to see a new industry start up because it is likely to mean an expansion of the village and higher taxes to extend community services.

This short - sighted attitude, however, is not hampering progress in Marmora. In the words of Mr. Moss, the majority of the population are younger people and "they all want to see the town move ahead."

While Marmora looks ahead to a prosperous future, old timers recall when thousands of tons of ore were mined from the pits at Blairton. It was shipped via a narrow gauge railway to Trent River, then by boat to Harwood on Rice Lake where its was transferred to freight cars and loaded into lake freighters bound for Pittsburgh at Cobourg.

While Blairton virtually disappeared from the map (only a hotel now used as a house, a school and one or two original houses remain) Marmora has passed through several spurts of prosperity during the last 70 years brought on by a series of short lived mining ventures.

SPENDING MILLIONS

This time, however, it is different. The Bethlehem Mines Corporation is spending millions on developing the property as a long-range proposition. Consequently, there is no fear this time that the mining will end abruptly as it has at least three times before, when mining companies ran out of money before they could produce sufficient quantities of the low grade ore to carry on profitably.

The area around Blairton has been surveyed recently and there is some possibility that it may be worked again. However, even after the last of the iron ore is taken from the Marmora pit, about 1962, there is little likelihood of Marmora becoming a ghost town. It was Marmora's more diversified economy — the lumber industry, the Deloro refinery, the surrounding agricultural area, and in later year, the tourist industry—which enabled it to exist and be ready to take advantage of a new iron mining boom. However, the residents of Blairton, relying entirely on the mine, had no other means of existence when the opening of the Misabi Range killed the market for Blairton ore in the 1890's.

British Election Cost Candidates £946,018 In '51

LONDON (CP)—The whirlwind campaign waged by 1,376 candidates in the British general election last October involved a total outlay of £946,018 in expenses. The figures, disclosed in a Home Office report, compare with £1,170,124 spent on campaign activities in the 1950 election and £1,073,216 in 1945.

The report shows it was not always the candidate who spent most who got himself elected. In 228 contests, roughly a third of the defeated candidates spent more than their successful opponents, the difference ranging from £1 to more than £300.

The heaviest bill, £1,101, was incurred by the Conservative, J. C. Jennings, defeated in Derbyshire by A. J. Champion, Socialist. In second spot with an outlay of £1,073 was Miss Pat Hornsby-Smith, parliamentary secretary to the minister of health.

Lowest account, a mere 20 shillings, was returned by W. Brownrigg, unsuccessful independent candidate in Penrith and Cumberland border.

Prime Minister Churchill's campaign set him back £558, against £613 for Labor leader, Clement Attlee.

The biggest items for most candidates were stationery and printing. The total expended for these accounts alone amounted to approximatly £590,000.-

Drug Traffic Spreads To Good Homes

By GEORGE FINLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—The story of a spoon, an eyedropper and a needle is frequently heard today in Vancouver's dingy police court, a few steps from the city's notorious skid road.

It is a story told by pretty, teen-aged girls who sought thrills through the use of narcotics. The details are sordid.

Some of the girls, most from good families and well educated, have told of pawning their clothes and jewelry so they could buy a "fix."

To prepare a "fix"—an injection of a drug—a spoon, an eyedropper and a needle are required.

CURB USE BY TEEN-AGERS

A campaign to curb the use of narcotics by teen-agers opened here June 26 after police discovered two young girls, one 15 years old and the other 16, in a state of collapse in a downtown block.

A score of men and women, mostly young, have been arrested. Some have been charged with selling narcotics while others face charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Eight of the accused had the charges dismissed when a 17-year-old key witness repudiated his story of narcotic orgies in the schools.

Investigators gave the schools a clean bill, but it was found that many teen-agers became addicts after leaving school.

"HYPO" PARTIES

Some told of "thrill" or "hypo" parties where they went for their first "shots." Others said they had taken drugs "because we wanted to keep our boy friends."

"Is there any difference between getting 'high' on drugs or 'high' on liquor," one girl was asked in court yesterday.

"When you get 'high' on drugs, your eyes get small. You don't feel like getting around. You want to be relaxed."

The witness was a 15-year-old girl, neatly dressed and well spoken.

Source of supply was skidroad cafes and hotels on the fringe of Vancouver's downtown district.

But homes are not immune from the drug menace. The court record for this week shows that two teen-aged girls took narcotics in the bathroom of a Cambie street home, one of Vancouver's exclusive residential districts.

BATHROOM FIXES

The two girls, one a 15-year-old high school student and the other a 16-year-old English youngster, who has been in Canada for five years, told of the bathroom "fixes."

The tiny high school girl, dressed in a grey skirt and a blue blouse, looked strange in the ancient court room.

"I never heard of drugs at school," she told the prosecutor.

Renovating

needs of successive generations. It can perfectly well be modified to suit present needs—more easily modified than are the chill, lofty, Georgian residences of the New Town—and there is no better example than Acheson House, where the Scottish Craft Centre has its home.

Built for a seventeenth—century Secretary of State, it has been restored so tastefully that the atmosphere is retained without any sacrifice of convenience or comfort. The wares of the Centre, most of them very modern, merge astonishingly with the lovely old background, and many a visitor who comes to admire the house goes away with a memento in the shape of a piece of contemporary craftsmanship.

The Canongate Church furnishes good examples of the work of Scottish craftsmen of today. It has been admirably restored by another scholarly architect, Ian Lindsay, and made worthy of the great who rest in its shadow, Adam Smith among them. Another fine old town mansion opposite, Huntly House, is now the City Museum. In this way the old properties of the historic street are being saved, from Holyrood to the Lawnmarket, where the Saltire Society apporporiately has its headquarters in Gladstone's Land.

Yet the development will not be complete until the depopulation trend is reversed. This is fully recognised. Numbers of residential flats are likely to appear, flats likely to combine some of the character of rooms in the Temple with the atmosphere of a garret on the Montmartre heights! There are infinite possibilities, as Sir Patrick Geddes knew when he pioneered this reversal of the exodus from the Old Town to the New half a century ago.

K. J. Crawford Inducted At St. Andrew's

MARMORA (ENS)—The Rev. Kenneth J. Crawford, B.A., B.D., of Enterprise United church charge for the past seven years, was installed and inducted into the Marmora United church charge at St. Andrew's on Friday evening.

The Rev. A. L. Sesco of Tweed, conducted the service.

The new minister was brought forward and introduced by the Rev. G. A. Ruttenham of Trenton, chairman of the presbytery.

The Rev. H. E. Beare of Springbrook, gave the charge to the congregation, commenting upon the relationship and importance of holy scripture in the life of the church.

He said that holy scripture was esteemed very highly not only in the church of God but also in organizations embracing the Christian way of life. He finished his discourse by enlarging upon the words of Paul to Timothy that all scripture was given by inspiration of God and was profitable for doctrine and reproof and instruction in righteousness that the man of God might be perfect and "thoroughly furnished unto all good works." The ceremony of institution and induction followed.

The Rev. H. W. Giffin, of Foxboro, then gave the charge to the minister. Taking as his text the words of God to Jonah "Arise and go to Nineveh," he drew attention to the fact that in those days before the coming of Christ, the mercy of God was extended beyond the Jew to the Gentile and Nineveh because of its repentance was spared destruction. He first told the congregation that the minister was on their hands as it were because someone was needed to reprove us of sin and to endeavor to keep us in the narrow way.

The Rev. K. J. Crawford, the newly inducted minister, pronounced benediction.

Mrs. Crawford and family will arrive to take up residence at the manse.

The Rev. George Crabbe of Eldorado and Mrs. Crabbe also announced the benediction.

Mantle Might Succeed As Super-Star

By BILL ROEDER
NEA Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK — (NEA). — It's surprising that the big leagues haven't turned up any clear-cut candidates to succeed Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams, Stan Musial, Jackie Robinson, and Bob Feller as super-stars.

Every generation produces leaders, but usually there is some overlapping. One or two young fellows will have established themselves while the older ones are still at their peak.

Right now, though, there are no young players of guaranteed greatness.

This is strange considering that in the last few years the hunt for talent has been more energetic and extensive than ever before.

With junior baseball flourishing and Negroes welcome, the source should be at an all-time high.

Perhaps Mickey Mantle will make it, or Willie Mays, but you didn't have to say maybe when Joe DiMaggio, Williams and Musial hit the scene.

There had to be a little speculation in Feller's case, because he was wild, but you knew he was something special the first time you saw him or even read about him.

MANTLE AND MAYS RUSHED

Mantle may be our best bet.

He seems to have the touch of greatness. It's possible there would have been no need for speculation if he had been allowed to develop a little more normally in the minor leagues. You might say the same about Mays.

There is one difference between Mantle and Mays that may be important as regards their Hall of Fame prospects. When Mantle steps to the plate in batting practice, every other player on the field watches him. That is an instinctive sign of respect for unusual ability. Mays didn't get such recognition. Musial gets it, of course. Joe DiMaggio got it. Sometimes when Williams walked into the cage, everything else stopped. Even the fungo hitters rested on their bats and watched.

Occasionally you'll find this compliment paid a player who is not a super-star.

Dixie Walker won't make Cooperstown, but in his good years with the Dodgers his hitting was so sweet and his swing so rhythmic he always had a gallery.

Robinson isn't studied particularly when he hits, but he is the exceptional all-star.

Next to Musial, he is the best hitter in the National League, but it isn't primarily his batting that sets him above the others.

Jackie Robinson will finish his career with an outstanding record as a batter, fielder and base runner, but the thing that will be remembered is that he found ways to win.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, says the Canadiens have decided to stop financing St. Jerome Eagles and Montreal Nationales of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association and to switch Granby Royals back to Montreal.

He said in Montreal yesterday that unless Eagles and Nationales can finance themselves, last season's six-team loop will be cut to four. The remaining Q.J.A.H.A. teams are Quebec Citadelles, Three Rivers Reds and Montreal Canadiens.

As a result, Selke said coach Sammy Pollock of Montreal Junior Canadiens has proposed an interlocking schedule with the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" Council, calling for each Quebec team to play each of the nine Ontario teams in a two-game home-and-home series, in addition to a regular 24-game schedule for the Q.J.A.H.A.

Ken Reardon, scout for the N.H.L. Canadiens, who helped Pollock, said he and Pollock made a telephone poll of Ontario and Quebec teams earlier this week and all approved the plan.

A Q.J.A.H.A. meeting will be held Monday to study it. A meeting between the Q.J.A.H.A. and O.H.A. Junior A Council will be held later.

DIXON PULLS UP

Reg Dixon of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto sailed his Circle back into contention for the George Cup by taking the second event yesterday in the three-race series. Dixon, present holder of the cup, was disqualified in the first six-metre race Thursday which was won by Jerry Cassel of Rochester with the Stork. The Circle finished more than three minutes ahead of the Stork yesterday. The Rochester crew needs only a second in today's final race to take the trophy.

CATS TURN DOWN AL

Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four football union yesterday rejected quarterback Al Dekdebrun of Buffalo as a candidate for 1952 and the former Toronto Argo player may join the Balmy Beach team in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. Dekdebrun, property of the Toronto club, was a key figure in its 1950 Grey Cup victory and was let out last season in favor of Al Wirkowski.

WINS QUEBEC OPEN

Al Balding of Toronto won the Quebec Open golf championship in 36 holes of medal play with a 69-74—143 score at Montreal yesterday. Balding's win sent the title to Ontario for the second straight year.

Vancouver Man Picks Up Ideas At Helsinki For 1954 Games

By JACK SULLIVAN

HELSINKI (CP)—If Stanley Smith of Vancouver has his way, the 1954 British Empire Games will be a duplicate in miniature of the well-organized 15th Olympiad.

Here to learn how tiny, money-short Finland can handle nearly 6,000 athletes from 69 countries—and satisfy them all—the general chairman of the organizing committee for the Empire Games will get a blueprint of the whole setup before leaving Aug. 3.

He is looking into every phase of the gigantic Olympic apparatus—catering, housing, transportation training facilities, press and radio and minute details of the organization of various sports.

TO COST $2,750,000

Estimates of the cost of the Empire Games range between $2,500,-000 and $2,750,000. The expected 500 to 600 athletes will see something never attempted in Canada since the Games were staged in Hamilton in 1930.

LEARN PLENTY

Smith has learned plenty from the Finns who are sticklers for organization without being ostentatious about it.

"I've been snooping around and making notes daily," he said in an interview. "The $2,000 it cost to send me here is worth $1,000,000."

He is determined on one point—the officials and non-competing athletes of Empire Games won't be allowed to clutter up the infield during the program as in most track meets in Canada.

When one set of officials is finished with any event here, they march back to the stands and sit down. Officials at the finish lines are on a ladder out of the way of paying customers, and athletes return to their dressing rooms as soon as their event is concluded.

There is no confusion here. Officials and athletes are briefed and then led on to the field a few minutes before the events.

PLANS BIG STADIUM

He said the present University of British Columbia stadium will be increased from its present 4,000 seating capacity to 45,000. His organization will build an open-air swimming pool in Queen Elizabeth Park with seats for 10,000 to 12,000. Boxing and wrestling will be held at the Forum and Winter Garden. Weightlifting and fencing will be in the larger gymnasiums or armories.

A 2,000-metre rowing course is being planned at Burnaby Lake, about five miles from the centre of Vancouver. The dredging of the course alone will cost around $200,000.

Smith doesn't expect the Empire Games to make money but he hopes they will break even.

Bunyanesque Tools

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—Evidence that giants once inhabited British Columbia has been found by W. E. and E. M. Norman, a father-and-son geology team here. In a 30-year search of their two-acre plot they found weapons only supermen could use—200 to 300-pound granite exes, huge belt axes, knife-handles and spears.

Wright Elected President Of Oarsmen

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Joe Wright Jr., of Toronto Argos yesterday was elected president of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen for 1952, succeeding Jack House of St. Catharines.

Wright, a former Diamond Sculls winner, will take over following this year's regatta. He is a starter for races and House will continue in the president's duties at the finish line.

House was appointed honorary president of the C.A.A.O. while Jack Guest Sr., of Toronto Dons, is the first vice-president and Claude Saunders of Hamilton Leanders is second vice-president.

Jack L. Murray of Kingston continues as secretary for his 24th term.

Tommy Alison, a former Toronto Argonaut Rowing Club president, was made a life member of the C.A.A.O. There are only two other living life members, Con Riley of Winnipeg and Dick Schram of Toronto.

One change in the program for the 1953 Henley was agreed upon. The senior pair-oared shells was washed out in favor of a junior 135-pound singles event.

The executive felt there was not enough interest in the pair-oared events—there is only one entry in this year's race—while the 135-pound single would give lightweight scullers a chance to compete.

NEW GROUP FORMED

A letter was read from Peter Heck of the Southwestern branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada at London, seeking admittance to the C.A.A.O. for a new London rowing group to be known as the London Athletic Club.

The group plans on rowing in backwater formed by the new Fanshawe dam, slated for completion near London this fall.

The C.A.A.O. promised complete co-operation to the London club and Lachine Rowing Club offered to supply the new group with enough shells and work boats to begin training in 1953.

Mounties Planning Friendly Invasion Of United States

OTTAWA (CP)—In shady, suburban Rockliffe, red-coated men of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are planning a friendly invasion of the United States.

The dress rehearsal for this invasion was staged yesterday in the R.C.M.P. riding school. There 32 mounties and their black horses went through the intricate patterns of their Musical Ride with which they will tour the U.S. this fall with a couple of shows in Canada, too.

The Mounties have performed in the U.S. before—in New York, St. Louis and Indianapolis—and found no trouble capturing their audience. They expect to do it again in Portland, Ore., Los Angeles and San Francisco with the first full-scale Musical Ride since 1949. Then they return to Canada for a performance at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto in mid-November.

Their boots, buttons and belts gleaming in the afternoon sun, the men and horses of the Ride were reviewed by their commanding officers—Commissioner L.H. Nicholson and Superintendent C.N.K. Kirk—and a battery of photographers and newspapermen.

Men and horses will wind up their month's intensive preparation for the tour this month with two performances in this area, one at nearby Connaught race track and the other at Belleville, Aug. 11. Then they will head for the U.S. unless plans mature for their appearance at the Toronto Exhibition Aug. 22-Sept. 6.

ALL EXPERT HORSEMEN

The Musical Ride is the climax of 10 months of tough training for 18 Mounties. That's how long it takes to put a recruit through all the steps needed to make him an expert horseman. Besides that, he's an expert with the lance he carries during the Ride, a yellow and blue pennant fluttering from its tip.

Fourteen men are old hands at horsemanship. They had graduated previously from the four-month horsemanship course which is a basic part of the Mounties' training. Many were out on regular police duties when they were picked to join the Ride.

About half of the horses have been used on previous Rides. An indication of the excellence of their training was the fact that not a horse moved a muscle when several planes flew overhead at less than 200 feet.

In command will be Inspector A.S. McNeil of Regina, one of the force's top horsemen who will come here to join his men later this month.

Russian Pleas Rejected On Repatriation

TORONTO (CP)—Soviet Russia and its supporting bloc met defeat yesterday on three issues at the International Red Cross conference which will be officially opened tonight.

Sharpest clash in three days of preliminary meetings developed over a Russian proposal that the I.R.C press for return of Soviet child refugees allegedly held in West Germany and the occupation zone of Austria.

The move was voted down by the Board of Governors of the League of Red Cross Societies. It also rejected Communist opposition to admission of West Germany to the Red Cross and an attempt to have Czechoslovakia included on the list of eight countries on the board's election committee.

Soviet delegates were supported mainly by Communist China, Czechoslovakia and Romania in all three moves.

PLEASED AT PROGRESS

Mr. Justice Emile Sandstrom of Sweden, chairman of the board of governors, said at the close of the day he was pleased with the progress of the meetings. He told a press conference he thought the press in general had been too concerned with possible differences between East and West at the meetings and too little about what the conference is doing from a humanitarian standpoint.

The governors' meeting was attended only by officials of national Red Cross Societies, which form the league. Government delegates had no vote but they can vote at general conference meetings which begin today with the first plenary session.

Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Governor-General of Canada and president of the Canadian Red Cross, will open the conference officially tonight at a meeting in Convocation Hall of the University of Toronto.

Two countries, San Marino and Ceylon, were admitted to the organization without opposition yesterday. Soviet opposition to admission of West Germany was based on the grounds that the application had not been filed early enough and that it formed only one part of Germany. There is no Red Cross organization in East Germany, occupied by the Soviet.

Highlight of the day's meeting came when Mrs. Sophia Speranskaya, a Soviet Red Cross delegate, asked for United States, French, British and Austrian help in repatriation of Soviet children she said had been held in West German ever since Second World War days.

Her motion lost on a vote of 8 to 5—a small vote from 71 voting powers. She said some 2,000 children were involved.

U.S. CRITICAL

British and United States delegates said the Russians have been asked repeatedly for information on the names and whereabouts of the children and that they have had little co-operation in getting the essential information.

The British delegate, the Countess of Limerick, said British policy is to repatriate any child in cases where the child's identity is established. The U.S. delegate, James T. Micholson, vice president of the American Red Cross, said the same subject has been raised for the last three years at various meetings. He asked why Russia "could not supply the names, since they know the locations," of the children in question.

Officials Pledge Compensation In Seaway Plan

CORNWALL (CP)—Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton yesterday told residents of this area they will be properly compensated for any property loss during construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project.

Gen. McNaughton, Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission, was answering residents along the International Rapids section of the river.

They had expressed fears to a sitting of the Joint Commission regarding property loss when a dam is erected three miles from here to tap the vast power potential of the river for New York state and Ontario.

Yesterday's was the fourth one-day hearing the commission has held. The others were at Ogdensburg, N.Y., Toronto and Rochester. The six-man body is being asked to pass on a proposal to harness St. Lawrence waterpower and report on the problem of high water levels in the Great Lakes.

FAIR COMPENSATION

Leslie Blackwell, representing Ontario and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission said compensation would be provided by Hydro at a "fair, current valuation." Provision was also to be made for special cases, such as highways, railroads and established businesses.

Spokesmen for the united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, the city of Cornwall and many of the affected municipalities joined in urging the I.J.C. to recommend establishment of a special body to administer the matter of compensation. They also urged setting up of a regional rehabilitation planning authority to work with the authorized agency.

TOTE ROADS—Tote-roads along the route of the 360-mile railway site into Ungava are busy with trucks hauling supplies for the big construction job. Here, an early-morning convoy from Camp Mile 28 starts out with pre-fabricated building sections for a new campsite. Tractors stand by at intervals along the road to pull distressed trucks from mudholes.

BRIDGE MOISIE—The Moisie River, another of the grim barriers encountered in the battle to develop the Labrador-Ungava iron, finally has been spanned. A 708-foot steel structure, across which one day trains will thunder laden with ore, begins where a 2,200-foot tunnel through solid rock ends. Just under the bridge the Moisie turns at right angles.

Lawyer Charges Opponent Hits "Below Belt"

WINDSOR — (CP) — One lawyer yesterday charged another with "hitting below the belt" at a provincial government inquiry into the affairs of the 350-bed East Windsor Hospital for Incurables.

R. R. Easton charged that questions which Norman Mathews, counsel for Hospital Superintendent Dr. P. J. G. Morgan, was asking a witness were unfair. Mr. Easton is counsel for M. F. Brobst, former chairman of the hospital board.

Under Mr. Mathews' questioning, the witness, Mrs. Madeline Campbell, hospital nursing supervisor, told of seeing Mrs. Elsie Morley asleep at the hospital switchboard on occasion and under the influence of alcohol on numerous occasions.

Mrs. Morley, Dr. Morgan's former private secretary, was the opening witness at the investigation which opened May 21.

COMMISSIONER CRITICAL

Commissioner Gordon Fraser, who is conducting the inquiry, said:

"I don't recall you asking Mrs. Morley anything about this when you had her on the stand for several days. . . Now you are trying behind her back. . .to prove not only that she is not competent but an inebriate. . . I can't stop you and I don't intend to try."

Mr. Mathews said he wished merely to question Mrs. Campbell about conversation she had with Mrs. Morley.

At this point Mr. Easton made his accusation: "You're hitting below the belt, Mr. Mathews."

"I wish you would stop interrupting me when I'm speaking to the Commissioner," Mr. Mathews replied.

Mr. Mathews then asked Mrs. Campbell who Mrs. Morley went to lunch with.

Mrs. Campbell said she didn't want to say who Mrs. Morley's luncheon companion had been. The companion was not Mrs. Morley's husband, however.

IT TAKES AN IRISHMAN to know how. Although he didn't win the recent pipe-smoking contest at Queen Mary's Hospital in Montreal, Patrick Morgan, who is a bit of a rubber-faced humorist, shows Diane McManus how a pipe should be smoked.

New Method Of Respiration

TORONTO (CP)—Adoption of the Holger-Neilson method of artificial respiration for basic instruction of Red Cross personnel has been recommended by the League of Red Cross Societies, it was announced yesterday.

Invented by a Dane, the new method has been in use for some 20 years in Denmark and recently has been widely adopted in the United States. It will replace the more-familiar Schafer method.

In the new system, the victim is placed face downward with the head resting on his crossed hands. The rescuer, squatting at the head of the victim, first presses on the back of the patient below the shoulder blades and then lifts both arms, holding them near the elbow.

By repeating this process at regular intervals, air is forced in and out of the lungs. The Schafer method pushed air out, but only indirectly aided the intake of air.

Hastings Church Has Annual Picnic In City

HASTINGS — (ENS). — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held its annual picnic at Riverside Park, Peterborough, on Wednesday. # Struck By Racing Log Blenheim Youth Killed

WEST LORNE (CP)—A 16-year-old Blenheim district youth was killed yesterday when struck by a log racing down a hillside chute on the Lake Erie Shore, three miles south of here.

Gordon Sheppy was towing logs to a nearby pile-driver when the accident happened. It was believed he was trying to loosen a log from the sand when another plunged down the chute and hit him. The logs were being used to build a groyne out in the lake.

Hack Railroad Bed From Ungava Rock

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

From the air, Labrador-Ungava looks about the most unlikely place in which to build a railway. The country is covered with lakes of all sizes and shapes, through which it might seem almost impossible to thread a way.

Fortunately, the 360 miles between Knob Lake in the iron-ore interior and Seven Island (Sept Iles) on the St. Lawrence is traversed by river systems. The job is to follow their valleys or take a foothold along their banks.

Starting northward from Seven Islands, the railway is being built along the Moisie and its tributaries, the Nipissis, Wacouna, Summit, Embarrasse, Menihek Lake, Astroy Lakes and, finally, Knob Lake.

All that water, even if is called the "grain of the country," can cause trouble. Along the way will be muskeg, sand, boulder cuts, rock cuts, ground cuts, loose rock cuts.

JUST LIKE B.C.

Just 12 miles out from Seven Islands, for instance, the Moisie looks like something that has strayed out of the mountain gorges of British Columbia. It roars southward, and then suddenly turns at right angles.

At that spot, the railway comes through a 2,200-foot rock tunnel, directly onto a 708-foot bridge which crosses the river, 150 feet below.

Perhaps one of the greatest thrills of sharing, even as an observer, in something accomplished, was to travel on one of the first diesel-electric locomotives to go through the tunnel and over the bridge.

For the Moisie had been a bottleneck—and, for that matter, on the far side men still were finding difficulty in hacking out of the high hillsides a ledge on which to make a roadbed.

John E. Stokes, Iron Ore Company's office engineer, said that piece of road was more difficult than crossing the north shore of Lake Superior, though probably less hazardous than British Columbia's Fraser canyon.

"From Mile 12 to 22, men creep along the rocky sides of the hills and, at places, engineers, chairmen and drillers hang by ropes over the cliffs, cutting the ledge," he said.

From sea level at Seven Islands, the rails will climb to 2,050 feet at Mile 150, and drop slowly to 1,700 feet at Knob. There will be 24 bridges.

Having said that it is possible to build such a railway, how do you get started in the first place, with nothing but a wilderness in front of you?

You want to work simultaneously at several places along the line, and you get at them in various ways. You land some supplies on ice from a light plane, near a favorable location. You cut your way in, you use a light tractor, and finally you have a foothold.

AIRSTRIPS NEXT

Then you build an airstrip and there you are—you are a link in the Labrador-Ungava airlift, the greatest civilian airlift ever seen, with 10 such strips between Seven Islands and Knob.

Of course, in the meantime you may have lost a few trucks and tractors through the ice, and nearly frozen to death trying to get them out.

Norman Delmage, manager at Knob Lake, said:

"Last winter we had five tractors go through the ice at one time, including a 29-ton tractor.

"A diver put a cable on it and we broke the ice ahead and pulled it towards shore. Fortunately there was a shoal 300 feet from where it went in. From there we were able to haul it under the ice to shallow water, and then blast the ice above it.

"That job took three days. We lost a few trucks. Next winter we will try to keep off the ice."

The tractors were coming in over a winter toto-road of frozen ground, frozen snow, and frozen lakes.

I heard something of those tractor trains down at Seven Islands. "A rugged deal," Harold McNamara, former newspaper man turned construction executive, called them.

SLEIGHS TAKE OVER

The trains went out of Seven Islands on wheels as far as Mile 163. There their cargo was loaded on sleighs, which were taken in tow by tractors with relay points 25 to 30 miles apart.

A tractor would take two sleighs, each carrying 10 to 15 tons, to a relay point, hand them over to another tractor, and return to its base with empties.

Preferably, the convoys travelled in the long winter nights, when the road was firmest, getting away sometimes in crackling below-zero weather, in whipping winds

The idea was to get in as much basic material as possible by winter road.

Three of the most frustrated creatures in Labrador came over that road last spring. They were horses, thin and tired from the 360-mile hike.

TOUGH FOR HORSES

As summer came they longed for green grass and they were turned loose. They touched the white cariboo moss, but that wasn't grass. They nuzzled down into it, only to get into a tangle of roots. They gazed at the low-growing green, tough "buck" brush—but it only "bucked" back at them. It's like rubber—it can't be eaten and barely can be cut.

Finally they ate some green stuff that grew in the lake.

It was no land for horses—strictly for the caribou and the furry-legged three-toed ptarmigan—a sort of grouse—or the odd bear, fox, mink or squirrel. The streams and lakes are more kind. They abound in fish, especially speckled trout.

Australia Cricitizes UN Red Tape In Korea

New Army Camp Costs $30,000,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The army's huge new training camp in New Brunswick is expected to cost $30,000,000, one of the biggest single outlays in the whole defence program of the next 12 to 18 months.

Roughly $5,000,000 of that is expected to be used to buy 600 square miles of land, enough to make it the largest army camp Canada has ever had and one capable of expansion to handle a full division if emergency makes that necessary.

The area chosen is between Gagetown and Westfield, a suburb of Saint John, in southern New Brunswick.

Work is expected to begin this fall and the aim is to start using the camp about September, 1953.

It will be the first army base in Canada capable of training a brigade all-year round. It and Wainwright, Alta., will be the two great training grounds for units slated for overseas duty.

The plant is expected to resume operations Monday.

Farouk Sets Sail For Italy After Abdication

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's new government re-established itself in Cairo today, promising a relentless country-wide cleanup of "bribery and corruption" in the wake of King Farouk's abdication. The country's new military power Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib Bey, promised he and Premier Aly Maher Pasha would "meet with armed force if necessary any attempt at demonstrations or disorders." Naguib warned, too, the army would tolerate no foreign interference.

As the cabinet quit the summer capital at Alexandria for Cairo, the ousted monarch sailed toward Italy in the royal yacht Mahroussa. With Farouk were his six-month-old son now Egypt's King Faud II, Farouk's teen-age second wife Narriman and his three daughters by a previous marriage.

One newspaper said the baby King would be returned to Egypt when he is seven. The age at which Moslem mothers traditionally lose control of their sons. The cabinet, meanwhile, temporarily held the royal powers pending creation of a regency council.

The Nile kingdom generally rejoiced at the departure Saturday night of fat, playboy Farouk, whose downfall started when the 51-year-old Gen. Naguib and a coterie of younger officers took over the army last Wednesday and forced the King to install Maher Pasha and a new anti-corruption government.

The cleanup was expected to probe into every section of the government, extending all the way to former cabinet ministers and palace officials. High on the action docket are charges against several high officials, including Farouk's cousin, Prince Abbas Halim, of supplying faulty arms to Egypt's army during the Palestine war.

BRITAIN ISSUES WARNING

Abroad Britain, remembering Cairo's disastrous anti-foreign fire riots in January, warned that she would take action if the Egyptian upheavals endangered British lives. Her 100,000-man garrison in the Suez Canal—which Egypt wants evacuated—was on the alert and troop-laden British ships sailed into the eastern mediterranean to be close by.

The Canadian aircraft carrier Magnificent and the British aircraft carrier Glory sailed unexpectedly yesterday from Istanbul, Turkey. British admiralty officials would not say whether they were heading for the Suez Canal zone Other British ships sailed from Malta.

Farouk was expected to head first for Italy and later go to France.

His fortune estimated at 50,000,000 pounds to 100,000,000 pounds—much of it invested abroad—will keep him in the fabulous luxury which he enjoyed during his turbulent 16-year reign even if, as one high government official said, he surrenders part of his wealth in Egypt to the state.

Iran Prepares To Reopen Oil Production

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh last night promised "exploitation of Iran's oil resources," indicating confident hopes of a settlement with Britain that would end the crippling blockade of this near bankrupt nation's chief money maker.

As the premier spoke to parliament at the height of new popularity, the newspaper Bakhtar Emrooz, which often reflects his views, hinted to the Shah that he should never stand in the way of the nationalists if he wants to avoid being ousted like Egypt's Farouk.

Mossadegh's plan for exploiting Iran's oil riches is part of a program for drastic reforms to lift the country from its present economic plight His program called also for higher taxes, land reforms, and work projects for the unemployed —measures which are bound to be opposed by many wealthy supporters of the government.

Debate on the premier's program is scheduled to begin tomorrow.

MORE MORE ——

NOTIFIES BRITAIN

Mossadegh was reported Saturday night to have notified Britain that Iran is willing to begin talks on compensation for the vast oil properties his Nationalist government seized from British authorities.

The Premier talked Friday with British Charge d'Affaires George Middleton, and although officials in neither Tehran nor London would disclose the nature of that talk, the newspaper Bakhtar Emrooz said Mossadegh had proposed selling oil to Britain and deducting part of the cost to pay for the nationalized properties once owned and operated by Britons.

Although Britain has indicated she is ready at any time to reopen negotiations on the year-old dispute, there was no assurance Britain would accept the new Mossadegh proposals.

But Mossadegh's position was bolstered considerably by the International Court of Justice ruling last Tuesday that the tribunal was not competent to judge Britain's suit against Iran for compensation. With this ruling in his pocket, Mossadegh was said to have offered to permit Britain to submit its claims to the Iranian courts.

Pick Shoosmith Clark Deputy

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today named Maj.-Gen. Stephen Newton Shoosmith, former head of the British military mission in Washington, as British army deputy to Gen. Mark Clark, United Nations Korean commander.

Defence Minister Earl Alexander made the announcement in the house of lords.

Shoosmith, 51, has been appointed deputy chief of staff to the United Nations supreme commander. At one time during the second world war, he served as military secretary to Prime Minister Churchill's cabinet.

Appointment of a British deputy was negotiated last month after a political storm blew up in Britain over United States bombing of the hydro-electric plants in the extreme north of North Korea, near the Chinese frontier.

Violent Wind Squall Smashes Salem Point

SALEM, Mass. (AP)—A brief, violent wind squall with hurricane wind gusts up to 85 miles an hour smashed through this famed old seaport yesterday leaving four known dead and at least three missing. The victims were in small craft capsized in the harbor.

The squall, accompanied by a driving rain, lightning and hail, struck a dozen communities, capsizing small craft, knocking out power and communication lines uprooting trees and felling telephone and power poles.

Some 200 craft capsized in Salem harbor which bore the brunt of the 20-minute storm. The U.S. coast guard and private motor launches rescued about 100 persons in small boats.

Fire Partially Razes Church Headquarters

MONTREAL (CP)—Fire of unknown origin today destroyed the two top floors of the four-storey residence of the provincial headquarters of the Roman Catholic order of Les Clercs St. Viateur in neighboring Outremont.

Brother Leo Bonneville, trapped by smoke and flames on the top floor, was rescued by firemen. Four Montreal firemen were partly overcome by smoke.

The fire broke out around 7:30 a.m. EDT in the rear of the second floor and spread up an elevator shaft to the third and fourth floors. Outremont firemen got help from Montreal after a second alarm.

Remanded 2nd Time

Larone was arrested at White River following the shooting of Provincial Police Constable Evan Gilmore, during a liquor raid. Gilmore is in a Toronto hospital.

Larone also is charged with resisting arrest.

Eight Dead As Crowds Throng Bier

Thousands Paying Final Homage To Mrs. Eva Peron

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Eight persons were reported dead and scores injured in the crush today as thousands crowded up to pay last homage to Eva Peron.

Doctors manning improvised first aid stations near the ministry of labor, where the body of Argentina's first lady was lying in state, said some deaths resulted from trampling, others from heart failure. They said thousands were given first aid, but most of these had only fainted. Many, however, suffered fractured legs or arms.

CALL IN TROOPS

Troops hurried in during the morning to help police control the crowds as they lined up four abreast in mile-long queues for a 20-second walk past the bier of President Juan D. Peron's wife and political partner, who died Saturday night after a long illness. Many waited eight hours for a glimpse of the body.

Just before noon, police issued a casualty bulletin counting four dead and 2,500 injured but public health ministry doctors said the numbers were higher than that.

A government spokesman said Peron had decided to keep the chapel open as long as needed for everyone to pay their respects and tomorrow's scheduled funeral may be postponed if necessary.

Mrs. Peron's death in her early 30s was generally attributed to cancer although there had been no official announcement of the nature of her illness.

The blonde wife of President Juan D. Peron lay in state in the hall of the labor ministry, in a glass-topped casket of mahogany draped in white orchids awaiting a full military funeral tomorrow. Tons of lilies, roses and carnations packed the hall and overflowed into the streets outside.

Crowds of mourners were first admitted to the improvised chapel yesterday and continued in an endless procession throughout the night and this morning.

Peron spent much of Sunday be-

Bus Rolls Over No One Killed

SALMON ARM, B.C. (CP)—An east-bound Greyhound bus carrying 24 persons swerved off the Trans-Canada highway 12 miles east of here late Saturday night and rolled over 3½ times in plunging 100 feet into a gorge.

Miraculously, no one was killed. All 24 were brought to hospital here, none in criticial condition. Five, including the driver, Albert Salter of Vancouver, were treated and discharged within a few hours.

The bus came to rest on its side beside a small creek. Most of the passengers crawled out of the window beside the driver's seat before someone was able to force open the emergency door.

Passengers praised the driver. He cut the ignition and lights as the bus was rolling over to prevent fire.

The bus was en route from Vancouver to Calgary when the accident occurred about 11 p.m.

Cruise Ship Rams Freighter 2 Seamen Die

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two seamen perished early Saturday when the American cruise ship Baranof thrust her bow deep into the starboard side of the Greek freighter Triton in a collision in Georgia Strait.

The 7,176-ton Triton was southbound from Campbell River, B.C., with iron ore for Japan and the 4,900-tons Baranof was northbound from Seattle for Alaska when the collision occurred of Nanaimo, 30 miles west of here, at 1:21 a.m. in clear weather.

The bow of the Alaska Steamships Vessel ripped an 18-by-15-foot gash in the side of the merchantman. Third engineer Theodoris Mouzaki was trapped and killed in the Triton's flooded engine room. Fireman Evangalin Voulgaris died in his shattered bunk.

Eight feet of the bow of the Baranof was crushed in. She made Vancouver under her own power. The listing Triton was towed to Nanaimo.

There was no panic among the Baranof's 150 passengers.

There was no immediate explanation for the crash. Visibility was 15 miles at the time of the collision.

Envoy Carries Secret Message

LONDON (AP)—Britain's ambassador to Egypt, Sir Ralph Stevenson, left by air for Cairo today carrying a secret message from Prime Minister Churchill's government to the new rulers of the mid-eastern kingdom.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, meantime, arranged to make a full statement in the House of Commons later today on the enforced abdication of King Farouk after Gep. Mohamed Naguib's military putsch.

Stevenson had cut short a vacation to confer with British leaders on the crisis which so vitally affects Britain's position in the middle east.

Two other British officers hurried back to their key posts in the region too—Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, commander-in-chief of Britain's mid-eastern land forces and Admiral Earl Mountbatten, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean fleet.

Spry Premier Stalin Watches Air Show

MOSCOW (AP)—Puffing on a pipe and looking spry, Prime Minister Stalin watched with lively interest yesterday the big aviation day air show over Moscow. His son, Lt.-Gen. Vasily Stalin played one of the leading roles in the show.

Accompanied by members of the Politburo, the Prime Minister saw jet and conventional planes and autogiros which filled air for more than an hour.

Ships Collide In St. Lawrence No One Reported Injured

QUEBEC (CP)—One of two vessels involved in a lower St. Lawrence River collision headed for Quebec harbor today while the other awaited arrival of salvage tugs. The Department of Transport said the John A. France, 3,300-ton Great Lakes freighter, proceeded on its own power when fog cleared slightly in the region off Ile Verte, 120 miles east of Quebec, where the collision occurred last night.

The Woodford, the other vessel involved, awaited arrival of the tugs Rocky River and Manoir.

Both rescue vessels were reported still anchored in fog a few miles from the Woodford.

There were no reports of injuries in either vessel though the Woodford was believed severely damaged.

The Woodford, operated by the Watts and Watts Line of England and represented in Canada by Cunard Steamship Company left Quebec last Thursday for Antwerp, Amsterdam and Rotterdam, with grain and mixed cargo.

The vessel is under command of Capt. D. G. Martin and has a crew of 46.

The John A. France, owned by Colonial Steamships of Port Colborne, Ont., was sailing from the Lower St. Lawrence harbor of Matane with a load of pulpwood for Erie, Pa., via the Great Lakes.

DIES AT WEEKEND — Eva Peron, wife of Argentina's president, died at the weekend after a long illness, believed cancer.

Order Investigation Into Ship Collision

OTTAWA (CP)—The Transport Department today ordered an inquiry into the collision of two ships in the St. Lawrence River last night.

The department said Capt. Napoleon Lachance, examiner of masters and mates at Quebec, has been named to investigate the collision between the collier Woodford and the freight John A. Francis off Riviere du Loup, Que., in the St. Lawrence.

U.K. Guided Missiles Travel At 2,000 MPH

ABERPORTH, Wales (Reuters)—Britain has developed guided missiles which can travel at more than 2,000-miles an hour and reach heights far greater than any bomber is likely to achieve for many years to come, Supply Minister Duncan Sandys said Saturday.

Sandys said these rockets were "four or five times" more manoeuvrable than a fighter plane and "We are coming within measurable distance of putting these fantastic new weapons into production."

Canadian Carrier Leaves UK Ships On Way To Egypt

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 18,000-ton aircraft carrier Magnificent is sailing to Malta today, in compliance with standing orders to keep out of trouble in foreign waters. Reports from Malta Sunday that she was heading for Istanbul for an "undisclosed destination" with British warships prompted unfounded speculation that she was being dispatched to the Mediterranean's latest hot spot, Egypt. But authoritative quarters said today Canadian warships sent abroad are under orders not to get into foreign political skirmishing without first consulting Ottawa and that the Maggie is going to Malta. She is due to leave the Mediterranean in late August after exercising with the British fleet.

A somewhat similar situation broke last year when the Maggie was in the Mediterranean at the time of the troubles in Iran.

Defence officials, explaining why Canada has twice sent her largest warships into that troubled area, said the simple reason is that the Mediterranean is an excellent place to train the men of an aircraft carrier.

Naval sources said the reason she sailed with British units from Istanbul was probably a matter of courtesy. They were ordered out to an "undisclosed destination" and she went with them—part way.

This prompted speculation that she was heading for Egypt to help out British forces in case the coup that ousted King Farouk may cause other trouble.

This speculation was squelched today.

The Maggie, Canada's biggest ship at 18,000 tons, was said to be heading for Malta while the two British ships she was with will go on to their "undisclosed destination," presumably Egypt

The Maggie has been visiting Istanbul as part of the British Mediterranean fleet with which she had been exercising for some time. Apparently when orders came for the British ships to sail the Maggie simply went along, but she is expected to part company with them.

Four Aliens Arrested On New York Shore

YOUNGSTOWN, N. Y. (AP)—United States immigration officers yesterday took into custody four men they describe as aliens who landed on the Lake Ontario shore just east of this Niagara County community.

Chief Patrol Inspector J. Russell Bramblett identified them as Walter Sperber, 19, Austrian, of Oshawa, Ont., and three Germans, Kurt Klos, 22, Jakob Ziehl, 28, and Fredrich Hildebrand, 21, all of Queenston, Ont. He said all were displaced persons.

Bramblett said the four were clad in bathing suits as they stepped from a motorboat. He said they are "temporarily held for deportation proceedings" in the Erie County penitentiary in Wende.

He said his men had been tipped that a landing was planned. Bramblett said the men protested they had landed because of motor trouble. He said a test of the motor proved it to be in good working order.

Bramblett said the men said they had rented the boat at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., just across the Niagara River international border from here.

Woman Blown Off Plane Into Ocean

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—A woman passenger was sucked out of her seat in a Pan American Airlines stratocruiser and blown into the Atlantic Ocean yesterday when the cabin door of the plane flew open.

The airliner was flying at an altitude of 1,200 feet 27 miles south of Rio de Janeiro and was en route to Montevideo, Urugay. The victim was identified as Mrs. Marie Elizabeth Westbrook Capellaro. She was making a business trip with her husband, Emilio Capellaro, 41, banker from Rome, Italy, who was seated beside her.

The door of the plane blew off shortly after take-of. The suction force of the wind was so strong it apparently yanked Mrs. Capellaro right out of her seat next to a window just forward of the door.

Capellaro, a representative of the Italian Commercial Bank, said he did not actually see his wife disappear. He said he and the other passengers felt the shock of the wind. Mrs. Capellaro had been taking pictures out of the window, and he was not looking at her directly at the time, the husband said.

The seat which she had occupied was twisted, part of the cloth lining the ceiling of the cabin was ripped off, and the door of a rest room was torn off by the force of the wind.

Top Criminal Caught By FBI

NEW YORK (CP)—One of the top criminals in the United States walked into a trap laid Saturday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation but killed an F.B.I. agent before being shot and captured in a blazing gun battle in a quiet Manhatten hotel.

Gerhard Puff, 38, wanted for a western U.S. bank robbery and listed among the 10 top criminals sought by the F.B.I. battled it out with a dozen F.B.I agents inside and outside the hotel, before he was wounded in the leg and captured.

One of the agents, Joseph Brock, 38, died of bullet wounds 40 minutes after the fight.

Puff was the second of the F.B.I.'s 10 most wanted men to be captured in two days. An alleged confederate, George Arthur Heroux, 22, was seized Friday in Miami, Fla.

With Puff cut down, F.B.I. agents dashed into the hotel and took two women into custody. The women said they are the wives of Puff and Heroux.

Edward Scheidt, chief F.B.I. agent in New York, said Puff had been turned in by a woman. He did not disclose whether the informer was one of the arrested women.

CINCINNATI (AP)—Luke Sewell resigned today as manager of Cincinnati Reds.

He had been manager of the club since Oct. 23, 1949.

Gabe Paul, general manager, made the announcement by telephone from New York and he said Sewell was at his side as he spoke.

Paul said:

"After several conferences over the past two weeks, the Cincinnati club has accepted the resignation of Luke Sewell as manager.

"This was done after contacting Mr. Powell Crosley (principal club owner) now in Canada. We have asked Luke to remain until we can get a suitable replacement, which we expect to have within 24 hours."

Report U.S. Radar Records Second Flying Saucer Group

WASHINGTON (AP)—Radar—which normally doesn't show something that isn't there—has picked up "flying saucers" near here for the second time within a week.

Jet fighter pilots searched the skies Saturday night and early yesterday without directly contacting anything during the six hours that four to 12 unidentified objects intermittently appeared on radar screens at Washington National Airport and nearby Andrews air force base.

One pilot said he saw four lights approximately 10 miles away and slightly above him but they disappeared before he could overtake them. Later, the same pilot said, he saw "a steady white light" five miles away that vanished in about a minute.

So far as could be determined, this was the first time jets have been sent on the trail of such sky ghosts.

Officials carefully avoided mentioning "flying saucers," just as they did when radar picked up seven or eight unidentified objects near Washington last Monday. But the U.S. Air Force was expected to add the report to its long list of saucer sightings, which officials say are coming in faster than at any time since the initial flurry in 1947.

An air force spokesman said all necessary steps are being taken to evaluate the newest phenomenon.

Radar normally does not register anything without substance—such as light. But it can pick up such things as a bird in flight or a cloud formation. And one expert said radar is not infallible.

Awarded Military Cross

Paratrooper Lands Plane, Saves Pilot

OTTAWA (CP)—A daring Quebec officer who proved his courage both in the air and on the ground has been awarded the Military Cross for valor in Korea.

The award to Capt. Joseph Patrick Rene Tremblay of Chicoutimi and Quebec City—a soldier who landed a plane and saved the wounded pilot from flames—was one of 13 announced today for men of the 25th brigade.

The O. B. E. went to Lt.-Col. Bernard Louis Persillier Brosseau, M. C., of Montreal and Beloeil, Que., the brigade's chief medical officer. The M. B. E. was given to five officers. The M. C. went to two officers and the Military Medal to five soldiers.

TREMBLAY CITATION TOPS

None of the citations quite matched that of Capt. Tremblay, an officer of the 2nd battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment, now back in Canada.

A year ago he was attending an air observer's course and the pilot of a plane he was in was wounded and fell unconscious. Capt. Tremblay, a paratrooper but not a pilot, grabbed the controls, navigated the plane back to its base and crash-landed. Although dazed, he clambered out, seized the pilot while the plane burned and carried him to safety.

He was credited with "moral courage of the highest order" and with saving the pilot's life.

Then last September, now a company commander with his unit, it was his "sheer determination and skilful handling of his weapons" that carried through an assault against vicious enemy fire. On numerous other occasions, says the citation, Capt. Tremblay has earned the admiration of his unit for his courage.

PRAISE CARE OF ILLNESS

Lt.-Col. Brosseau's citation spoke in the highest terms of his handling of casualties and his care of illness within the brigade.

The M. B. E. was awarded to: Maj. Harold R. Ferris of Saint John, N. B., of the ordnance corps.

Maj. Donald George, M. C., Winnipeg and Saskatoon, of the signals corps.

Maj. Charles Hamilton, Brandon, Man., supply staff officer at brigade headquarters.

Maj. Robert Laughton, Hull, Que. of the service corps.

Maj. John Orton, M. C., Innisfail, Alta., and Duncan, B. C., artillery.

The second M. C. went to another Royal 22nd officer, Lieut. Jean Paul A. Therrien of Bedford, Que., and Montreal who led his platoon "on some of the most daring raids into enemy territory."

A high degree of bravery under fire brought the M. M. to Sgt. Arthur Beaudin, Clarke City and Montreal; Bdr. Thomas Dearden, East Angus, Que., Pte. Douglas Carley, Belleville, Pte. Jack D. Johnson, Windsor and Montreal, Cpl. Arthur A. Scott, Aberdeen, Scotland and Harcourt, N. B.

Russia Takes Floor Trying To Unseat Nationalist China

TORONTO (CP)—Russia was expected to take the floor today at the 18th International Red Cross Conference to back up Communist China in an effort to unseat the Chinese Nationalist representation. The question came up Saturday when Dr. Su Ching kuan, leader of the Chinese Red delegation, protested that the Chinese Nationalists had no legal right to be represented at the conference and tried unsuccessfully to have them excluded.

The Chinese Nationalists, in turn, protested the seating of the Red Chinese, with Dr. J. Heng Liu objecting to "the Chinese Communist puppet regime." Both delegations are recognized at the conference.

Russian delegate B.M. Zonov, legal adviser to his delegation, then tried unsuccessfully to speak in support of the Red Chinese, but could not obtain a hearing.

John A. MacAulay, of Winnipeg, chairman of the conference, promised that the Russian delegation would be heard first at today's session.

ACCUSE U.S.

In a report of the Chinese Red Cross society's work the Chinese Communist delegation directly accused the United States of waging germ warfare in Korea. The report, in the section headed "general epidemic prevention and first-aid training," said:

"...The germ warfare started by the American government has also failed to achieve its purpose."

Charles B. Marshall, chief of the United States government delegation, said in a statement Saturday that the U.S. government had suggested investigation by the International Committee of the Red Cross and that "the complaining party has consistently refused to submit the allegations to the impartial study of this committee."

Another weekend development was a protest by a group which claimed to represent the former Red Cross societies of nine Iron-curtain countries. The group, with Boleslaw Palka, secretary-general of the Canadian Polish National Congress acting as a spokesman, held a press conference to discuss, "the perversion of the Red Cross societies behind the Iron Curtain."

NO OFFICIAL STATUS

The group has no official status here, however, and its letters and memorandums to international Red Cross heads have gone unanswered.

Briefly, it claims that Red Cross societies behind the Iron Curtain are political bodies dominated by the Soviet government, and that they are not fulfilling the humanitarian aims of the Red Cross.

There was no indication the protests will be definitely brought out at the conference proper. International Red Cross leaders have indicated their intention of keeping controversial political matters out of the conference as much as possible.

Steel Workers Still Grumble

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Steelworkers stepped-up the pace of their back-to-work movement today but a few still grumbled over the wage settlement reached with big steel.

The undercurrent of dissatisfaction centred in a 5,500-member local of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) at Jones Laughlin's south side Pittsburgh plant.

James McLaughlin, president of Local 1843, said his group voted during the week-end to return to work but under "protest." He said he will forward the protest to the steelworkers president, Philip Murray.

McLaughlin said the principal complaint stems from the fact that the wage increase is "not across the board"—giving the same increase to all workers regardless of their type of work.

The basic agreement calls for a 12½ cent an hour increase to the lowest paid classification and increases that mount by a half-cent up through 25 classifications, with the highest classification worker getting 25 cents an hour.

Car, Truck Collide Buffalo Man Killed

Allen was in the Crane car, which rolled over twice, hit a house and knocked down a large sign before coming to a stop.

Training Guides In Britain For Coronation

LONDON (CP)—The problem of suitable guides during Coronation year is one of many to be tackled by the British Travel and Holidays Association. The need of this service will be jealously considered both from a standpoint of protection for the tourist and the prestige of the association, according to a report just published.

From November of this year until next January applicants for the roles of guides will be given a course of 16 evening lectures. They will then be given practical tests to see if they know their stuff.

Students taking the course will be expected to have a good working knowledge of English history, geography, topography, national and local government, art, architecture, current exhibitions and special events.

Only a limited number of applicants will be accepted. Those who pass written and practical tests will be given a certificate and a badge.

The association is not concerned with guiding from a commercial standpoint. It main function is to provide personnel who can do the job properly—and so reduce the chance of tourists being duped by opportunists.

New Wheat Rust Threatening Crops

WINNIPEG (CP)—A virulent new wheat rust race is threatening a bumper grain crop in the Canadian west.

In two weeks farmers in Saskatchewan and western Manitoba will know the extent of damage. An estimated 4,000,000-5,000,000 acres of wheat and barley may be affected.

It all depends on the weather. Authorities say a two-week period of hot, sunny weather with warm winds would greatly reduce the menace.

Under attack is a lush Saskatchewan crop that has never been short of moisture during the growing season. If the rust does not hit, it could be a bumper crop.

The Manitoba crop was planted much earlier, and officials say early cut crops should escape with little or no damage.

The menace is Race 15B, a stem rust first noticed in Pennsylvania in 1938 and first found in Manitoba at Killarney in 1946.

Must Maintain Strength Canadian Envoy Warns

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP)—Hume Wrong, Canadian ambassador in Washington, said Saturday the "western world must aim not only at creating situations of strength, but at maintaining them indefinitely."

"To do so," he said, "its economic power must be made secure. It must be supported by the development of new sources of the materials needed to keep up its productivity, to maintain its social structure, and to equip its armed forces."

Speaking at an opening session of the Colgate University conference on foreign policy, Mr. Wrong said the resources of the western world are great, "but not so great that any unnecessary drain on them can be afforded, such as that which arises from abnormal import restrictions and currency arrangements."

Somehow or other means must be found to mend this "chink in the armor of the free nations."

Mr. Wrong stressed the need for both military and economic strength.

He said:

"We can only begin to feel sure that war will be avoided when the like-minded nations have become so strong that their power would only be challenged by madmen.

MAY RAISE IRON CURTAIN

"Then perhaps the 'peaceful coexistence' to which Stalin often refers may become a reality; issues now insoluble may become negotiable; the Iron Curtain may be slowly raised; and the United Nations may begin fully to serve the purposes for which it was designed."

Aid from Canada and the United States, in some cases, has encouraged European countries to maintain import restrictions and other protectionist tendencies. The European countries maintain that it is only aid from North America that enables them to keep their heads above water.

"Yet," he said, "one of the central purposes of the economic aid granted to other countries since the end of the war has been to promote multilateral trade and to remove from its channels blockages of the sort which still persist."

No country could claim a perfect record for efforts to foster restoration of multilateral trade.

Mr. Wrong pointed to the action of the United States Congress when it inserted into a defence act a provision barring imports of cheese and dairy products. This was "admittedly" a contravention of trade agreements.

Villagers Plan Campaign To Start Shrine

LONDON (CP)—Residents of two Kent villages, Minister and Eastchurch, have joined forces in a campaign to set up a shrine to commemorate Isle of Sheppey as the birthplace of aviation in Britain.

The proposal is to erect the shrine in the gatehouse of famed Minister Abbey.

It was near the tiny village of Eastchurch on lonely Sheppey Island in the Thames Estuary that the Wright brothers and the Frenchman Bleriot flew their pioneer airplanes.

Eastchurch also served as the headquarters for the Short brothers, among Britain's earliest designers of heavier-than-air machines. And it was from there that Winston Churchill made his first flight.

TRAINING BASE

Sheppey also served as the training base for thousands of young airmen, including many Canadians, in the Royal Naval Air Service and subsequently the Royal Air Force of the First World War.

In those days prospective pilots and navigators, for bomb-target practice were flown in open-frame, bamboo-strutted "pusher" planes capable of travelling all-out at 80 miles an hour.

The plan is to exhibit models, photographs and souvenirs of early aviation and aircraft, in the proposed shrine.

Prices Remain Mixed On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—Prices remain mixed and trendless today in slow early afternoon stock market dealings.

Industrials, golds, base metals and western oils opened cautiously as mixed support checked last week's upswing. A few secondary golds showed early strength but profit-taking skimmed most gains by noon.

Volume for the first three hours was 906,000 shares.

Papers, retail stores and miscellaneous issues drew firm industrial support while utilities and foods slipped. Steels, agricultures, refining oils and manufacturing companies were mixed.

Western oils drifted downward.

Base metal leaders balanced a scattered list of gains and losses but lower priced issues dipped.

Senior golds eased. Dome, Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger and Wright-Hargreaves edged downward. Secondary issues were mixed.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indices showed industrials up .33 at 323.19, golds down .09 at 92.56, base metals down .15 at 194.99 and western oils down .57 at 139.20.

Jet Bomber Startles Residents Of Sault

SAULT STE. MARIE, (CP)—A United States Air Force B-45 jet bomber, flying over the city and dropping a series of photo-flash cartridges, early today brought residents from their beds in alarm.

Part of a joint Canadian-American air-defence training exercise, the mission was a test of the usefulness of fast jet planes in aerial photography by night.

The plane, flying at about 500 miles an hour, was followed on the radar screens of American anti-aircraft batteries stationed at the locks here.

Says Bar Charge "Exaggerated"

TORONTO (CP)—Judge J.M. Robb, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Licence Board, said today The Observer, official organ of the United Church of Canada, "exaggerated the case" when it criticized the board for allowing the setting up of what it called "a bar" just outside the campus of Queen's University at Kingston.

The Observer Saturday asked Judge Robb to state on what basis the licence was granted.

The board chairman said a banquet permit was issued for reunion luncheons for Queen's home football games. University officials had assured him the "bar" was not being set up by the university, nor was it to be on the campus.

Drowns In Garbage Can Party Filled By Rain

MARKHAM—Looking for water to fill his sand pail, 21-months-old Gregory Liddiard Saturday night toppled into a garbage pail containing six inches of rainwater and drowned. He was found half an hour later, his feet protuding from the top of the pail, by 8-year-old Mary Jane Chapman.

Gregory had wandered behind the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Small, while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Liddiard, were talking to the Smalls, their neighbors, on the front lawn.

Unionville volunteer firemen and Dr. James Scott of Markham tried artificial respiration for nearly an hour, without success. Coroner Dr. F. F. Ball of Stoufffville was called.

Mr. and Mrs. Liddiard have one other child, a daughter, Janis, 4 months. They moved to Markham from Toronto in April.

Provincial Plebiscite Asked By Anglicans

TORONTO (CP)—A report of the Anglican council for social service made public today recommended that Ontario people be given the "privilege of a provincial plebiscite to decide on the methods of outlet and control" of liquor.

The report said there was an "increase in the drinking habits of Canadians."

The report was prepared for the general synod of the Church of England in Canada at London, Ont., in September.

Italian Scientist Explodes H-Bomb

ROME (AP)—The newspaper Giornale d'Italia says today an Italian scientist has exploded Italy's first hydrogen bomb.

The influential pro-government newspaper says the bomb was built by scientist Ubaldo Losche, a pupil of the noted physicist Enrico Fermi and a fellow student of Prof. Bruno Pontecorvo, Italian-born British scientist believed to have fled beyond the iron curtain.

The eight-column, front-page report says Loschi had been working on the project since 1937. It says the bomb "was obtained through a process of synthesis of hydrogen."

Seek To Improve Reading Habits

VANCOUVER (CP)—University of British Columbia has set up a course to help people with "painfully crippled reading habits."

Under direction of Margaret Sage, students are given tests to determine intelligence, aptitude, personality and reading ability. From this data the course is worked out.

First step usually is reading of a film projected on a screen which flashes a phrase at a time with speed varying from 100 to 500 words a minute.

The students views these films several times a week until he can master 400 to 500 words a minute with ease. After each viewing he writes an examination testing his understanding of what has been read.

Another test if the tachistoscope, or flash meter, which projects whole sentences on the screen for split seconds.

side the casket. After a private funeral mass, attended only by government ministers and intimate friends, he ordered the restless crowd admitted. They had shouted to see the body, and once broke a police cordon to get closer to the entrance.

Peron's decision still was awaited on his wife's permanent burial place. Two suggested sites are the new headquarters of the multi-million dollar social foundation which she headed, or in a great national monument built for her.

Temporary internment, at her own request, will be in the hall of the 6,000,000-member General Labor Confederation. She was unofficial head of the confederation, and her following among its members made her the nation's most potent political force after Peron himself.

SPECIAL FUNERAL

The nation's military chiefs decreed her a funeral hitherto reserved for presidents who died in office. At the hour of burial, all Argentines will observe five minutes of silence. Church bells throughout the country will toll for 15 minutes.

Two days of national grief and 60 days of official mourning were declared. Radio broadcasting is limited almost entirely to sacred music and bulletins of the Ministry of Information. Humorous programs are banned for 30 days.

Unprecedented mourning by Argentina's masses—who called her Evita (Little Eva) and looked upon her as a Cinderella who had risen from their own ranks to heights of glory—began the instant her death was announced.

Foreign Minister Geronimo Remorino received members of the diplomatic corps last night bringing their official condolences. Telegrams of regret poured in from heads of the world's governments, including Queen Elizabeth.

Hot Air, Video Won't Disturb 'Falls' Theatre

By ROD CURRIE

TORONTO (CP) — A summer theatre with an international flavor has sprung up at Niagara Falls, Ont. Its producer, Maude Franchot of Niagara Falls, N.Y., declared neither hot air nor television will disturb her plans for its future.

Mrs. Franchot, aunt of movie-star Franchot Tone, scoffs at the "so-called T-V threat."

"Actors," she said in an interview while visiting Toronto, "prefer the stage."

People stayed home to see quiz shows and movies, but they still turned out for live theatre.

As for the hot air—an air-conditioning system she has installed in the Collegiate auditorium has solved that problem.

A small woman with a golden tan, Mrs. Franchot is a grandmother "the same age as this century."

She lives in a 23-room Georgian style mansion which she says is filled constantly with theatre folk, either dancers going through routines on the lawn or musicians practising on the front porch.

That has been her life since the Niagara Falls Summer Theatre opened last season. And she has managed to line up an imposing list of acting talent from both sides of the border.

VISITING STARS

Franchot Tone, Edward Everett Horton, Blanche Yurka are among the stars who have appeared with the resident company which is composed chiefly of Canadians.

Television, says Mrs. Franchot, doesn't appeal to actors because "they get a job on a half-hour television show and then, poof! They are out of work."

"If they strike a good play that has a long run they can make a lot of money in a short time," she said.

"Canadians," Mrs. Franchot continued, "are the most sought-after actors in the English-speaking world—because, having no union affiliation, they can act without threat of penalties."

If an English actor appeared in a United States production which failed, he was prohibited from acting in that country for six months.

Young Canadian actors had more experience than youthful U.S. performers.

"In the U.S., actors might get with 'Oklahoma!' or a similar hit and stay there for years," she said. "Here, they keep on the move and get more variety."
